REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Does the note read "Dave Walker?"

MR. KOHN: Yes sir it does; Dave Walker. It says: "Note, calendar, Tuesday April 21, 1953, hold for Dave Walker. Refused May '53, approved June 1954."

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Is this a Philadelphia case?

A Yes.

Q And the David Walker who was the Secretary, where was he from? Philadelphia?

A I don't know.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Didn't your informant tell you that?

A No.

Q What made the informant volunteer this information to you, at this particular time?

A We were discussing the cases, and one of the persons with whom I discussed the cases observed that a Dave Walker had been Secretary of Labor and Industry.

Q How many persons were you working with?

A Oh, I don't know; I have been working with—

Q I mean on these cases?

A There have been four, eight, nine—at least nine besides myself.

Q On the files upstairs?

A Yes. Nine people did not work on the files. I have been working, obviously with the Board of Pardons—

Q It might have been one of them?

A Yes.

MR. KOHN: That is all.

SENATOR FLEMING: I think it is grossly unfair, where a man's name appears on a note, to have it go into the record.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is why I suggest we suspend judgment until we find out what Mr. Nissley has to say about it, or possibly—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think it is wrong to identify him without getting further information.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I did not notice such reticence when we were talking about Democrats.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We had no such note as this, however.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: We had letters referring to people and we didn't know who they were, and so forth. I didn't notice that anybody was so anxious to protect them—

SENATOR FLEMING: General, this is the first time I have protested since the hearing has been going on.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I must say, Senator, I agree with your protest.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Weren't all Democrats subsequently identified by the Secretary?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I am hoping this will be subsequently identified.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I don't think this should be identified as the former Secretary of Labor and Industry until such time as we have further confirmation of it. Proceed.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q The next case.

A The case of Stanley Curry, Jr., No. A-2284, January Session, 1954, scratched through and above it, March 1954. The application is for commutation of sentence, which was 10 to 20 years, and $100 fine, for armed robbery committed in Delaware County, sentenced on May 21, 1952. He started serving his sentence, according to his application, on April 16, 1952. In the file of this case is the following letter:

Letterhead of Pennsylvania, Office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, Harrisburg, Gene D. Smith, Secretary of the Commonwealth.

"Mr. Victor Lozinak, Chairman
"Retail Liquor Licensees Ass'n.,
"7020 W. Garrett Road
"Upper Darby, Pa.

"Dear Victor:

"Please be advised that the Stanley Curry case, which was scheduled to be heard by the Board of Pardons on Tuesday, January 19, 1954, was continued until the March hearing. I am retaining your letter in my files, pending that hearing.

"With kindest personal regards, I am

"Very sincerely yours,

"Gene D. Smith,
"Secretary of the Commonwealth."

A search of the files of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, the correspondence files of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, was requested by myself and a negative report was returned to me. No letter from Mr. Lozinak to Mr. Smith was found.

Q Was that application acted upon favorably?

A Yes.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Anything else, Mr. Kohn?

MR. KOHN: I have no questions.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q The next case.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Just a minute.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Do you think there is anything peculiar about not being able to find the letter he referred to?

A No, I was just anticipating a possible question by a Member of the committee, or perhaps counsel, as to the letter that Mr. Smith was referring to.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Yes, we have had an awful lot of that experience during this investigation so far.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: What experience is that?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I said we have had an awful lot of that experience in this investigation so far where notes have referred to letters which we were unable to find in the files.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Now what was the sentence in that last case?

A Ten to twenty.

Q How soon did he get out.

A After 1 year and 9 months.

Q One year and 9 months on a 10 to 20—

A No, wait, I am sorry. I am confused here. " . . . even though this applicant has served but 1 year and 9 months, we are recommending that his sentence be commuted to 2 years."

Q A 10 to 20 sentence cut down to 2 years?

A Yes.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Were there any recommendations by the judges or the district attorney in that particular case?

A There is a letter on the letterhead of the Office of the District Attorney, Delaware County, Raymond R. Start, District Attorney, dated March 12, 1954, "Joseph Nissley"—it would appear that the district attorney is making a single letter do for a number of cases which were before the Board from Delaware County that month. On this piece of paper appears the following:

"Stanley Curry, Jr. The application of Stanley Curry, Jr., should be denied because it appears, in our viewpoint, to be presented prematurely considering the nature of offense and the sentence imposed thereon."

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Who was the sentencing judge?

A Judge Toal.

Q Was there any thunder from Judge Bretherick on that one?

A I haven't heard it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: There would be no occasion for any thunder from Judge Bretherick on it because he was not the sentencing judge.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: There was no other cases, he thundered when the Democrats turned anybody loose.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think that remark was out of order.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Mr. Attorney General, was he judge then or was he a Philadelphia lawyer then?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: He was judge.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Mr. Chairman, I submit I ought to be permitted to ask another question in view of the fact that I did not get a full answer to my last question whether there was a recommendation from the judge.

THE WITNESS: There is, Mr. Lopresti. I have now found it. On the letterhead of the Court of Common pleas, 32nd Judicial District, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Delaware County, Media, Pa., December 28, 1953, addressed to the Board of Pardons, in re: Application of Stanley Curry, Jr.

"Gentlemen:

"I have examined the application of Stanley Curry, Jr., which was forwarded to me by your Board and find the facts stated therein essentially correct. It is my opinion that any action by your Board to commute this sentence at this time would be premature as the defendant pleaded guilty to armed robbery and the circumstances of the case were such that the court was impelled to inflict a substantial sentence.

"Very truly yours,

"William R. Toal."

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Mr. Wright, in this particular case, then, we do have a case where a man was commuted against the judgment of both the court and the district attorney?

A Yes.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Was there any complaint by Judge Toal about that?

A There doesn't appear to be any in the file. I have never heard of one.

Q There was no complaint before this committee on that case, was there?

A Not that I recall.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: In fairness, I might say that Judge Toal and Judge Bretherick complained about both the Democratic and the Republican Boards.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: This would seem to be an outstanding case if they wanted to make any point of it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We might have made something out of it if we had access to the files.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: What was that, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I say, perhaps we might have made a case out of it if we had access to the file.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You had access to the files.

SENATOR YOSKO: If you didn't have access to them, you have access to them now.

MR. KOHN: We never had these cases, Senator Yosko.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You didn't look for them.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: You couldn't look for them.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That isn't true. There is no use being too partisan about this, Mr. Chairman.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q The next case, Mr. Wright.

A William Edward Snyder, No. 9181, April Session 1952, application for commutation of two sentences, 7½ to 15 years, and 2½ to 5 years, to be served consecutively, or 10 to 20 years, for rape and sodomy, Centre County, sentenced August 24, 1942; started serving sentence July 17, 1942. In the file is the following letter:

"House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Pa., Preston A. Frost, 143 Frazier Street, State College, Pa., March 30, 1950.

"The Honorable
"Pennsylvania Pardon Board
"Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

"Gentleman:

"The name of William Edward Snyder will come before your Board at its April 1950 meeting for pardon.

"This will certify that I have known this boy from childhood. Our family lived neighbor to Mr. Snyder's family for about 15 years. During these 15 years my daughters played with this boy and his sister.

"From my knowledge of William Edward Snyder, I have never been able to make myself belive that there was anything criminal in his nature.

"He is confined to our local prison and I understand he has been a model prisoner.

"His late father was a good mechanic and had a very well equipped machine shop at his residence. I understand that the boy has developed into a good machinist and is very much interested in that line of work. His mother has the means to start him in this line of work in the shop used by his father at their home. It seems to me now, while his mother is living, it would be a fine opportunity for him to get a start in life as his mother, who now lixes most of the time alone, is very anxious to have him back home and would provide a very fine home for him as well as give him guidance and help in a gainful occupation.

"I sincerely believe that your favorable consideration in the pardon of this boy is justified.

"I certify that I have no other interests in this matter other than the interest of the public, the boy's best opportunity to make a good citizen and the concern for his mother.

"Yours truly,
"P. A. Frost."

BY MR. KOHN:

Q The boy had no previous arrest, did he?

A I haven't consulted—

Q Well, the record shows none.

A I will accept your statement.

Q And this letter was dated when?

A March 30, 1950.

Q You stated the number of this case was 9181, April 1952. So he had served 9 years, 10 months of a 10 year minimum, is that right?

A Approximately.

Q Actually the Board granted him 2 months off of his minimum in this case.

A That is what the recommendation states, 4 months off.

Q He asked for 4 months but actually when he got it it was 2 months off, was it not? Look at the top part. He had served 9 years, 10 months out of 10 years.

A Yes.

Q No previous record?

A According to his application, yes.

MR. KOHN: That is all.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q That is all?

A Yes.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Any further examination? That is all, Mr. Wright.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I have some questions I would like to ask Mr. Wright.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q How many people were working with you going through the files, digging out this information?

A Altogether there were 4 people. I think no one of those four worked full time at it. They were in there only part time. One man was there most of the time, two of them were there most of the time.

Q Do you know how many files they went through to pick these out?

A They went through the files from—or I directed them to and I presume they did—through the files from January 1950 through December 1954.

Q A period of 4 years?

A Yes.

Q During that period of time there were about 4,000 cases heard is that right?

A I really don't know how many there were.

Q When they found these cases, what did they do?

A They segregated them and kept them, gave them to the Secretary of the Board, advised him that they wanted them kept aside; in other words, so they would not get back in the file and be dissipated again.

Q Have they been in the Secretary's possession all this time?

A No. Since the morning of the day I first testified with respect to them—whichever day that may have been—they have been in my possession.

Q In your possession since that day?

A Yes.

Q Prior to that they were in the Secretary's possession.

A Yes.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Were you ordered not to give them to anyone?

A No.

Q I asked him and he said he couldn't give them to me because the attorney General's office had them.

A That may have been.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You mean specific cases you asked for?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well now, General, there has been a great deal of criticism of this committee that we did not go back into the files of cases prior to 1955. I find that files were withdrawn from there and it would have been an impossibility for our investigators to have found those records in there.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You had five or six weeks to do it. When it became quite obvious you weren't interested in doing it, Mr. Wright started to do it, and, as he testified here, these particular cases were in the possession of the Secretary until the very day he brought them before the committee to testify from them.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I would like to know how long they were in the possession of the Secretary. Our men were looking back through the files—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: They never were out of the possession of the Secretary.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: They were not in the proper place in the files.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, they must have been. When they were collected, they must have remained right there among the other files, available to anybody, because nobody else had them.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: They were segregated, however, Mr. Wright said, and placed in the hands of the Secretary.

THE WITNESS: Certainly, so that we would have access to them.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: How would you expect that our investigators would run across these cases by going through the files if they were segregated and placed some place else?

THE WITNESS: I don't know, except perhaps by asking the Secretary for them.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Mr. Chairman, let's get it straight. If you will recall, when letters were being read into the record concerning Democratic influence, Mr. Bell made the suggestion that other cases, beginning on a certain date, be brought in. Then I amended his suggestion by suggesting that the Attorney General look through the files from 1950 on, and if there were other letters dealing in politics, mentioning political figures, that they be brought in. Now the Attorney General and Mr. Wright have done that at the request of this committee.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: We didn't do it before then.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Our Counsel and this committee have been condemned for not having gone into these cases, and I am now saying I don't know that they could have gone into them when the files were taken out and segregated.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: We didn't take them out until after the statement by Mr. Lopresti was made before this committee. Now there is no use making a to-do about this and trying to condemn us.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: There has been criticism of this committee on that question.

SENATOR YOSKO: Now just a minute. I leveled the criticism at this committee for not listing cases that were heard by—

MR. KOHN: There has been no criticism of counsel, Mr. Senator.

SENATOR YOSKO: There are 6 cases I gave you just a short time ago that are not among the 17 that if they were looking for they could have found. There may be another 100 cases that you could list for hearing, but they were looking for specific cases. They were looking for cases in which there were letters written by politicians or others. That does not necessarily say that there are not other cases where there are no letters, that might merit public hearing.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Your situation is different from this one because you said you had specific cases. We asked you to give us information as to the names of those cases.

SENATOR YOSKO: And I gave you the names of the cases.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Sure, you did, on Monday of this week.

SENATOR YOSKO: Because I gave you six, that doesn't say that is all the cases there are.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I agree with you there.

SENATOR YOSKO: So if there are fellows who want to look for them, they can find them.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The fact of the matter remains that these cases were segregated and our investigators could not have found them, had they been looking for them.

We stated we were not going to limit this to January 1955. We stated that from the beginning of these proceedings.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: It may be significant, however, Mr. Chairman, that until this moment neither this committee nor its counsel has brought before us for discussion a single case beyond the tenure of the present Pardons Board.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: You cannot do it prior to the time that you can schedule it, either.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: I know, but it is significant that we have not discussed any.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Mr. Chairman, while we are having a round-robin on letters, apparently Mr. Hean, has made a very thorough search during those two years in response to my request, and I read in the newspapers all he has found have been two letters from New Jersey Congressmen and one letter from a New Mexico Senator, and this week they got a letter from a Congressman in Pennsylvania.

Now I will leave it to the committee to judge as to whether that is a fair, impartial search. It seems mighty wrote to this committee or this Pardons Board during the period in which there were found the New Jersey and New Mexico inquiries.

SENATOR SCOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask a question. General McBride, are we finished with all the letters?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes.

SENATOR SCOTT: Would you again like to reiterate your statement that you are placing those letters into the record not to show any wrongdoing on the part of the last Pardons Board but you are doing it purely to—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I am more than happy to reiterate it. I have not changed my position at all and I think that I am taking an impartial position. I am not criticizing the Republican Party for doing something that I wouldn't criticize the Democratic Party for doing.

SENATOR YOSKO: Let me say what I have said a dozen times. The Pardons Board has absolutely no control over who writes letters on what stationery. What ought to be considered is not the stationery the letter is written on but the substance of the letter.

If I, as a public servant, or any person on this committee, as a public servant or public official, would want to write a letter on behalf of somebody, certainly it should not be construed as political influence.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Senator, I agree with you 100 per cent, but that is not the issue that I raised.

SENATOR YOSKO: I don't want to rehash this thing all over again, Mr. Chairman, but at the first meeting we had—or was it the second meeting we had— our staff was to prepare two lists, one was to contain all of the cases involving capital punishment, and the other list was to contain cases other than capital punishment cases.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We have rehashed that and it will serve no good by going over it again.

SENATOR YOSKO: I have not to this day seen either list.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That is all, Mr. Wright.

MR. KOHN: I have four cases here I would like to dispose of, if I may. They are along the same lines.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Proceed, Mr. Kohn.

MR. KOHN: I want to say this to Senator Yosko. He has been harping ever since these hearings started about giving us cases. He gave them to us Monday of this week. Three of them we already had in our files and had prepared. So I mean it is very easy for someone to sit up there and start telling us what to do and what not to do, but we haven't had very much assistance from Mr. Yosko.

SENATOR YOSKO: I am not talking about assistance.

MR. KOHN: I am. I am talking about assistance and you haven't given us one bit of assistance.

SENATOR YOSKO: I am not supposed to do your job. You know as well as I do that each time you complained about lack of help, I was the one that volunteered the suggestion to put people on.

I say to you now, Mr. Kohn, if you need some more people on your staff, I will vote to put them on.

MR. KOHN: And I say to you now, Mr. Yosko, for weeks you have been talking about—just a minute, let me finish—you have been talking about giving us cases; and this week is the first time you gave us any cases.

SENATOR YOSKO: I am not supposed to give it to you.

MR. KOHN: What is the use of coming in here and saying you are going to.

SENATOR YOSKO: Where are those two lists you were supposed to compile?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right.

DAVID S. KOHN, Recalled on

DIRECT EXAMINATION

THE WITNESS: Mr. Chairman, I would like to dispose of four cases here. Mr. Hean gave us letters from Members of Congress and I think these also ought to go in the record.

The first case I would like to call to your attention is the case of Stephen S. Terlesky. I might state that in all of these cases commutation was denied. However, inasmuch as they do contain letters from Members of Congress, Mr. Hean has turned them over to us, I think in answer to Mr. Bell's letter, that they should go into the record.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, how can they possibly be helpful? The question is not who writes the letters but whether or not it is possible to infer that there was some influence. If they have been denied executive clemency, how can that possibly be helpful?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We will take it for what it is worth.

THE WITNESS: Mr. Hean gave them to me. I don't want to keep them out and have him accuse me of not putting them in the record.

This is the application of Stephen S. Terlesky. He was charged in Northampton County with fradulent conversion. The facts were that he had been a reputable real estate dealer in that county for quite a number of years. He took $5000 in down payments on development of homes, from 9 people. The Parole Board statement is that he paid these out for commissions and operating expenses in trying to get started. He could not return the money and was sentenced in Northampton County to 2 to 4 years and to make restitution.

His case came up before the Board—he was sentenced on November 22, 1955—his case came up in the October Sessions of 1956. Judge Woodring advised that he had no objection to the Board exercising their discretion under the facts and District Attorney Palmer had no objection to commutation being granted the applicant by the Board. He has an excellent prison record. The reputation of the applicant is stated as follows: Applicant had an excellent reputation in the community prior to the commission of the offenses. He was very active in charitable drives in the city of Easton. He was also considered one of the leading real estate brokers in this area. Applicant has no previous criminal record.

The Board refused this application. The only thing in the file that Mr. Hean called to my attention was the fact that there was a letter from Congressman Walter, Francis E. Walter, dated August 10, 1956, on the stationery of the Congress of the United States. The letter is as follow:

"Dear Mr. Hean:

"I am informed that an application for commutation has been or will be filed on behalf of Stephen S. Terlesky who is serving sentence in Northampton County Prison. To the best of my knowledge this is Mr. Terlesky's first offense. I am confident he will in the future conduct himself as a law abiding citizen. I respectfully request careful consideration of his application by Members of the Board."

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. Kohn, who appeared on behalf of the applicant before the Board?

THE WITNESS: Virginia R. Terlesky, and I checked the testimony. She appeared before the Board. I think I showed it to you, Senator. It was just exactly one paragraph. The entire hearing consumed one sheet, just one sheet of typewritten paper.

SENATOR YOSKO: Just let me say at this time that I concur in the sentiments of Congressman Walter. In my opinion this application should have been approved, because I believe that the sentence was exorbitant.

THE WITNESS: There are quite a few other letters in, but none of them—

SENATOR SCOTT: Who was the sentencing judge?

THE WITNESS: Barthold, Woodring and Frack. I think there were three of them sat at the time of sentencing. There are three of them listed.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Was it a plea or a trial?

THE WITNESS: A plea.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: This was the court sitting en banc to sentence?

THE WITNESS: That is right.

SENATOR SCOTT: Commutation was denied?

THE WITNESS: Yes. Good prison record, excellent previous reputation, no previous record.

SENATOR YOSKO: I have often said I wondered what made the Board tick, and I still wonder. As I said before, I believe the sentence in this case was exorbitant. I join with Congressman Walter in the opinion that the applicant should have had his sentence commuted.

I just wonder how many casse were acted on favorably during the same term, and the types of applications, the types of crimes that were committed. I would like to make a comparison between them. Here is where I am not arguing about granting one; I am arguing about not granting one.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: In any event, nobody can contend there was political influence.

SENATOR YOSKO: That is right.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Senator, you didn't write a letter in this case, did you?

SENATOR YOSKO: No, I didn't. I probably should have. And I would not consider it political influence if I did.

THE WITNESS: The next case is Peter Prenni, A-6727, January Session 1956. This man was convicted of first degree murder and sentenced on March 4, 1947. He pleaded guilty, was tried, and the case was taken up to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

August 20, 1956 on the stationery of United States Senate, Dennis Chavez, United States Senator, 310 U. S. Court House Albuquerque, New Mexico, wrote a letter to the Board of Pardons:

"Dear Mr. Chairman:

"I was contacted by Father Peter Prenni, of Lourdes Village, Albuquerque, New Mexico, who asked me to write to you to inquire what you might be able to do to obtain or recommend a parole for Pete Prenni, #C-131, who is now an inmate at the Western State Penitentiary.

"I have written to Warden A. C. Cavell and received a reply. I also received a medical report on the inmate.

"Not knowing in detail the reasons why Mr. Prenni is in the penitentiary, I cannot state the merits of his conviction, but after reading the medical report, it seems as if this man is paying for any crime he might have committed in the past.

"All things being equal, anything you might be able to do to help him obtain a pardon or parole will greatly be appreciated by everybody concerned.

"Sincerely,

"Dennis Chavez."

Mr. Hean wrote the following letter in reply:

"August 23, 1956, Honorable Dennis Chavez," the address.

"Dear Senator:

"Receipt is acknowledged of your letter of August 20, 1956. I wish to advise you that Pete Prenni was sentenced by the Oyer and Terminer Court of Indiana County, Pennsylvania, on the 4th day of March 1947, to life imprisonment for the crime of murder in the first degree. The applicant plead not guilty and stood trial. The jury hearing the case brought in a verdict of guilty, but recommended mercy. The offense for which he was found guilty carries with it the death penalty. However, the jury has the right to recommend mercy.

"The prisoner was charged with killing one Mary Vranko in the perpetration of the crime of rape. His defense was that the victim drew a knife, whereupon he picked up a club and struck her on the head, which resulted in her death.

"The application of Pete Prenni was heard by the Board of Pardons at its November 1954 Session and again at its January 1956 Session. His applications for commutation of his sentence were refused. The Board, at the time of the hearings, had before it the medical reports as to the condition of this applicant. Both the Judge and the District Attorney of the County expressd their opposition to any commutation of sentence.

"I have written you rather at length on this matter, believing that you are entitled to some of the factors that were involved in this case. The applicant is eligible to file another application for hearing at the January 1957 Session of the Board.

"Very truly yours,

"Frank R. Hean,
"Secretary."

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Kohn, does it appear in there whether or not the defendant was a resident of New Mexico, as a reason for the intervention? Or was it a relative?

A No I think it is apparently—if you recall the beginning of the letter it said, "I was contacted by Father Peter Prenni of Lourdes Village"—somebody who might have been a relative. The defendant's name is Peter Prenni. He was contacted by Father Peter Prenni, who, I think, was probably a misspelling. The first name might not have been the same. Either they are both named "Peter Prenni" and they are related or the "Peter Prenni" that contacted Senator Chavez perhaps had another first name.

This was the case of a 70 year old woman and the defendant had been drinking prior to that time, which defense he used, but the jury convicted him nevertheless.

Q How old was the defendant?

A I can tell you that very quickly. He was not very old. About 35 or 36 years of age.

Q Very well, proceed.

A It was a question of whether or not he was drunk at this time, drunk enough not to know what he was doing.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Well, did they do anything for Senator Chavez?

A No. I said that in the beginning, didn't I? Do you want me to repeat it?

Q No, but I just don't understand that.

A I don't understand it either. I don't understand why Mr. Hean picked these out and gave them to me and kept the others. I don't understand that either.

Q If Mr. Hean told you to jump off a bridge, you wouldn't jump off the bridge, would you?

A I certainly don't want to be accused by the Department of Justice or Mr. Hean for not bringing out the things he gives me, in answer to Mr. Bell's request.

Q You are bringing it out as a favor to Mr. Hean.

A There is a letter here in the case of Anthony Baerchus A-2291, September Session 1956, to commute the minimum sentence on a charge of burglary, which was 15 to 30 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. He was from Lackawanna County. He started serving 8-7-47.

The only significance to this is a letter—this was also denied—which was received from Hugh J. Addonizio, Member of Congress:

"Gentlemen:

Anthony Baerchus, E-69 at State Penitentiary, Graterford, Pennsylvania, has applied for commutation.

"I will appreciate your giving every possible consideration to his case.

"Sincerely yours,"

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q How do you spell the Congressman's name?

A H-u-g-h J. A-d-d-o-n-i-z-i-o.

Q Where is he from?

A I will have to get that original letter out. This is a copy. This is from the 11th District of New Jersey.

Russell Storm, A-2868, commute my minimum sentence, the charges armed robbery, sentenced to Graterford on February 3, 1954. The case came up before the February 1955 Session. He was sentenced to 2 to 5 years. There is a letter from Honorable Daniel J. Flood, Member of Congress, from the Wilkes-Barre District, dated June 6, 1956:

"Chairman Parole Board
"Department of Justice
"Commonwealth of Pennsylvania
"Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

"Dear Sir:

"I would like to bring the attached letter, which I received from Russell Storm, to the attention of the Board.

"Please be good enough to let me have your comments, returning the enclosed letter with your reply.

"Sincerely yours,

"DANIEL J. FLOOD, M.C."

I would not even bother cluttering up—if you want to put it in, I will put it in—I see no significance at all in the letter.

MR. KOHN: Now we have other cases here, Mr. Chairman, which we would like to go ahead with, if you would like to clean them up.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think Mr. Bell has a question.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: I would like to ask Mr. Hean a question or two.

FRANK R. HEAN, Recalled on

FURTHER DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Mr. Hean, did you make a thorough search of your records for the period January 1955 until the end of 1956?

A I went over the records in reply to your request, if we had any other letters in our file from Members of Congress, and I found 3 or 4 that I handed to Mr. Kohn.

Q Was it a thorough search?

A I wouldn't say it was a 100 per cent, but it was a rather thorough search through about, oh, eight or nine hundred cases.

Q Did you find any other letters:

A No. I picked out all those I found that had the letterhead of a Member of Congress, either House or Senate.

Q The only two Pennsylvania Congressmen were Congressman Walter and Congressman Flood?

A That is right.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Did you look at the Taraborrelli case? Or didn't you find it?

A Offhand I don't recall whether I did or not.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Did you limit your search to Members of Congress?

A That is all.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: That was my request.

THE WITNESS: There was a general request from some Member of the committee as to letters that might have a tinge of political influence. That is the time when 4 men at different times— not working together—went over approximately 5000 files looking for such information.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: My request was for letters from United States Congressman and United States Senators.

THE WITNESS: That is correct, Mr. Bell. I tried to comply with it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Did you want to make a statement?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: About the time? Did I want to make a statement? I just wondered how long you were going on.

MR. KOHN: We would like to put some of our cases in.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: All right, I have no objection to your doing it. I am supposed to go elsewhere on an important consultation.

SENATOR SCOTT: Is there a time when you are supposed to be there?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The time for the meeting was quarter of three, and it is now quarter after. I don't press it. Perhaps if it is just these routine cases, upon the assurance that it is just these routine cases—

MR. KOHN: I will say to you, Mr. McBride, that there is nothing in these cases which I think Mr. Wright couldn't handle.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Kohn has assured me there is nothing will come up except these routine cases, and upon that assurance, I ask the committee to permit me to go.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We don't know exactly what cases they are. Should any questions come up over them, General, we certainly will set them aside, if there is any controversy over any of them, until next week.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I appreciate that very much. Then you will excuse me now.

MR. KOHN: I might say, Mr. Chairman, that we have given Mr. McGuire a list of these cases to come up.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I hadn't seen it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The committee would like to continue until 4:00 o'clock, because the more we can get in, the quicker we can conclude our work.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I understand that thoroughly.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We will take a ten minute recess.

(Short recess)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Very well, Mr. Kohn.

MR. KOHN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to call my associate, Mr. Evans, who has researched some cases. The only significance to these cases is the fact that he researched them, plus the fact, of course, that they have received newspaper publicity and I think they should be publicly aired.

JAMES WILLIAM EVANS, Recalled on

DIRECT EXAMINATION

THE WITNESS: This is the list we started on the other day. The first one I have on my list is the case of Lester Gore, but I don't believe Senator Yosko wants that to come up at this time, do you?

SENATOR YOSKO: No.

THE WITNESS: I have a series of 3 cases, John Donald Greenawald, A-564, John Vincent Franklin, I haven't got the number here on it, and John Korkabecz A-1822. All three of these cases were heard in the February Session 1953.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Were these accomplices?

THE WITNESS: I will make a statement relative to all of them right now, I see nothing in the file indicating improper influence of any kind, but we point out these cases for the benefit of the committee on possible remedial legislation because in all 3 of these cases—and I am certain there are more, but I picked these 3 out—there were two Members of the Pardons Board voting but not sitting, which I feel is a bit unusual under the circumstances.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q When were those cases heard?

A February Sessions of 1953. The two Members in each of those 3 cases voting but not sitting were Lloyd Wood and William Livengood.

Q In that connection, I think the constitutional requirement is that it would take a quota of 3 Members to act.

A That is correct.

Q It doesn't say they must be sitting.

A No, it says nothing about that, but we are pointing it out to the committee for whatever purpose it may serve, if there is any remedial legislation of any kind.

Q Now what offense was involved here?

A In the case of Greenawald it was murder, first degree murder. He was asking for commutation of a life imprisonment sentence. Commutation was granted.

Q How long did he serve?

A He had served at that time 21 years.

Q Where was that from?

A Westmoreland County. The next one, the case of John Vincent Franklin, the defendant was sentenced for burglary and larceny and some other minor charges, for which he received a sentence of 5 to 10 years. His minimum sentence was communted from 5 years to 4 years and 1 month.

Q What county was that from?

A That was from Lehigh County. The next one, John Korkabecz, was sentenced 8 to 20 years from Lackawanna County for burglary. The Board commuted the minimum sentence to 4 years and 1 month.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q What year were they?

A They are all the same Session, February 1953.

MR. KOHN: We have the original, signed William S. Livengood, voting but not sitting.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: What are the reasons they gave?

THE WITNESS: This is John Korkabecz. I will give you a resume, if I may. He was 18 years old at the time of the commission of the crime. The Board felt it was an unduly severe sentence. He has a good prison recommendation. Both the trial judge, Judge Eagen in Scranton, and the district attorney leave the matter to the Board. The Board felt the boy had been sufficiently punished. That is a summary of the reasons for the commutation.

MR. KOHN: Do you want the others?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Yes, what were the reasons?

THE WITNESS: John Vincent Franklin, it seems that this man had an unusual situation. While he was in the Eastern State Penitenttiary he aided the officials in preventing a murder in the institution. Thereafter he was transferred to the Montgomery County Prison for his own safety.

Both the trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary and Montgomery County Prison state that he has an excellent institutional record. The trial judge favored this application. The D. A. had no objection. That is the basis for the commutation.

MR. KOHN: I think it is very important that the Board consider that these people were voting on cases, a murder case and other cases, that they evidently did not sit on and hear. That is the reason that we brought them to your attention.

THE WITNESS: There are other cases of this type that we have not brought to the attention of the board; I mean we just picked out these.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q If a Board Member does not sit and hear the case, is he eligible to vote on it in spite of that?

A As far as I know, there is nothing to prevent him from voting on it.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q How many Members of the Board constitute a quroum for the purpose of hearings? Or did they have a hearing in these particular cases?

A There were hearings in all these cases. The Constitution provides there must be at least 3 Members favoring. I know of no restriction how many must sit for a quorum.

Q In these particular cases there were hearings, two were not sitting, and three voting?

A Yes.

MR. KOHN. All of them voted?

THE WITNESS: They all voted. I believe, in these particular cases.

MR. KOHN: We had the same situation in Commonwealth against Nick Spaleno, which was under the present Board, and Mr. Cohen didn't sit but he did vote. Now I am not making any implication—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Are you raising the question, should a Member vote who does not sit and hear the case?

MR. KOHN: That is the question that is involved in those cases.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Have you searched the records of that particular session to determine whether these two men did not sit in on any other cases on a particular day and then acted upon all of them? Or was it just one or two cases?

A. I am almost certain that the answer to your question is that on this particular day in February 1953 neither Mr. Wood nor Mr. Livengood heard any of the cases.

Q. And they acted on all of them you think?

A. I am quite certain of that. I can't say certainly, but, as my recollection goes back—I didn't make a notation—but I think that was the case.

Q. Can you do this for me without too much work: Check on that particular Session of the Board and indicate to this committee whether or not those two Members of the Board sat during any part of the session and then tell us what cases they voted on?

A. I believe we can do that without too much trouble.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Any other members of the committee? Mr. Wright, do you have any questions on these 3 cases?

MR. WRIGHT: No.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Very well, proceed Mr. Evans.

THE WITNESS: The next case we have is the case of Harry Mayo. This is a case where the defendant was convicted of murder. We bring this case to the attention of the committee because it was mentioned more than once in newspaper articles.

Incidentally, this case involved the murder of a policeman. In the file we find no evidence of any political influence of any kind, or improper influence of any kind. There are no so-called political letters in the file. It was commutation of a life sentence. This was heard in June 1955.

In justification of the Board's decision in this case, there were many letters from people of all walks of life favoring this commutation. As a matter of fact, there is a letter in the file from the wife of the victim, in which she states that she had "sincere doubts" as to whether or not the defendant was guilty at all.

He had served a substantial portion of a minimum for second degree murder—

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q. He was convicted of second degree murder?

A. He was convicted of first degree murder. This was a commutation of a life sentence. I haven't got the exact number of years he served, but, as I recall it, he served 12 or 13 years. As I say, a substantial portion of a minimum for second degree conviction.

There were many letters in this file—

Q. That seems to be quite a thick file. How many times was he before the Board?

A. No, this is the Shaeffer file. We had Mayo here somewhere, I don't know, unless someone has picked it up. I had it.

MR. KOHN: Go on to the next one. We will come back to Mayo.

THE WITNESS: We covered the case of Paul Shaeffer the other day. The next one we have is the case of Theodore Elliott, No. A-1615, heard in February 1955. This is a commutation of a death sentence to life imprisonment.

Again, this case is brought before the committee because of a great deal of publicity in the papers throughout the State on this commutation. This again is a cop killing, so to speak. The Board recommends the commutation of the death sentence on the reasoning that the defendant was a mental defective, and that seems to be supported entirely by the record, by the reports of the psychiatrists both for the Commonwealth and for the defendant.

In this case there was an unusual situation where the psychiatrist who had testified for the Commonwealth at the time of the trial, and testified that the defendant was legally sane and able to undergo a trial, understand the nature of the trial, the psychiatrist himself several years later became incarcerated in a mental institution as a mental degenerate.

The Board seemed to base a great deal of strength on that argument, that the man was a mental defective, and it was certainly supported by the record.

Again in this case we find no evidence of any kind of any political influence or other improper influence.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Mr. Evans, I went over this case quite thoroughly last evening by myself and there were some things that came to my mind there that I tried to bring out with Mr. Finnegan this morning. The record in that case indicates that past psychiatric examinations indicated him to be a mental deficient or mental defective. The psychiatric report that was taken by the court at the time of sentencing states that the psychiatrist who gave that report was later confined to a mental institution himself and there was some question as to whether or not he was sane at the time he made his report.

I found nothing in the file, however, to indicate that the Pardons Board had made any investigation on their own to determine what his mental condition was at the time they considered his pardon. This is one of the issues I was trying to bring out with Mr. Finnegan this morning, as to what the Pardons Board does in a situation of that kind.

Is there anything in the record to indicate that the Pardons Board did have an investigation made at the time the case was before them for consideration?

A. Not to my knowledge, except—

Q. I know there are a lot of past psychiatric reports in there; but was there any report of his condition at the time the Board considered the case?

MR. KOHN: Mr. Chairman, while he is looking at that, may I make a statement at the request of Lieutenant-Governor Furman?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Yes.

MR. KOHN: He had asked us to check our file. I had made a statement in the Nicholas Spaleno case that Mr. Cohen, the Attorney General, had voted on that case and did not sit. I would like to call to your attention that in that case there was no commutation granted, while in the previous 3 cases we have in 1953 there was commutation granted by the signatures of two persons who did not sit.

In the Spaleno case it was not granted. The record therefore does not contain a recommendation of commutation but the records of Mr. Hean show that there were 4 "noes" and therefore of necessity, Mr. Cohen had voted on that case but it might very easily have been an error on Mr. Cohen's part—I mean Mr. Hean's part—in counting Mr. Cohen there.

Mr. HEAN. May I explain that? At times during the session a Member may be called to the phone or to his office, and leave the Board. Therefore we note it as not sitting for that particular case. But he may return, and then sit in executive session. That happens from time to time.

THE WITNESS: I find no record that the Pardons Board had an independent psychiatric examination, although it runs in my mind that there were several psychiatric examinations made just shortly before this matter was considered by the Board.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The reason I raised the issue, Mr. Evans, I went through the case very carefully last night, and that situation sort of stuck out like a sore thumb.

THE WITNESS: There does not appear to be anything in the file which would indicate that the Board of Pardons had their own psychiatrist examine.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The last psychiatric report they had in connection with this applicant, then, was one which occurred prior to the time of the commission of this offense, other than the one given to the court by the psychiatrist who later himself was declared incompetent. There is quite a record, I know, of psychiatric examinations.

THE WITNESS: There are a number of them in here.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: But you have found nothing of any current examination at the time of the consideration by the Board?

THE WITNESS: The answer to your question as far as I can see, is no.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Governor Furman, would you be able to make any statement on that?

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR FURMAN: I didn't hear your question.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I tried to bring out that with Mr. Finnegan this morning, as to what independent investigations are made by the Board in connection with statements that are made before the Board. This case is one that involves a mental defective or deficient. There are a lot of past phychiatric reports in the file but there is nothing to indicate that there was any psychiatric report on the defendant current with the consideration by the Board of the case.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR FURMAN: I don't recall particularly in this case, but I do know that where there is a question about those reports, we have gone into the matter of investigation. I think it was in the hearings in February we had a case that was referred back to the courts, asking them to appoint a commission to make a study of the applicant—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That was the case where the defendant was adjudged insane between the time of sentence and the time of the date fixed for execution, as I recall.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR FURMAN: Yes, but I can't recall this particular case. I know we have made investigations.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: This was a case that was written up quite prominently in the papers. There were a great many controversial newspaper accounts, controversial communications, and the entire matter seems to have been resolved upon psychiatric reports which were taken even prior to the time of the commission of the offense.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR FURMAN: I think at the hearing that was discussed very thoroughly by the attorneys and the information they had was submitted. It all appears in the testimony of that case.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I wish you would examine the case, Mr. Evans, because that point to me is rather important.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR FURMAN: It would be in the transcript.

THE WITNESS: It might very well be. I don't recall having seen it. I know the thought occurred to me at that time. The best I can give you on my recollection is that there was a psychiatric examination that was accepted by the Board which was made just shortly before this was presented to the Board.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR FURMAN: I think that is correct, although my recollection is rather hazy.

THE WITNESS: I can remember the age of 9 years was the mental age of the defendant that was given.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That was in prior psychiatric reports, however, as Io recall it.

THE WITNESS: This was shortly before this was presented to the Board. I have the notation here that a reputable psychiatrist stated he was mentally ill and was such prior to 1950. I am almost certain that that examination was made sometime shortly before it was presented to the Board.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The reason I raised it is because I didn't find it in the record any place. How many times was this case before the Board?

THE WITNESS: I believe only twice. According to my notes in October 1952 it was refused and it was finally granted in February 1955. In between that time there were numerous appeals both to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania and to the—I know it got as high as the Circuit Court of Appeals in the Federal jurisdiction—it may even have gotten to the Supreme Court. I think it did.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: You say there was a commutation granted in this case?

THE WITNESS: Yes sir.

MR. KOHN: How much time did he serve?

THE WITNESS: Well, he was not sentenced until April 10, 1951; commutation from death to life. Incidentally, on this case, the Assistant District Attorney representing the D. A.'s office in Philadelphia—

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q. Is this the same case?

A. The same case, Elliot case, had no objection to the commutation.

Q. Wasn't there some criticism of that position?

A. There was. There are a number of newspaper articles in the file. There is an article from the Inquirer under date line of February 21, 1955, apparently criticizing the Assistant District Attorney for favoring the commutation at the hearing. The following day, on February 23, 1955, the reply of the Assistant D. A. was printed in the Inquirer.

There are several other articles, but they are the gist of the editorials.

Q. This involved the murder of a policeman?

A. Yes sir; in the robbery of an Acme Store.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Mr. Wright, do you have any questions?

BY MR. WRIGHT:

Q. What was the basis for the position taken by the District Attorney's office?

A. I believe, as I recall it, he agreed with the argument set forth by counsel, that the man was mentally defective and that there was at least a reasonable doubt as to whether or not he was mentally defective at the time of the trial, based on the fact at that time the psychiatrist, at the time of the trial, had since become a mental degenerate. I believe he died from it, as a matter of fact, the psychiatrist.

Q. And also the fact that the district attorney stated that the mental defectiveness of the applicant had been otherwise established?

A. I believe that is correct.

MR. WRIGHT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to suggest that Mr. McBride has a rather intimate knowledge of this particular case—much more than I do—and I would like to ask that he be permitted to comment on it when he returns.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We told him we would reserve that right for him.

MR. KOHN: We think that is agreeable. Not only that, but we are not finding fault with this case. I want that known.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: One thing I am concerned about is the latest psychiatric report they had on this applicant prior to the time they acted upon it.

MR. EVANS: There was some legal question raised at the time as to whether or not he could be executed in view of the fact that he was now mentally ill. I believe that question was raised before the Board.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I don't like to shut you off, Mr. Evans, but the hour of 4:00 o'clock having arrived and the committee members have other distances to travel, we will recess these meetings until 10:00 a. m., Wednesday, April 10.

(At 4:05 p. m., the hearings adjourned until 10:00 a. m., Wednesday, April 10, 1957.)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: General McBride, we are about to take up the Darcy Case or Cases. The Pardon Board file in this case discloses the following:

One, you were consulted as an attorney in this case at the time of trial.

Two, you were counsel of record for Darcy on an appeal to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

Three, on June 29, 1949, you wrote to Governor Duff, asking that no execution date be fixed for Darcy because you wanted to file a write of certiorari on an appeal for Darcy.

Four, on August 22, 1949, you again wrote to Governor Duff, asking that no date for execution be set for Darcy, as you that week were filing a writ of certiorari with the United States Supreme Court.

Five, there is nothing in the record to indicate that you have ever withdrawn your appearance for Darcy. You as defense counsel were seeking to obtain as such the very thing this Pardon Board has granted and which this Committee is charged with investigating. There being nothing in the record to show your withdrawal from the case, you will still appear as defense counsel for Darcy and defense counsel for the Board of Pardons in justifying your actions.

Under these circumstances I feel the position you have taken is in conflict with the interests of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which you now represent as Attorney General. While these matters have been previously raised with you, I feel that before going into the Darcy cases these facts should again be called to your attention.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, you have called them to my attention with a frequency that begins to sound like a broken record. You have always prefaced your remarks by stating that you were speaking on your own and not for the Committee. You state today that you yourself feel that they ought to be called to my attention. They have been on numerous occasions.

I find no inconsistent position whatever in my having taken the position I did in the Darcy case and its procedure through the courts. I never appeared for Darcy before the Board of Pardons.

When you say that my appearance was entered for Mr. Darcy and was never withdrawn, you engage in a subtlety which escapes even me and undoubtedly escapes all other lawyers. My appearance was never entered before the Board of Pardons for Mr. Darcy. I never sought Execeutive clemency for Mr. Darcy. I never appeared directly or indirectly in any such efforts. I was never consulted about executive clemency for Mr. Darcy.

The request for failure to fix the date of execution so that further legal proceedings could have been had is an automatic procedure taken by every lawyer who wishes to go before the Supreme Court of the United States. Therefore, it is not true, as you very subtly suggest, that I am seeking, as you put it, what was granted by the Board of Pardons in this case.

The Darcy case is not before this Committee at all. In any event, approximately six weeks ago, in all fairness, I said to this Committee that if there was any disposition in the minds of the members of the Committee to decide that I were disqualified, then, in fairness to the Board of Pardons that decision ought to be made in ample time so that the Board of Pardons could retain counsel of its own; or in such a head-on clash between the executive and legislative power, recourse could be had to the judicial power for the proper solution. You have not chosen to do that. So far as I know, you have not even had a vote of the Committee or sought a decision of the Committee.

Your own personal efforts to raise this question in an attempt to embarrass me is part of your conduct of this investigation in which you have acted in such a partisan fashion, expressing glee over every kind of bit of evidence that was introduced that might embarrass the Board of Pardons, and you expressed public chagrin when any evidence would come in in its favor. I think you are raising this only for political and newspaper purposes, and I will not disqualify myself. I am not disqualified and I say it with a conscience and sence of equity and decency at least equal to your own.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: In order that the record may be straight I might state that this question was initially raised with the approval of the entire Committee. The statement I have made this morning has the approval of the majority of this Committee.

We have called these matters to your attention for the purposes of the record.

Mr. Kohn?

MR. KOHN: Is Dan McNeill here? (No answer in the hearing room.)

Mr. Chairman, I have here a return of subpoena served on Dan McNeill, Kingston, New Jersey Trap Rock Company, on the 15th day of March, 1957, by my associate, James W. Evans, who at that time interviewed Mr. McNeill and elicited certain facts from him. McNeill was subpoenaed here for the 3rd day of April, 1957, at 10:30 a.m. At that time he failed to show up. Subsequent to that failure to be here, I instructed Mr. Evans to contact him again, which he did last Friday, and Mr. McNeill made certain statements to him. I would like to call Mr. Evans.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order.

It has never seemed to me heretofore to be admissible, even in this type of proceeding, to interview a man, and then just report to this Committee what that man told the interviewer, without any attempt to enforce the subpoena. Certainly the proper effort should be to apply to the proper court and force the man to come if he was properly served.

SENATOR SCOTT: It wasn't indicated to me, Mr. Chairman, that that was what Mr. Kohn was attempting to do.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I may be in error.

SENATOR SCOTT: I thought Mr. Kohn was going to attempt to interview this witness as to what was said betweeen him and the person who was going to appear here this morning. What was your purpose, Mr. Kohn?

MR. KOHN: I intend to show the fact that the subpoena was served and that there was a conversation relating to the Darcy case in this matter and what the attitude of the witness was in regard to appearing here.

In regard to Mr. McBride's position, I think his position is untenable. I think what this Committee wants to hear is a matter for them. It is not a matter for the court of law or matter of defense for Mr. McBride on behalf of the Pardons Board. I think we have a right to show why a witness is not here, what he said about the matter and what excuse he has given for not being here.

In regard to the power of this Committee to subpoena, Mr. McBride made a statement that that should have been taken up in proper action. I am not defending, sir, our action in the matter because I don't think it is up to Mr. McBride or anybody else to tell this Committee how to run its affairs. However, I did feel it was necessary, in order to establish our position in this matter, that we check the law in the matter and find out just exactly what power this committee had to subpoena. As a result, I call your attention to 18 P. S. 4212, Refusal to Obey Legislative Subpoena, which is the Act of 1939, June 24 P. L. 872, Section 212, which reads as follows:

> "Whoever wilfully neglects or refuses to appear and testify before any committee of either branch of the General Assembly or before any joint committee thereof, after being duly served with a subpoena to so appear, or is in contempt, by reason of any such neglect or refusal so to appear and testify, or either, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to imprisonment not exceeding one (1) year, or to pay a fine not exceeding $500, or both."

The question is whether or not this legislative committee has a right to issue such subpoena beyond the Commonwealth in enforcing court action.

Act of June 13, 1842, P. L. 491, Section 1, reads as follows:

"WITNESSES: power to issue subpoenas, compel attendance, and commit to prison; payment of expense of imprisonment:

Each branch of the legislature shall have the power to issue their subpoena, as heretofore, practiced, into any part of the commonwealth, and by attachment to compel the attendance of all persons summoned as witnesses, and in case any witness brought to the bar of either house shall refuse to be sworn or affirmed, or having been sworn or affirmed, shall refuse to render an answer to all legal questions duly propounded, the speaker of the house before which such refusal shall be made, shall have full power by the direction of the said house to issue to the sergeant-at-arms a warrant of commitment to the prison of Dauphin County, the inspectors and keepers thereof are hereby authorized and directed to receive and confine such delinquent so committed until discharged in due course; and the expense of such imprisonment shall be paid out of any money in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated."

It is my opinion that we have subpoenaed this man. He has made certain statements about his appearance here. I see no way legally that we can appeal to the court or what this legislature has the power to enforce a subpoena which was served beyond the confines of this Commonwealth. However, we feel that he having been subpoenaed and he having been a material witness in this case, we should be allowed to give his evidence as to why he refused to answer the subpoena and what was said in pursuance thereof.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, to make my position clear, I don't urge any technicality about getting this witness here. If there was anything I could do to help you get him here I would do it. And I don't object to Mr. Evans' stating anything that the witness said as to whether he would or would not appear. But I say that where the witness is not here, anything included in that statement which would constitute substantive evidence as to the Darcy hearing which you are probing, should not be heard. It is pure gossip.

SENATOR SCOTT: May I suggest Mr. Kohn be allowed to examine the witness and if there is a particular question, Mr. McBride, that you may have, you raise the question at that time?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is satisfactory.

MR. KOHN: Of course, there is other law on this that I don't think is applicable.

(Subpoena marked for identification as Committee Exhibit No. 34.)

JAMES W. EVANS, a witness having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows on

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Evans, what position do you hold with the Legislative Committee?

A Associate counsel.

Q Did you interview one Dan McNeill?

A I did.

Q What connection did he have with this case that you ascertained before you interviewed him?

A I interviewed Dan McNeill on the 15th of March, 1957, at Kingston, New Jersey, at the Kingston Trap Rock Company, where Mr. McNeill is the purchasing agent. I had information which Mr. McNeill verified to me that Mr. McNeill at one time, in the words of McNeill, was personal assistant to Mr. McCloskey in Philadelphia, that he had been the personal assistant to Mr. McCloskey since 1937, up until about two or two and a half years ago.

Q As a result of this information which you received, did you go to interview Mr. MeNeill?

A I did, at the Kingston Trap Rock Company, Kingston, New Jersey.

Q Did you see him there on March 15?

A Yes, I did.

Q At that time did you serve a subpoena on him, a copy of which has been put into evidence as Exhibit 34?

A I did.

Q Did you give him a copy of that subpoena?

A I did.

Q Did that subpoena direct him to appear before this Committee on April 3, 1957, at 10:30 a.m.?

A Yes, sir.

Q Did he appear on that date?

A No, he did not.

Q Subsequent to his failure to appear, were you instructed to again contact Mr. McNeill with regard to his failure to appear here?

A I was.

Q Where did you talk to him?

A I talked to Mr. McNeill by telephone from Kingston, New Jersey. I was in Kingston, New Jersey, on the 5th day of April, 1957, and telephoned Mr. McNeill at the Kingston Trap Rock Company where he is employed.

Q Did you talk to him personally?

A. I did. I asked for McNeill and I recognized his voice; we have conversed on my prior visit there. I asked him at that time whether or not he was going to appear and answer the subpoena and he said he was not. I did ask him at that time why he was not. He wouldn't answer me. Then I asked him the question, "How long after I subpoenaed you did you talk with Mr. Pannell?" We have mentioned the name of Pannell prior to that in our previous conversation. He didn't say that he talked with Mr. Pannell except that he did say in answer to that question that he had been advised to stay out of the State of Pennsylvania, that later he had conferred with the Kingston Trap Rock Company attorneys and they also advised him to stay out of the State of Pennsylvania and he was not going to answer the subpoena or appear before before this Committee. This latter conversation took place on April 5, 1957, by telephone. I was about a mile from the place that he was employed at that time. I checked to make sure he was going to be in and if he would have talked to me again I would have gone out to see him but there was no sense in going out.

Q Previous to this time had you elicited from him on your first visit, information that was necessary for this Committee to have in order to get full consideration of the investigation, of the Darcy and Foster cases?

A I did to some extent, yes.

Q Where did that conversation take place?

A The conservation started in Mr. McNeill's office at the Kingston Trap Rock Company.

Q This was not by telephone?

A No. This was a personal conversation between Mr. McNeill and myself. At that time Mr. McNeill gave me his card which I have here, with his telephone number on it. I talked at his office with him for roughly a half hour when he suggested we leave there, he didn't feel comfortable discussing the matter at his place of employment. We went to Millstone Inn, Kingston, New Jersey, a mile away from Kingston Trap Rock Company; incidentally, that was the place I made the telephone call from on April 5.

Q Did you ask Mr. McNeill to meet you on April 5?

A I did. I wanted to talk to him personally if I could, and he said there was no sense in us discussing the matter any further and decided he would say nothing further at all in the matter.

I might say this, if I may interject. There may be some question as to why I did not go out to see him on the 5th of April. In order to obtain entrance to the Kingston Trap Rock Company there is a series of procedures which you must go through, and mainly this, that there is a guard at the gate, the place is enclosed in wire. You must give your name at the gate, at which time the guard calls up to the main office to see whether or not the particular person you are interested in seeing will see you. It was my opinion after my previous visit that had I gone out April 5 I would not have been able to get in to see him anyhow.

Q You would not have been able to even talk to him?

A That's right. I had a fair amount of difficulty getting in the first time.

Q. What information did he give you originally in regard to his connection with the Darcy case?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, I have objected to nothing so far, and I think it was all entirely legitimate. I do think that this is wrong. It is hearsay of the purest kind.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: This conflict of interest matter was brought up and Mr. McBride made quite a long answer to your statement. I think that right now is an example of conflict of interests on behalf of the Attorney General. In the first place, the Attorney General is the chief law enforcement officer of the Commonwealth, as you stated. He is now objecting to the introduction of certain evidence. Now, is he objecting to this introduction as the chief law enforcement officer of the Commonwealth, or is he objecting to it as counsel to the Pardons Board? In other words, if there is something wrong here, I should think the chief law enforcement officer of the Commonwealth would be just as much interested in hearing it as we on this Board.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, everytime I hear sentiments expressed like this I marvel that this gentleman says he is a lawyer. He ought to know why I object to that. He certainly knows that gossip isn't a good way of getting information. I object simply because I think it is untrustworthy. I just don't understand why you think information like this is productive of truth.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Mr. McBride, you can have your opinions of other people's abilities as attorneys, and you have expressed them very well. But we as a Board will take this evidence for what it is worth, and you also know that as Attorney General. I don't think you are going to get any place with the members of the Board by trying to belittle them or trying to ridicule them.

HENRY HARNER: Mr. Bell,—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Just a minute. You are not involved at all.

SENATOR YOSKO: There will be no talking from the audience. If you want to be heard, ask to be heard.

HENRY HARNER: Mr. Chairman, as a former member of this Board—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Just a minute,—

SENATOR FLEMING: I object, and I ask that the State Police be called if this man will not shut up.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: You are not here involved as counsel or anything else.

HENRY HARNER: I am here involved as an individual.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Very well, you will be heard when the time comes—

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: I would like a ruling from our counsel as to whether anyone interrupting these hearings can be held on any criminal charge.

HENRY HARNER: This is where the Senator McCarthy aspect of this Committee—

SENATOR FLEMING: Mr. Chairman, I suggest you call for the State Police.

HENRY HARNER: You can't muscle me unless you do call for the State Police.

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. Chairman, I hope you don't hear anymore talk here about conflict of interests. I think that subject has been discussed on a number of occasions and I think it has been established that there is no conflict of interests so far as Mr. McBride is concerned. We had a judge here, a number of judges. In particular, one from Erie County; he was specifically asked whether Mr. McBride's reputation—or rather, representation here of the Pardons Board or in his capacity as Attorney General represented a conflict of interests. Judge Evans specifically told everyone here, and it is a matter of record, that Mr. McBride participating in this hearing was not in conflict of interests. I hope, based on what has been said previously, that the question will not come up again.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: As far as I am concerned, as far as the majority of this Committee is concerned, we have raised the issue here this morning and it has been disposed of.

SENATOR YOSKO: Now, Mr. Chairman, I am a member of this Committee, and I think out of respect to me and my colleagues, Mr. Lopresti, that if you were going to make a statement this morning, the least you could have done was call an executive session, as you previously did. You should have read the statement to us and informed us of the fact that you were going to read that statement. I think we, the minority members, are entitled to that courtesy so that when you continue to talk about the majority here, I have a right to assume that you had called a meeting without notifying the minority, and that you took action on it. I am hoping that is not a fact, but you seem to convey that impression to me at least.

SENATOR SCOTT: Mr. Chairman, following the reading of your statement, I think General McBride stated very well that you were expressing that opinion as a member of this Committee. He gather that from the reading of the statement. I gather the same thing.

In reply to Senator Yosko, I can assure you that there has been no meeting of this Committee in which the majority members participated and gave approval to the reading of that statement. It is my understanding that Mr. Tompkins, as a member of that Committee and as an individual, made that statement, and I think he has every right to do that as a member of this Committee the same as you have any rights to make any statements, and so do I.

SENATOR YOSKO: Senator Scott, I wholeheartedly agree with that, I agree with what you just said; but if you will review the statements that were just made by Mr. Tompkins this morning, he did say on at least two occasions that he had authority to read that statement by the Majority.

SENATOR SCOTT: He didn't say that—

SENATOR YOSKO: Yes, he did.

SENATOR SCOTT: He did not say that he had the sanction of the majority of this Committee. He said he had permission from the majority to make a statement as an individual, which I don't think he needed. I think he could make it without the approval of anyone else on this Committee.

SENATOR YOSKO: If he would say he was making the statement on his own, that would be fine. Let us set the record straight.

SENATOR SCOTT: I think the statement speaks for itself. Where he said "I" a number of times during the statement, I am sure that General McBride got the import of the statement because he himself said that Mr. Tompkins was making the statement as an individual.

SENATOR YOSKO: But he did say he had the permission of the majority.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The initial issue on this case was approved by the Committee as a whole. The second issue in this case was approved as a whole. I am merely reiterating what this Committee as a whole had approved.

I wish you would send out for a police officer and get him in the room. Any further outbursts as we have had before will be dealt with summarily.

MR. HARNER: You are not scaring anybody, Mr. Chairman.

SENATOR SCOTT: I don't think that is the purpose for which the Chairman made the statement. It is not to scare anybody. It is to keep up the dignity of this hearing. If you have something to say, you will have an opportunity to testify under oath.

MR. HARNER: This Committee is striking at the very foundation of our system of jurisprudence.

MR. KOHN: I think there was a question and an objection to it, which I think ought to be ruled on before we proceed.

(Discussion off the record.)

MR. KOHN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to say this. Of course, a certain amount of this testimony deals with what he said, but it also deals with his intent, as to why he is not appearing here, and I think the second reason is relevant. It is not a question of the facts that he has related as being true or false; but it is a question of what he said as to why he did not want to appear.

(Discussion off the record.)

MR. KOHN: Mr. Chairman, here is the situation you have. There is a man who has been properly subpoenaed. We have gone after him twice. He makes certain statements as to why he won't be here and what he has to cover up. I am not alleging that there is any truth or falsity to these statements. I am not saying that you should take them as true or false, but I do say you should hear the testimony as to what reason he has given as to why he is not going to be here. If you will recall that we had a great deal of testimony before this Board of Pardons, which has heard a great deal of testimony which was not verified in regard to Mr. Lord saying there was hysteria in the community, and that this person was interested and that person was interested in it.

I think this Board has a right to find out why this witness is not here and what he is trying to hide and what he said as to why he is not going to be here.

That is the gist of it as to the purpose of it.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: There is one difference, Mr. Chairman, that while those statements were being made concerning Mr. Lord, Mr. Lord was present in the room and he was here during four occasions while they were made, and Mr. Lord will be present before this Committee.

MR. KOHN: Mr. Lord did not know what he was talking about. He was giving statements to the Committee that were not verified.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Mr. Lord was here and he had a chance; but there is a man who has indicated that he is not going to be here. If we take testimony from a statement supposed to have been made, we will never know the accuracy of that statement.

MR. KOHN: Unless Mr. McClosky or Mr. McBride will produce him for us—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Wait. Don't intimate that I have any control over that man or that I know anything about him. I don't believe I have ever heard his name in my life before.

MR. KOHN: I say this, that before I even started asking questions, Mr. McBride was on his feet objecting to the fact that there was a conversation and what he was going to say.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You said so.

MR. KOHN: No, I didn't say so.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I don't think that counsel is intimating that Attorney General McBride has any part in this. He has merely suggested whether or not you in your capacity as Attorney General would lend your assistance here.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, I have said to Senator Scott that if I have it in my power as Attorney General to get the man here, I will do it. I will give you my word that I will do anything in my power to get him personally before this Committee, no matter what he has to say.

SENATOR FLEMING: Would it not be pertinent to this Committee if this gentleman could tell us why he didn't want to come? We are not trying anybody. We are only trying to find out if any political influence was used; and if Mr. Evans can give us some reason as to why this man didn't want to come, that might clear the atmosphere. I don't know if that is—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Senator, on that aspect of it, don't you remember that I remained absolutely silent? If he has some reason for not coming, I have no objection to the Committee knowing about it; but it is far different on that aspect of the case than to have him say, "In the Darcy case I did this and that; I saw this man do this; I heard this man say something; and so on an so forth." I gather that is mixed in this conversation, that sort of thing, and it is to that that I object.

If we can get him here and subject him to the Committee's examination as to his motives, maybe he is on one side or the other, I haven't the slightest idea, but it is because of that, not being subject to reasonable interrogation that the law has always said that these out-of-court statements are untrustworthy.

I have nothing further than that to say.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Evans, can you make any statements as to why he didn't want to appear?

A Yes, he did, and I will try to do everything I can to comply with Mr. McBride's request that it be restricted to statements which he made to me regarding his refusal to appear, his reasons for refusing to appear. If there is anything of substance as to who said what or what was done, I will leave that out.

Mr. McNeill told me that he was very much concerned and very frightened about this investigation. I asked him why, and he said, "I know when I am well off."

I asked him what he meant by that, and the only thing he would tell me—when I say the only thing, there were other reasons he wouldn't give me—when I pressed him, he said his present position with the Kingston Trap Rock Company was secured through the influence of Mr. McCloskey with Mr. McCloskey with Mr. Lionel Gilbert, who is the President of the Kingston Trap Rock Company. Mr. Gilbert lives in Pennington, New Jersey. He said, "I have a very good position here as the purchasing agent." He went on to tell me about a beautiful home, a company home. He said he had a new Cadillac. He said he was making $15,000 a year more than McCloskey had paid him at any time. He said he feared very much that he would lose all this if he testified.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Did he further identify what Mr. McCloskey—

A Matthew McCloskey from Philadelphia. There was no question about that. In fact, he referred to him as Matt.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What if anything did he say to you with regard to whether he was surprised that he was being subpoenaed?

A He told me that he was quite concerned and quite frightened about this, and he had thought that he might take off at one time, he said, when this investigation started. The words that he used, he said, "I know a lot." He said he was frightened about the—the only reason he would give me was his job. He felt his job would be jeopardized and he felt he was in a good financial position and he didn't want to lose it, and it was obtained through the intervention of Mr. McCloskey.

Q What if anything did he say with regard to whether he knew Marian Ford?

A Yes. That was not a reason, exactly, that he gave for not appearing; but he did say that he felt sorry for Marian Ford, that she suffered a lot through this. He feels sorry for Marian through this entire mess. He sees her socially.

Q Did he say he was still friendly with Mr. McCloskey?

A Oh, yes. He does business with him. This Kingston Trap Rock Company deals in stone materials, crushed stone particularly for roads and ready-mixed concrete. And Mr. McNeill has been—as I recall him telling me, he does not have a contract or at that time didn't have a contract with Mr. McCloskey and Company in Philadelphia, but he was working on one and seeing Mr. McCloskey and particularly Mr. McCloskey's boys concerning the furnishing of trap rock to McCloskey's company; but he still sees him quite a bit and they are still on friendly terms.

Q Did he say anything to you with regard to how long it was that he anticipated this investigation?

A Yes, he did. He made a statement to me when he said—just a moment—he said, "I knew there would be an investigation into this Darcy matter two or three years ago."

Q Go ahead. Did he tell you what he knew about the connections of counsel in this matter?

A Yes. He knew everyone concerned with the Darcy case, Pannell, Margiotti, the Pittsburgh office—

SENATOR YOSKO: We have been talking a great deal about Mr. McCloskey this morning, and there isn't one bit of evidence or testimony in the record that came before this Committee that implicates Mr. McCloskey in this case in any way, shape, or form. It seems to me, from statements that the witness is making, he is implying that Mr. McCloskey does have something to do with this case. Perhaps the witness has been called prematurely, I don't know, but I think there ought to be some ground work laid for implicating Mr. McCloskey in this matter before we go into a lot of testimony on it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That will appear as the case unfolds, and Mr. McCloskey has been subpoenaed—not subpoenaed; he has been invited to attend. He has courteously said he will be here.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: But I think you are into the substansive aspects now .

SENATOR SCOTT: I do think we are getting a little far afield from the reasons why the witness stated he will stay away.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Will you confine yourself to the reasons and the facts that he gave with regard to why he didn't want to appear here?

A (No response)

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Do you have any other reasons other than you have already stated, Mr. Evans?

A No, except that he did say that he would go to Philadelphia. I suggested it to him, as a matter of fact, before I left, whether or not he would consult with—this was on the 15th of March—whether he would consult with Mr. McCloskey and Mr. Pannell before coming up here, and he said, "I imagine I will do so."

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Did you ask him to make a statement to you?

A I asked him if he would make a statement on the 15th of March, and he said no. However, he did say that he was to come to Harrisburg the following weekend, which would be the weekend of March 24. He said, "I would like to think this matter over during the ensuing week," and I said, "Will you call me when you get in Harrisburg." He said that he would. That would be the weekend of March 24.

Q Did he call?

A He never called.

Q Did he tell you that he knew anything about some other cases that might break if this one broke?

A Yes, he did. He was concerned likewise about those. There are no names on those cases, in all fairness to everyone. I couldn't get the names out of him.

Q On that weekend, that last weekend, did he at that time state to you that he would or would not appear?

A He told me he definitely wouldn't appear; not only that he wouldn't appear, but he wouldn't come into the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

MR. KOHN: We have a great deal of other testimony, but I think, with the restriction, I ought to stop on that.

(Discussion off the record)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Very well.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I have no questions.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Do you have anything further?

MR. KOHN: Not of this witness. Maybe Mr. Yosko will have a question.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q You know that Mr. McCloskey is a contractor, don't you?

A Yes, sir.

Q And as a contractor, he does business with a lot of people.

A Oh, yes, sir.

Q So what is there so unusual about the business that Mr. McCloskey does with this company in New Jersey?

A Nothing except this, that Lionel Gilbert, who owns the Kingston Trap Rock Company, according to Mr. McNeill's statement to me is very closely affiliated with Mr. McCloskey and Mr. James D. Morrisy, who is likewise a contractor from Philadelphia, politically. That is what Mr. McNeil says. I have no personal knowledge of that.

Mr. McNeill stated that Mr. Gilbert—I can't recall—I think he said is an angel for the Democrats in New Jersey; but I am not certain about that word.

Q Let us assume that that is true. What has that to do with the Darcy case?

A That wasn't your question.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We are here to evaluate his testimony.

A (Continued) You asked me what was the purpose in saying that McCloskey was a contractor and Kingston Trap Rock sold stone to him, and I am simply telling you what he told me with regard to any political affiliations.

BY SENATOR SCOTT:

Q I understand you are prepared to tell us what was said about the Darcy case, but you were shut off by this Committee; is that correct?

A To some extent, yes.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Were you told at any time by Mr. McNeill that he was told to stay out of Pennsylvania?

A Yes.

Q That he was told to stay out of Pennsylvania?

A Yes. I have testified to that.

Q Who told him to stay out of Pennsylvania?

A I gave you the conversation that I had with Mr. McNeill on the 5th of April by telephone, and I was in Kingston, New Jersey, at that time, about a mile away from the Kingston Trap Rock Company, where Mr. McNeill was, and when I asked him regarding our conversation on the 15th of March and of the subpoena I served on him that date as to whether or not he was going to answer it or come to Harrisburg to testify, he said no.

I said to him, "How long after I subpoenaed you did you talk with Mr. Pannell?" Because we had discussed Mr. Pannell in our previous conversation.

Q Mr. who?

A Dress Pannell, Mr. Pannell. He is in the room here today. He was Mr. McCloskey's attorney, and likewise attorney for Darcy. He did not say—he put it this way. It is a negative thing. He didn't deny that he talked to Mr. Pannell, nor did he say that he talked to Mr. Pannell in this conversation on April 5 on the telephone.

However, he did say that he had been advised to stay out of the State of Pennsylvania and that after, or later, he was also advised to do the same thing by the company attorneys. We had been talking about Mr. Pannell. So whether you interpret that as saying Mr. Pannel told him to stay out, I don't know. That is the conversation I had with him.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Do you know whether Mr. McNeill is the so-called pay-off agent mentioned by the newspapers?

A I haven't seen any articles, so I don't know what you are referring to exactly. If you will refresh my recollection—

Q Well, one of the Philadelphia newspapers referred to a financial angel or pay-off agent.

A Was that recently? Just a couple days ago?

Q I think so.

A I didn't read the article. I heard someone mention it to me. I don't think so; not to my knowledge.

Q There is another person who fits that description?

A You men in my judgment does it fit the description?

Q. Yes.

A. No.

Q. You mean there is no such other person?

A. You are speaking about the article?

Q. Yes.

SENATOR SCOTT: Which article are you referring to, General?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The article in the Philadelphia Inquirer of Sunday morning, which mentioned a financial agent, also calling such person a "pay-off agent."

A. Pay-off agent?

Q. Pay-off agent, and it mentioned such person has been subpoenaed, and the article then went on and named other people who have been invited to appear. I want to know whether you can tell us whether Mr. McNeill, who has been subpoenaed, is this pay-off agent who has been described.

A. The answer to that is no.

Q. And is there any pay-off agent that you know of?

A. That I know of? No.

Q. Well, I gather from your statement that Mr. McNeill told you three years ago, which would be at least two years before any executive clemency was granted, that there would be an investigation of the Darcy case.

A. He said two or three years ago, yes, sir.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is all.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q. Where did Mr. O'Neill work before he went to New Jersey?

A. Mr. McNeill was, as I told you, according to him, was employed by Mr. McCloskey as a personal assistant from 1937 up until two or two and one-half years ago in his words.

Thereafter, he and Mr. McCloskey had a—it has been variously described to me as a disagreement or understanding—they are mutually inconsistent—over an insurance matter, after which it was decided that Mr. McNeill leave Mr. McCloskey. He then went to James D. Morrisy and Company, and was employed in the office.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q. That was the Morrisy mentioned in the McSorley case?

A. Yes, one of the three men.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q. But did Mr. McNeill tell you at any time that he was transferred to employment in New Jersey because he might be subpoenaed to come over before this body or any lower body?

A. He never made such a statement to me, and I never asked the question.

SENATOR YOSKO: All right. That is all.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Anything further?

SENATOR SCOTT: No.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Very well. You are excused. (Witness excused).

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I wish to announce at this point that we have some State Policemen in the room, and with the permission of the Attorney General, we will ask them to remain through the balance of these proceedings in order to assist this Committee in the preservation of proper decorum.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: As far as the Attorney General is concerned, such permission is given.

GENEVIEVE BLATT, having been duly sworn, testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q. Miss Blatt, do you have with you your personal files and calendar sheet in the Darcy case?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Will you send for those, please?

A. Yes, I will.

(Recessed).

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What position do you hold with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania?

A Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Q You were duly elected as such on what date?

A November, 1954.

Q So you are also a member, as Secretary of Internal Affairs, of the Pardons Board by constitutional provision, is that right?

A That's right.

Q Are you a practicing attorney?

A That's right.

Q What bar are you a member of?

A Allegheny County, Pennsylvania.

Q How long have you been a member of the bar?

A Since 1938.

Q You are familiar with the rules of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania?

A Yes.

Q Do you know the rules of court regarding review of murder cases, life imprisonment, or capital cases?

A I at one time read the rules. I don't want to subject myself to an examination on them today.

Q I will put the question this way: don't you or do you know the rules require that the Supreme Court read all the testimony, all the briefs, before deciding capital cases?

A I am not familiar with the exact statement of the rules to that effect.

Q Did you read all the testimony, all the decisions, in the Darcy case?

A I would not want to say that I read every word of all of them. I certainly went through a great many of them and read a great deal of it.

Q You affixed your signature to the commutation and recommendation to the Governor in the cases of David Darcy, Harry Robert Zietz, and Harold Holden Foster, did you not?

A. I did.

Q I show you these, being copies in the original files. Are they the ones you affixed your signature to (indicating)? I mean, are they similar?

A I presume so.

MR. KOHN: I would like to read these into the record.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Very well. Are those the official copies?

MR. KOHN: These are the copies that are in the files of this particular case. I do not have the originals. They are on file with the Secretary of the Commonwealth. (Reading:)

"Board of Pardons, in re Application of David Darcy, No. A-306, September Session 1956.

The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the Death sentence of David Darcy, who was convicted of murder in the first degree, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Bucks County on February 16, 1949, be commuted from Death to Life Imprisonment.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

Although opinion is divided among the members of the Board of Pardons as to whether or not David Darcy received a fair trial and as to whether or not the sentence imposed by the jury was within the law and proper, the Board is of the opinion that under the circumstances of this case executive clemency is required.

The Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of Pennsylvania guarantee that every accused person shall have a speedy and fair trial. Under the American system of constitutional and common law, conviction even of an admittedly guilty person is invalid unless that person has received the full measure of protection accorded by the Constitution.

Included in the guarantee of a fair trial is not only the right of appeal but the right to representation by competent and diligent counsel. So important are these rights that in Pennsylvania counsel is even appointed by the Court to represent the indigent accused.

Darcy's counsel has attempted to protect his client's rights with all diligence and fidelity, which is the sworn duty of all lawyers. The extraordinary circumstances which have caused such a lengthy delay and multiciplicity of appeals should not, and cannot, militate against the right of Darcy or any accused person to receive that full measure of consideration which the Constitution affords him. The numerous appeals and petitions filed on behalf of Darcy indicate that counsel was convinced that a legitimate and substantial question of constitutional right was involved.

Furthermore, many of the judges who heard the various appeals were similarly convinced. Darcy's counsel in petitioning for a new trial raised a number of questions going into the fairness of the trial, the conduct of the Judge and the atmosphere of hysteria and prejudice surrounding the court room. Twenty-three Judges of the highest courts of this country (seven Justices of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, seven Judges of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit and nine Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States), have examined the record of the Darcy trial. Eight of these Judges found that the petitioner had raised substantial and meritorius questions of deprivation of constitutional rights. Seven of these Judges held that not only had Darcy raised such questions but that he had in fact been denied his constitutional right to a fair and impartial trial, and that the verdict and sentence of death are violative of the Constitution of the United States.

It cannot, therefore, be said that the numerous appeals and petitions in this case, which have consumed eight years, were frivolous or without merit.

Darcy has, throughout the eight years during which he has been imprisoned under sentence of death, sought in vain a new trial. The Board of Pardons cannot grant a new trial, and is limited in its powers to making recommendations to the Governor. Since so substantial a doubt as to the fairness of the trial exists, however, and since the certainty that justice has been done should prevail, especially when the life of a human being is at issue, this Board cannot with clear conscience fail to recommend the exercise of executive clemency. With such a sharp and substantial division of judicial opinion upon basic constitutional rights, no other course to us seems proper."

In the case of Harold Holden Foster, A-352, September Sessions 1956, the Board made a recommendation as follows:

"The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the Death sentence of Harold Holden Foster, who was convicted of Murder in the First Degree, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery of Bucks County on September 6, 1949, be commuted from Death to Life Imprisonment.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

In view of the recommendation of the Board of Pardons in the David Darcy application, and which is in part applicable to the Harold Holden Foster trial, and in view of the fact that the Trial Court, in considering the plea of Felix Capone, imposed a life sentence rather than a death sentence, the Board of Pardons recommends that the sentence of Harold Holden Foster be commuted from death to life imprisonment."

In the case of Harry Robert Zietz, A-351, September Sessions 1956, an exactly similar recommendation was made except for the change in name. I will not read it.

All these recommendations were signed by Roy E. Furman, Lieutenant Governor; Henry E. Harner, Secretary of the Commonwealth; Herbert B. Cohen, Attorney General and Genevieve Blatt, Secrtary of Internal Affairs.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Is that correct, Miss Blatt?

A That's right.

Q In regard to the phraseology of the Darcy commutation, did you write any part of that?

A I did not write any part of it. I participated in consultations regarding the writing of it.

Q Who did write them?

A It is my recollection that the Attorney General or someone on his staff prepared the first draft.

Q Do you have a copy of the first draft?

A No, I do not.

Q Did you read this last draft and subscribe your name thereto as approving it?

A I did.

Q Now, there are reasons given in here which relate to technical questions which had been brought before the courts of this Commonwealth and the courts of the United States, and you were familiar with those decisions, were you, before you subscribed your name to approval of those reasons in this commutation?

A Yes, sir.

Q Do you agree, Miss Blatt, with the facts in this case?

A I believe so.

Q Do you know whether or not these three defendants were all tried together or separately?

A I think there was a severance in the case of Mr. Darcy.

Q In regard to the legal appeals which were taken, do you know if Zietz and Foster took any appeals?

A I don't believe they did.

Q Would you run across it if they had taken appeals to the State Supreme Court or to the United States Supreme Court?

A I would have hoped that I would have run across it. I don't recall any at the moment.

Q I notice that in the recommendation, reference is made to eight judges. Do you know what courts those 8 judges were members of?

A If I could see the commutation, it might recall it to my mind. I don't recall the details.

(Mr. Kohn hands paper to witness.)

A I'm sory, Mr. Kohn, that my recollection of exactly what was the division in the courts is not something I can rely on. The eight are a combination of certain judges in the Circuit Court of Appeals and Supreme Court, a mixture.

Q That was in the Darcy case?

Y Yes.

Q You say no appeals were taken as far as Zietz and Foster are concerned?

A So far as I know.

Q Do you think it would have been important for you to find out before you made your decision in this case and subscribed your name to the Zietz and Foster recommendations, to find out whether appeals had been taken or not?

A I think it would have been important, and I think had it been done I would have been advised of it and should recall it at this moment if that were the case. I do not recall it at this moment.

Q I would like to inform you that both Zietz and Foster had appeals before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

A Thank you very much.

SENATOR SCOTT: They have or have not?

MR. KOHN: They did have, yes, they took appeals.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Do you have the citations?

THE WITNESS: I might say, if that is correct, I feel sure that that record must have been before us. I simply don't recall it now.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Do you have anything in your files indicating that there had been appeals taken?

A I have my personal copy of the application as filed by each of these men, which I have had brought down from my office, and I have not gone through it.

Q You mean you have not gone through the file recently?

A Not within the last week.

Q In reading the testimony, can you tell me whether any of the three took the stand and denied these brutal murders?

A I do not recall that any of the three took the stand.

Q You say that they did not?

A I said I do not recall that they did.

Q Didn't you go over the facts?

A At the time I made this decision, I undoubtedly did.

Q You won't say that they did not take the stand?

A I am saying that I do not recall that they took the stand.

Q Do you recall what Darcy said, if anything, at the time he was called on by Judge Murphy of the District Court to testify?

A No, I do not.

Q You don't recall that either?

A No, I do not.

Q I notice that you made a statement in the commutation, of the fact that Capone, the 16-year-old accomplice who waited out in the car, received a life sentence and the Board in effect felt that should enure to the benefit of the other three defendants is that correct?

A I think the statement is merely that Capone received a life sentence. I don't think there is any statement that that should enure to the benefit of the other three.

Q Will you tell us what significance it had in the recommendations?

A I think it has this significance, of keeping the record full and complete as to what happened to all four accomplices in the crime.

Q I notice you don't mention anything of Capone in the Darcy case, but in the Zietz and Foster cases you mention that in view of the fact that the trial court, in considering the pleas of guilty, imposed sentence in life rather than death the Board of Pardons recommended the sentence of Zietz be commuted from death to life imprisonment; isn't that the statement that you are basing the commutation partly at least on the fact that Felix Capone received a life sentence by the court?

A There might be some inference to that effect.

Q Is there any other inference plausible according to your explanation about keeping the record straight?

A I think it is important to keep the record straight. I think the average person wanting to know what had happened in these cases would wonder what happened to the fourth man and it is important that some reference be made thereto in the commutations granted to these three. Why that was not mentioned in regard to Darcy at this moment I cannot tell you. If you would like a guess on my part, I will be glad to give it.

Q No. If you would like to make one, that's up to you, but I am not insisting on a guess.

A I think you want to get at as much of the facts as you can. My personal reason if I were to re-write the commutations today I would still put in the reference to Capone today, because the other two gentlemen, Zietz and Foster, were quite young also at the time of the crime.

Q How old were they?

A I don't recall except they were under 21, which I believe was Darcy's age.

Q How old was Capone?

A You said he was 16. My recollection was he was 17 but I know he was a very young man. The fact that those two were also under 21 I think might be pertinent.

Q What I am asking you is, the wording in this says that in view of the fact; what does that mean, "in view of the fact that the trial court, in considering the plea of Capone imposed a life sentence rather than death sentence?"

A Here were four men engaged in the same enterprise. As a result of the felony in which they were engaged the murder was committed—

Q Two murders.

A Two murders. One murder, which is under surveillance at this time. Whether the other case can be called a murder you and I know as lawyers would be impossible—

Q It hasn't been tried.

A The time limit has expired.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Within a year and a day, the death must occur.

THE WITNESS: There were four men involved in the escapade that resulted in the murder. I think it significant that one of those four was originally given a life sentence, because under the terms of our law, all four are equally guilty when a murder results in an act in which all four were engaged.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q So it is your theory then that where two of them were tried separately by reason of a severance and one might receive life imprisonment from one jury, and the other might receive the death penalty, it would be your position on the Board of Pardons that the one receiving the death sentence should have his sentence commuted because the other received life imprisonment?

A I wouldn't like to answer a hypothetical question of that sort, but I think one purpose of the Board of Pardons certainly is to equalize sentences when the matter of unequal sentences is brought to their attention.

Q I want to get back to the same circle ending up at the same place, that you said in view of the fact the trial court in considering a plea—plea of guilty, was it not?

A In regard to Capone?

Q Yes.

A Yes.

Q Imposed a life sentence rather than a death sentence. The Board based its clemency on the fact there was a life sentence?

A At least in part.

Q Now, did you read the medical and psychological report on Capone?

A I do not recall that I read the report on Capone because he was not before us and I dont know that we had such a report available.

Q Did you attempt to get such a report from the Penitentiary?

A I did not.

Q Do you know that Capone had normal intelligence for a child of 12 years of age?

A I did not.

Q Did you look at the mental and psychological reports of Zietz and Darcy?

A Yes, I looked at everything that was available to the Board.

Q What was the medical report in regard to Zietz?

A I would have to consult the record to know. I don't remember.

Q You don't recall?

A No.

Q Is there any doubt in your mind that the psychological report made him out to be a fully matured, understanding person, who was mature enough to understand the significance and consequences of his act?

A I do not recall.

Q Do you recall anything to the contrary?

A I do not.

Q Do you recall anything to the contrary in regard to Foster?

A I do not.

Q Do you know whether Zietz or Foster or Darcy pulled the trigger that killed William Kelly?

A I would have to consult the notes. I know it was not Darcy. Which of the other two it was at the moment I don't recall. I think it was Zietz but I am not certain.

Q Miss Blatt, I show you a copy of a letter that I found in the file of each particular individual, Darcy, Zietz and Foster, and ask you whether you have seen that letter before (handing letter to witness).

A I think I saw this when I myself went through the file in the office of the Board of Pardons.

Q Was there a copy of that in the file which was submitted to you?

A No.

MR. McBRIDE: May I see it?

MR. KOHN: Yes (handing letter to Mr. McBride).

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Do you have the original calendar sheet on Darcy?

A Yes. To further elucidate on the letter you have just shown me, I might say that I would not want to say that that was not in the secretary's file at the time of the hearing. I personally do not recall having seen it.

Q But the Chaplain who wrote the letter did appear before the Board of Pardons and made a plea before the Board on behalf of these three defendants?

A No. It was a different Chaplain who appeared before the Board of Pardons.

I hope you will read that letter from this Chaplain as well as the transcript of the other Chaplain's testimony. I think it would be very revealing to the Board investigating here.

Q Did you pay special attention to the Chaplain's letter addressed to the members of the Board of Pardons by Father Walsh, did you pay special attention to this?

A I did not see that letter until long after signing—

Q That letter took no part in your deliberations?

A That letter did not.

Q Is it an unusual matter to have the Chaplain of the Penitentiary who is an employee of the Department of Justice submit letters to the Board of Pardons?

A I myself have not seen other letters. I have not been a member of the Board except since my own term of office and I don't know what the practice has been in the past.

Q Do you know of any others that have ever been submitted by any of the Chaplains of the Penitentiary in these cases?

A I do not.

Q You say there was another Chaplain that appeared before the Board of Pardons?

A Yes.

Q He also made a plea for these defendants, did he not?

A I might say the gentleman who appeared before the Board of Pardons was a former Chaplain, not a present Chaplain. He was a Reverend Lehman, who had come to me before the hearing and stated that he knew something regarding these cases that he felt should be told and asked if he would be permitted to tell it. I said that I would be very glad to take the matter up with the other members of the Board to see if he would be permitted to state what he wanted to say, and suggested that he come to Harrisburg the day of the hearing if he wanted to do so. He had not been employed at the Penitentiary for some years, but he said the matter weighed heavily on his conscience and he wanted to say what he had to say, that the attorneys did not know of his interest but he wanted to tell the members of the Board. He came and he did testify. So far as I personally was concerned, the testimony of Reverend Lehman was very very persuasive.

Q Is it unusual for a person of the Gospel to intervene in these cases? Aren't there many letters on file in every capital case asking for the same thing?

A I have seen other letters from ministers of the Gospel in regard to capital and other cases. It did seem to me unusual that this gentleman who was no longer connected with the prison in any way, officially or unofficially, after a period elapsed of four or five years or more, would come to me as a member of the Board and request an opportunity to be heard, as he said, because the matter weighed on his conscience.

Q He stated he served as prison chaplain at Rockview from 1950 to 1951, is that correct?

A I believe that is right.

Q Did he tell you the cursing and swearing and attitude of these boys during the time they were incarcerated there?

A No, he did not refer to cursing and swearing.

Q Did you make any attempt to obtain from the prison authorities the attitude of these boys in regard to their incarceration while they were there in contradiction to what the chaplain said for that brief period, 1950-1951?

A I personally made no attempt to quiz the prison authorities.

Q Do you feel the Darcy case deserved commutation because of the numerous legal appeals that had been taken, that Zietz and Foster should also be commuted?

A I think it would be unthinkable to commute from death to life the sentence of one accomplice in the crime, and order the execution of two others.

Q In other words, we get back to what I recounted to you previously, that if severances are asked and two different juries give out different punishment in the same crime, you as a matter of policy feel the court and jury should be overruled and they should be given the same sentence as a matter of equalization?

A Again I say I don't want to make a hypothetical answer to a general question, but in this particular case, where there are four men involved, four equally guilty as far as I can determine with the greatest diligence that I could bring to bear on the subject, I couldn't think of ordering one executed and let the other three serve life imprisonment.

Q Isn't that the same principle I have ennunciated, where four are involved in a crime, the jury might give out different punishment because they had severances, or that they might feel that culpability, brutality, were different, and you wouldn't under any circumstances feel that one should receive more than the other and you would upset the verdict of that jury?

A Mr. Kohn, I am sorry, I simply must refuse to answer a general question. I am here ready and glad to answer any questions regarding this case in which I happen to feel personally that they were all equally guilty.

Q And you feel that Zietz who pulled the trigger and shot a man recklessly and with abandon, should be given consideration because Darcy was given consideration and took all the appeals and received many reprieves?

A I will have to repeat what I said, in my personal opinion all four were equally guilty.

Q Wasn't Zietz old enough to know what he was doing? He was 23.

A I am not the one to say who is old enough to know what they are doing. I assume they all reached the age of reasoning to know what they were doing. As I stated, I think they were all equally guilty.

Q Do you think it is fair to commute the sentence of a killer who might be financially able to drag out a legal procedure for years as against one like Katz in the same county who appeared once before the Board of Pardons and was immediately executed thereafter?

A I don't know to what case you are referring. It is some other case. But in regard to this case, I think it is unfair to cast any aspersions on a man who exhausts the avenues available to him under the law. You and I know that anybody under our system of jurisprudence is entitled to every avenue of appeal open to him.

Q You think that by reason of the fact that having been granted these many reprieves and having been financially able to take all these appeals, he should receive any consideration, where an ordinary person who has not taken any appeals and not able to finance it—

A Mr. Kohn, you know and I know that any person, ordinary or unordinary, who wants to take an appeal, can take it, whether financially able or not. Our courts are always open, from the lowest to the highest, to anyone, regardless of his ability even to pay the costs.

Q What I am asking you is whether or not you gave any consideration—as the Chaplain said to you in his argument, as a result of the appeals being denied, did you give that consideration?

A I gave it consideration in my own personal evaluation of the case, thinking that if society is demanding punishment—and it has a right to demand punishment for any crime in which there is a conviction—men who have sat in the death house for 6, 7 or 8 years, whatever the limit may have been, I can't now recollect, and have faced the electric chair repeatedly, have already suffered a very very great deal—perhaps more. Although who can equate human suffering—more than if they had been executed immediately.

Q Isn't it a fact that the fact that they have received reprieves are matters of their own making and they receive no special consideration as far as the law is concerned for having been reprieved or having taken appeals?

A I don't believe I understand your question. But if you mean is the fact that these men faced death several times because they or at least Mr. Darcy, of his own volition took an appeal which was refused, that had he not taken the appeal he could have faced death immediately and not faced it repeatedly, then of course I will have to say you are correct. But I also would insist that any person, the most vicious criminal, is entitled under our law to every appeal to which the law allows him, and I think it is wrong to criticize him for taking it.

Q You would say then that you did take into consideration the fact, in commuting this sentence from death to life, that you felt that he had faced death many times and that was to some measure punishment under the law?

A I thought it was because, as of the year 1957, he had already faced death many times. It entered somewhat into my decision.

Q That is not the law, is it?

A No. That is mercy.

Q Penalty is imposed by the court and jury, is it not?

A That's right.

Q To fit the crime as it happened at the time?

A That's right. But the Board of Pardons is set up as a forum of last resort for executive clemency which is based not on strict interpretation of the law but on dictates of conscience and mercy.

Q The more the man is able to drag it out, the more consideration he is entitled to because he faced death?

A No. A man is entitled to drag out his case as long as he legally can, and every court must be open to him as long as we have our American system of justice, until he has exhausted his legal remedies, and he can do that under our system whether he is rich or poor.

Q You think he is entitled to credit for that when he comes before the Pardons Board?

A I think he is entitled to nothing for that when he comes before the Board of Pardons. He got what is due him under our laws. It should not be held against him under our laws.

Q The law of the land is he should be punished with the death penalty. Do you think the Board should interfere because he could delay the punishment imposed by the law of the land and the jury?

A I said in all honesty the fact that he faced death many times entered into my personal equation of what was just and merciful in this case. However, there were other factors leading to the commutation which you of course read which to my mind were just as persuasive, and even without the fact of his having faced death many times I would still voted for commutation in this case.

Q You had your mind made up to vote for commutation before the case was heard, did you not?

A I did not.

Q How soon after the hearing, how many days' consideration did you give this before you all came to the same decision?

A As the case was being heard, I reached a decision in my own mind that I felt I personally in my own conscience would vote for commutation. In the discussion of the case with the other members afterwards, I tried to keep my mind open to whatever arguments they would have to advance. But I must say in all honesty from the moment that I heard the testimony given at the hearings, I felt as of then I should vote for commutation; during the further consultations I remained of that opinion.

Q How many days was it before the Board decided to grant the commutation?

A I would think that it was roughly about a week.

Q During that week were there any meetings of the Board to discuss this case? How many meetings of the Board were there to discuss the case during that week?

A As I recall, we met to hear the case on a Thursday, and we held further hearings in regard to other matters the following Tuesday. I don't believe that we met regarding this case or any others between Thursday and Tuesday, but I do believe that we discussed this case and others in our executive session on Tuesday. I have tried very hard to recall whether or not we met in a group subsequent to that Tuesday and I honestly can't recall it. But I do recall—

Q The hearing was scheduled for September 20, 1956, can we so agree?

A I believe so.

Q And you say it was heard on that day?

A Yes.

Q The Board deliberated about a week before they arrived at their decision?

A I think so.

Q And then it went to the Governor on what date, do you know?

A I don't recall what date it went to the Governor. I think I signed the commutation about one week after the hearing.

A I think so.

Q You signed it about a week after the hearing?

Q And that was after you had another session, after the day you heard the case on September 20, and then the Pardons Board got together and decided the case, and decided to commute, four votes to nothing; is that right?

A Yes. The Board of Pardons had a regular hearing date, September 25, at which as I recall it we again discussed the Darcy, Zietz and Foster cases.

Q And that's the first time a decision was made and a vote was taken, was it not?

A I believe so.

Q Do you have any notes to show to the contrary?

A No, I do not. I have looked for them but I do not find exactly when the vote was taken.

Q Have you looked through the minutes of the Board of Pardons?

A Yes, I did.

Q Doesn't that show as follows—look at your minutes of September 20, 1956.

A I have it.

Q "Board of Pardons of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, convened on September 20, 1956, at 9:15 a.m. EST, in the Supreme Court room. Those present were Roy Furman, Lieutenant Governor; Henry Harner, Secretary of the Commonwealth, Herbert Cohen, Attorney General; Genevieve Blatt, Secretary of Internal Affairs. The following action" under that date of September 20, 1956, "was taken: on cases 1 to 69 inclusive, number one case, David Darcy, unanimously granted. Number 2, Harold Foster, unanimously granted. Number 3, Harold Zietz, unanimously granted," and ran from there on down to 69.

A I observed that, Mr. Kohn. It is not my recollection of exactly what happened.

Q Are these the minutes of the Pardons Board?

A That's right. I do not recall personally that we actually took a vote on that date. I do recall there was general discusion and it may have been, and it may very well have been that among the four of us we felt that we would probably vote for commutation. As a matter of fact, I suppose it is a logical deduction since the Attorney General began drafting a draft for cummutation. But I know personally and I am positive that I did not sign any at that time.

Q I didn't ask you whether you signed. I ask you whether it was voted on and decided and this record shows September 20, 1956, which I—well, the record so shows?

A That's right.

Q Is there anything under September 25 that there was any further consideration of this case?

A I do not believe so.

Q Now, I notice in your calendar sheet, about Mr. Hean.

A Yes.

Q I note under the word "Comments" a letter from Judge Bok dated 6-20-50, recommending leniency. Did Judge Bok enter into this case in any way?

A I seem to recall the letter.

Q Maybe you don't understand my question. I am asking you if Judge Bok was in these proceedings in any way?

A As a trial judge?

Q Trial judge, counsel or anything else.

A Judge Bok is a Philadelphia judge. This is a Bucks County case.

Q Do you know what significance Mr. Hean attached to that note that Judge Bok had written?

A I do not.

Q Did you ever question him as to why he called your attention to the fact that Judge Bok had written a letter recommending leniency?

A The general procedure which the Secretary follows is to provide the Board with copies of letters which have come to him regarding a case—all letters, whether they seem pertinent or not, and I presume that the case—

Q Do you have a copy of all letters in each file?

A No, I did not get a copy of all letters.

Q Did you get a copy of Judge Bok's letter?

A No, I do not have a copy.

Q Did you find out what significance was to be attached to Mr. Hean's statement that there was a letter from Judge Bok in this matter?

A Are you asking me as of then or as of now?

Q No, then.

A No, I do not recall inquiring into it.

Q There were numerous letters in those files, were there, from judges, district attorneys, preachers?

A That's right.

Q People in all walks of life on both sides of the story?

A There was a very voluminous file.

Q You don't know why Mr. Hean wanted to call to the attention of the Board on their special calendar sheet that Judge Bok had written in 1950 recommending leniency?

A No.

Q Is there any way that that letter entered into your consideration?

A That letter and all others I read undoubtedly entered somewhat in my consideration, but not overly so.

Q Did you read that letter?

A Yes, at the time.

Q And was there any special plea made by Judge Bok for the change of sentence here?

A I would like to refer to the letter if I might, because I don't recall it in detail. I just remember Judge Bok did think there should be leniency granted. The reasons for it don't come to my mind.

Q On what basis did he get into this case?

A I think that Judge Bok was an employer as a judge, of Mr. Darcy's father.

Q That is right.

A I think Mr. Darcy's father was a tipstaff in the Philadelphia courts.

Q And Judge Bok got into the case because of that fact, did he not?

A I think so. And I seem to recall that he said that Mr. Darcy Senior did not know of his writing the letter.

Q That's right, too.

A But he felt in conscience and knowing Mr. Darcy Senior as well as he did, he should inform the Board as to his feelings.

Q In other words, what Judge Bok said was this boy's father was working for him and therefore the boy should get a break?

A I would like to see the letter before I subscribe to —should get a break?

Q Certainly. Here it is.

(Mr. Kohn hands letter to witness)

Q Judge Bok knew nothing about the facts or the record, did he?

A May I read it?

Q Sure.

A "Dear Mr. Governor: On June 26, David Darcy and two others will be executed for their part in the Feasterville Inn robbery. Darcy's father has been a tipstaff in this court since its beginning in 1937. While he has not asked me to write to you, I could not feel comfortable if I did not meet his unspoken wish. I can conscientiously say in favor of commutation that Darcy did not fire the fatal shot and that he has no prior criminal record. Further, that with a good home behind him, and having come so close to the chair, it is unlikely that he would be a menace to society in which for such a serious crime he would have to spend the rest of his life, that society being prison. I could not honestly ask for his pardon, but since the extreme penalty might well be reserved for hardened or professional killers, I feel justified in recommending him to your mercy of commutation. Yours sincerely, Curtis Bok."

Q Do you know whether that is the reason Mr. Hean was anxious to mark that letter out of all letters, and bring it to your attention?

A I would prefer you ask Mr. Hean.

Q Did you try to find out why he was particularly interested in the 1950 letter?

A I did not.

Q Do you know whether Judge Bok knew anything about the circumstances or facts in this case?

A I do not.

MR. KOHN: I will ask that Judge Bok's letter be marked.

(Judge Bok's letter marked for identification as Committee's Exhibit No. 35.)

Q Now, Miss Blatt, did you discuss this case with anyone outside of the Board members and the Secretary?

A I did not discuss the case as to its merits with anyone outside of the Board members or the Secretary. I did discuss procedural matters regarding the case with two people.

Q Tell us who they were.

A It—the one person I have already testified about was Reverend Lenhart, who came to me with the request that he be permitted to say what he knew. The other was Matthew McCloskey, who came to me—

Q Was that last year?

A This was approximately one year, I should say, before the case came to the Board of Pardons. I have tried, because I had no doubt this question would be asked, to recollect exactly when that occurred, but I honestly cannot and have not been able to do it. My nearest recollection is that it was toward the end of 1955.

Q Wasn't it a political meeting which you and Furman attended?

A No.

Q Where was it?

A It was in my office, when Mr. McCloskey came to my office on several other matters involving our relationships, which had nothing to do with this case or the Board of Pardons; and he had with him a brief that had been filed on behalf of Darcy to the Supreme Court of the United States. He said, "I would like you to read this if you have the time."

I said, "I will, if I have the time."

And that was the end of the conversation.

Q When was that?

A I think it was toward the end of 1955. The exact month or day I honestly can't recall.

Q Was that a copy of the brief to the United States Supreme Court on the last appeal?

A I believe so.

Q Would you say that was a year before, that is, in 1955, that Mr. McCloskey gave you a brief that was to be filed with the United States Supreme Court?

A I think so, Mr. Kohn. I have really tried awfully hard to remember exactly when that was.

Q Do you have that copy?

A I am quite sure I have it somewhere. I don't have it with me here, and exactly where it is now I couldn't tell you because I didn't make an effort to keep it separate.

Q I understand that. Our calling you here has suprised you, and I am willing to consider that. However, this was in 1955 that Mr. McCloskey came to see you in your office; is that right?

A I believe so.

Q And at that time he stated that the case was pending before the United States Supreme Court?

A I don't recall that he stated it was pending anywhere at that time.

Q Where was the copy of the brief that he gave you?

A As a matter of fact, I cut the conversation off very shortly because I didn't want to be in the position of even seeming to discuss the case that might be coming to the Board of Pardons. It was not pending there, but I am sure any lawyer would assume that, if the legal remedies were exhausted in the courts, it may eventually end there.

So I discouraged Mr. McCloskey from saying anything further. He said, "Will you read the brief?" and I said, "I will," and that was the end of the conversation.

Q Who was with Mr. McCloskey?

A I believe he was alone.

Q And at that time he asked you to read the brief that was to be filed before the Supreme Court?

A I belive so.

Q Would it suprise you to find out that this case wasn't argued until May 1 or 2, 1956, before the Supreme Court of the United States?

A It would not suprise me if you tell me that was the case. However, a person might prepare a brief beforehand. I might be mistaken as to whether it was the brief before the Supreme Court or the case before the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Q Do you know whether the case was ever before the Circuit Court of Appeals in 1955?

A I don't know.

Q Did you accept that copy of the brief?

A I did.

Q You didn't want to talk to him, talk about the matter, but you wanted to read the brief?

A I wouldn't say I wanted to read the brief, but as a matter of legal curiosity, I did read it.

Q What was the question before the United States Court of appeals that you read about?

A You are referring to the United States Supreme Court or the United States Circuit Court?

Q You are saying now it might have been the Circuit Court of Appeals?

A I would like to ask leave to get the brief before I inadvertantly commit myself to a question I would have to correct later.

Q I will delay questioning on that—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think she would be entitled to that.

Do you want to get that now or some time later?

THE WITNESS: I would like to say I don't know what Mr. Kohn might be trying to bring out. I am perfectly willing to say it could be either brief.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Would you try to get it during the lunch hour?

THE WITNESS: I would be very glad to; but whatever was left with me was a printed brief before some appellate court. I don't like to swear it was the Supreme Court of the United States or the Circuit Court of Appeals. Whatever it was, I tried very, very hard not to pay any undue attention to it; but I must admit, as a matter of legal curiosity, I did read it.

I then read that and other briefs over again at the time of the hearing, trying to be as fair about this and objective as I could. At this time I find it difficult to distinguish what I read in one brief at one time and another brief at another time, and I don't like to be questioned if I can honestly avoid it because I want to be as honest as I can.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Miss Blatt, are you opposed to capital punishment?

A No.

Q Mr. Herbert B. Cohen was Attorney General at that time?

A That's right.

Q Do you know whether or not, as Attorney General, he appeared in opposition to all cases in which Darcy was involved before the United States Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court of the United States?

A I do not know that of my own knowledge.

Q Didn't you read the briefs in the matter and the legal opinions of the court in which he is cited as the Attorney General of this Commonwealth?

A But whether he appeared or not does not appear in those briefs, and I don't know.

Q Let me put it another way. Do you know whether or not he filed briefs in opposition to Darcy's petitions before the United States Court of Appeals and the United States Supreme Court?

A I believe he did.

Q What position did he take with regard to Darcy's statements that there was hysteria there, that there was interference and all the other things that Darcy had raised?

What position did the Attorney General at that time take?

A Again, without being permitted to review his brief, I wouldn't like to quote or be quoted exactly; but my impression is that he felt there had been a fair trail.

Q And he so argued by the brief filed by his deputies in the brief filed before the Circuit Court and the United States Supreme Court?

A That is my recollection.

Q And the Attorney General won both of those cases; did he not?

A That is my recollection.

Q And the last decision of the United States Supreme Court was given by a 6-3 decision on June 11, 1956?

A I will take your word for it.

Q How long after that was there a commutation petition on file?

A I couldn't answer that.

Q You decided on September 20, 1956, is that right—

A On or about that date my recollection is.

Q Let us put it this way. The records of the Executive Session of the Board of Pardons as kept by Mr. Hean show that all 3 cases were decided on September 20, 1956?

A That is right.

Q Now, the petitions on this case had to be decided some time prior to September 20, 1956?

A Yes.

Q Don't your records show that it was decided on August 20, 1956?

A The copy furnished to the members of the Board don't carry the record of the filing, Mr. Kohn, but if that is the date you have, I will accept that.

Q Was there any conversation between you and Mr. McBride between June 11, 1956, and September 20, 1956?

A. Positively not.

Q Did he ever pick up the brief that he left here with you?

A No.

Q So that if it was filed, if—I show you the original application in this case and ask you whether or not it was not marked by the Board of Pardons as having been filed on August 20, 1956, with the Board of Pardons?

A It is.

Q So between June 11 and August 20 there were about two months that elapsed between the time of the decision by the Supreme Court of the United States and the filing of this application; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q In all of these cases, that is, rather, with the Supreme Court of the United States and the United States District Court of Appeals, which I think was heard in 1955, the Attorney General took a stand entirely contrary to Darcy's counsel's stand, did he not?

A I again would like to refer to the briefs before I would answer that categorically. My impression is that in general it was he was opposed; but these were on procedural matters relating to the trial, the specific questions raised in the appeal only and not on any matters that did not get raised in the appeal.

Q And those were the specific questions on which the Board of Pardons decided to grant a commutation, was it not? They were not on the facts. Darcy, Zietz and Foster did not deny one iota of the brutal fact of this murder, did they?

A I think you are trying to put words in my mouth, I think, unintentionally. However, the appeals that were taken to the Court all through these years related to specific matters, and the courts ruled on those specific matters only.

I think even the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States in the last appeal, if I read the majority decision correctly, would have preferred that there be a new trial if that was conceivably possible.

Q You say the majority said that?

A I think so.

Q Where did they say that? Would you check that for me?

A I am telling you my general impression.

Q I know. But you are stating—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Why don't you let her finish her answer?

A (Continued) My argument and reasoning may be all wrong, but they are mine and I offer them for what they are worth; that many of the judges that had the specific request for review did not do so because they didn't have the judicial power to do what was requested. They would have preferred, had it been within their power, to grant a new trial; but, of course, as you know, the majority felt that it was not within their power.

My own feeling from reading the dissenting opinions, which have emphatically said in many cases that a new trial was called for under all the circumstances, plus the fact which seems to me that I read even into the majority opinions in some cases, that a new trial would have been better if they had had the authority to order it all weighed very heavily on my mind as a member of the Board of Pardons.

Q Did you read Osman's dissenting opinion, or do you?
A Do I?
Q Yes.
A Not every one of them; but I have read a great many and thought they have had a good deal of food for thought.
Q Now, there was a question on the guilt of the defendants, and they didn't plead innocence like they did in the McSorley cases or the other cases that we talked about—this is not one of those cases where the Board is considering commutation of sentence because of possible illness—
A No: and of course the Board wasn't considering freeing the men entirely; it was just a question of commuting from a death sentence to a life sentence.
Q But it has been argued by Attorney General McBride that, of course, the courts cannot go into those particular cases where there is a plea of innocence except within the technical rules of the law as may be required to granting or refusing a new trial.
A Of course, that has no bearing here at all.
Q That is right. So the courts considered matters which were solely and substantially up to the Courts themselves to decide, the rules of the evidence and the interpretation of the rules of evidence in these cases, were they not?
A Yes.
Q And yet the Board has set itself up as the upholder of the minority opinion an a 6-3 decision in the United States Supreme Court.
REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: I think the constitution of our state has set the Board up for that purpose, not the Board itself. The Constitution has done that.
MR. KOHN: Let me withdraw that question. I think it was unfair.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Nevertheless, in this particular case the Board of Pardons has gone into the field of the courts in interpreting what is and what is not a fair trial?
A I do not think so, Mr. Kohn. I think in this particular case, as in all cases during the time I have been a member of the Board of Pardons, the Board of Pardons had stuck strictly to its own jurisdiction under the Constitution of this Commonwealth, which requires it, whether it wants to or not, to hear appeals from people who feel that executive clemency should be awarded to them.
Q Isn't it a fact that the Supreme Court of the United States in a 6-3 decision said that this defendant Darcy did have a fair trial? Did they not so hold specifically?
A I would like to see the decision before I subscribe to that.
CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Because of the fact that a number of questions have arisen here that make it necessary that this witness get some material in her files in order to be properly able to answer, we will take a luncheon recess for one hour.
Will that give you enough time, Miss Blatt?
THE WITNESS: Some of these matters are not in my file, for instance, the decision of the Supreme Court is not in my file. The only thing I have in my file is a brief which I would be able to get.
CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Could you get that brief that Mr. McCloskey left with you?
THE WITNESS: If I have retained it, I will certainly get it.
CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right.
(Recessed.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Miss Blatt, have you read the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States handed down on June 11, 1956?
A Yes.
Q Isn't it a fact that in that opinion the judges, 6 to 3, stated that Darcy had received a fair trial and that they were upholding the conviction?
A The majority of the judges said that they did not consider his trial was essentially unfair in a constitutional sense.
Q And in the commutation as set forth in the wording thereof, the Board did find that it was in a constitutional sense unfair, did it not?
A I don't recall that there was any such specific finding.
Q Did the Attorney General, Mr. Cohen, who argued against Darcy in the appeal before the Circuit Court of Appeals or the United States Supreme Court, ever disqualify himself from consideration of the matter of commutation?
A No.
Q Did that question ever come up?
A No.
Q Yet his position, despite the position he took before the United States Supreme Court and Circuit Court of Appeals, his position was exactly contrary in the matter of consideration of commutation before the Board of Pardons than it has been before the Circuit Court—
A I don't see any inconsistency in the Attorney General's position. As the chief law officer of the Commonwealth he was the proper person to represent the Commonwealth in appeals before the Federal or other courts or an appellate nature, and he did so, and questions of constitutional due process were raised in those appeals and he undoubtedly stated his opinion in regard to those questions. The constitution also makes him a member of the Board of Pardons, and as such he has to sit on cases which come before that Board, which may very well involve matters that had previously been within his jurisdiction as Attorney General. But I see no conflict in the two positions.
Q I see no conflict either, but aren't the positions incompatable and exactly controvert each other?
A I don't think so.
Q Isn't it a fact that he proposed specifically in the Darcy petition the fact that there was no hysteria present in the courtroom? Didn't he oppose that particular allegation by Darcy's counsel.
A I have not had an opportunity to review his pleadings before the Court. If you say that, for the purposes of argument I would grant it. I still don't see that that has anything to do with his sitting as a member of the Board of Pardons.
Q Isn't that the basis upon which the dissenting opinions that you quoted in the commutation were rendered, on the basis of those particular factual situations, that he was deprived of a fair trial by reason of the violation of his constitutional rights, on those particular reasons?
A The dissenting opinions were based largely on that feeling.

Q Didn't he take the stand and oppose those before the Circuit Court of Appeals and the United States Supreme Court?

A I am not in a position to say that he did or did not. I have not had an opportunity to review those proceedings.

Q Did you ever review those proceedings?

A I don't recall reviewing that part of the pleadings. Certainly I don't recall what the answer is to your question.

Q Do you know when the question of competency of counsel was raised for the first itme?

A Which counsel?

Q Counsel that represented Darcy at the trial of the case; do you know when that was raised for the first time?

A No, I do not.

Q Didn't you read the record?

A I read the record, Mr. Kohn, but I simply don't recall the answer to that specific question.

Q Did you know that the Attorney General, Thomas McBride, had argued this case before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania?

A I understand so.

Q Do you know whether he ever raised the question of competency of counsel for the defendant?

A I do not.

Q Was that contained in the Supreme Court's findings?

A It may very well be contained there, and if it is I would be glad to have you point it out to me. I might say had I known I was to be called this morning and that the whole case was to be developed from my testimony, or at least a large part of it, I would certainly have reviewed it much more in detail because I would like to be helpful, but I can't out of memory recollect a lot of these details right now.

Q Do you know that the Attorney General had assisted in the trial of this case originally, in the Bucks County Court, by advising the counsel who actually tried it for the defendant?

A I did not.

Q Do you know whether or not counsel for the defendant was one that was assigned to him by the Court, or one which he hired voluntarily by himself?

A I was of the impression he hired counsel himself.

Q And do you know whether or not counsel in the trial of the case examined each particular juror on voire dire to find out whether he was biased or whether he had any facts which might disqualify him?

A I don't recall that that was done. I would assume it was but I don't recall.

Q And did you know that in the trial of the Darcy case he was represented by Mr. Achey, who is an outstanding member of the Bucks County Bar?

A I certainly do.

Q Did you consider him competent counsel?

A I had never heard of Mr. Achey before the day that this matter was brought to the attention of the Board of Pardons. I don't know him now. I know nothing about him except what was said there. I might just say, as a lawyer, reviewing his conduct of the case, it seems to me to have had certain inexplicable omissions, but if he was trying it and was a competent lawyer, I assume he knew what he was doing. I think I would have tried it differently.

Q Did anybody ever make any statement in pleading the case before the Pardons Board that he was competent or incompetent?

A The only statements I recall hearing were to the effect that he was a competent lawyer.

Q I suppose you regard Mr. McBride as a competent lawyer?

A I certainly do.

Q I think we all do. Did you know that many of these things that you considered, these constitutional questions, were not raised at all by Mr. McBride before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania?

A I do not so recall.

Q You don't know that?

A I don't recall it. I simply have no recollection one way or the other.

Q Do you know that many of the facts that were propounded to the Circuit Court of Appeals and United States Supreme Court were not raised until three years after the case had been tried and decided by Mr. Margiotti and Mr. Witkin? Do you know that?

A I do not know it.

Q Do you know that they waited until after Mr. Achey died to raise the question of his competency as counsel?

A I do not know it.

Q Did you read from the record that they waited until Judge Boyer was very ill, until they raised the question as to his participation in the trial?

A Well, Mr. Kohn, the record may very well disclose that the date of a certain action is such-and-such and that that date was after another date on which a certain action occurred. But whether there is any connection between the fact that there was a waiting period involved, and neither you nor I, I think, is competent to judge—

Q What I am trying to find out is whether or not it wasn't significant to you and the other members of the Board that many of these factors that were raised upon which you base your question of commutation, about his having not received a fair trial, whether or not you observed or other members of the Board, that they were not raised until many years afterwards, until many of the parties thereto were dead?

A I did not observe that, and so far you have only mentioned one party who has died.

Q Judge Boyer is dead, too.

A Well, he didn't die until recently.

Q So did Mr. Achey, he died some years ago.

A That may be. But it did not impress me as of any consequence.

Q Did you know that both of those questions were raised after both men involved were dead, by Mr. Margiotti?

A I didn't know it.

Q Did you find out from reading the record?

A I did not observe it.

Q Did you find it in the statement of the Supreme Court?

A I did not.

Q Do you know whether Mr. McBride ever raised either one of those questions?

A I do not know.

Q You are familiar, you say, as an attorney, with legal trial procedure. Do you think that the court, under the law of the land, could grant any more fairness than to have a defendant's counsel examine each juror to find out whether he is fit to serve, whether he is prejudiced or whether he is not? You are familiar with that procedure, are you not?

A I certainly agree with it.

Q And you know that in the Darcy case the defense exercised 10 of its 20 peremptory challenges?

A I don't recall it.

Q That was in the record.

A I don't recall it, however.

Q There was a great deal of wind created by Mr. Margiotti in regard to the newspaper articles in the case; did you read about that?

A I recall reading references to the newspaper articles.

Q In your consideration of this case did you at any time believe that those newspaper articles influenced the jurors who were considering the Darcy case? Did you come to that conclusion?

A I think they may very well have influenced the jurors.

Q Did you know the jury after it was selected, was locked up and kept incommunicato until after the trial, the newspaper articles introduced by Margiotti did not appear until after they were locked up?

A That may be; however, there were newspaper articles before the period of the lock up, that may very well have influenced them.

Q Do you recall Mr. Freed who represented Foster, making a statement before the Board of Pardons in his argument in which he said that he did not think there was any hysteria or any effect on the jury by anything that had gone on previous to the trial?

A I don't recall that precisely. I will say the only thing I do recall, and I made a note of it at the time because it struck me forcefully, Mr. Freed said in his opinion at the time that Judge Boyer was a sick man. Those were his exact words.

Q Do you know how long he was sick before that?

A I don't know.

Q What was the significance of that upon you?

A That Judge Boyer, had he not been in Mr. Fried's opinion a sick man, in other words, not acting rationally, as a well and able—

Q Are you saying now there is something in the statement of Mr. Fried that Judge Boyer was not in rational or full consciousness when he tried this case?

A Oh, no.

Q I didn't want to misunderstand.

A But Judge Boyer did not at this time have the faculties in the fullest sense in which Mr. Fried as a member of that bar had noted him to have previously.

Q Did Mr. Fried say that?

A To the Board of Pardons.

Q Before the Board of Pardons?

A That's right.

Q And you took that without any further investigation as being a fact?

A No. I just took it as a statement as being Mr. Fried's opinion.

Q Is this Board going to go into the statements of counsel and take them as a fact and then consider them and grant clemency upon them?

A As I see it, Mr. Kohn, the Board of Pardons has to listen to everything that is said to it by everyone who properly appears before it; and in reaching its decision, it must give what weight it thinks is proper to all the things it has heard. It has to consider everything. Some things it may have a negative consideration; to some things a posititve. Some of those it considers positively, it may consider to a lesser or greater degree; but everything has to be considered if we are going to be fair as we are trying to be.

Q I notice in the DiVito case you gave a great deal of consideration to what Mr. Lord said as to political implications. You gave that a great deal of weight in setting forth the finding of the Board in recommending clemency for DiVito. Is it the usual matter for the Board to consider factors which are important in arriving at a decision for clemency without making any check on it?

A As I said, it is the usual matter for the Board to give full consideration to everything that is said to it and to weight it on its scales.

Q How can you weigh something that is a one-sided self-serving declaration on the side of the applicant without having checked it?

A I personally feel that when a lawyer comes before the Board he is an officer of the court he is going to deal fairly with the Board. In the absence of any evidence or charge by the district attorney or the opposing counsel, as the case may be, that something has been said that is wrong, I accept it as right. If it strikes me even in the absence of a charge as something that is incredible or beyond my beliefs, I reject it.

But on the fact of it, the ordinary statement that a lawyer makes to the Board, I would be prepared to accept it.

Q Isn't it a fact that in allowing a commutation from a death sentence to a life sentence there should be a great deal more care exercised in taking the statements at their face value even though they might not be contradicted?

A You are a hundred percent right, and I couldn't emphasize how very carefully I personally—and I personally try to be extra careful on every case, but more particularly on these capital cases, where we are thinking of commuting a death sentence.

Q At the time you considered the Darcy case, were you aware of the fact that Attorney General McBride had participated in this case?

A When it was before the Board of Pardons?

Q Yes.

A Frankly, I was not very much aware of it. I recognized his name as appearing among counsel on one of the appeals, but it didn't register with me very dramatically.

Q Did you then have knowledge of the fact that J. Dress Pannell, personal counsel for Matthew McCloskey, had also been active in the case? Had that name also registered with you?

A I noticed that name also.

Q Did that mean anything to you?

A No particularly.

Q And had you known Mr. McCloskey had been interested—I think you so testified.

A I knew Mr. McCloskey had presented me with the brief, as I said previously.

Q You knew he had been interested in it?

A I think I did, yes.

Q There had been plenty of newspaper articles on it.

A Oh, indeed, yes.

Q Do you know whether or not these boys had any previous criminal record?

A I am not aware of any.

Q Do you know how many persons were shot during this series of hold-ups that Darcey was engaged in?

A You mean during this particular Feasterville incident?

Q I am referring to just a few days before that. How many robberies? How many people had been shot?

A My recollection is hazy. I think there may have been 5 hold-ups.

Q No. I am talking about people who were actually shot.

A People shot? I do not know.

Q Did you not look at the record?

A I looked at it, but I don't recall at the moment. I do recall that when I first heard of the case or when I first came before it, I was under the impression that these were men of a long criminal record, who had done a long series of criminal acts, and I was rather surprised myself, to find that their criminal career as such extended over a very brief period of several weeks.

Q About 3 weeks; wasn't it?

A About 3 weeks.

Q In all cases they were hold-ups with guns.

A I believe so.

Q And in some cases there were some persons shot?

A (no response)

Q 7 people.

A I don't recall.

Q And you don't at all contend that they were not guilty of the brutal crimes as a result of which people died.

A Not at all.

Q You were, of course, Miss Blatt—I am not trying to be facetious—but you were aware of Mr. McCloskey's position in the Democratic Party at the time you decided this case?

A Yes, I was.

Q And he expressed an interest in it to you?

A He had done only what I have testified, which was to come to see me on that one occasion, approximately a year before the occasion ever came to the Board of Pardons. He never discussed it with me while it was before the Board of Pardons at all.

Q Did you ever talk to Irene Ford?

A I never did.

Q Did you ever talk to Mr. Pannell about it?

A I never did.

Q How about Mr. Margiotti?

A I never did.

Q Witkin?

A I never did.

Q Did anyone else on behalf of Darcey contact you and talk to you?

A No one.

Q You say you ran and—

A I beg your pardon. I did testify this morning that Reverend Lenhart contacted me in regard to Zietz, but it was an isolated case.

Q What year were you elected?

A 1954. I took office in 1955.

Q You were familiar with McCloskey's position in the Democratic Party?

A Yes, indeed.

Q What was his position?

A At that time?

Q Yes.

A In 1954?

Q No, I mean when you considered this case.

A Mr. McCloskey was in 1956 the Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee and the Chairman of the Democratic State Finance Committee of Pennsylvania.

Q And in 1954 he was engaged in raising a half-million dollars on behalf of the Democratic State Finance Committee when you ran?

A He was the Chairman of the State Finance Committee when I ran.

Q And Mr. McCloskey contributed approximately $6000 of his own money at that time, did he not?

A I don't recall.

Q Do you know whether or not Harry Halloran, who wrote to the Board of Pardons in connection with the McSorely case, from Delaware County, contributed $2,000?

A I do not know that.

Q Didn't you see the campaign returns?

A I saw them.

Q The contributions?

A I saw them, but I specifically don't recall those contributions that you mentioned.

Q Do you recall the name of Alden W. Phelps, who is alleged to be the County Chairman of Erie County, contributing $2,900, who was interested in the Kauffman case?

A I do not recall.

Q Did he talk to you about the Kauffman case?

A No, he didn't.

Q Do you know anything about James Morrisy, who is connected with Mr. McCloskey, being a contributor?

A I do not.

Q Do you know that Mr. J. Dress Pannell contributed $5,000 to the Democratic Party?

A I do not. I wouldn't deny any of these things because several of the people you mentioned are known to me as contributors to the Democratic Party, and they undoubtedly did contribute; but whether they contributed in those amounts I do not remember.

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. Chairman, whether somebody contributed to the Democratic Party or the Republican Party isn't material here unless Mr. Kohn can show that the contributions made were in consideration of a favor of some kind from the Pardons Board. Unless you can show that, I say your questioning is out of line.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We will leave the information go in for what it is worth.

MR. KOHN: I have no further questions of Miss Blatt.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Miss Blatt, have you—how long have you been connected with the Democratic Party?

A With the Democratic Party?

Q Yes.

A I have been a member of the Democratic Party since I became of voting age. I have had official positions in the party at various times in the past.

Q And did Mr. McCloskey make contributions to the Democratic Party prior to the Darcy case?

A As long as I have known anything about Democratic politics in Pennsylvania, Mr. McCloskey has been one of the leading contributors to the Democratic Party.

Q Do you know of any contributions that Mr. McCloskey or anybody else made for the purpose of influencing you or any other member of the Pardons Board in the Darcy case?

A Positively not.

Q Or any other case that came before the Board of Pardons?

A Positively not.

Q Miss Blatt, how old were the 3 or 4 defendants in this Darcy case at the time the crime was committed?

A I am a little hazy on that, Senator Yosko. My recollection is that Darcy himself was about 21; that one of the men, I think, perhaps Foster or Zietz was about 23; the other one about 19; and Capone about 17.

Q Do you have the date that they were sentenced there?

A I don't know that—well, yes, I guess I do. February 16, 1949 for David Darcy.

Q And when were their sentences commuted?

A In 1956.

Q And that was for how many years it went on between the time they were sentenced and the time the sentences were commuted?

A It would be about 7 years, I quess.

Q How many reprieves were granted to any or all of these defendants during that 6 year period?

A I am sorry, I don't know the exact number. Twenty some, but I am uncertain.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The present record, as I recall it, indicates that Darcy had 23, and that Zietz and Foster had 27; but they are unable to explain the difference between the numbers, except that the execution for Darcy was not fixed quite as often as it was for Zietz and Foster on account of Darcy's case coming up in the courts.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q In any case, if we don't have the exact number of reprieves that were granted, they were granted by who?

A By the Governor in office at the time.

Q Who were the Governors in office at the time the reprieves were granted?

A Well, the first reprieves, I suppose, would have been in 1949, at which time I believe Governor Duff was in office.

Q Does the record show how many reprieves Governor Duff gave to any or all of these defendants and the number that Governor Fine gave to any or all of these defendants?

A I am sure the record shows that. I don't have that myself.

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. Kohn, do you know that?

MR. KOHN: There were over 20.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The total number was 23, according to the records of the Rockview Prison.

MR. KOHN: Well, sir—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: We will get that accurately for the Committee.

THE WITNESS: The only thing I do recall was Reverend Lenhart's testimony that there were 4 reprieves within the first week that these men were in the death house, and he testified that he had personally prepared his particular communicant, who I think was Mr. Zietz, who belonged to his church, he had prepared him for death 4 times that first week, at the end of which he, Reverend Lenhart, was so emotionally exhausted by the ordeal of having gone through this 4 times in one week, that he asked for and obtained a leave of absence in order to recuperate.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q How many times were any or all of these defendants prepared for execution during the period they were in prison?

A I can't answer that categorically. I assume every time there was an execution date set they were prepared for execution on that date.

Q Were any of the reprieves granted by Governor Leader?

A I think that the last few were during the course of the last proceedings to the Circuit and Supreme Court.

SENATOR YOSKO: I wish somebody, either Mr. Kohn or somebody from the Pardons Board, would give us that breakdown.

THE WITNESS: I will certainly see it is prepared for you.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q I think you will find if you go through the record that these men although they were granted all these reprieves were only prepared for the death house on 3 different occasions.

A I recall Reverend Lenhart's statement that he had prepared his communicant 4 times. Whether there were any preparations subsequent to that for him or any of the others I can't testify.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q While we are on the matter of reprieves, that isn't the matter of the right of the Governor; that is followed by the order of the court; is that right?

A That's right.

Q When an appeal is taken, they get a supersedious order of reprieve and each Governor follows that as a matter of course under the law; is that right?

A I am sure that any Governor, knowning that there was a case pending before an appellate court, would grant a reprieve until that was decided.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q You said at least 4 times, on at least 4 occasions, that either one or all of these defendants were prepared for execution. As far as punishment is concerned and in considering whether a communtation should be granted or not, was that one of the factors considered by you, so far as punishment is concerned?

A Yes, that was considered by me and weighed rather heavily with me.

Q Miss Blatt, did your decision or was your decision influenced in any way, shape, or form by political consideration?

A No, indeed, it wasn't; but I would like to make this statement in that connection, Senator Yosko.

When I made the decision I anticipated that it would be questioned as it is being questioned here today, and if I had been motivated by political influences, I would not have voted as I did because I would know that I and other members of the Pardons Board would be subject to the criticism in some quarters, as indeed it had been intimated in the Philadelphia Inquirer that we would be, that we were granting this commutation out of some desire to do a favor for some political friend of ours.

That was the farthest thing from my thought I personally leaned over backward in my reasoning and thinking and I might say even in my praying that I would not be influenced by the friendship that I readily admit that I have had for a long time with Mr. McCloskey. I think he is a fine, estimable man. I think the interest he took in this case is open to no question by any source. He had every right to take the interest he seemed to have, it seemed to me. But I did think that an adverse effect would result from granting clemency by any governor on him, and my part, too, but it seemed to me that I had to follow the dictates of my own conscience, whether in so doing I was hurting my party or helping my party. I had to do what I thought was right and I could not have slept another night if I had not voted to keep those three boys from the death chair.

Q I assume you are familiar with the activities of the previous Pardon Boards and of cases that might have been commuted from the death sentence to a sentence of life imprisonment, am I correct in that?

A I am familiar with them in a general way, yes.

Q Was the commutation in the Darcy case from death to life imprisonment established by the Pardon Board of which you were a party?

A No. As a matter of fact, we had testimony here regarding the Paul Perry case from Bradford County, which seems to me very similar, a case of a man who had a sentence commuted from death to life. In fact, the Perry case is even stronger because there was apparently a premeditated murder, not a murder committed in the course of a felony, but a premediated murder of a woman by her husband; and in that case the man was commuted from death to life by the Pardon Board. I don't criticize them for doing that, but I just point out that that is an indication certainly among others that the Darcy case is no precedent.

Q But there were cases that came before the Pardons Board where a death sentence was commuted to life?

A Yes. We have had several such cases before this Board, and I know there have been many before other Boards.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Miss Blatt, there was a question asked of you by Mr. Kohn referring to the number of pre-emptory challenges used, and I guess it was implied that since none of them were used, there would be no projudice in the community. Isn't it a fact that if they were used, they would be used for cause?

A It is quite possible, yes.

Q And isn't it a fact that you will as a lawyer use those charges for cause rather than pre-emptory—

A Certainly.

Q So the fact that there were ten unused challenges would certainly not indicate that there were no prejudices in that community?

A Certainly not.

Q Or that the lawyer hadn't done his duty?

A No.

Q All right.

A I might say, Mr. Lopresti, that the jurors in this case were subsequently polled and they made written replies, and at least eleven of them did, and this polling took place in 1951, and they said if they had an opportunity to rehear the case and if evidenec were presented as to the prior record or lack thereof and the character of these boys, that they would not have voted for a death penalty, but only for life imprisonment. That is a part of the record, and I think it is very interesting evidence.

Q Did the Board have that information?

A Yes.

Q Now, Miss Blatt, would you as a member of the Board of Pardons allow stories, comments, and things such as that to influence your decision on any case?

A No, I would not; but I would say that that was the source of constant barrage of attempted influence throughout the course of the hearings, throughout the course of our deliberations, and since from a certain newspaper.

Q Did you consider newspaper editorials and stories as an attempt to influence the Board in not granting a commutation?

A I would not like to ascribe motives to a newspaper or any individual; but I would certainly think they could be considered as an attempt to influence the Board.

Q At any rate, you have testified that you would not allow them to influence your decision.

A Positively not.

Q Now, there have been some questions asked about dissenting opinions. As a lawyer, do you consider dissenting opinions as having some merit?

A I certainly do, because, not only as a lawyer, but as some students of jurisprudence, I have seen so many dissenting opinions of one year becoming the majority of opinions of some subsequent year; and any lawyer must be familiar with dissenting opinions as well as majority opinions to be aware of the course of the development of the law.

Q And wouldn't dissenting opinions be of more particular value to members of the Pardon Board than to the ordinary lawyer?

A I think so.

Q And their decision, even those dissenting would have some merit that could be considered by a Board of clemency.

A That is right.

Q And I notice Mr. Kohn also asked you whether you read the dissenting opinions of Judge Musmanno. Have you during your course of study read the dissenting opinions of Judge Brandeis?

A I certainly have.

Q As a matter of practice among lawyers, aren't those opinions considered today, most of them, to be the law of the land?

A They are.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Did any of Judge Musmanno's decisions become the law of the land?

A Not yet; but I assume some of them will, Mr. Kohn.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q You don't contend that the dissenting opinion is the law of the land when rendered?

A No, sir, I do not; but as Mr. Lopresti said, when we come to matters of granting clemency, the fact that three learned judge out of seven, or four out of nine, have held that a different course of action shoud be taken is something that a Board of Pardons, which is interested in granting complete and full justice, regardless of any legal technicalities that may have barred a judge from reaching a certain decision, they have to take those into consideration and weigh them.

Q This morning the question came up about some brief that Mr. McCloskey left with you. Are you able to find that?

A Yes. And I am sorry to say I have to correct myself. It was not a brief. It was an opinion of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit which we had there on the table. But this was a pamphlet copy of which he left with me and which I read.

Q What case was that?

A In this Darcy case.

Q Number 11564, Circuit Court of Appeals?

A Yes. And in the interest of completing the record, I also had in my office a copy of the brief filed by Mr. Witkin for himself and Mr. Pannell and Mr. Margiotti before the Board of Pardons in 1956, when the case was tried.

Q I have that. This brief indicated it was argued on April 4, 1955, and the opinion filed on June 9, 1955.

A Yes.

Q So it must have been some time after June 9, 1955, that Mr. McCloskey handed this to you.

A I have so testified. My recollection was that it was late in 1955.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q You seem to have a vivid recollection of the quotations of witnesses before Judge Murphy in the District Court. Did you read that part of the case in which the letters from the jurors were procured?

A I don't recall reading that particular part of the case. Where I read the references to the letter, Mr. Kohn, was in this brief which was filed with us, and I have since seen photostatic copies of the letters which were filed with the Board of Pardons.

Q Do you know what the Court said about that? Did you go any further other than taking a look at what Mr. Witkin gave you to find out about that?

A Yes. Of course. The court did not take these matters in because it didn't feel it had the Constitutional right to do so, and I don't quarrel with the Court's decisions on the matters of law.

Q That made a profound impression on you?

A The letters did?

Q Yes, the fact that they testified as they did.

A The letters of the jurors did make an impression upon me, yes.

Q Mr. McBride just gave these to you; is that correct?

A Yes. I have seen them previously, though.

Q Didn't this say that if some defense or character witnesses would have been presented at the trial, they feel that there would have been a change in the verdict arrived at? "If I personally had the information about his reputation and character at the time of trial which I have now, I would have voted for life imprisonment rather than the death sentence;" isn't that what is says?

A Yes.

Q Isn't it a fact that these letters were procured by his brothers, and these jurors were contacted?

A I couldn't tell you.

Q Do you know that these jurors had turned down similar requests in Bucks County to save the life of a prisoner?

A I do not know anything except the fact that these letters were received.

Q Do you know what questions were asked to get these or do you know whether they were contacted by Joseph Darcy or someone in his behalf?

A I have no idea, Mr. Kohn. All I testified to was I saw the letters.

Q And they are all addressed to To whom it may concern.

A I wouldn't want to testify to that. That is my recollection.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: May I see those a minute?

(Letters passed up to the Chairman)

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Isn't it a fact that it was a matter of defense counsel to decide whether or not he was going to put any witnesses on in behalf of the defendant on the stand as a matter of planning and strategy at a given time when a man's life hangs in the balance; isn't that right?

A That's right.

Q And what you are saying now is that had deceased counsel done differently, the outcome might have been different?

A I believe that is what it amounts to.

Q And isn't it a fact that if he put them on the stand, the district attorney would have torn them to pieces by confronting them with their records?

A I don't know.

Q You know the fact that they had committed holdups over three weeks and shot seven people?

A They had no record prior to this.

Q You say when they engage in a series of crimes over a period of three weeks and shoot seven people that that isn't admissible?

A All I will say, Mr. Kohn, is that neither you nor I nor anyone can tell what would have happened if—

Q I agree with you, and isn't that all the more reason that if gotten statements are procured as to what an attorney might or might not have done, he is the one who is faced with the problem, including Mr. McBride, including what they should or should not do as to save the man's life?

A No. The Board of Pardons is confronted with the situation as it was in 1956, which boys who have been in the death house since 1949. Then they are confronted with the fact that at least eleven of the twelve jurors now say that if they had known something at the time of trial which they didn't know then and do now, they would have voted for life imprisonment instead of a death sentence.

Q Is the Board of Pardons going to adopt the policy that after each capital case is tried, the jurors are to be polled and that letters are to be gotten from them like that, that if the lawyer did something he didn't do in his good judgment, Mr. McBride was in that case—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You keep saying that. To what extent was I in it? To what extent did I advise.

MR. KOHN: It says you were consulted.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: What does it say?

MR. KOHN: I will show it to you.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE. Go ahead. But let us have it out on the table. I was never in Bucks County at that trial.

MR. KOHN: No, but you were advising; that is what the thing says. The Federal Court says you were advising in the case.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: What Federal Court?

MR. KOHN: I will give it to you.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Do you think the basis in each particular case where a capital case has gotten a death penalty sentence, that this should be part of the consideration on the part of the Board of Pardons?

A I am not in any position and I am not going to take the position of saying what the Board of Pardons policy will be in any future case or will be in any general run of cases. I am only saying that in this case we were told that a poll of jurors was taken and that eleven had written letters stating that they would decide differently if they had to do so; and if we are faced with the decision as to whether three men will die on Monday night or live the rest of their lives in prison, we have to take all the statements that come before us; and the letters of the eleven jurors seemed to me to be very persuasive.

BY SENATOR SCOTT:

Q When were those letters presented to you?

A They were originally presented at the time the original hearing was requested before the Pardons Board. But when I saw reference to them was in the brief which was filed by the attorneys for Mr. Darcy at the time of their appearance before the Board of Pardons in 1956, where they are summarized in the brief.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q These were filed with the prior application?

A I understand that they were filed in 1951 with the Board of Pardons. Personally I did not see them in the Board of Pardons' file, so I cannot testify to that All I know is I saw the reference to them in here.

Q They are in the Board of Pardons' file because I saw them.

A They are?

Q And they were in the Board of Pardons' file at the time the case was first considered. So apparently—

A I doubt, Mr. Tompkins, that they could have been when they were first considered, because I think the first hearing was in 1950; but it may have been reconsidered subsequently.

Q They are in the files anyhow. I saw them, the originals of them.

A (No response)

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Miss Blatt, having these letters in front of the Board of Pardons, isn't that setting up a dangerous precedent? I want you to make a statement. I am not trying to trap you on this question. In other words, in every murder case, aren't you opening the door for relatives of the murderer to go and visit the jurors after the verdict and seek to get letters like this and put pressure on them?

A I suppose that every time that an applicant would come before the Board of Pardons seeking clemency, he would do everything he could to help his case; and if he knew of such a precedent, he might follow it. But I don't see that the Board of Pardons can do anything else but to consider everything that is brought before it, particularly in a capital case where a matter of life and death is involved.

Q Well, it also would stand to reason that it might be good practice when letters are received like this to find out if there was any pressure used on the jurors to obtain the letters, would it not?

A I would be very interested to know that, yes; but the Board of Pardons, as you know, does not have an investigative staff. I can't tell you, since this was in 1951, whether there was any investigation or not. I don't know today whether there was any pressure brought. I know this, that I have never heard until today any mention that there was pressure. If there was, then there was; I have not heard it previously.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Miss Blatt, do you know how many times David Darcy took the stand in his own defense?

A I don't think he did at all, Mr. Tompkins.

Q Do you know whether or not he was ever given an opportunity to say anything on his own behalf?

A I don't recall that he was, although I am sure that he could have if he had wanted to, if his attorney had put him on.

Q Do you know that in the hearing before Judge Murphy in the District Court, Judge Murphy himself invited Mr. Darcy to make any comments that he would care to make if he cared to make any in his own behalf.

A I don't know if he did.

Q And he refused to say anything in his own behalf.

A And he refused to say anything in his own behalf?

Q Yes. It is in the report.

Mr. KOHN: I have it.

A I don't remember seeing it.

MR. KOHN: I have it here. May I ask one more question?

BY MR. KOHN:

Q You put a great deal of significance on the fact that these letters state that had Darcy taken the stand, the decision might be different. Did you know that the Circuit Court of Appeals, in remanding these cases to the District Court for rehearing, ordered that all this be stricken from the record as improper and inconsequention?

A I don't recall it, but I wouldn't doubt it one bit because the Court here has very limited and narrow questions before it, for example, as to whether or not there has been due process of law followed in the trial; and they felt they couldn't say that within those narrow limits that there had been a denial of due process. But I think that the Board of Pardons has a much wider scope of inquiry, and that the Constitution so intended it to have; and having taken that wider scope and felt that these defendants had not actually had the fullest play of justice, we recommended executive clemency.

Q If you do have a wider scope, why didn't you exercise it? Why didn't you take these letters which had been thrown out in court and start investigating some of them?

A Mr. Kohn, as I said in regard to another factor in my testimony—

Q I am talking about this factor.

A I am going to relate it to these letters. Neither these letters nor any other one single factor was controlling in reaching any decision; nor do I think it was inreaching the Board's decision, but all of them played some small part in our reaching a conclusion that here was a case where executive clemency was called for.

Q You haven't read this record very carefully have you?

A I read it very carefully at the time of the hearing. I would have read it extremely carefully last night or this morning had I had any idea that you were going to try to put the case on the record through my testimony I am extremely sorry I am not more intimately acquainted with it. But I did read it carefully at the time.

Q Didn't you notice, as Mr. Tompkins stated, the part of the record where it is stated by Judge Murphy: "We noted that the defendant, David Darcy, has been in this courtroom throughout the beginning of this proceeding, throughout this proceeding, every minute, and we now direct this question to David Darcy himself, the defendant. Mr. Darcy, is there anything you have to add to what has been said throughout this proceeding, anything you want to add on your own behalf? You have a right to testify as a witness. You have a right to take the stand. You can tell this Court anything that will add light on this proceedings.

What is your wish?

"BY DAVID DARCY: No. Your Honor."

Now, Darcy had a chance before the—excuse me. I want to finish what Judge Murphy said.

"You don't desire to add anything to what your lawyers have done or what has happened in this Courtroom?"

"No, Your Honor."

He had a chance to testify and refused again. Now that second basis of his refusal, did that receive any consideration in your commutation?

A It didn't receive any great consideration from me for this reason, that I assumed that when this man is before the Federal District Court, he is acting under the advice of counsel and without being told to testify, he might hesitate to do so.

Q Wasn't his counsel in this case just as negligent as his original counsel was in the original trial of the case where they refused to put him on? What is the difference?

A I would prefer not to go into any criticism of counsel.

Q All right. So that the deliberations of the Board of Pardons, according to the record of the Board of Pardons, during the hearing of this case and sixty-nine other cases that morning, you concluded that and came to a decision that same day, according to the record of the Board of Pardons on September 20th.

A According to the minutes, that is correct. I have testified, however, that I personally did not feel that a final decision was reached on that day.

Q Do you have anything to prove that?

A No, I don't.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Miss Blatt, do you know or do you recall what number you were of the Members of the Board who signed the commutation? Was that signed by all four of you together or was it circulated among the four members at different times and places?

A It was circulated, but I don't recall in what order I signed.

Q Do you remember whether you signed first, second, third, or fourth?

A I believe that the Attorney General had signed before me, and I say that because he ordinarily does. When the papers come around, they ordinarily have gone first to the Attorney General, and then either to me next or one of the other Members next; but whether one of the other Members preceded me in this case I don't recall.

Q I think the reasons indicate that there was some division of opinion among the Members of the Board in connection with some phases of this commutation. Between whom were those differences of opinion, Miss Blatt?

A As I recall, it was mostly, if not exclusievly, between the Attorney General and the other members, the Attorney General having taken part in the appeals to the higher courts, was not in a position to and did not want to say that there had not been a fair trial granted. That was the only difference of opinion that I know of.

Q Who raised that question? The Attorney General himself, or some other Member of the Board? The Attorney General himself, or some other Member of the Board?

A As to the trial?

Q As to his participating in these proceedings?

A Not as to his participating; I mean in taking a consistent position with regard to his position in the courts to the effect that the trial had been completely fair or not. I am reading something into the Attorney General's mind that I don't recall him stating in so many words, but where the commutation refers to a difference of opinion, that is the only one I can recall among the four of us, that the Attorney General did not feel he could subscribe to an outright statement that the trial had not been a fair one.

Q Because he had previously taken a contrary position; is that right?

A Well, because I presume he did not believe it previously, and had taken a contrary opinion; but he would be a much better witness than I. I shouldn't really testify to something that was in his mind.

Q Do you know, Miss Blatt, when these three men were taken out?

A I don't know the date, no, Mr. Tompkins.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Was it in 1950 or 1951, do you know?

A I don't have the slightest idea of the date. I am sure the record would disclose it, but I don't remember it.

Q Where were these men confined at the time that you state that some chaplain had been with them on several different occasions? I think it was within three or four times a week while they were being prepared for execution.

A They were at Rockview.

Q They were at Rockview at the time?

A Reverend Lenhart was the chaplain at the time, although he no longer is.

Q That was some time shortly after they were sentenced?

A I recall that it was sometime around 1950. I am not at all clear about that.

Q Do you know whether or not counsel for Darcy at the time of the trial asked for any change in the venue on account of any hysteria or prejudice in the community?

A I don't recall that he did.

Q Do you know how many of the jurors who were called in the Darcy trial had sat in the courtroom and listened to the Zietz and Foster trial?

A I do not recall one way or another in regard to that. I do know, of course, that the trials were very close, one upon the other.

Q I think the record will disclose that one of them was challenged for cause because he had sat in the course of the previous trial. All of the other jurors had not been in the courtroom during the trial of any of the previous defendants.

Do you know how many applications for pardon had been filed in these cases prior to the one upon which this Board acted?

A One had been filed in 1950 in behalf of Darcy. There had been one filed in behalf of Zietz and Foster before this present Board, which we continued a number of times. I would have to check the records to see the date of that. We continued it without hearing because the Darcy matter was pending, and we thought all three should be heard together if and when Darcy in his proceedings would be concluded.

Q In reviewing, did you review the prior application at all, Miss Blatt?

A At the time of hearing?

Q Yes.

A Yes, not in great detail, but enough to see what had happened.

Q Do you recall anything that impressed you on that at all regarding the time that the matter was before the Board then?

A That was brought in 1950, which must have been either immediately after they went to Rockview or even before, if I have the chronology straight in my mind. In other words, it would have been based exclusively on the record of the trial and not on any intervening judicial decisions.

Q How long was the application pending before the prior Board before it was disposed of?

A My notes indicate that it was refused on March 20, 1951, which would have been about nine months after filing.

Q Do you know what was the cause of the delay in handing down any decision at all? Do you recall?

A There was some change in composition of the Board at some stage of these proceedings; whether it was here or not, I don't actually recall; but Lieutenant Governor Strickler was called into military service. There was some doubt as to his ability to serve as a Member of the Board. I think that there was a new Attorney General. Whether that has something to do with this delay or not I truthfully do not know.

Q Didn't Mr. Margiotti become an Attorney General in the meantime?

A That's right.

Q And there was some question about his right to sit on the Board, although he did file a withdrawal of his representation on Darcy's case?

A Yes. I think there was some doubt on his appearance, and the Lieutenant Governor. That would have been only two qualified members to sit, and I don't suppose the Board wanted to try to decide a thing that way. I don't recall, but the President pro tem of the Senate was agreed upon as a substitute for the Lieutenant Governor.

Q And his right to sit was challenged?

A I think so. There was quite a lot of challenging as to who had a right to sit.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: If I may suggest, it might be helpful if I submit this. I hold in my hand a list of various dates of applications, the Members of the Board of Pardons on each application, the action that was taken on each, and then it goes into the question of the membership and the President pro tem of the Senate being there—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: This entirely on the Pardon Board set-up?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: This is entirely on this case of David Darcy, and it starts on June 4, 1950, and it lists the various times it came before every Member of the Board of Pardons, and who they were, and it ends up with the final granting.

If you think it would be helpful, I would be glad to have it marked, where you can look it over. It will be helpful to you, I am sure, as to dates and matters like that.

BY MR. KOHN:

Miss Blatt, there is one answer you made in connection with the answer to Mr. Tompkins' question that I didn't quite get the significance of. You say Zietz and Foster were scheduled for a hearing some time in 1956?

A No. They were not scheduled. One or both of them applied for a commutation, which the Board continued because we knew the Darcy pleadings were before the courts, and we wanted to know how they turned out before we would decide on the Zietz and Foster hearings.

Q Had you anticipated the Darcy would file another appeal?

A No, not officially; but we wanted to know what happened as to the Appellate Courts. Obviously, if the Supreme Court said he ought to have a new trial, there would have been a new trial.

Q Well, at that time the Board decided there was some connection between the commutation of Zietz and Foster and the Darcy case.

A Well, obviously, all three are involved in the same crime. We didn't want to have Zietz or Foster either executed while their confederate's case was still pending.

Q What ever happened to Darcy would happen to Zietz and Foster?

A Not necessarily, but we wanted to know what would happen before we decided what would happen to them.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, you asked if some of us woulld get together the dates for the various hearings. I have them for each one of the defendants.

SENATOR YOSKO: I wish you would—

SENATOR SCOTT: Before you do that, and I am perfectly willing that they be read into the record, but I would like to have some knowledge and I am completely ignorant as to just what a reprieve is. Who has the authority or the right to grant a reprieve and under what circumstances are such reprieves granted? I wonder if Miss Blatt can testify to that, or maybe we can get somebody to testify to it, because I am completely ignorant of just what the situation is as to reprieves.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I would be delighted to tell you, but Miss Blatt is here and can tell us just as well.

THE WITNESS: I would prefer to yield to the superior legal of the Attorney General.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: My explanation would probably be wrong anyway, but we have a lot of different words like parole, pardon, commutation, reprieve. We sometimes use them wrongly and sometimes interchangeably, but a reprieve does not change the form of the sentence as does a commutation.

A commutation from the death penalty to life imprisonment changes the sentence.

A pardon obliterates the sentence.

A reprieve is simply a postponement of the execution of the sentence, and it may occur by pure executive action or at the suggestion of a court. A court, when it acts to halt the execution of a sentence, calls it a supersedeas. It is a right which the Court demands on occasional cases so as to preserve its jurisdiction. In connection with a death penalty, if the court is hearing a legal issue as to whether a man should live or die, obviously, it wishes to preserve its jurisdiction so that if it ultimately decides that the man should live, the execution of the death penalty shall not render its decision a nullity. So it grants what is called a supersedeas. When the executive power does the same thing, that is, postpones the execution of the judgment without changing the nature of the judgment itself, it is called a reprieve. And in these instances, the Governor from time to time, when the date of execution would draw near and where there appears to him to be sufficient reason for postponing that execution, he would reprieve the execution.

SENATOR SCOTT: All right. Now the sufficient reasons. The sufficient reason would be that there was an appeal pending in the appellate court?

THE WITNESS: That would all be considered to be a sufficient reason.

SENATOR SCOTT: And it would be considered to be very inhumane of a governor if he refused to grant such an appeal?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes.

SENATOR SCOTT: All right. Go ahead and read.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I would read first what refers to David Darcy.

In 1950 there were two reprieves. In the year 1951 there were seven reprieves. In the year 1952 ther were four reprieves. In the year 1953 there were five reprieves. In the year 1954 there were three reprieves. In the year 1955 there was one action by the United States Court of Appeals, which I would assume would be a supersedeas, and during that year that was the only time that the execution of the death sentence was interferred with.

In 1956 there was one action while the matter was pending before the Board of Pardons. I take that to be a reprieve.

That adds up to, Mr. Chairman, twenty-three, the number that you mentioned.

SENATOR SCOTT: Can I presume, then, in the particular case that you are citing that the reason for all of those twenty-three reprieves being granted for supersedeas being granted was that there were appeals being taken?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes. Appeals, writs of habeas corpus, and appeals on writs, and in one instance the pendency of an application before the Board of Pardons.

SENATOR SCOTT: So that the executive branch of the government was certainly not doing anything unusual in granting those when appeals were pending?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: As you said, it would be unthinkable if the executive had not taken such action.

With respect to Foster and Zietz, the numbers that I cite are applicable to each. In the year 1950, two reprieves. In the year 1951, seven reprieves. In the year 1952, four reprieves. In the year 1953, five reprieves. In the year of 1954, three reprieves. In the year 1955, four reprieves. In the year 1956, four reprieves, making a total for each man of twenty-nine reprieves.

Now, as to each of them, at least subsequent to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania's opinion on March 20, 1950, there were, as I understand it, no proceedings on appeal in a state or federal court on behalf of either one of them.

SENATOR YOSKO: When was that?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The decision of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania affirming the judgment of the sentence of death was on March 20, 1950.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: What case was that?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: This was in Zietz's case.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: There was an appeal to the Supreme Court?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: There was an appeal to the Supreme Court. Miss Blatt asked that the volume be brought to her. She wants it to read from it. So I have it in front of me. There is an appeal. Since you want the citation, the citation of—it is spelled here C-i-e-t-z. It is usually spelled Z-e-i-t-z. But it is spelled that way here. The citation is 364, Pennsylvania 294.

The Foster case is 364, Pennsylvania 288.

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. McBride, when the Governor grants a reprieve, does he state a reason for the granting?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I know of no requirements of law that compels the Governor to state a reason; but I have known of cases wherein a reason has actually been stated.

SENATOR YOSKO: Well, is it general practice with a Governor to state the reason for granting a reprieve?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: In a short form such as pendency of legal proceedings or something like that.

SENATOR YOSKO: And did you examine the reasons for granting of the reprieves in each, and the number of times you indicated?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You mean despite the fact that there were no proceedings pending that Foster and Zietz were reprieved? I have not examined the record to determine whether any reason was stated. I shall do so.

SENATOR YOSKO: Please do.

SENATOR SCOTT: How does it get to that stage?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: In a general case, in my own experience, there was a death case in which a man sued out a writ of habeas corpus in one of the counties in Pennsylvania, and I was prepared, after he did it, to send a formal letter to the Governor, asking him to reprieve the sentence pending the disposition of that writ; but it turned out not to be necessary because the court which granted the writ a supersedeas. So there was no need of any Governor's action.

SENATOR SCOTT: Would I be correct in presuming that it is normal for the counsel for the defense usually when he has an appeal pending on a particular case and the time for the execution of the death sentence is growing nearer, he will ask His Excellency to—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It would not only be normal, Senator, but any lawyer who had his opportunity to do that and had his clients killed without having it called to the attention of the executive authority—

SENATOR SCOTT: So in the normal situation it is brought to the Governor by the counsel for the defense?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes.

SENATOR SCOTT: All right.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It is difficult for me to answer the other part of your question as to how it was called to the attention of the Governor in the Foster and Zietz cases where there was no inquiry. I will look into it.

SENATOR YOSKO: Will you check the reasons if there are any given for the series of reprieves that were granted from the first one to the last one?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: All right.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: General, you yourself, the letters are in the file of the Darcy case, you yourself wrote to Governor Duff on two different occasions requesting that he not fix a date for execution—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I certainly hope I did.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I just want to call that to your attention. You wrote and asked that he not fix the date of execution because you were intending to take an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is right.

SENATOR SCOTT: While you are getting the information that Senator Yosko has requested, also see if there is something on each particular one, how it came to the Governor's attention.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Surely.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Does the Pardons Board on occasions when they have a pardon before it transmit a note to the Governor in a capital offense case where there is an application pending and, therefore, they should grant a reprieve until the decision of the Board?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: If the Board of Pardons is having difficulty in reaching a conclusion or decision, it certainly would ask the Governor to reprieve the date of execution to give the Board more time to consider the case.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I recall seeing several of those notes in the files.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Oh yes.

Again, a Board of Pardons that felt it needed more time would have to ask the Chief Executive to grant time to act; and any Chief Executive would do it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Any further questions of Miss Blatt?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, I have some.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q You spoke of two different clergymen, one of whom wrote a letter, and the other of whom appeared before the Board of Pardons. Were they both of the same religious faith?

A No. The writer of the letter, whose name I don't recall at the moment, was a Catholic priest, and he was the clergyman assigned to Mr. Darcy. The person who came to see me and who appeared before the Board was Reverend John J. Lenhart, who is the Pastor now of the Bethany Lutheran Church in Montoursville, and he was the pastor of Mr. Zietz.

Q Some question has been raised as to whether it is usual or even improper for a chaplain who is assigned to a penitentiary to write a letter. That letter has not been read. I would like very much to have you read it. Perhaps it contains its own answer.

A "September 7, 1956.

"Honorable Members of the Board of Pardons, care of the Secretary, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

"Regarding David Darcy, Harold Foster, Harry Zietz.

"Honorable Members of the Board: I am a Catholic chaplain of Rockview Institution, sumbit the following letter in the interest of the above inmates. I further request that the letter be made a part of each man's personal file. This letter is being written on my own initiative, but only after consultation with the Warden of this Institution and with the consent of both the Commissioner and the Warden.

"I have been the Catholic chaplain here for over six years. It has been my duty to assist at a number of executions. Trying at all times to realize the high position the scope of my obligations and the demands of justice which the Commonwealth must meet, I have endeavored always to perform the function of my office within these proper bounds. During the last five and a half years it has been my duty to serve as spiritual advisor for Darcy and Foster, and as a source of morale for Zietz as well. Perhaps no one has been closer to them during this period than I. From this flows to what seems to me to be an obligation of conscience to petition the Members of the Board of Pardons for mercy on their behalf.

"Full well do I realize the cause and effects of crime, restitution, and justice to society. It is not justice for which I ask, but mercy.

"During the five years of incarceration, these men have faced the agony of impending death many, many times. Although the authorities have done everything in their power to conform to the demands of the necessary security and at the same time recognizing the human dignity of their charges, the incarceration has been painfully and agonizingly rigorous. In spite of it all, these men have not cracked up. They have not become bitter. They have not surrendered one ounce of their human dignity as they understand it. As a matter of fact, each in some measure has grown and matured in a manner very worthy of commendation.

"If it be possible to merit mercy, this in my opinion they have done.

"It has also been my fortune to become well acquainted with the families of each man. Except in one instance where the economic living has been at a borderline, each family represents good, substantial American family life. They, too, have called justice, but is it too much to ask that the Commonwealth look upon them with mercy. A rigorous prosecution and a vindictive justice can restore nothing to originally, offended, but can punish the families of whom I write into the very depths of heartbreak and sorrow.

"May I thank the Honorable Members of the Board for their very kind hearing of my appeal. I would further thank the Warden and Commissioner of this institution for their understanding of the exceptional circumstances of this case so far as they affect the chaplain put into such a position such as mine.

"Father R. J. Walsh
"Catholic Chaplain"

Then, the Reverend Lenhart appeared personally before the Board of Pardons. Did he tell of his knowledge of these three men?

A. Yes, he did.

Q Were you informed that for years, and I say it not in criticism at all, these men were kept in the death chamber with the lights on twenty-four hours a day?

A Yes—

MR. KOHN: Wait a minute. This is not in the testimony here.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I am asking her whether she was conscious of the fact.

MR. KOHN: That isn't what she said. I thought we were going into testimony of something extraneous. I object to anything that is extraneous.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: There is nothing here to indicate—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I am asking her whether she is conscious of that as a fact, one of the facts of life, how people are kept in the death house.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Has she ever been there? Has she knowledge of that of her own?

MR. KOHN: We talked about hearsay this morning. If this isn't hearsay, I dont' know what is. If it is in the record, I think it is fair.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: A Member of the Board of Pardons knows something about the facts of life, and a person being in the death house for thirty days might be one thing. A person being in the death house for six years and watching people coming and going might be something else.

MR. KOHN: I don't want to get into an argument about this sort of thing. If we are going that far afield, I am going to put Mr. Evans back on the stand. I don't think he is dumb either. Let us know what they considered.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Miss Blatt testified—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Does she have any knowledge of her own that that is the method by which the death cells are operated?

ATTORNEY McBRIDE: Yes.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q You testified that you did take into consideration that they were in the deathhouse.

A That's right.

Q Did you take into consideration that that means solitary confinement?

A That's right.

Q For years?

A For as long as they remain in the deathhouse they are confined in solitary confinement under my understanding of the procedures there, which means constant light and which means no communication with the outside. I was told, and I have not had an opportunity to verify this by reference to the report, that at the time the Devers committee was investigating the penal institutions of the State, that committee found that these men had not even been allowed exercise for even one minute per day outside of their cell. As a result of that committee's investigation, I understand that the warden had allowed them one-half hour solitary exercise but they still remained under lights constantly.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q For the purpose of the record, did you have this knowledge at the time of the hearing?

A Yes, I did.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Do you know, Miss Blatt, that as a matter of fact these men were taken outside of the cell for outside exercise?

A I don't know where they were taken. They were allowed out for a half hour exercise after the Devers committee had revealed the fact that they hadn't been allowed any exercise for a period of two years prior to that.

Q That would be around 1953 or something like that?

A Something like that. My recollection is that they were completely confined for a period of about two and one-half years with no exercise and no darkness whatever.

Q I don't see anything in the record on that. You must have obtained it from other sources.

A It may be from my general knowledge of the procedure in the institutions. I am subject to correction, but that is my understanding.

Q But for the last two or two and a half or three years the men were there, they got outside exercise daily?

A For a half hour a day, I understand.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q They were there for six years, weren't they?

A They were there for six years, and this exercise was still completely alone.

Q You were familiar with the fact, at least at the time, that the Supreme Court had decided the Zietz case?

A Yes.

Q Did you ask that the decision of that case be produced so that you could read from it?

A Yes, I had forgotten it and I wanted to refresh my recollection on it.

Q Now, Miss Blatt, did the Supreme Court itself in the Zietz case, made a distinction between the kind of argument that can be presented to the Court, and the kind of argument that may be properly presented to the Board of Pardons?

A Yes. The Supreme Court, in the majority opinion written by Justice Horace Stern, on March 20, 1950, in the Zietz appeal, said, among other things, "Chief Justice Shaffer, speaking for the Court of Commonwealth versus Cavalier, 284 Pa. 311, 131 Atlantic 229, where a boy 14 years of age was found guilty of murder in the first degree, from which verdict at that time punishment of death automatically followed, Justice Schaffer said, the substantial basis of the argument of appellant's counsel in this case is that he should not have been convicted of murder in the first degree because of his youth. Such an argument may be availing if made to the Board of Pardons to bring about a commutation of sentence, but so far as we are concerned, it must fall upon deaf ears."

Q Do you know of other cases in which the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has itself pointed out that arguments, which must remain unavailing when considered by the Supreme Court, may still properly be made before the Board of Pardons?

A Yes. I have come across that statement many times, Mr McBride. I can't cite to you the citations at the moment, but I know I have seen them repeatedly.

Q We will give the Board a list of citations if they wish it. Now, the question of minority opinions has come up here, and it has been suggested that the Board adopted the minority opinion rather than the majority opinion. Is that a fact, or is it the existence of divergent views that caused the Board to act?

A The Board adopted no opinion, either majority or minority, but it considered both, and it was very strongly persuaded, I believe, by the fact that there was such a divergence between them.

Q Do you see anything wrong with the Board of Pardons taking into consideration the fact that even on the issue of whether the trial was fair, the courts have split asunder?

A I not only see nothing wrong with it. I think the Board of Pardons couldn't in any conscience fail to take that into consideration.

Q You spoke of the opinion of the Court of Appeals of the Third Circuit, composed of 7 members. That court, am I correct in saying, divided 4 to 3?

A Yes.

Q Was that on the issue of whether the trial was so bad that even under the 14th Amendment it had to be declared a nullity?

A That's right.

MR. KOHN: Which case are you referring to?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Darcy case.

MR. KOHN: Yes, but what number?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Court of Appeals.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Isn't it a fact that not merely the minority of 3, but the majority of 4 as well, indicated that the trial would not have been affirmed by it had it occurred in a Federal Court?

A That was my understanding of the decision.

MR. KOHN: Just a minute. I don't think it is right for the Attorney General to make statements and have her say yes. I think we ought to get it from the record.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: We'll introduce the opinion. The Committee will read it.

MR. KOHN: We want you to refer to what was said and where it said it. It's easy for you to interpret it, but I don't interpret it that way.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The court interpreted it that way.

MR. KOHN: The only value to this tribunal is what the Court said.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You brought this up. Just because it doesn't help you, don't try to boot it out.

MR. KOHN: That's very funny. Mr. McBride. I appreciate it. I think it's the words of the Court that counts, not what McBride says.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: If Miss Blatt relied upon anything in that decision to influence her decision in the commutation, I think she should point out that portion of it which she did rely upon.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: She referred to that this morning in her testimony, that even the majority opinion left her of that impression. She testified to that this morning. So I think it's proper to read it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I have no objection to the decision being put in on this, but for the Attorney General to take what his opinion is and ask her if it is the same as hers, I don't think that's right. We'll let the opinion go in, no argument about the opinion.

BY SENATOR SCOTT:

Q Is there specific language there that you can quote to us that led you to draw that conclusion?

A Since I testified this morning that I drew a general conclusion from the whole opinion. I really wish that the members could read the whole opinion so that you would get the same impression, but I could quote several specific sections that I think might be helpful if you would like me to.

MR. KOHN: Read it.

THE WITNESS: What section do you want?

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Read the section of the majority opinion that you have referred to.

A I was referring to the majority opinion, saying that I really hope you would read the whole thing, because the whole thing is really necessary, I think, to get their complete reasoning. But I would be glad to read two or three sentences that seem to be particularly interesting that I just marked out here.

Q We don't want to consume the time of reading the whole decision.

A May I read about three sections?

Q Read the sections that might have influenced your opinion.

A I will read the sections I marked with my own pencil and I presume they affected me more than some of the others.

Q This is the majority opinion?

A That's right, written by Judge Hastie, Circuit Court of Appeals:

"The evidence does not indicate, as relator would infer, that the jurors who tried relator were waiting in or near the courtroom during the period of the trial of his confederates. At most it indicates that during the two weeks immediately preceding relator's trial the community in general had experienced a revival and quickening of interest in the homicide attended by many expressions of indignation against its perpetrators. But it does not appear that feeling ran so high or that hostility toward the relator was so intense and so general as to make it seem incredible that the search for a satisfactory jury would yield twelve persons as open minded about this case as the jurors here claimed to have been. The situation certainly would have justified a decision to wait a while before trying the relator, or else to try him in another community if trial immediately after the conviction of his confederates was deemed important. We may be persuaded that in the circumstances it would have been wise to take such precautions, yet not be convinced that failure to follow the wiser course was a denial of the essence of fair trial."

That seems to indicate they thought there was something not quite right here.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q What page number is that?

A I am reading from my little pamphlet here.

MR. KOHN: It's on page 1245 of the transcript of the record before the Supreme Court.

THE WITNESS: Then for purposes of identification, about three paragraphs later, still Judge Hastie speaking:

"And absent some such improper partisan participation by Judge Boyer in the trial, we cannot say that his rather striking manifestation of extraordinary interest in the proceedings constituted a denial of due process of law. It is established constitutional doctrine that our limited function in correcting fundamental impropiety in state trials challenged under the due process clause makes it necessary that we leave alone many dubious occurrences in state procedure which we would prescribe if they should happen in a federal court."

BY SENATOR SCOTT:

Q They don't point anything out specifically?

A It seems a clear inference if this had been in a Federal Court they would have proscribed it because they say that "it is established constitutional doctrine that our limited function in correcting fundamental impropriety in state trials challenged under the due process clause makes it necessary that we leave alone many dubious occurrences in state procedure which we would proscribe if they should happen in a federal court." That seems to me to clearly indicate that if they had been in the Federal Court they would have sent it back—this is the majority speaking—for a new trial, but being in the State Court they didn't feel they had jurisdiction under the due process clause to do that.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Will you read that part of the opinion I have marked on page 507, of Volume 224 Federal Reporter (2nd Series) Justice Hastie's opinion?

A "While to a majority of this Court these facts alone have not seemed so compelling as to preclude an independent showing that the trial was dominated by prejudice and hostility, they certainly make the undertaking very difficult. To meet this difficult burden of proof, relator has relied largely upon the daily newspaper accounts and editorial comments published in the community during the trial of two of relator's alleged confederates which ended only 3 days before he himself was required to stand trial."

Q Now, will you read from the opinion that part of Judge Kolander's dissent which appears on page 19 and shows the interpretation of the three dissenting judges of the majority's position as to whether or not they would proscribe it if it had happened in a federal court?

A "Shaken down to its hard core the majority's position—bluntly stated—is this: Darcy was grievously hurt by Judge Boyer's conduct but we cannot help him because he was hurt on the other (the State) side of the street; otherwise stated, there is no constitutional redress for Darcy despite the fact that he was unfairly tried because it was his fate to be tried in a State court instead of a Federal Court."

Q I wish you would start off with "In conclusion."

A "In conclusion, I will dwell but briefly with the majority's view that Judge Boyer's conduct was an 'occurrence—in state procedure,' immune, as such, from the reach of the due process guarantee. Implicit in the majority's discussion on this score is its recognition that Judge Boyer' conduct was 'dubious' and its indication that it would have 'proscribed' it had it happened in a trial in a Federal Court and would have considered it as a compelling basis for granting a new trial."

Then follows the paragraph starting with "Shaken down to its hard core" which I have just read.

Q Now, have you ever heard anyone, since the fact has become known publicly, that 11 jurors signed letters stating that had they heard Darcy or character witnesses, they would have voted for life imprisonment? Have you ever heard that challenged on the basis that pressure had been put upon the jurors?

A I have not heard any such challenge.

Q Did the Board treat it as of significance, that the Court did not consider those letters when it was considering the fairness of the trial, the fact that the jurors signed those letters?

A Not at all.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q As a matter of fact, hadn't our own Superior Court said the jury can't impeach its own verdict by stating what it might have done after the verdict?

A I think so.

Q And the obtaining of these statements from these jurors was highly improper?

A Well, I dont' know about that latter statement, but certainly as a legal matter I would agree with the first. But still when the Board of Pardons is confronted with deciding whether three men live or die, I think it was proper that this should bear some part—not a great part necessarily, but some part in the decision.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Are you familiar with the course the proceedings took in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania upon the first appeal, and what questions were argued there?

A I wouldn't like to hold myself out as an authority on that, Mr. McBride. I have had some difficulty keeping straight all these legal proceedings, and I think I can tell you what happened when, but I wouldn't like to testify as to what was argued and all.

Q Are you familiar with the fact the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania on the first appeal had to declare an act of the legislature unconstitutional in order to sustain Darcy's conviction?

A I dont' recall that.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: They didn't declare it unconstitutional.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, they did.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The DePofi case preceded the Darcy case.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No, sir; they were argued the same day. That is what I argued. They put this three-week record of crime in the case in violation of an Act of Assembly on the chance that it would be declared unconstitutional, and the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, after the event, declared the act unconstitutional, because if you please, the title was wrong, among other things. The legislature's right hand did't know what its left hand was doing, they said.

SENATOR SCOTT: What was the section?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Article 3, Section 3. Both of you gentlemen will remember that in 1947, the Crimes Commission recommended that there be a split verdict, that there be a verdict, first, on the question of guilt, and then if the man had a criminal record, the criminal record should come in afterward on the issue of what punishment he shoud get.

Senator Cryder was the Chairman of the Commission. Senator Cryder moved the passage of a bill to see to it that the good work of that provision would not be vitiated, and Judge Laub was one of the moving spirits in enacting that recommendation.

The purpose of the act was so that during the consideration by the court and jury of the issue of guilt, the criminal record should not be considered, and then when the jury had passed upon the question of guilt and was ready to decide whether the man should live or die, having reached a verdict of first degree murder, then, but not until then, the criminal record should be considered.

Now here in the Darcy case, he having engaged in three weeks of horrible crimes, the evidence of those crimes was put in by the Commonwealth in its case in chief, in violation, direct violation, of the Act of 1947, and the lower court said it believed that Act was unconstitutional and disregarded it. Butt the Act was on the books at the time.

On appeal to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, the argument was made that Article 3, Section 3, providing that the title shall give notice of its contents, did not give notice that it was making this radical change, and hence it was unconstitutional. It was the first, so far as I know, the only time, were the Commonwealth itself challenged the constitutionality of an act on the ground that the title did not give notice to the Commonwealth of what the Commonwealth was doing.

In any event, it was declared unconstitutional. Darcy's conviction was affirmed, over a dissenting opinion by the present Chief Justice Charles Alvin Jones, which was filed in the DePofi case, which came up from Pittsburgh, but in that very opinion he refers to the aid he got from the brief of counsel in the Darcy case. They were argued at the same time. But the opinion happened to be filed in the DePofi case, although the dissent took place in each, because the problem was common to both.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Miss Blatt, were you guided at all times in your vote in the Darcy case, by your conscience?

A I certainly was.

Q Had the other three voted against commutation, would you still have voted for it?

A I certainly would have.

Q Did you do that, of course, knowing that the decision would be criticized?

A I did.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That' all.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q You quoted from the Circuit Court of Appeals. Did you ever read the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States in the matter?

A I did.

Q Did you pay any attention to it?

A I certainly did.

Q Did you read this from the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States, 351 "Petitioner has been given ample opportunity to prove that he has been denied due process of law. While this court stands ready to correct violations of constitutional rights, it also holds it is not asking to much that the burden of showing essential unfairness be sustained by him who claims such injustice, and seeks to have the result set aside, and that it be sustained not as a matter of speculation, but as a demonstrable reality."

Q Did you read that?

A I did.

Q Did you pay attention to it?

A I did.

Q In regard to comparison with opinion of the lower court?

A I did.

Q It made no impression?

A It made an impression on me but not an impression sufficiently strong to outweigh my convictions on the other side.

Q Do you recall this: "Justice Holmes, speaking for the unanimous court in Holts vs. U. S. 218 U. S. 245, 251, cautioned "If the mere opportunity for prejudice or corruption is to raise a presumption that they exist, it will be hard to maintain jury trials under the conditions of the present day." Did you pay any attention to that?

A I did.

Q But neither did that outweigh the opinion of the lower court dissenting judges?

A In my opinion it did not—I hope you are going to read the dissenting opinion in that Supreme Court.

Q I will read what I want to and if you want to read anything, I will be glad to give you an opportunity.

A Thank you.

Q Did you read further: "We have examined petitioner's allegations, the testimony and documentary evidence in support thereof, and his arguments. We conclude that the most that has been shown is that in certain respects, opportunity for prejudice existed. From this, we are asked to infer that the petitioner was prejudiced. The law recognizes that prejudice may infect any trial and provides protection against it. For example, provision is made for vior dire examination and challenge of the jurors who indicate they may be prejudiced. In addition, a substantial number of peremptory challenges is allowed." You are familiar with that?

A That's right.

Q "This gives to each party a large discretion to exclude jurors deemed objectionable for any reason, or for no reason. Another protection is available through the severance of trials of defendants through continuances of respective trials. Still another means of protection is that of a change of venue for proper cause. In the instant case, notwithstanding the fact that competent counsel for the petitioner did not use all of his peremptory challenges, after a searching examination of prospective jurors on voir dire, and did not seek a continuance of the trial or a change of venue, petitioner asked this court in effect to infer that the news coverage of the robbery and proceedings prior to petitioner's trial, including the Zietz-Foster trial, created such an atmosphere of prejudice and hysteria that it was impossible to draw a fair, impartial jury from the community or to hold a fair trial. And failure of petitioner's counsel to exhaust the means provided to prevent drawing of an unfair trial jury from a community allegedly infected with hysteria and prejudice against the petitioner's, is significant."

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. Chairman, you know, I am beginning to lose my patience. Everybody has been patient here all day long. We are not here to review opinions, dissenting opinions and interpret them, and argue about them. We are here for one reason: to determine whether there was political influence used on this Pardons Board in the granting of a commutation to the three defendants and I think we have gone absolutely too much into extraneous matters here. I think we can expedite these hearings if we confine ourselves to the issues. I am going to ask the Chairman to instruct counsel and everybody else here involved to do just that.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: These were all matters relating to the question which came before the Pardons Board. Court opinions have been injected into the reasons which the Pardons Board used for the purpose of granting the commutation. For that reason I think they become material to the inquiry as to those reasons. We will permit references to these decisions. We have tried to reduce them to certain quotes in order to avoid reading the entire opinion because they are very lengthy, and we wish that counsel would confine themselves to those portions in that respect.

MR. KOHN: I am perfectly in accord with Senator Yosko. I wish he had made his objection while Mr. McBride was questioning. But I couldn't let it go by.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: In fairness I don't think you could be in accord with Mr. Yosko, because of the Board relied, in part at least, upon the decisions of the Court, then it is proper for the Board to come in and show the decision was based upon facts and not upon political considerations. So I think it is perfectly proper.

MR. KOHN: Mr Lopresti, I think it is just as fair to show that they disregarded the other opinion, which was the majority opinion.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: I think you have a right to go into that.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Proceed, Mr. Kohn.

THE WITNESS: I would like to read a little of the dissent. You said I may.

MR. KOHN: I will stop reading. I think the matter should be put on the record, I agree that they relied on the minority opinion, and that is their basis here, that's the only thing that should be considered. I am not going to press that matter.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: That statement, Mr. Kohn, is not quite correct, because Miss Blatt said she relied in part at least on the majority opinion and she quoted to you various sections of the majority opinions which caused her to believe that even the majority was not satisfied.

MR. KOHN: I have nothing further.

THE WITNESS: Mr. Chairman, what I would like to read, just so the record will be complete, is that in the majority opinion of Mr. Justice Burton of the Supreme Court of the United States, the opinion closes with these words: "Petitioner has not sustained the burden resting upon him to show that his trial was essentially unfair in a constitutional sense, and that the several courts which have reviewed it are all in error. The judgment of the Court of Appeals is therefore affirmed." Now, I may have put undue stress on the words, "essentially unfair in a constitutional sense," but I did read them with emphasis, and I think Mr. Justice Burton, speaking for the majority, was trying to indicate the very narrow limits within which the majority had to cast its decision.

The dissenting opinion, which was joined in by three members of the Supreme Court of the United States, all learned men, all men of integrity and character, and was written by Justice Harlan, speaking for Mr. Justice Frankfurter and Justice Douglas, who joined him, said in emphatic terms that they thought the majority decision was incorrect, and that they would reverse the judgment below on the basis of Judge Boyer's conduct. The central facts against which this conduct was reviewed are that Zietz, not the petitioner, did the actual killing on which the petitioner's trial was based, and two petitioner's participation in the robbery being uncontested, the only real issue at his trial was whether he should suffer the death penalty or life imprisonment, which under the Pennsylvania statute was a question for the jury. If these facts be kept in mind, I think the Court presents no violation of due process, has disposed of Judge Boyer's conduct too lightly." And it goes in some detail in regard to Judge Boyer's conduct. It concluded: "The reason for my conclusion"— this is Mr. Justice Harlan, "are those which Judge Kolander has well stated in his dissenting opinion in the Court of Appeals, 224 Federal (2nd) 504,

"We should be especially scrupulous in seeing to it that the right to a fair trial has not been jeopardized by the conduct of a member of the judiciary."

Now, I personally placed a great deal of emphasis on the opinion of these learned judges of the courts, that I happen to think those of the minority had greater weight in my conclusion, is my conclusion based on my own estimate of it, and other facts that I knew relevent to the case.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Miss Blatt, do you think that if the question of hysteria, and of Judge Boyer's actions in this case, had been so important, that they should have been raised long before they were? I am not arguing the point whether or not they didn't have the right to raise it; I am arguing whether or not if they were so important, why it took such a long time before they were raised.

A Mr. Tompkins, you know as a member of the Bar how hesitant I feel at this moment or at any time, to criticize a member of the bar whom I don't know and whose motives are unknown to me. All I can say is that it seems very odd to me and I don't think I would have done it that way, but that is the way it was done.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Before the hearing concludes, I wish in fairness to the dead man—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Just a moment, please.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q You know there were 26 exceptions filed in the Darcy case when it first went to the Supreme Court of the State of Pennsylvania?

A I dont' recall that.

Q None of those 26 exceptions make any reference to any hysteria or to Judge Boyer's interference in the case.

A I would have to refer to that to answer your question. I don't recall the precise nature of the objections.

Q If you will check the record on that, I think you will find among the exceptions raised in the original appeal to the Supreme Court, those questions were not raised.

A I presume whoever was counsel at that time had other grounds on which he wanted to take the appeal.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Anything further?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Very well, we'll take a ten-minute recess.

(Short Recess)

ALEXANDER L. SUTO, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows on

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Suto, you are a member of the Allegheny County Bar?

A Yes, I am.

Q What connection did you have with Charles J. Margiotti?

A At this time, or—

Q Well, previously.

A Previous to this time I had no professional connection whatever. I have always maintained my own practice as an attorney at law, and prior to being admitted to the Bar I practiced as a certified public accountant.

I might add that I have always maintained my own practice. He is my father-in-law, and I did work independently for him as a certified public accountant.

Q At the present time what connection do you have with his estate?

A At the present time I am attorney for the estate of Charles J. Margiotti.

Q As such did you have access to his files?

A Yes.

Q Did this Committee request that you bring with you such evidence as there might be in the file in connection with the Darcy case?

A Yes, they did.

Q What do you have with you in regard to that?

A I have summarized what his books and records show. I might add at this time that Miss Ford has waived any privilege that she may have in connection with the attorney-client relationship, and it is with her permission that I am making this disclosure before this Committee.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Is Miss Ford in the audience today? (A woman in the room answers, "Yes")

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Is this being done with your permission, Miss Ford?

MISS FORD: Yes, it is.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Thank you.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Who is Miss Ford?

A Miss Ford is the client of Mr. Margiotti. Mr. Margiotti was retained by Miss Ford, according to his records.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What do your records show?

A My records indicate that Mr. Margiotti, and the firm of Margiotti and Casey—when I speak of Mr. Margiotti I am actually speaking of the partnership firm of Margiotti and Casey—indicate that Mr. Margiotti's firm was retained by M. R. Ford, in that the first payment of any fee was made on May 4, 1951, in the amount of $1500. Subsequent payments were made from 1951, on through 1956.

Q The payment was how much, did you say?

A The first payment received from M. R. Ford, dated May 4, 1951, was in the amount of $1500.

Q And how many subsequent payments were made?

A Subsequent payments, 7 subsequent payments were made.

Q What do they total?

A The total payments received from May 4, 1951, through July 16, 1956, totalled $15,143.50.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Through July 16, 1956, you said?

A Yes, the date of last payment. That was prior to the death of Mr. Margiotti on August 25, 1956.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Of your own knowledge, or from what Mr. Margiotti told you, do you know how Miss Ford happened to hire Mr. Margiotti?

A I might add before we get to that, in connection with the fee, that that $15,143.50 also represents, or included therein, payments for costs advanced by the law firm of Margiotti and Casey and that such costs advanced by the firm for the years under discussion total $4,169.03.

Q And that is inclusive in the $15,143?

A Yes. That was not reimbursed separately, but the $15,143.50 covers any costs advanced also by the firm of Margiotti and Casey.

Q Were there any other costs paid out of that or attorneys' fees to any other attorney?

A No. The records do not indicate the payment of any fees to any other attorneys.

Q Any payments to Morton Witkin of Philadelphia?

A The record does not indicate such payment.

Q Does it indicate any payment to Pannell of Philadelphia?

A The records do not indicate payments to Mr. Pannell.

Q I have here an application in the David Darcy case no. A-306, September Session 1956, filed August 20, 1956. Do you know why statement was made that "no fee has been paid and no arrangements made by me for the payment of any sum for such representation; this matter has been left for the future determination of my family and relatives"? Was there anything in the file to show that had been the arrangement as to why it wasn't disclosed that payments had been made since 1951?

A As I understand this is a statement made by David Darcy?

Q That's right.

A I would have no knowledge as to the reason he would make any such statement or the purpose of such statement.

Q Actually, the records show there have been payments made since 1951?

A The records indicate that there have been payments made by M. R. Ford in every instance, from May 4, 1951, through July 16, 1956.

Q Will you tell us whether those payments were made by check or by cash?

A The payments in all cases were made by check.

Q And they would show up on the deposits of Mr. Margiotti as having been received from a certain bank in Philadelphia?

A They may not designate the bank on which payment was made. The record will indicate the name of the party who had signed the check, the date that the check was actually received, which may not correspond with the date the check was issued because of delay in delivery, through the mials, and—

Q The bank on which it was drawn?

A The bank on which it was drown will not be indicated in the records of Mr. Margiotti and Casey.

Q Wouldn't they be indicated on the deposit slips, the part where it indicates the bank which check is drawn on?

A Normally the procedure in his office was to identify it by the number in the top righthand corner of the check. I have secured this information from the cash receipts journal, and also the cost advance ledger which he maintains, covering his entire costs and fees received on this particular case. I did not consider it necessary to go beyond that and to dig out deposit slips because at this time I can't say whether they are in existence or not.

Q Do you know whether Miss Ford hired him direct or whether there was intervention of any other parties?

A The records do not indicate how that employment was made. However, of my own personal knowledge, I believe that it was through Miss Peg Gordon, who has been a close member of the Margiotti family, particularly Mrs. Margiotti and her sister, Miss Eva Wery. And as I understand it, that relationship goes back many, many years, and I had occasion myself, approximately 3 years ago, to entertain Miss Gordon, Miss Wery, and my mother-in-law, Mrs. Margiotti, at my home.

Q Do you know if Margiotti did any work for Matthew McCloskey?

A I have checked the record for the period requested in your letter, 1950 through 1956, and I can find nothing in the records that would indicate any services being rendered by Mr. Margiotti to Mr. Matthew McCloskey, nor the receipt of any payment from him during those particular years.

MR. KOHN: That's all.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q You don't have a breakdown of what the $15,000 was used for, do you? Printing, and all that sort of thing.

A Yes, I have some information. It may not be complete. But are you concerned with the $4,169.03 costs advanced?

Q Is that the part of the $15,000 that represents costs, that is, printing costs and that sort of thing?

A I would say that a separate check on July 16, 1956, in the amount of $643.50, included in the total amount which I had previously given to this Committee was, as I understand it, for the printing costs in connection with the record. There are other printing costs—telephone expense, postage, filing costs, Western Union, additional printing costs in the amount of $41, for example, certain hotel and travelling expenses, for example Penn Harris Hotel in 1951, $199. It is made up of a series of expenses—travelling, filing, printing, hotel, telephone, postage, which over the period of the years involved cumulatively amounted to $4,169.03. The largest single item in that cost is the $643.50 expended on July 16, 1956.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Previous to that time were there any costs for printing paper books in the Circuit Court of Appeals and Pennsylvania State Supreme Court?

A Prior to July, 1956, there is no substanital amount—there is no other item in there that I can see for 1956—

Q Going back to 1951, there is no record of payment for paper books to Circuit Court of Appeals or the District Court?

A No, there is nothing in the record for those—Muriel Printing Company, 1953, $22.53; and September 30, $41.66. $216.19 in August, August 15, 1951. That constitutes the total record of printing costs on his cost advance sheet.

MR. KOHN: That's all.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Mr. Suto, will you give us the other dates of payments and the amounts?

A Certainly.

Q You have given us May 4, 1951, $1500. Now give us the subsequent dates and amounts.

A Another payment on December 18, 1952, in the amount of $5000, with the record carrying designation, "Received from M. R. Ford." December 24, 1953, $1000, carrying the same designation;

March 29, 1954, amount of $1000, M. R. Ford;

December 30, 1954, $1000, received from M. R. Ford;

November 14, 1955, $2,500, received from M. R. Ford;

May 7, 1956, $2,500 received from M. R. Ford.

And final payment of July 16, 1956, in the amount of $643, received from M. R. Ford.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE. Mr. Kohn, could you tell us the date of filing of that application?

MR. KOHN: August 20, 1956.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Therefore, that application says on there that no payment has been arranged for in connection with the application before the Board of Pardons. When did Mr. Margiotti die?

A Mr. Margiotti died on August 25, 1956.

Q It is a fact, then, that no payments whatever were made to Mr. Margiotti after the date on which this application was filed to the Board of Pardons which resulted in the commutation?

A That's correct.

Q There is nothing in your records which contradict that statement in the application, is that right?

A That is correct, no payments were received.

Q You have told us what Mr. Margiotti received. What did he do during those years?

A I might say that actually what he did would not be within my personal knowledge except to this extent, that there are approximately 8 or 9 large files completely filled. I do know that he delegated various members of his staff who had worked on the case and spent considerable time on it. But exactly what he did and when he did it, I am not competent to testify to that because I actually do not know.

Q Are you familiar with the various courts to which he brought the case?

A Yes. Generally speaking I do know that he spent considerable time on it. I saw him reading paper books myself, at home, spending considerable time holding conferences, building up these tremendous files. In fact, in transferring all the files from his office to my office, that particular case constituted one of the largest group of files on any single case that was in his office, excepting, of course, the files in connection with the 1938 scandal—

BY MR. KOHN:

Q 1938 what?

A 1938 investigation that they had here.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Therefore, despite the fact that Mr. Margiotti was in the case from May 4, 1951, to the date of his death, not a single penny of the money he received was received by him in connection with or for the application before the Board of Pardons which resulted in the commutation?

MR. KOHN: How can he say that? He doesn't know.

A I can state what the records show. The records do not indicate—

BY MR. KOHN:

Q I mean he says that is a fact. You don't know that.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Do not the records from which you are testifying affirmatively show that every penny he received was in connection with the case in its prior aspects?

A The records so indicate.

Q Mr. Margiotti of course died before this case was argued before the Board of Pardons?

A Yes. I stated he died on August 25. I might add that prior to that time he was physically incapacitated. He was in various hospitals, beginning possibly in the latter part of July, early part of August, his situation was critical in that he was unable to give attention or give any time because of his physical condition, to any of his cases.

Q Do you have any personal knowledge whether he appeared in the Supreme Court of the United States in connection with this case?

A I could not state definitely, unless—

Q All right, I will get it from another witness.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That's all.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That's all, Mr. Suto. Thank you very kindly.

THE WITNESS: I would like to express my thanks to the Committee for permitting me to get through this afternoon so I may get back.

(Witness excused)

HONORABLE EDWARD BIESTER, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What is your present position in Bucks County?

A President Judge, Court of Common Pleas.

Q At the time of the Darcy case in Bucks County what position did you hold in Bucks County?

A District Attorney.

Q Did you try the Darcy case?

A I did, with the assistance of Willard Curtain, now Congressman Curtain.

Q There has been some statement made here with regard to Judge Boyer's condition during this trial. Did you know Judge Boyer very well?

A Indeed I did.

Q How long had you known him?

A Twenty years.

Q At the time that he tried this particular case, what was his mental and physical condition?

A He was in excellent physical and mental condition, I would say. At least I noticed no impairment of his faculties that would in any way reflect on his ability to try.

Q Who is the judge that tried the Darcy case?

A Judge Keller.

Q What was Judge Keller's physical and mental condition?

A His mental condition was excellent, I would say. He presently is retired from the Bench. He now has some slight impairment of hearing.

Q Judge Boyer died how soon after the Zietz-Foster trial?

A I would say about three and a half or four years.

Q About three years after the trial, these questions regarding Judge Boyer sitting on the Bench for the motion court was first raised by Margiotti, is that correct?

A I would have to depend on my recollection as to the exact time.

Q It was about that?

A That would be approximately right.

Q Now, I don't want to go into all the ramifications of the trial. Did you argue any of these cases before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania or any of the Circuit Courts or District Courts?

A Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. And I would like, if I can possibly refresh Mr. McBride's recollection—though possibly I am in error, but my best recollection is that the DePofi case had been argued before the Darcy case but that when the constitutional question was raised, the DePofi case was called for re-argument, re-argued the same day and Mr. McBride and I argued it, and the DePofi case counsel adopted our argument in that case, but that case is the one that was regarded as the leading case on the question of the constitutionality of the act.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q That's right. Here is the DePofi case which shows it was argued January 3, 1949, re-argued April 19, 1949, and the Darcy case was argued on the same day (indicating).

A That's in accordance with my recollection.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Was there an opinion handed down on the original argument?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I will give you the exact dates. The opinion in the DePofi case was handed down May 26, 1949, and the opinion in the Darcy case was handed down May 26, 1949. Both opinions on this point, in both cases were argued on the same day on this point.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: What I am getting at is this, it has been indicated now there had been an original argument on the DePofi case, and then a re-argument.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE. The original argument did not involve this point.

Q Is that right, Judge?

A That's right.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Then when we presented the question in the Darcy case, they recognized that the same point applied to the DePofi case, and they directed re-argument in the DePofi case. Both cases were then argued on this point on the same day, and the opinion in both cases came down on the same day.

THE WITNESS: I would like to clarify another situation. I know that Mr. McBride did not intend to convey the impression that we had no right to raise the constitutional question, he indicated it was rather unique that the Commonwealth raised it. But I think he will agree with me that it was the original purpose—as he stated—to have two courses to the act. At the time the case was tried, only part of the original act as intended was passed. It was our contention that we could introduce, under the meaning of that act, records of these prior offenses.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q You mean offenses that occurred about the same—

A Within a period of three weeks or a month. Under the interpretation of the act sought for, it was contended we had no right to introduce those prior acts. In effect, therefore, the jury would be deprived in passing upon the punishment of the defendant, of the knowledge of the prior offenses, and we took the position that the meaning of the act, if anything, meant we could introduce the prior offenses in the lower court, and on appeal, I think that the constitutional question was not only as to the act, but they said standing alone, that the act as it was on the statute books was in effect too vague and meaningless as to become unconstitutional. There were two parts to the constitutional question.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q And the words "or the degree?"

A That's right.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q In other words, your interpretation of the particular act was you had a right to introduce it for the purposes of establishing the penalty of the crime?

A That's right.

Q The lower court sustained your position?

A That's right. I don't recall the wording of the opinion but my best recollection is the judge said it either meant that—

Q Do you know how long Mr. Achey practiced, defense counsel?

A Twenty years.

Q What was his status as defense counsel when he represented Darcy?

A I would say Mr. Achey was regarded as certainly the most active trial lawyer at the bar, and certainly one of the most competent. I think Mr. McBride will agree with that statement.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I would not disagree with it.

THE WITNESS: May I here interpolate as far as other counsel were concerned, counsel for Zietz and Foster, representing Zietz was Mr. Rubin, who is now a judge of our court, and representing Foster was of counsel Donald Smith, who is president of the Bar Association. I am indicating that to show you that they were not men who were just beginning to try cases.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q When was the question of Achey's ability as defense counsel first raised, how many years after the case had been tried?

A My recollection is when it was first raised there was some implication of incomptence prior to his death.

Q That was raised by Mr. Margiotti?

A That was raised by Mr. Margiotti. The precise time of his death and the precise time he raised it I would hesitate to say.

Q Approximately.

A I would say three years afterwards.

Q When was the first time the hysteria question was raised?

A At the same general period.

Q Three years afterwards?

A Yes.

Q When was the first time the idea was passed that Judge Boyer and yourself, were incompetent, when was that first raised?

A About the same time. I don't know whether they were raised precisely at the same time because I have not refreshed myself from the records.

Q About three years afterwards all these things came up?

A I would say approximately so. The record will disclose it.

Q Had Mr. McBride raised any of them before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, these particular issues?

A No.

Q Now, you were present, I think you testified, before Judge Murphy in the District Court with regard to many of these phases of the case that Mr. Margiotti raised?

A Yes.

Q Were you present also when there was attempted to be introduced statements obtained from jurors?

A I won't say that I was because I wasn't there during all of the hearing, and my recollection does not serve me as to whether I was there at the precise moment. I do recall Judge Murphy—I think had been instructed not to receive them, at least they were not received and therefore, of course, the Commonwealth was precluded from showing the circumstances under which they were obtained.

Q Inasmuch as the Pardons Board has considered them, have they ever contacted you or any other member of the District Attorney's staff in Bucks County to find out under what circumstances they had been obtained?

A I can only answer for myself. They have not contacted me.

Q Do you know under what circumstances they were obtained?

A No. It would be the rankest kind of hearsay, I would say.

Q Now, these jury panels that tried Zeitz and Foster, were they all called at the same time? Did they sit in the courtroom at the time of the Zeitz and Foster case?

A No.

Q The jury panel which was called for the Zeitz and Foster case was excused after it had been selected, under the law; is that correct?

A That is correct.

Q And then there was another panel called to try Darcy?

A That's right.

Q Now, there have been some allegations that you had not notified Darcy that he would be tried immediately after Zeitz and Foster; and I notice by the testimony that you contravene that statement. What was the fact in that?

A Again, remember that you are calling upon things that happened a great many years ago; but the best of my recollection at this moment is that we conferred with all of the counsel in the two cases and advised them which cases were to be tried first and which were to be tried second and in what weeks they were to be tried; and just how long in advance of the trials themselves, I don't know.

Q Did they receive some advance notice?

A Sometimes, yes.

Q Was there any motion for continuance made by Darcy's counsel?

A No.

Q And was that fact not used also by Margiotti for argument before the Federal Courts, the fact that they were rushed into trial and had not received notice?

A Yes.

Q What is your opinion of the reaction of the public opinion on the commutation of these sentences, the matter of the effect on law enforcement officers and so on?

A That is a little difficult to answer, Mr. Kohn I would say that the resentment was originally with the delay of the imposition of the sentence. Now, far be it from me to say that steps weren't properly taken, but it is difficult to convince the ordinary layman that proper steps can be taken which can cover such a long length of time and thus defer the imposition of the sentence; and the inquiry for the most part is how long can this go on?

After the Pardons Board did commute the sentence to life imprisonment, I discussed it wih very few people. The very few that I did discuss it with were principally attorneys, and were in discord with it. I may say that my own particular reaction was the sense of injustice to the many men who had done so much less and had still gone to the chair for what they had done—

Q Did you try the Katz case?

A No.

Q He was electrocuted, was he not?

A Yes.

Q And you feel there is a sense of injustice in commuting these sentences, from the fact that you know about the case?

A That is purely a subjective question and I may be partisan; but the fact that I was the District Attorney who tried it, now I am thinking in two capacities, as the jurist and as the prosecutor, from what I know of the trial of the case, what I know of the competency of counsel, what I regard as the lack of hysteria or the competency of Judge Keller, whatever motivated the Pardons Board, from my own observation, I would have said it was unjust.

Q You feel that consideration of the type of thing you have heard here today will open up the door for many death sentences imposed by juries, since you have heard the reasons given—

A Yes. I have heard some of the reasons. I don't like the thought of reading letters from the jury.

Our Supreme Court, I think in this case, condemned it specifically. It should not be done. I do not believe those letters should be regarded too strenuously ex parte without any attempt to determine the circumstances under which they were obtained.

I don't like to think that because a trial is delayed because of the ingenuity of counsel, that that in itself should result in the change of a sentence.

This does not mean, and I wouldn't have it interpreted, that I think it very unfortunate that these men had to wait all this time, and they must have suffered a great deal, although I do not believe that these reprieves were always granted the night before sentence was to be imposed or that they were prepared for execution some twenty times; but if it was a few times, it was very unfortunate.

Q What effect, in your opinion, does the commutation of sentence in these kind of cases have on the general law enforcement agencies in the community?

A I believe that law enforcement officers still try to do their duty to the best of their ability.

Q Don't you think they get very discouraged from time to time?

A I think they get discouraged. I think in this instance there may be an area of discouragement; but I have enough confidence in police officers to say that they are going to do their duty in spite of it.

Q Do you think Mr. Achey performed his services to Mr. Darcy in full faith to the best of his ability?

A I have no doubt of it.

Q And there are peculiar circumstances in your county with regard to the fact as to whether or not the defendant tesifies particularly with reference to getting the last speech to the jury; is that correct?

A I don't know if it is peculiar; but if the defendant puts no witnesses on the stand, the defendant gets the last speech.

Q Might Mr. Achey have been thinking of that when he refused to put on any witnesses?

A I don't know what he was thinking about, but it could be that—May I just interpolate this? The other counsel, in these Foster cases, didn't put on their clients; they thought for some reason sufficient unto themselves that trial tactics dictated that they not testify.

Q Were you present at the hearing before Judge Murphy when Judge Murphy asked Darcy if he wanted to testify?

A Yes. I heard you read from the record. But my recollection is erroneous; it is that Mr. Margiotti objected to his being asked.

Q You heard, nevertheless, the answer that Darcy made in that he refused to testify?

A Yes.

Q So that Darcy did have a chance to testify, at least, before Judge Murphy?

A He had a chance to testify in the lower court. He always had a chance to testify.

Q Would you be able to give us—you are now a Judge in Bucks County and you know some of the works of the Board of Pardons in receiving letters from them and knowing something about the work of the Board of Pardons, do you not?

A Yes.

Q Would you be able to give us any concrete suggestions that you think this Committee should consider?

A You are asking for concrete suggestions. I would have to say no.

I do think that there should be examination into the question as to whether or not some better method cannot be provided. The personnel of the Board of Pardons are not, by reason of office, necessarily qualified to in effect act as an appeal board on sentences imposed by the Court. We hear the witnesses. We see the defendants. We may try a case for days at a time, and you necessarily get a different—not a different impression, necessarily, but you can't get the same reaction as an attorney does from reading the printed word as you can from the trial of the case.

I would have to agree that anybody, any group, would be in the same position. But I think there might be some inquiry as to whether persons who are more—except by chance—acquainted with precedures before criminal courts and criminology in general, and the properity of the imposition of sentences in cases.

Q You think that in this particular case that you heard, the reasons set forth by the Pardon Board in their opinion that they were making an interpretation of the law of the land as given in the dissenting and majority opinions and basing something on them?

A I would have to answer yes, just from the answers that I heard. I think they were implicit in the answers as given.

Q. Do you think it is a good procedure as a matter of policy to have the Board listen to counsel, or counsel make statements which are not borne out by the record, without consulting further decisions in such an important matter as a reduction of a death penalty to that of life imprisonment, such as has been done in this case?

A I suppose you have specific reference to Mr. Fried's reference to Judge Boyer's condition.

Q And Miss Blatt's statement that it was a situation on which she could rely because it was a statement of counsel. I am not attacking her discretion. I am just asking your opinion on that matter for consideration by this Committee.

A I think any statement by counsel in such a matter is likely to be coloured by the counsel's position in the case.

Q Is Mr. Freid a reputable attorney?

A Oh, a very reputable attorney; and I must confess that if he said so, that was his opinion.

Q That is what I asked you.

A. But I think if someone else asked the same question they would have gotten an entirely different answer.

Q So, as a matter of policy, is it fair for the Board to rely on that type of statement in consideration of such a serious action and with the nature of the case involved?

A I think I would hesitate if I were in that position. Let me give you an example. This is only from recollection. I think that the application to the Board of Pardons said that Judge Boyer sat next to me in the trial of the case, or some part of it. That is not only not correct, but I don't believe there is any evidence anywhere to support it. But it was a statement, I think, in the application.

Q It was a statement by Miss Ford three years after—I think it is in the application to the Board of Pardons. But it has been some time since I looked at it.

Q I have no other questions, unless you would like to add something. I think it might be relevant in helping them consider the facts that you think should be considered here.

A. No, I don't think so, except one thing that I have never had an opportunity to refer to. There is some testimony adduced that a note was passed to me. The inference was, I think—not an inference; the statement that the note was given to me by Judge Boyer.

Q That was made by Margaret Gordon, who testified.

A There are two facets of it that I have to explain that I don't believe are understood.

One of them is that a note could well have been passed to me by Judge Boyer. If any communication by telephone was made to me during the trial of the case, it went to Judge Boyer's secretary. It might have been, "Call your office before you leave the courthouse." It might have been—not to be facetious—"Bring home a pound of hamburger." It could have been that Judge Boyer passed me such a paper. When I was asked whether I received any note during the course of this trial from Judge Boyer, with reference to his charge, my answer was that to the best of my recollection I did not. I stand on it.

The Court seemed to indicate that because I said I didn't recall too directly, that I was misrepresenting the truth, because if it had happened, I must have remembered it. It seems to me that the rationality of it is that if it did happen, I am convinced I would remember it; but the only intellectually honest answer is that I still have no recollection and I don't believe anything of that kind ever occurred.

Q. That, was again, a matter that was raised three years later?

A That is true. I don't want to get into the trial of the Darcy case, Mr. Kohn. That is a matter I would like to clarify.

Q You heard, of course, Miss Blatt read the basis of the dissenting opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States and place some emphasis on that one page; did she not?

A. I did not hear her read it today, but my recollection is that it was referred to.

Q Your honest statement at that time was that you didn't recall; but it has no significance in the case if it was?

A It is not a matter of memory. It is a matter of intellectual processes. I think I would have remembered it if it had occurred. By answering that I had no recollection of it, and the Court saying that if it had happened, I would have remembered it, it seemed to me that the only logical conclusion was that it didn't happen.

Q They interpreted it as it did happen, which placed a great deal of dissenting opinion on it; is that it?

A That is right.

MR. KOHN: That is all.

BY SENATOR SCOTT:

Q Judge, I am intrigued by the last bit of testimony on your part as to the passing of the note. Was there any question raised as to what the substance of the note was? Or was it just that a note had been passed from the Judge to you?

A I am unsure at this time, Senator. I think there was an implication from the sequence of events that it occurred during Judge Keller's charge. I think the point that was raised was that—my recollection is that Judge Keller made in unimportant—well, a mistake—in his charge near the conclusion of it, and it was inferred that if he had and it was called to my attention, I should have interrupted him right then and told him, which every trial lawyer knows would not have happened, could not have happened to me—if in the middle of the trial, counsel had interposed an objection—

Q Judge Keller was trying the case?

A Yes.

Q The note that was supposed to have been sent to you was sent by whom?

A Judge Boyer, who was supposed to have passed me a note.

Q Where was he sitting?

A. Not next to me—further than anybody here.

Q Merely as a spectator in the case?

A That's right.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q You only have one courtroom there?

A. No. We have three courtrooms, actually.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q I heard Judge Boyer tried the other cases before.

A Judge Boyer tried the Zietz-Foster case.

Q And that had been just a few days before?

A According to the beginning or end, I think it was started about a week before the Darcy case.

Q Now, we have heard twice reference made to the fact that Judge Murphy asked Darcy whether he wanted to testify.Is it a practice for a Court on an appeal to take testimony?

A Well, he was directed to take testimony. Whether to take testimony of the applicant, the defendant, I would hesitate to answer; but Judge Murphy was taking testimony.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q This is not an appeal. This was a hearing on a habeas corpus proceedings?

A. As far as I know, that is the only hearing in which there has been produced this various evidence that has been referred to.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Were you here when the record or some portion of it was read, and the question asked of Mr. Darcy, "Do you wish to add anything to which your counsel has said?" Isn't that what actually took place, and not a request to testify? Isn't there a difference, Judge?

A Yes, but as I heard the record, and I didn't hear it clearly, and my recollection was that there were two parts to it in effect, whether he wanted to say anything, or add anything, and my best recollection was that Mr. Margiotti objected to the question being asked I will have to stand on the record, but that is my recollection.

Q I would like to stand on it, too. Could we refer to it? It would help.

A (referring to record) To answer your question directly, Judge Murphy said, "We notice that the defendant, David Darcy, has been in this courtroom from the beginning of this proceeding throughout every session until this moment. We now direct this question to David Darcy, himself, the defendant. Mr. Darcy, is there anything you have to add to what has been said here throughout this proceeding, anything you want to add on your own behalf? You have a right to testify as a witness." You see a little change here "You have a right to take the stand and you have a right to tell this Court anything that you think will add light to this proceeding. What is your wish?"

There is no record here of any objection by Mr. Margiotti to the question, although that is my recollection.

David Darcy says, "No, Your Honor."

"You don't desire to add anything to what your lawyers have done and what has happened in this courtroom?"

"No, Your Honor."

"Do you have confidence in your attorneys who are in the court at the present time?"

"I do, Your Honor."

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q. Judge, I have a question that is not entirely germane, but I was very much interested in this business of polling a jury. Is that a common practice in Bucks County?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Voir Dire, I think you mean.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: No.

A There are three possible things implied in your question: polling a jury after a verdict, which takes place before the Court; that is customary in a capital case.

Q I don't mean it that way.

A If you mean after a verdict, where someone in behalf of the defendants goes to the jurors and asks them what they would have done under certain circumstances, I would say that is not only often done, as far as I know, but it would certainly be looked upon with complete disfavor; and I think the Supreme Court has said so frequently. It is an improper practice.

Q Would that tend to intimidate future jurors?

A I think you would be in as good a position to do that as I would. I think that the objection to it is that what happens in a jury room, what takes place, should be rather sacrosanct among them and they should not be interrogated afterwards as to what anybody else said or how they felt about it; but in this case, you see, we have no way of knowing. You don't and I don't know the circumstances under which these letters were obtained.

Now, I certainly cannot say that they were bludgeoned into giving these, but we have no knowledge of the representations that were made.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Did you hear the rumor that they were paying $20 a piece for them, paid their way to Scranton—I am serious about this—did you hear that in Bucks County?

A I hesitate to answer that.

Q Did you hear anything about having been paid for letters, either a day's wages or—

A What I heard was so indefinite that I would not dignify it by saying that I heard anything about it.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Do you think this practice of visiting jurors after a case is finished and getting them to write letters should be a matter for legislation prohibiting such?

A I think that might be a wise thing. I don't think that those letters should be too seriously regarded, as I understand the prior witness. At one time I thought she said she placed a great deal of weight on those letters; but at another time I thought she said she didn't regard them as being important. I thought she said she lent a great deal of importanca to those letters, and if that were so, I don't think it ought to have been done.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Judge, when did you first learn about an effort to obtain these letters? Did you know about it at the time the jurors were being contacted or did you learn it just recently?

A Mr. Tompkins, you have to understand that while this was going on I wasn't interested in the Darcy case or the Foster case or the Zeitz case. I was on the bench. District Attorneys have intervened. I was the trial District Attorney. Then came Mr. Curtin, who is no longer an officer. Then there was another District Attorney. I didn't take any keen interest in what was being done in obtaining those letters.

Q Did you have knowledge of it being done at the time it was happening, do you recall?

A I think it first came to my attention at about the time the Supreme Court passed on it. I think it was on one of those case that were referred to.

Q Judge, I think you spoke about something about the intervening time between the verdict and the time sentence was imposed. Did a considerable period of time elapse between those two dates?

A I meant to refer to the sentence being carried out. If I said "sentence imposed," "sentence carried out" is certainly what I meant to say.

Q Was there any particular length of time that elapsed between the verdict and the imposition of the sentence?

A I think not. Certainly nothing unusual about it.

Q Did you receive notice of the application for commutation on both cases when they were filed with the Board?

A I must have. I remember definitely that I received it in the Darcy case, because I replied to it.

Q What position did you take with them?

A I strenuously opposed it. I did say in that letter that it must be borne in mind in fairness that I was the District Attorney that tried the case; that I know that Judge Satterthwaite, who was with me on the bench, would agree with that; and Judge Keller wrote a separate letter in which he expressed his feeling in opposition.

Q Judge, during the course of the trial of the Darcy case, were there any undue demonstrations or commotions or disturbances by the spectators in the courtroom?

A No. You must bear in mind that the Zeitz case had been tried the previous week. The Darcy case, in a sense, was an anti-climax. In other words, people would have heard a repetition of what they heard the prior week. I don't believe—this is naturally to the best of my recollection—that there was as much interest in the Darcy trial as there was in the Zeitz-Foster trial.

Q Were there any such factors involved in the Zeitz-Foster trial?

A No, not as I understand the word "hysteria." I think everyone will have to agree that this was a dastardly crime, or series of them, and the public, not being lethargic, reacted unfavorably to it. It does not follow that there was an air of hysteria during the trial.

Q Was the courtroom at all times packed, if you recall?

A No. I recall and would say it was not.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Judge Biester, isn't it a dangerous thing for the ordinary processes of the law to reopen cases either before a Board of Pardons and to consider the facts, or before the courts of law, go out and give jurors hypothetical questions as to something that might have been introduced that might not have been admissible under the law; wouldn't that upset the entire process?

A It seems it would certainly do it. Here you have an exparte situation. You don't have the District Attorney or the prosecutor saying, "Well, maybe you didn't know this against the defendant." When you only hear the one side of the situation I don't know how reliable the person was. I don't know the man who went to see them or what he said; but I don't think those letters should be seriously regarded.

Q And in obtaining letters of that type, the person who goes out to obtain them might add a little on and present to the jurors some evidence which might not have been admissible under the rules of evidence; isn't that possible?

A The question answers itself. I do not think a lawyer would do it. I think he would realize it is very improper practice. I think it would be very poor advice if a lawyer asks someone to do it on his behalf, especially in light of the opinions of the Supreme Court on that point.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Do you know any expression of the Supreme Court against it prior to this case?

A I couldn't, if you ask me to cite any cases, I think not; but I think the Supreme Court referred to other cases, did it not?

Q I am not sure one way or the other. They may have.

A I don't think this was a case of original impression. I think the Supreme Court, as I remember it, referred to other cases.

Q We can certainly agree that a jury that has deliberated and delivered its verdict cannot impeach that verdict by saying that if they had other evidence, they would not do it; but in view of the fact, whether it was correct practice or not, that the jurors did state that they had heard "a" from the defendant, and "b" from character witnesses, they would have voted for life imprisonment, would you say that those letters coming to the attention of the Board of Pardons, whether it was good or bad practice in getting them in the first instance, should be totally disregarded?

A I would say they should be totally disregarded. Let me enlarge on that for a moment.

The implication is that character witnesses would be called to show that these people were of good reputation. Suppose the Commonwealth says they were of bad reputation. Suppose the defendants took the stand, and in taking the stand, they admit a great many more things that they did not admit by reason of their statements. I don't think anybody could say that because they took the stand, it should mitigate in their favor, or because character witnesses were called, or without knowing what they were going to say, that should mitigate in their favor.

Q No. There were answers on both sides that the jurors didn't consider. As a matter of fact, Judge, I wish to go into that aspect with you now. It is a fact, is it not, that, as part of the Commonwealth's case in chief and before the defense ever started, that evidence of the other atrocious crimes was offered by the Commonwealth and received by the Court?

A That is correct.

Q Now, the Act of 1947 as it then stood prescribed such admission, did it not?

A Well, if you and I are going to get into discussions as to what that Act meant, I must confess it is years since I looked at it. I had grave doubt at the time as to what it meant, and the Supreme Court said it wasn't clear as to what it meant.

Q Judge, I think I have to review a little bit with you because I, myself, had said that I wanted to do justice to a dead man, and you likewise want to do justice to a dead man, Mr. Achey, who represented this defendant, and, therefore, we want to try to show, if I may briefly, what confronted him at the time he took the course that he did take.

Now, the Commonwealth did put in evidence the prior crimes, did it not?

A Yes, and subsequent.

Q And crimes subsequent to the murder itself?

A That's right.

Q But all of which were proper, of course, to this trial?

A Yes.

Q And they spanned a period of three weeks or a month?

A Thereabouts, yes.

Q Therefore, Mr. Achey was confronted at that time with—by the way, he did object to the introduction of those criminal records, did he not?

A He strenuously objected to them.

Q And he objected on the grounds that the Act of 1947 specifically forbade their introduction?

A That is correct.

Q You and the Court took a different position. You took the position, (a) that the Act of 1947 did not forbid it, or that if it did forbid it, it was unconstitutional?

A That is correct.

Q Now, therefore, Mr. Achey, having made that objection, had to stand on it, didn't he? He had to choose either to waive that objection by putting the defendant on the stand and thus subject him to cross-examination on those prior offenses, or to stand upon his legal position that he had taken, hoping it would be sustained.

A I think that is a reasonable explanation.

Q Sure. Now, the Act itself, I would like to read it to show what it said, that in the trial of any person charged with crime, no evidence shall be admitted which tends to show that the defendant has committed or has been charged with or has been convicted of any offenses other than the one wherewith he shall then be charged, or that he has been of bad character or reputation, unless —that is the general rule that has just been enunciated, isn't it?

A Yes.

Q The exceptions are as follows: "He shall have at such trial personally or by his advocate asked questions of the witness for the prosecution with a view to establishing his own good reputation or character, or have given evidence tending to prove his own good character or reputation."

He didn't do that, did he?

A No.

Q Therefore, that exception doesn't apply.

"2, he shall have testified against a co-defendant charged with the same offense"; he didn't do that, did he?

A No.

Q And the third says, "The proof that he has been committed or convicted of such other offense is admissible evidence as to the guilt or the degree of the offense where he is then charged."

Now, none of the other offenses, the other robberies, burglaries, constituted evidence that he was guilty in the Feasterville holdup murder, did they?

A No. I will have to take exception to that.

Q What one did?

A The Lackerman, the one that followed, I think it was the Lackerman holdup. The one that followed was introduced in evidence for a number of reasons, to show the identity of the persons, to how a course of conduct, method, to show that they were in the vicinity when this occurred, and possibly other reasons not related, I think you will have to agree, to the act, because they tended to prove the commision of this crime.

Q Let me yield on that point because I will not debate it. How many in addition to the Lackerman case were offered in evidence?

A My recollection is seven.

Q So that seven which did not tend to prove guilt in the Feasterville murder were introduced, and one which did tend to prove guilt in the Feasterville murder was introduced?

A Yes. I don't remember the relationships of time on the other offenses, and I can't say absolutely without any equivocation that there was no relationship between the others and the one in which the murders were committed.

Q Let us put it in the affirmative. You do not now assert and you did not assert then that there was such a relationship, did you?

A No; but to say I don't assert, that doesn't mean it is not so, because I don't remember it.

Q But you never did assert it, did you, Judge?

A I will be intellectually honest and I will say that I am not sure.

Q I am deeply impressed by your desire to be completely fair.

In the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania the question of constitutionality was argued, and the majority held that the Act was unconstitutional. You heard my statement about the one aspect of its relating to Article III, Section 3, that the defendant did not have notice of what the Commonwealth was doing. The other aspect was that the Court held that the words, "or the degree of the offense" rendered it ambiguous; but there was no question in this case about the degree of the offense, was there? It was either first degree murder or it was nothing.

A I think that one of the lower courts said that that word, those words, reflected upon the penalty.

Q Yes. That was not agreed to by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania; is that right?

A The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania said it didn't know what it meant.

Q The dissenting opinion by Justice Jones, which was filed in the Depothy case acknowledged the connection the two in the dissenting opinion, in the Darcy case, did it not?

A You mean the two cases?

Q Yes. The question was precisely the same.

A Precisely the same.

Q And the dissenting opinion by the then Justice Jones refers in his opinion in the Darcy case to the fact, that is, reasons for dissenting, that had been stated in the Depothy case.

A I think you and I are in accord that the constitutional question was decided as the result of the arguments in the Darcy case, but because the Depothy case had precedence in time, the opinion of the Depothy case is regarded as the lead.

Q The main burden of that argument was shared by you on one side and by me on the other.

Now, in connection with the point of time in the trial of Foster and Zeitz, the trial started a week ahead, but it ended on the Friday proceding the date when David Darcy's trial started, did it not?

A I haven't examined the record. I would say that is approximately correct; yes.

Q So that if it ended on Friday, the very next trial day in the normal course of events was the day on which David Darcy's trial commenced?

A That's right.

Q Now, Judge Boyer had been the trial Judge in the Foster and Zeitz cases, where they were tried together?

A That is right.

Q After the jury condemned them to death, he stated that he approved thoroughly of their decision, did he not?

A I don't remember. I think he did, but I don't remember.

Q You don't remember that that was given rather wide publicity?

A I remember that something he said at the conclusion of the Zeitz-Foster case and after the jury returned, was given wide publicity. The precise words I don't recall. As I recall, it was said that he made some remarks of commendation, approving the verdict. I can't adopt it as a fact, but I believe that is so.

Q Now, then, on the next trial day, Darcy was tried before Judge Keller?

A Yes.

Q Judge Boyer was not assigned to that court, was he?

A No.

Q There is no normal reason for his being in that court, was there?

A Let me put it this way, I don't think it is abnormal for another judge to hear a case, any criminal case.

Q Well, Judge Biester—

A I think he sat on the bench with Judge Keller rather briefly. Mr. Achey objected to it and he left the bench.

Q And then took a seat in the courtroom itself?

A Not continuously. He occasionally occupied a seat in the courtroom.

Q And that was quite obvious to everybody in the courtroom, there was nothing to prevent the jury from seeing it?

A Nothing to prevent the jury from seeing him? No, nothing to prevent the jury from seeing him while he was there.

Q Judge Biester, have you ever tried a case, allied with another case, and then come into the courtroom and sat around as a spectator?

A I don't want to answer to imply that I think it is an entirely improper practice. I don't recall a situation like that where there were cases tried in sequence. If a case was tried in sequence, I would regard nothing improper—rather, that it was required that I isolate myself from the courtroom where the other cases were tried.

Q Did you ever know in Bucks County this situation to arise, where a judge has just presided at a capital case, where two young men were found guilty with the death penalty fixed, coming into the courtroom where a third co-defendant was to be tried, and sitting around watching the case?

A You would have to ask me the first part. I don't remember the sequence of events occurring in any other case. That is, I don't recall a situation where two young men were tried and convicted and received the ultimate punishment by the verdict of the jury, and then subsequently a third accomplice in the same case was tried. I don't remember a situation like that.

Q But you do remember cases where there was more than one defendant, and the two were tried separately? That has definitely occurred in Bucks County?

A Many times in the same trial the judge tries them.

Q But have you ever known a trial judge participating in one trial come in and sit as a spectator in the second trial?

A I will have to say in all honesty that I don't recall that sequence of events having occurred.

Q The sequence of events of two men being tried separately—

A Tried on a capital offense, tried separately, where different judges tried them in sequence. I don't recall. It may have but I don't remember.

Q Do you recall the Wiley and the Farrell cases?

A Yes, I remember those cases.

Q They were tried separately, were they not?

A I don't believe they were.

Q You mean that Wiley and Farrell were tried together?

A I am not sure. You see, you are going back into—

Q I know I am. It makes both of us seem a little old.

Q Twenty-five years ago. I wouldn't be sure they were tried together, or whether they were not.

Q Now, you have conceded the possibility that Judge Boyer did send you a note about an unimportant subject, or hand you a note about an unimportant subject?

A Yes, I readily concede that. It could have happened and my not remember it—how many years later? Eight years later.

Q But if it did happen, Judge Boyer, who had commended the jury on fixing the death penalty, only a few days before, handing you a note in open court might very well have a tremendous effect upon the jury might it not?

A I think that is extremely unlikely, Mr. McBride.

Q You do?

A Yes.

Q Bucks County is not a large county, or was not then, was it?

A Well, I don't want to talk on behalf of Bucks County. You all know it is the largest growing county.

Q I should certainly say it is.

A That is certainly not measured as a small county today.

Q But Judge Boyer was well known in that county, wasn't he?

A Yes, well known is an expression—I would have no way of knowing whether one of those jurors even knew who Judge Boyer was.

Q You wouldn't say Judge Boyer sitting in that courtroom would pass unnoticed by the jury, would you?

A I wouldn't know.

Q Well, particularly—

A First we have to say that the jury would know who Judge Boyer was—

Q You say he sat on the bench beside Judge Keller?

A Very briefly.

Q They would know he was a judge, wouldn't they?

A That is true.

Q And then if he subsequently occupies a position in the courtroom itself, they would know that this same man who sat upon the bench—

A Was a judge.

Q —was a judge, and who is now sitting in the courtroom?

A That's right.

Q Having a knowledge of human affairs such as you have, Judge, don't you think the jury would wonder and wonder whether Judge Boyer's interest was in this case?

A Well, the jury would wonder and wonder whether—I wouldn't know how the jury would feel about it. I can't agree that I would think that the jury's attention would be diverted to the fact that Judge Boyer was there and why he was there. I don't know. They may or may not. I don't know.

Q The case itself, prior to its being heard, had been the subject of a lot of newspaper comment, had it not?

A Yes.

Q The result of the Foster-Zietz case was well known to the citizens of Bucks County community who made up the jury, was it not?

A You yourself understand how difficult it is to ask a generalized question like that. Unquestionably a great deal of the community knew about the case. Percentagewise, how many of the jurors were acquainted with it, and in what detail, I would have no way of knowing.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q The jurors were all questioned on voir dire?

A They were all questioned, and they were accepted after inquiry as to their prior knowledge of the case, and if they had any knowledge of it, whether that would affect their verdict.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Not all of them were asked that, were they? I have just noticed in the record, going over it very hurriedly, that some were not asked, for instance, about their attitude as to capital punishment, and as to their knowledge of the case itself. Don't you remember Mr. Margiotti pointing that out in the hearing before Judge Murphy?

A No. You see, I wasn't there during the whole hearing before Judge Murphy.

Q That's right. Now, to get the record straight on Judge Murphy's hearing of the testimony, there was a writ of habeas corpus presented to Judge Murphy which he summarily dismissed without hearing?

A If you say that is so. I think it is so. Some of these things I can't adopt as fact simply because it is not according to my recollection.

Q See if this refreshes your recollection. An appeal was taken to the Court of Appeals which directed that Judge Murphy examine into the truth of those allegations.

A I believe that is right.

Q And, therefore, the hearing at which you were called as a witness was held by Judge Murphy after the Court of Appeals had directed him to hold it.

A I think that's correct.

Q Now, I was not called as a witness by anybody, was I?

A Not anytime I was there.

Q I wondered about that.

A I didn't have anything to do with the witnesses.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I think if the Committee will let me join with Judge Biester, I would like to make a short statement. He has spoken about Mr. Achey. I myself have felt that as a matter of conscience I ought to state it, that Mr. Achey was motivated by the highest motives. He did what he thought was right in not putting David Darcy on the stand. He did what he thought was right in not calling character witnesses. He was moved to do so, and Mr. Kohn said I advised in the case. I received a telephone call one time from Mr. Achey, who told me that he proposed to take that course of action, and that he was going to adopt that course of action, and I told him that although I had nothing to do with the trial of the case, if I were trying the case, I would adopt the selfsame course of action. I think, therefore, Mr. Achey acted in good conscience, and in accordance with what he believed his duty to his client to be, and if I had been there, I would have made the same mistake, if it was a mistake, that he made.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: These are based on the statements he made to you?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Based upon his decision. And I feel that in justice to him and in justice to the bar of Bucks County, it is my duty to place that statement of record. Others may differ. It is a free country, but—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: You wouldn't allege any incompetency on Mr. Achey's part?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I did not. I know the reason for his decision. Mr. Margiotti apparently did not. I knew it, and I was not consulted by anybody, either the Attorney General's Office, or either side to this case, I was never called to testify, but I knew that Mr. Achey was depending upon his legal position, and after the case was over and I was asked to take an appeal to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, I attempted to make good that legal position, and that was the end of my participation with the case. I was not connected with the trial in any way. But I feel in justice to Mr. Achey and his memory, I should say what I have said.

THE WITNESS: May I just add one thing. It is of no grave importance, you will determine it from the record, but my best recollection of the number of instances involved was nine, during which I recall six people were shot.

MR. KOHN: Seven, I believe.

THE WITNESS: I don't know.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I wasn't up in Bucks County or have any participation in the trial, did I?

THE WITNESS: No.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I would like to ask the General another question with respect to the statement. Would I be right in inferring that you would disagree about any complaint about competency of counsel?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, I do. I agree that those who have disagreed with Mr. Achey's handling, Mr. Margiotti was a good lawyer and he didn't agree, and others didn't agree, and they are entitled to their opinion. Mine is different.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Your feeling is it would be in conflict, as I understand, one of the reasons for commutation—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I think in the case as it developed in the Federal Court and as it was presented to the Board of Pardons, it is my view that the Board of Pardons was fully justified in taking the position it did. I feel also that because of the personal knowledge I had, which neither the Commonwealth nor the relator called upon me to give, that had I testified, I would not have agreed with that. But that doesn't mean that I think the Board of Pardons was wrong. I think on the record as it came up to them, the Board of Pardons was fully justified in the position it took. It is just because I happen to know this situation, and the constitutional problem, and Judge Biester and I argued it in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, that I was in a position to make this statement, and I make it simply because I think I am called upon to do it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: There are implications in the reasons filed by the Pardons Board as to the competency of counsel. They don't mention counsel, but it is generally accepted that they were referring to Mr. Achey. We can't get any other inference from a review of the case and testimony taken at habeas corpus.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It was clearly Mr. Achey that they were referring to. And I say, on the case as it developed, the Board of Pardons, in my opinion, was justified in coming to that conclusion. Because of the personal knowledge I had of Mr. Achey's reasons for acting as he did, which was not apparent to the Board of Pardons, apparently not apparent to Mr. Margiotti or anyone else, I would not have come to the same conclusion.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Then you would not have made a finding had you been a member of the Pardons Board that there be any question of competency of counsel?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Only because of the personal, unique knowledge I had on the reasons why Mr. Achey acted as he did.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Judge Biester, I would like to ask some questions. You noticed from the letters obtained, "To Whom it may Concern," that in none of those letters was any mention made of this note-passing incident, or that Judge Boyer had any effect on them? If that had been of some importance, it would have been in those letters as a logical conclusion?

A I can't say that I agree with that altogether, Mr. Kohn. I don't know the circumstances under which these letters were obtained. I think if any credence should be placed on the letters, there should have been—it didn't take a board of inquiry. Somebody could have written letters to these people and asked how these letters were obtained and under what circumstances.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q The District Attorney never conducted any investigation, did he?

A I am not sure.

Q Do you know of any investigation that the District Attorney made as to the—

A No, but I can say this, that once it was stricken from the record, it is my recollection they were, there wouldn't be occasion for the District Attorney to contravene something that was not part of the record.

Q Well, if as Mr. Kohn suggested, $20 was offered to one of these jurors—

MR. KOHN: I didn't say that.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q —whether the letters were stricken from the record or not wouldn't preclude the District Attorney from finding out whether or not there was something improper in such solicitation?

A Obviously it wouldn't preclude him, no.

Q So far as you know, he didn't do it.

SENATOR SCOTT: Mr. Kohn's question was whether the Judge was familiar with such rumors as I understand it. We don't know whether the District Attorney was familiar with the rumor or not.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q One other question, Judge Biester. On the matter of Miss Blatt's statement that she felt that because Darcy was commuted, she felt that should have consideration in the Zietz and Foster case. What do you think of that matter? She cited the reason that Capone, 16 at that time and wha psychiatrically had the intelligence of a person of 12, do you think that these cases of 16, the Pardons Board should take that in consideration and commute the sentence of the one who pulled the trigger? What is your opinion?

A There are several questions there. I think there is a clear distinction between one from the other. You must bear in mind Capone was the lookout man and remained in the car, he was younger. He was of comparatively limited intelligence, and he did not fire any of the shots. You must understand not only Zietz but Foster and Darcy also fired shots during the holdup. Capone did not. The fact that Capone—and the fact he was younger—the fact that his sentence was life imprisonment should not be a controlling factor. I think there could be a much stronger case made out for Capone if there had been a death sentence after a plea of guilty than for the others. As to Zietz, Foster and Darcy, I must confess, although I have difficulty in rationalization of it, and I think you could logically argue that if the basis of the commutation of Darcy was an alleged unfair trial, and there is no implication whatever that Zietz and Foster received an unfair trial, that the fact that there was an implication—of course, I am not agreeing with it—that there was an unfair trial, it should affect Zietz and Foster. Yet my innate sense of fairness indicates if Darcy should not go to the chair, neither should Zietz and Foster.

Q Do you subscribe to the theory if they ask for severance, and the jury is hearing the case, in each case the Pardons Board should reduce the sentence to the minimum given in the case?

A That is a different question. It seems to me there the jury in each instance has passed on it, and I think what the jury finds after a verdict is extremely important. No two men are in the exactly same situation subjectively and objectively in any crime. I can't agree with Miss Blatt that because these people were equally guilty under the law, that it should necessarily follow they should receive the same punishment. You could take a situation where under the law four or five people would be implicated and one might have had a very criminal record, one might have been a gun man, and a great many other factors, all might be guilty of first degree murder. Some should under our procedure receive the ultimate punishment and some should receive life imprisonment. I can't logically say that because they are equally guilty technically of first degree murder they should receive the same penalty. And I don't believe if the jury finds "A" guilty with life imprisonment and "B" guilty with the chair that that should be influential and all receive the same punishment. They are different cases.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Do you know why, during the course of the year, both Foster and Zietz received so many reprieves, even though there were no judicial proceedings pending?

A Do I know why? No. I can only say that it would appear to me that Ziez and Foster cases were to be considered in the same category as Darcy, and it appeared to be innately unfair to postpone the one until its final determination and yet execute the other two.

Q And therefore you would say that your best judgment on the matter would be that when both Governor Duff and Governor Fine reprieved Foster and Zietz, it was with the idea that whatever ultimate treatment Darcy got should be accorded to them?

A I think it is a logical conclusion that's what they had in mind.

Q You indicated it was pretty rough to prepare these men for execution—let's say on three occasions, let alone twenty, or as many as there actually were—but you said also that in Darcy's case it was because he himelf caused that result by properly invoking the court procedures that were open to him, but that reason doesn't apply to Foster and Zietz, does it?

A No. The same reason doesn't apply to Foster and Zietz. What I dislike is the thought that we are possibly conceivably establishing a precedent that says if a prisoner under the death sentence is commuted a sufficient number of times, it follows he has received sufficient punishment and therefore his sentence would be commuted, when in point of fact the machinery of delay is set in motion by his own counsel. Now you are perfectly right in saying nobody did this on behalf of Zietz and Foster. But I have always thought of them as being in the same category, that is to say, if one was postponed, the other should likewise be postponed, and to be straightforward and honest in my answer, of couse I can't say Zietz and Foster brought about their own postponement.

Q Therefore, the Act says a man shall suffer death by electrocution, it does not say he shall be kept in separate and solitary confinement, that he should be kept in a place lighted 24 hours a day, that he shall be segregated from his fellow-man, and this go on for five or six years, and then electrocuted, the statute doesn't provide for that, does it?

A That is again the kind of a question that answers itself. Obviously, it doesn't provide for it.

Q But had Foster and Zietz been electrocuted when Darcy lost his final appeal, the net effect as to them would be that they had been kept alive, that they had been prepared for death on a number of occasions, that they had been kept in separate and solitary confinement although no judicial action was pending, and then electrocuted, isn't that right?

A That is true.

Q We have been thinking of this as the Darcy case. We have to think of it also as the Foster and Zietz case, musn't we, that that would be the net result had they been kept alive that long, endured those extra tortures of being prepared for death a number of times, and then executed?

A I don't understand exactly what you mean by the question.

MR. KOHN: I think that is relevant to nothing. I am objecting to the line of questions. In the first place, there is no evidence of that. Mr. McBride stated it twice. I don't think it is true, and in fact the converse is true. I don't see any sense in producing a line of questioning—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think Judge Biester already stated his position in that matter, to the effect that he doesn't like the thought that you might establish a precedent, because before a man reprieves, it is more likely for his sentence to be commuted because they probably think he suffered sufficient punishment.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The best answer to that is not to reprieve him.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Any legal difficulty once the remedies were exhausted?

A No.

Q But they were kept alive for a number of years?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: General, you have been making some statements here. There is question about it, these men were up in Rockview from about 1950, middle or latter part of 1950, or nearly '51, until their sentence was commuted in 1956. How many other cases are there in the history of the Commonwealth where men had been kept that long in the death roll, and what is the longer period of time that anybody prior to this had been kept in the death roll?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I don't know. That is too long.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I made inquiries at the Rockview Pen and I found out the longest anybody had been kept prior to these men was 17 months in death's row.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: So these fellows got treated worse than anybody in the history of the Commonwealth, that is your point.

THE WITNESS: Wait, I take exception to that. That would mean that the proper thing to have done would have been to execute Zietz and Foster and let the Darcy case be handled separate, that by reason of postponement of Zietz and Foster they were being persecuted.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q They were kept on their own choice and not on the choice of the Commonwealth?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That isn't true as to Foster and Zietz, is it?

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Judge, how many bullets were found in the dead man's body?

A Which dead man?

Q The victim.

A Two men died as a result of this. He was tried on the Kelly case and as far as I know there was one trial.

Q How many bullets found in the combination of those—

A There were three shots; two died.

Q Oh, there were three shots?

A Yes.

Q Three people shot at three other people, is that it?

A Yes.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q There is some question as to who killed at least one of the persons that died, is there?

A That's my best recollection, that there is uncertainty as to who shot Hellman.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q To clarify this, Kelly, as I understand it, was shot while on the street, and from the car while these men were fleeing from the scene of the crime?

A That's right.

Q Hellerman was shot in the tavern and there were patrons in the tavern at that time, is that right?

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q It was definitely established that one of the victims was shot by one of the defendants?

A Yes.

Q And one of the other victims insofar as he is concerned, it has not been established as to which of the other two defendants killed him, is that correct?

A I think that is correct.

Q Among the three defendants involved, which two are in the category as to whether there was some doubt as to who killed who?

A Kelly was killed by Zietz.

Q That is established. That would be clear.

A I would be uncertain as to whether Zietz, Foster or Darcy fired the shot that reached Hellerman—

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Darcy emptied his gun into the floor, is that right?

A My best recollection is that Hellerman and others came from another room towards Darcy with a gun and Darcy fired.

Q In their direction?

A I would have said, Mr. McBride, in their general direction, but possibly downward. I am uncertain about that. But I know he also fired into the phone, I think that is in the evidence. Then there were some other shots fired in the holdup that occurred—what? Half an hour or hour afterwards, although nobody shot.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q All three men did shooting in the inn at the time?

A Yes, Darcy, Foster and Zietz all fired shots inside of the inn.

Q That was to terrify them at that time, as I understand, they announced it as a holdup?

A There was some resistance and that's when the shots were fired, some of the shots at least.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q But so far as Darcy is concerned, he either killed somebody, which has not been established, or he was one of the accomplices?

A He was a co-perpetrator of the robbery.

Q I know, but I just want to make sure I got this. But it has not been established that he actually killed somebody?

A My best recollection is no, that is, that he fired a gun and killed someone, I don't believe that was established.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Under the law, while engaged in a robbery he can be held equally guilty with all of the others even though one fired the shots?

A That's right. That's why all went on trial for murder, why Kelly and Capone were tried for murrder.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q I would like to know whether the law which the Supreme Court held to be unconstitutional, whether that has been re-enacted by the legislature or not. Do you know?

A It has not, to the best of my knowledge.

MR. KOHN: You mean the Act of 1947?

REPRESETATIVE LOPRESTI: Yes.

MR. KOHN: No, it has never been re-enacted.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It should be.

REPRESTATIVE LOPRESTI: It should be, sounds like good law to me.

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. Chairman, we usually quit at 6 o'clock. It is now 6 o'clock and I suggest we stop so we can eat.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Anybody have any other questions of this particular witness?

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q One question. Did Hellerman testify that Zietz reached over Darcy and shot Hellerman?

A That rings a note of familiarity.

Q How long after the shooting did Hellerman die?

A If you are thinking of the consideration of a year and a day, it was considerably after that, although I personally do not think that would preclude a prosecution for it.

Q You don't?

A No.

Q You feel even though the death occurs more than a year and a day after, there could still be a prosecution for murder?

A I think so.

Q Oh, I thought that was settled. But it is not too material at this point.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q He's just as dead, though, isn't he?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Oh, sure. I just wanted the record to show why nobody was tried for Hellerman.

MR. KOHN: They were all convicted and faced the death penalty.

THE WITNESS: I think the District Attorney can answer that qdestion.

MR. JOHN: They were obviously under a death penalty.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Before I recess this meeting I want to make this announcement, for the benefit of those who are here, I will make it again tonight at the conclusion of our hearing tonight.

There have been quite a few people who have appeared here today voluntarily in response to this Committee's request. We are going to recess these hearings until 7:30 this evening. Now, the request which we made to them, if we don't reach them tonight, will continue over until tomorrow's hearing, which will convene at 10 o'clock in the morning. I make that statement in order that those who are here who have appeared here to testify, will know that and won't think that they are at liberty to go home, that their appearance here is no longer desired. Those witnesses which we have heard today of course are excused from further attendance at the hearings. Those we have not heard, we want them to come back at our hearings this evening at 7:30 and then again tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

We will recess now until 8 o'clock.

(Recess for dinner at 6:00 p.m.)

This is to certify that the proceedings and evidence are contained fully and accurately in the notes taken during the hearing before the Joint Legislative Committee to Conduct an Investigation of the Board of Pardons, and this is a correct transcript of the same.

EVENING SESSION

(The hearing resumed at 7:30 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right, gentlemen, you may proceed.

DONALD W. VAN ARTSDALEN, being duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Your full name?
A Donald W. Van Artsdalen.
Q What position do you hold in the County of Bucks?
A I am district attorney.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q How do you spell your name, please?
A V-a-n A-r-t-s-d-a-l-e-n.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q And you are the present District Attorney of Bucks County?
A Yes sir.
Q Do you know Judge Boyer?
A I did, sir.
Q There has been a statement made in the record by, I think, Mr. Freed that Judge Boyer was not competent and able, physically or mentally—I don't know which—to try the case of Zietz and Foster at the time he tried the same. Did you make any comment to the Board of Pardons on that?

A The record will speak for itself on that, but it is my recollection that I told the Board that I did not think that was a correct statement.
Q Will you read that small portion of it in regard to what you replied?
A "Now as to the questions raised concerning Judge Boyer, Judge Boyer was considered for many years one of the finest judges in the state. I don't believe his illness referred to occurred until after this particular case. I knew Judge Boyer quite well. He received or suffered from a light stroke sometime after that, and then a series over a period of time thereafter."
That was my only statement to the Board on that occasion.
Q Did you also appear before the United States Circuit Court and the Circuit Court of Appeals on this matter as the District Attorney of Bucks County?
A I did in connection with the Attorney General's Office of Pennsylvania.

Q And did the Attorney General, who was then Herbert B. Cohen, file a brief and appear through his deputies before the District Court in the matter?
A He did and took an active part in the proceedings.
Q And did he do some of the questioning?
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Who, Herbert Cohen?
THE WITNESS: He said through his deputies.
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well then, you mean the deputies questioned?
Mr. KOHN: I mean just what I said.
THE WITNESS: Let me clarify the situation. At the hearing in the District Court before Judge Murphy at that time I believe that Mr. Cohen was not the Attorney General, if I recall correctly. However, there were Deputy Attorney Generals Randolph Rider and Frank P. Lawley who took an active part in the proceedings.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q When did Mr. Cohen enter the picture as Attorney General for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania?
A Well, Mr. Kohn, I don't know the date.
Q I mean in regard to this case?

A Well, I think probably the first proceedings in which he appeared actively would have been by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals of the United States.
Q And at that time did he file briefs?
A Yes sir.
Q On behalf of the Commonwealth?
A Yes sir.

Q And were those briefs properly signed by him as the Attorney General?
A As far as I know they were, sir.
Q And were the cases proceeded with through his deputy attorney generals before that court?
A Yes sir.
Q And in each of the instances on matters raised before that court by counsel for Darcy did the Attorney General, as was his duty, oppose each particular legal point that was raised by Darcy's counsel?

A The Attorney General's Office, under both the present administration and all prior administrations which were connected with this case, actively opposed the position of the petitioner, both factually and legally.

Q And by factually you mean it included the note to the judge with regard to the alleged hysteria being forced to a quick trial and the ineptness of counsel—all that the Attorney General opposed, did he not?
A That's correct.
Q In fact, he opposed every point that was raised by defense counsel, Margiotti, did he not?
A I would say, yes.
Q Now, did you hear me read this morning the reasons given for the commutation before the Board of Pardons?
A I am not sure whether I heard that or not. I have seen the written reasons that were given by them, however.
Q Did you see that that was signed by Mr. Cohen?

A I haven't seen it personally, but I assume that it was.
Q And his position on that commutation on the points that I have questioned you about is exactly opposite of what it had been before the Circuit Court and the United States Supreme Court, is that not correct?

A That would be a matter of interpretation. I would interpret that there was at least a position taken that was different from the position taken in the appeals before the United States Courts.

Q In other words, when he argued the case on behalf of the Commonwealth, of the courts, he took one position; and when he joined in the granting of the commutation, he took an entirely different interpretation on the very same facts?
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, are you testifying, Mr. Kohn?

MR. KOHN: I beg your pardon?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Are you testifying or are you asking the witness a question?

THE WITNESS: Well, my answer is this. When you say "he," of course, Mr. Cohen served on the Board of Pardons personally. In the appeals he signed apparently all of the papers as Attorney General, The matter was, however, argued by one of his deputies.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q But his position in regard to the legal effect on the matter of commutation was entirely different on the interpretation of those same facts, was it not?

A Well again, that's a matter of interpretation. I would so interpret it.

Q Now the Attorney General raised some implication or presumption here that in regard to the letters that were in question, which were presented by Mr. Darcy's counsel in connection with the jurors who had served at his trial, the implication was that you did nothing about making an investigation of that matter at the time that the letters were called to your attention.

What are the facts on that, Mr. Van Artsdalen?

A I am not sure at what stage these letters first came into the proceedings. I am not sure whether at that time I was an assistant district attorney or was a district attorney, although I think I was an assistant at that time. But it is my recollection that at various times the matter was discussed with representatives of the Attorney General's office, and it was the position of the Attorney General's office throughout these proceedings that those letters were highly improper and the courts have all unanimously sustained that position so far as I know.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Which Attorney General was that?

A Again I say I am not sure at just what stage that transpired, but it has always been the position of the Attorney General's office that it was improper to take those statements of the jurors.

Now then, having taken that position, it was always my feeling—and I am sure that the Attorney General's office agreed with this, and I think that it had been discussed with them, although I cannot give you a precise date—that it would be even further improper for the Commonwealth or the District Attorney's Office to further harass these jurors who had done their legal duty by going around and interrogating them further concerning why or the reasons that they had made these statements.

In addition to that, every court that passed upon this question held it to be improper. That being so, there was nothing for the Commonwealth to controvert so far as those statements are concerned.

Now whether the Board of Pardons could properly consider those, I don't know, but it seems to me that if the Board of Pardons wants to accept or consider certain things that are not a matter of sworn testimony and record, that they should give an opportunity to have those statements investigated or any of those matters under oath, and give the right of cross examination and the other usual matters that are concerned in any sort of investigation.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Now, Mr. Van Artsdalen, you argued this case last time before the Board of Pardons last time?

A Yes sir.

Q Did you submit a brief?

A No, I didn't. I have had the understanding that it has never been the policy to submit briefs to the Board of Pardons. In fact, I was told that this brief—and I don't know whether this is correct or not—that it was the first time in the history of the Board of Pardons that any written or printed brief had been sumitted to the Board of Pardons.

Q Did you ask whether they wanted one?

A Well, I asked not the Board of Pardons directly. I did ask one of the members of the Attorney General's office and he told me, informally of course, that he did not feel that it would be necessary.

Q Was there a printed brief submitted by Mr. Witkin?

A I am not sure whether it was printed or mimeographed, but there was a brief submitted.

Q Now what impression did you obtain when you argued this case before the Board of Pardons?

A Well, that's a difficult question to answer, as to what impression I obtained. Miss Blatt has testifield, I believe, this morning that she reached her conclusion sometime while sitting up there. I suppose any attorney has argued cases before a jury where he has the impression that the jury is dead set against his position. I can only say that that was my impression in this case, but it is only an impression.

Q Did you attempt to recite the facts during your argument?

A I felt under an obligation because it seemed to me that the question for the Board of Pardons should be the facts of the case itself as to whether it was proper to grant a commutation or not, and I felt, therefore, that I should review rather thoroughly the facts of the various cases, and I did attempt to review them.

I think that one member of the Board made a statement which, of course, is a correct statement, that they had the records of the facts of the case.

Q And they stopped you from giving the entire facts of the case?

A No, I won't say I was stopped or prohibited in any way. It was merely what I would consider a polite suggestion.

Q Did Margiotti ever make any statement to you while he was in this case in regard to the efforts to block Darcy's case?

A I don't fully understand your question, sir.

Q Did Margiotti have any discussion with you about why you did not give up?

A Well, of course, at some of these various hearings up in Scranton and before the Circuit Court of Appeals and the United States Supreme Court, Mr. Margiotti would make purely off the record statements, but I cannot tell whether they were facetious or serious, sir.

Q Now what about these new allegations that Margiotti would raise each time the case went up before some other court? Was that after someone died, or would it be done before someone would have passed away in the case?

A Well, that's kind of a difficult question to answer. The allegations concerning Mr. Achey, I think, were first raised while Mr. Achey was living. I know it bothered him a great deal personally, and he had a very difficult path to follow as to what position he should take. I am thoroughly convinced that that was one of the causes of his untimely death.

Q Was he an able lawyer?

A An extremely capable lawyer.

Q Did Mr. McBride so say to you even before he became Attorney General?

A Yes, I believe so.

Q In discussions in your office?

A I believe so, and as a matter of fact, I think that on the first Board of Pardons hearing, or one of the other Board of Pardons hearings, I think that Mr. Margiotti, or whoever—well, I will retract that, but I think there is something in the record that will indicate that other attorneys for the petitioner have indicated that Mr. Achey was a capable lawyer.

Q This matter in regard to Judge Boyer and his competency, did that ever arise previous to the time of his death?

Q I believe that the original allegations were made before he died, shortly before he died, but I doubt very much—and again it is somewhat speculative, although I was very well acquainted with Judge Boyer. I do not believe that he was ever advised of the situation because of his ill health at that time.

Q Was he in absolute good health, mentally and physically, at the time he tried the case?

A Positively, and I can say that from my own knowledge, although I wasn't even a lawyer at that time when these cases first came up.

I did sit through one of the trials, the first time, and heard a great deal of the other trial. I knew Judge Boyer quite well, have known him all my life, as long as I can remember knowing anyone.

It was about—well, at least after this case, after I became a lawyer, I did try cases before Judge Boyer. He tried many cases and remained active for, well, I think he retired sometime in August of 1949 and was a very active and capable judge up until the time that he retired.

Q As long as Mr. McBride was in this case, there was no question of Mr. Achey's competence or no question of Judge Boyer's participation in any note passing or anything else?

A Well, of course, Mr. McBride has made a statement as to his participation in the case. I think the record would speak for itself—

Q Well—

A . . . as to when these various allegations were made.

Q They were first made about three years later?

A I think that practically all the allegations that were later pressed during the habeas corpus proceeding were originally raised sometime after the appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Q And the testimony in regard to this note passing was by Margaret Gordon, Marian Ford and Joseph Darcy, is that correct?

A Yes, sir.

Q There was no other testimony, even though there were many people in the court room?

A I don't know how many others there were who testified to it or whether there were any others, but I think there is one thing that should be borne in mind; the District Court Judge—well two judges heard the case, Judge Murphy and Judge Watson—and they filed a unanimous opinion. They found against the petitioner factually on that particular point and practically every other factual issue that was raised.

Now for some reason, on the appeal to the Circuit Court of the United States and also to the United States Supreme Court, some of the judges there that were of the dissenting opinion apparently, so far as I can ascertain stated no reason for it, felt that those findings were incorrect. But they did not hear the witnesses under oath. And I say that Judge Murphy and Judge Watson were the judges who were in the position to judge and to find those facts.

Q And they did make findings of fact adverse to the defendant?

A To the petitioner.

Q Petitioner, I mean.

A Yes.

MR. KOHN: That's all.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Did they decide that the facts did not exist or did they decide that the facts did not entitle the defendant to any additional consideration even though they were true?

A Well, you should have to read the opinion of Judge Murphy and Judge Watson.

My impression is that on practically all of these things they found factually that they did not exist. For instance, I believe that Judge Murphy's andw Judge Watson's opinions specifically found, as a matter of fact, that Judge Boyer was not in the court room at the time of the charge by Judge Keller.

Now that's the time that it has been alleged that this so-called note passing incident took place.

In the Appellate Courts, the dissenting judges, so far as I have been able to ascertain, at no time said that Judge Murphy's and Judge Watson's findings were incorrect on that point.

Q But did Judge Murphy find that no notes had been passed between the judge and the district attorney?

A You will have to read the opinion, sir, but it is my opinion that he specifically and expressly so found that no note was passed.

Now I may be mistaken about that, but I am sure that he expressly found that Judge Boyer was not even in the court room at the time of the trial. That's only my recollection of the record. It will speak for itself.

Q The reason I raised that question is because I cannot understand how the Supreme Court of the United States would have three judges who would question facts which lower court judges said did not even exist. I was just wondering about that.

Q Well, I can't tell you why the judges of the highest court in the land would reach the conclusions that they did, other than to say that they were not there at the habeas corpus hearing; they did not hear the witnesses under oath and did not see what happened.

Q But getting back to this point, if the two judges found that the facts actually never did exist, and so found, why would the upper court pay any attention to them, if they did not actually exist?

A Yes, they must have disagreed with that finding of fact, although they did not specifically say that they did, and they did not indicate any reason for it—that is I don't think that they stated anywhere that the findings of fact of the lower court were not based upon proper evidence.

Q Can you give us the exact ages of each of the petitioners?

A I cannot, sir.

Q We have a lot of testimony about the age of eighteen, twenty-four, and so on.

MR. KOHN: May I say that we will look on the application and give you the date of their births? We will give it to you right now.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q When did this happen?

A December 22, 1947.

MR. EVANS: Darcy was born April 13, 1925.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: He was twenty-two.

MR. EVANS. Foster was born September 16, 1924.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Twenty-three.

MR. EVANS: Zietz was born February 2, 1929. We haven't got Capona's here.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: He was seventeen and Zietz was seventeen, according to that.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: What was Zietz's age?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Zietz was born when, Mr. Evans?

MR EVANS: 1929, February 21.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Over eighteen years.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: He had been twenty; the other one was twenty-five and two of them were twenty years of age.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Prior to this time, how long had Judge Boyer sat on the bench?

A I don't know the exact number of years. I think that he had been elected twice, I believe, and served for sometime before that. I am not sure of the exact date.

Q At least twenty years and possibly more?

A Again, I wouldn't like to say specifically. My recollection, I think, is that he probably had served more than twenty years, yes.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q You were discussing some jurors' letters a short time ago. What else were you referring to?

A I am referring to letters I believe Miss Blatt testified to this morning which weighed very heavily in their consideration in commuting the sentence.

I am referring to letters that were apparently obtained, addressed "To whom it may concern," by somebody on behalf of the petitioner after the trial.

Q Were they letters from jurors?

A Yes sir.

Q And what did you say the courts decided in connection with letters like that?

A I say that all of the courts passed on that question, as I recall it, condemning that practice most bitterly.

Q They condemned the practice?

A Yes, and struck those from the record of the case of habeas corpus proceeding.

Q Have the courts ever decided that such letters, if they were not filed and if they were actually issued and signed by jurors, have the courts ever decided that they could not be considered by Board of Pardons?

A No sir, not so far as I know.

Q Then if they were in the file, do you think it was improper for the Board of Pardons to consider them?

A I think it would have been improper for the Board of Pardons to have considered them without investigating or having some investigation made, or of allowing an opportunity of an investigation to be made to ascertain the circumstances under which they were obtained. Now I am not saying that they were obtained in any way improperly because I do not know.

Q I was going to say do you have any evidence that they were obtained by any improper methods?

A Well, of course, now we get into the discussion as to what is improper method.

Q Well, you used the word "improper."

A I agree with you, but the courts themselves have stated that it is improper, as I understand it, at least in a judicial proceeding, to go around and ask the jurors what motivated their decisions.

Q Well, I am just a layman. Is there any difference between a judicial proceeding and a proceeding or hearing before a Board of Pardons?

A Well, I don't know whether there is or not, but you asked me specifically whether I knew of any cases that condemned some practice before the Board of Pardons, and I say I do not know. I say this case is precedent for it being improper at least in cases where it is on a habeas corpus proceeding.

Q And that would have something to do with the trial of the case, though?

A Well, it would have something to do with the habeas corpus proceeding which is dicerent from the trial of the case on the facts.

Q Well, the habeas corpus proceeding would be related in some way to the trial of the case, wouldn't it?

A Well, it depends again on what you mean by "related," sir. The habeas corpus proceeding was on the contetnion that the petitioner had been deprived of his constitutional rights in that the trial had been unfair.

Q And the proceeding before the Board of Pardons had nothing to do with the habeas corpus proceeding, did it?

A Nothing directly, but apparently, according—

Q So that the rule that you talked about that was stated by the court, so far as the use of the letters was concerned, or a consideration of the letters was concerned, that would not apply then to a Board of Pardons hearing as compared with a habeas corpus proceeding?

A I think the language of the court is sufficient as to condemn this practice for any sort of proceeding.

Q I am not talking about the practice. I am talking about whether or not the court actually ruled at any time that such letters should not be considered by the Board of Pardons.

A I think I have previously stated, sir, that I know of no such case. That does not say that there isn't such a case.

SENATOR YOSKO: All right.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q How did these letters get to the Board of Pardons, do you know?

A I do not know, sir.

Q Were they introduced at the hearing, that is the Board of Pardons hearing, I mean?

A Again, I am not sure how they first came into the picture, but whether they were first originally sent to the Board of Pardons or whether they were attempted to be used in the habeas corpus proceeding, I am not sure. I do know that on—I say I know, but I am quite sure—that on one of the petitions for a writ of habeas corpus the original petition before the District Court, one of the allegations was concerning these jurors, and I believe that the letters were attached to that petition. Now whether that was the first incident in which they were used in this case, I do not know.

Q Now in your opinion, would the administration of justice generally be aided if legislation was passed that would make it illegal to seek letters such as these from jurors after they have gone to their homes and left the courthouse and made their decisions and returned their verdict?

A Well, that's a very difficult question to answer, sir. I know this, that it does and would harass jurors terrifically it it would be considered proper to ask them afterwards what motivated them to come to their decision. I think that it would be a very bad practice. I feel that it should be prescribed by the Legislature, but that is only my own personal opinion. It may not be a valid opinion.

Q And would the precedent of using letters such as these, as we find was done by the Board of Pardons, do you feel that those letters harass future jurors after they have returned to their homes?

A I certainly think there is an extreme danger of that, sir.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q These letters, I believe, were all dated in 1951?

A That may be correct, I am not sure.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Where are those letters?

MR. KOHN: Mr. McBride has them.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Do you have those letters that were here this afternoon, General, the letters of the jurors?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I handed them up and I believe Miss Blatt left them on the table. I don't think I have them here.

DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL WRIGHT: Here are some, General.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Suppose we set these up as an exhibit.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes.

Packet of eleven letters from Juror—produced, marked for identification and received in evidence as Board of Pardons Exhibit No. 36. AJP 4/10/57.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: These letters are dated March 26, 1951, March 24, 1951, March 24, 1951, March 27, 1951, March 24, 1951, March 26, 1951, March 24, 1951, March 24, 1951, March 26, 1951, March 29 1951 and March 24 195.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Now when was this habeas corpus proceeding held?

A I don't know the date that it was originally filed.

MR. KOHN: April 2, 1951.

THE WITNESS: And when you say "this habeas corpus proceedings," of course, there were various habeas corpuses filed in this matter. I think the only proper way to get a review of the procedure up until the time of the habeas corpus proceeding, that is until the time of hearing before Judge Murphy, would be to refer to page 72 of the transcript of the record before Judge Murphy in the habeas corpus proceeding in which he reviews in detail all of the matters that took place up until that time, and I think, accurately so.

MR. KOHN: I think the record will show that. I think April 2, 1951 was the first the habeas corpus proceeding was brought.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q And apparently these letters were on file in the first Board of Pardons application and not on the second Board of Pardons application. Now, tell me, Mr. Van Artsdalen, had not the court held, and very severely in some of their opinions that I have read, that such practices are highly improper and that they, under no circumstances, would allow the verdict of a jury to be upset by the jurors themselves, or in other words they would not allow a juror to impeach their own verdict once it has been rendered?

A That has always been my view of the law, sir.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Who are we criticizing for these letters?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We don't know who got them or anything else, but the point I am making is this, the practice is highly improper; and if the courts ruled them out because they are improper, I don't believe it is a very proper thing to have them included as part of the Board of Pardons proceedings where they are using information that could be highly dangerous to your jury system.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You mean because they were secured improperly?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I did not say that.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You mean however they were secured, it is improper to secure them?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: No, I say improperly used after they were secured. I make no allegations as to improperly securing them because we have no information on that.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Suppose, Mr. Chairman, in a proper case you can discover that a jury decided something unfairly on the basis of what was before them and you discover this information after the trial is over and you bring that before the court and the Board of Pardons, don't you think it would be proper under those circumstances?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: No, because of the fact that you are striking at the very foundation of your jury system.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Even though the jury used something outside the realm of the jury system?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think it is up to the jury to decide from the facts of that kind which are available and then it is up to the court to decide a new trial.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: How could you discover it after the jury—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The jury is not allowed to disclose what they consider in arriving at a verdict. That is fundamental law.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Well, Mr. Lopresti, the reason I kept asking on this point is this: I don't know the composition of juries in every county, but in my own county they are mostly women because it is awfully hard to get men purors. Then, say you have a gambling case or a racketeer or something like that; and if you open the door to his friends to go calling on the jurors in their homes I think you are going to have an awfully hard time getting anybody.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: I am not suggesting that that be done. However, I am supposing that under certain conditions you may have a jury deciding something on a fact which the judge says you do not consider, or you must not consider and the whole case may be decided on that fact.

If, in that case, it were properly brought before the court or before the Board of Pardons, I think it should be considered. I don't think it should be ruled out altogether.

THE WITNESS: Well, of course, these letters would not indicate anything of that sort at all.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Yes, but in certain cases it might be.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think trying to find out what a jury decided after the verdict is rendered is on a par with wire tapping the jury during their deliberation.

MR. KOHN: I think we have gotten off the subject. The danger in this case is having the juror say after he has heard the testimony that he might have done something else if something else would have been presented to him. This is the gist, not the question of having done something wrong. It is a question of he might have done something else—

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: I say I am far afield, but I brought it up because it has been suggested here that we prohibit it altogether, and I don't know whether that would be proper.

MR. KOHN: May I read into the record, in answer to your question, this remark from Judge Murphy's opinion on page 1237-A of the United States Court of Appeals, Volume IV:

> "The district attorney and we find as a fact that Judge Boyer did not at any time during the Darcy trial assist, attempt to assist, make any suggestion to or in any other manner aid the Commonwealth in the prosecution of the case against David Darcy; that Judge Boyer did not pass any note or message of any kind to the district attorney in connection with the trial for the use of the district attorney or Judge Keller."

Now I am not inferring anything. I am merely answering the findings of the court, as you requested.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Well, that's what I want to know. May I see that?

MR. KOHN: Yes, surely.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The Court of Appeals referred to that, too. Should I read that part which refers to it?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, the question came up as to whether or not there was any finding of fact on that specific point by the lower court.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The Court of Appeals spoke of that finding of fact and I thought you might want to complete the record.

MR. KOHN: We agree that they differ from it. Mr. Lopresti's question is how did they differ.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Any further questions of this witness?

MR. KOHN: That's all.

CROSS EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Mr. Van Artsdalen, the jurors' letters were first used in a petition for rehearing before the Board of Pardons that was filed on or about March 30, 1951, were they not?

A I don't know. The record would so state.

Q You don't know that that is not so?

A I would not deny it, no.

Q And if they were filed as early as March 30, 1951, that would be known to the District Attorney's Office and could have been fully investigated and met if there were any improper influences used, isn't that so?

A Well, I presume so, yes.

Q And that was before the Court of Appeals or anybody else held that the letters were improper, isn't that true?

A That's correct, but, of course, it was always the position of the District Attorney's Office—and at that time I was only an assistant—but it was our position that it was improper to do so. And we did not wish to add fuel to the fire and go around and further interrogate these jurors.

Q Now you felt that it was improper for someone to go and get the letters, didn't you, even though he did it by an honest method, it was improper in principal to interrogate a juror and get such a letter from him?

A I do so feel, yes.

Q Now even if that was improper, do you feel it is improper for the Board of Pardons to consider the letters?

A I feel that it would be improper for them to consider the letters without getting the facts directly from the jurors themselves.

Q Wouldn't it be all right for them to consider the letters subject to the district attorney or someone else presenting the opposing view or getting opposing letters from the self same jurors?

A No, I would not feel so, sir. That is my opinion.

Q You feel that since the solicitation of the evidence itself was improper then the Board of Pardons or any other legal tribunal should not consider them?

A Yes, I think that's correct.

Q But you know, of course, that in Pennsylvania evidence no matter how unlawfully secured is admissible in the court proceedings? You take the same position every day in the week, don't you?

A I do not.

Q Do you mean to say that the Commonwealth as represented in Bucks County does not take the position that if there is an arrest without a warrant or a search and seizure without a warrant that the evidence is, nevertheless, admissible?

A We do take that position, yes sir.

Q So that the fact that the evidence is unlawfully obtained does not in any way affect its admissibility or consideration by any legal tribunal?

A Well—

Q That's an easy one.

A It may be easy for you, Mr. Attorney General, but it is not for me.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: General, there is nothing here yet to say that these were improperly obtained.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: But even if they were improperly obtained, Mr. Van Artsdalen, does that make it improper for any legal tribunal to consider them?

THE WITNESS: Well now, when you say "any legal tribunal," that depends on what you mean. The court has held, as I understand it, that it is improper for a Federal Court to consider those on a habeas corpus proceeding.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Sure.

A All right.

Q But suppose a policeman or a private citizen breaks down the door of a private house and seizes evidence illegally, that's improper, isn't it?

A It sounds improper to me, sir.

Q Well, you would introduce it in evidence on behalf of the Commonwealth, and any judge in Pennsylvania would receive it, wouldn't he?

A I don't feel that I should answer a hypothetical question like that. It would depend on the case, but I certainly would take the position if it were necessary to put such evidence before the jury that it was proper to put it in, yes.

Q So that the evidence, no matter how unlawfully obtained, is admissible in the trial of the case. That's the common law rule in Pennsylvania.

A Well, you are more familiar with the law than I am.

Q Not more familiar with that fundamental high school problem, am I?

A I don't know, sir.

Q Now you have said that Judge Boyer tried cases after the Foster-Zietz trial in 1948, and that you have tried some before him. Will you name one or more of them?

A Yes sir. I cannot give you the name of it but I was admitted to the Bar in, I believe, September of 1948. A short time thereafter there was an indigent defendant and I was appointed to represent that indigent defendant. His name, I don't know. Judge Boyer tried the case.

Q When was that?

A I wouldn't know the exact date. I would say in the latter part of 1948.

Q My information is that he virtually retired after the Foster-Zietz trial in 1948. Would you say that that is not so?

A I would. That depends on what you mean by "virtually retired."

Q Do you know how many cases after the Foster-Zietz trial he heard?

MR. KOHN: Well, you tell us from whom you got the information, Mr. Bride. I think this is improper cross examination, Mr. Chairman.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, I will stop any time you want me to.

MR. KOHN: I am not asking you to stop. You can stop any time you wish.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, why not let me continue any time I want to?

MR. KOHN: I don't think it is proper to try to make a fool out of somebody.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Van Artsdalen and I are old friends. Why don't you let him speak for himself.

THE WITNESS: I am perfectly willing to answer any questions.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Wouldn't the records in the Bucks County Court indicate how many trials Judge Boyer conducted after the Zietz-Foster trial?

MR. KOHN. That's right.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: There would be very satisfactory evidence in the records of Bucks County as to how many cases Judge Boyer tried.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Mr. Chairman, this witness, in all fairness, should know whether or not the Judge tried any more cases.

MR. KOHN: Well, he said he did.

THE WITNESS: I said he did. I tried at least one before him.

MR. KOHN: But it is an unfair statement to say that somebody told him he "virtually retired" without telling us who or why or when.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Do you know how many cases he tried after the Foster-Zietz trial?

A No sir, I do not.

Q Would you say he tried a dozen?

A I won't make any estimate, sir. I don't know.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Did Mr. McBride ask you to look at the record before you came up here as to how many cases were tried?

A Well of course, you would have to look in the Court of Common Pleas and the Orphans' Court and the Court of Quarter Sessions and the Court of Oyer and Terminer.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Well, if he had been very active, you would be able to tell us that.

A I would say he was an active judge.

Q You would say he was active after the Foster-Zietz trial?

A Yes sir, most certainly I would.

Now let me just say one thing else, however, that for several months before he retired, before he officially retired, from the Bench he was not taking on as many duties. I think that is a fair statement.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q When did he retire?

A I don't know the exact date. The only information I can give you on that is, after he retired Mr. Biester was appointed judge, and I believe that was in August of 1949.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Now you said—or Mr. Kohn said it and you said, yes—that there was a difference in the former attorney general's position, Mr. Cohen. Now tell us just what that difference was.

A Well, you would have to read the opinion.

Q I am willing to do that.

A Do you have a copy of the opinion of the Board of Pardons? It is right there.

Well now, whatever the bases given in the opinion. Mr. Attorney General, it stated as follows:

> "It cannot therefore be said that the numerous appeals and petitions in this case which have consumed eight years were frivolous or without merit."

I say specifically that the attorney general's office has consistently taken the position that the petitioner's allegations were without merit.

Q Were without merit?

A Yes.

Q But this says "frivolous." You know that frivolous in the law is a word of art, isn't it?

A No, I beg to differ with you, sir.

Q You do?

A Now wait. I differ with your interpretation. It says "it cannot therefore be said that the numerous appeals were frivolous or without merit." I specifically call your attention to the words "or without merit."

Q Now when it says that, they were not "frivolous or without merit," doesn't that mean that no one could contend that with reason? Whatever the applicant or appellant contended, "frivolous or without merit" means that there was no merit whatever and no reason on their side?

A I would say that it would mean "without merit" that there was no merit in fact in their position.

Q Would you say now that there was no merit whatever to the appellant's contention before the United States Court of Appeals?

A Now which contentions are you referring to, specifically?

Q The contentions made by Mr. Margiotti in the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit on appeal from Judge Murphy's decision. Would you say that that was either frivolous or without merit?

A I would say that factually their position was without merit, yes.

Q Now—

A If you mean do I think that it was without merit to take the appeal, certainly not.

Q No, but on its merits the appeal was not reasonable?

A Was not substantiated by the facts.

Q Despite the fact that three judges have solemnly dissented from the majority judgment of four to three?

A Yes sir.

Q Had there been a change of one vote, he would have won. Do you think that that is frivolous?

A I did not say that it was frivolous.

Q You rest on its being without merit?

A Yes.

Q Despite a four to three vote and you would maintain that position despite the fact that out of nine justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, three dissented and held that there was merit to it?

A Yes sir, I would, because I attended a good part of these trials, even though I wasn't a lawyer at that time.

Q Did you attend Darcy's trial?

A I attended every day of one of the trials.

Q Which one?

A Now whether that was the Foster-Zietz or the Darcy trial, I don't know.

Q It must have impressed you tremendously. Don't you remember which one it was?

A I do not, sir, althought I attend both trials, but the one trial I attended every day.

Q Did you attend any of Darcy's?

MR. KOHN: Just a minute.

A Yes sir.

MR. KOHN: Mr. Chairman—

THE WITNESS: As a spectator.

MR. KOHN: I don't see why we are running up a great deal of testimony here. I don't see that it is relevant to the issues involved. I think Mr. McBride has been very funny, and we have all realized that, but I think it is time to call a halt to the foolishness and get down to the meat of this thing.

Mr. Yosko seems to think that we ought to ask relevant questions. Now whether or not this witness attended trials and whether they impressed him or did not impress him before he became a member of the Bar, I think that is relevant to nothing. I think it is time we got on to the facts in this case rather than as to how funny Mr. McBride can be.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Were you a member of the Bar at the time of these trials?

A No sir.

Q You attended them as a spectator and not as an attorney?

A Yes sir.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, I think that is out of line with your purpose here.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE. You mean that it is out of line with our purpose here to have us solemnly inquire of a witness what his opinion was as to a state of facts at a time when he was not yet even a lawyer?

MR. KOHN: What difference does it make? He was a spectator like anybody else.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It makes a difference as to whether his judgment was informed or not. Perhaps my humor has a basis.

MR. KOHN: He certainly cannot help it if the Board used the word "frivolous." They may have been very frivolous.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Apparently you are not so good humored tonight. Maybe it is not going so well for your side.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Now Mr. Van Artsdalen, you say you attempted to recite the facts. Nobody stopped you.
A Oh no, I did not say they did.
Q Nobody cut you short?
A Well, I think there was a statement that they had the record of those facts.
Q Who made that statement?
A I believe Miss Blatt did.
Q Miss Blatt did?
A Yes.
Q Was the statement such as to prevent you from continuing with what you wanted to say?
A No sir, it was not. I was given a full opportunity to say anything I wanted to say.

Q Now as to the legal position taken by Mr. Cohen, the former Attorney General, you indicated there was a change in that. Do you take the position now that the legal issue before the Court of Appeals, which I recall to you involved the question of whether or not there was a deprival of due process under the fourteenth amendment, and the situation before the Board of Pardons which was an appeal before a state tribunal for mercy, do you think that the legal position adopted by Mr. Cohen in the one as against the other was inconsistent, and if so, where?
A No, not the legal position.

Q All right. I thought you had said both as to the legal position and as to the factual position.
A Well, if I did, I am incorrect.

Q And you withdraw it as to the legal position?
A If I said that, yes.
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I think that's all.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Going to the conflicting positions of Attorney General Cohen, in his argument before the Circuit and Supreme Court, did he not argue that there was no hysteria attendant upon the trial, that the counsel was eminently competent, that Judge Boyer did not have any influence upon the verdict in the Darcey case?
A That was the position of the Attorney General's Office, yes.
Q That was the position of the Attorney General's Office?
A Yes.
Q When we read in the reasons filed of the commutation that, "Darcy's counsel in petitioning for a new trial raised a number of questions going into the fairness of the trial, the conduct of the judge and the atmosphere of hysteria and prejudice surrounding the courtroom," when Attorney General Cohen signed his signature to that, how would you interpret that in the light of his position before the Circuit and Supreme Courts of the United States?
A Well, again, sir, it is a matter of interpretation. It seems to me that if it is not inconsistent, at least, it is on a different tack.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right. I think that's all.

MARGARET C. GORDON, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows on

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Your name is Margaret C. Gordon?
A That is right.
Q You live at 4943 Frankford Avenue, Philadelphia,
A No I live at 5025 Frankford Avenue.
(Discussion off the record.)

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Are you related in any way to David Darcy?
A No sir.
Q Are you related to Marian R. Ford?
A No.
Q You have been a friend of hers for a long time?
A For a good many years.

Q I think you told Mr. Evans that you attended a Darcy trial, some parts of it?
A Yes, sir.
Q And you also testified in Scranton at the request of Miss Ford?

A I wouldn't say at the request of Miss Ford. I volunteered.
Q You volunteered?
A Yes.
Q Did she ask you what you should testify to? Did she tell you what you should say?
A No.
Q How did you volunteer? What testimony did you volunteer to give on her behalf if you did not know what she wanted?
A Well we discussed certain phases of the trial from time to time.
Q You and Miss Ford and Joe Darcy, who is sitting back there, discussed this one phase of the case, did you, before you went to Scranton?
A Yes, I think we did.

Q And I think you were the only three people who testified on that particular phase of the case, is that correct?
A I believe so, yes sir.
Q Do you know who financed Mr. Darcey's defense in the appeals, the numerous appeals?
A No.
Q Did Miss Ford ever tell you that she financed it?
A No sir.

Q Did you hear of the fact before today that she had drawn checks and made payment on behalf of Mr. Darcy's case?
A No sir.
Q I think the testimony at Scranton shows that you were the one who obtained counsel for Darcy, namely Mr. Margiotti, is that right?
A That is correct.
Q And Mr. Suto testified this morning that you had been a friend of long standing of the Margiotti family?
A That is right.
Q Did you have anything to do with obtaining the services of Mr. Witkin or Mr. Pannell?
A No sir.
Q Did you know Mr. Pannel before this? Did you know him before the Darcy case was tried?

A Yes sir.

Q Were you connected in any way with Marian Ford's operations through the McClosky enterprises in Philadelphia?

A May I have that question again sir?

Q Were you connected in any way with Marian Ford in her connection with the McCloskey enterprises in Philadelphia?

A No sir.

Q Is there any reason that you would not tell Mr. Evans where you had worked in Harrisburg?

A No, there is no reason at all, sir.

Q Why did you refuse, then?

A I did not refuse. I did not think it had any bearing.

Q But at that time you did refuse to tell him where you worked in Harrisburg.

A No, he did not ask me where I worked. He asked me when.

Q And did you refuse that?

A I did not refuse. I said it had no bearing on the case.

Q Was there any reason why you wanted to withhold any information?

A No sir.

Q Did you work at the Capitol?

A Yes.

Q Where?

A In Personnel.

Q Under whom?

A Under John Breslin.

Q Under what Governor did you work at that time?

A Under Governor Earle.

Q And you had no interest in the Darcy case except being a friend of Miss Ford?

A That is right.

Q Do you know how long Miss Ford worked for Mr. McCloskey?

A I did not hear you.

Q Do you know how long Miss Ford worked for Mr. McCloskey?

A I could only approximate it.

Q Well give us an approximation?

A You mean how long she did?

Q Yes.

A I would just say approximately a few years. I don't recall how many years.

Q A few years?

A You mean as a Secretary?

Q Yes. Well how long did she work as a private secretary?

A I don't know. I would not know the exact number of years.

Q Well approximately?

A I would say approximately three or four years.

Q And is that the time he first became City Finance Chairman of the Democratic Party in Philadelphia?

A Yes it was around that time.

Q About 1924?

A Oh no, about 1934.

Q About 1934?

A Yes.

Q And then she worked for him for how many years?

A Are you speaking of Mr. McCloskey now, or the committee?

Q Mr. McCloskey.

A The committee as a whole?

Q No, Mr. McCloskey.

A Well we were all employed by the committee. I would say she was Secretary to Mr. McCloskey at the time.

Q Maybe I am confused.

A You are confusing me a little on the question.

Q All right, but what I am asking you now is, how long do you know that Marian Ford worked as personal Secretary for Mr. McCloskey? When did that start and end, approximately?

A Well so far as personal secretary is concerned, I don't know in what capacity you are speaking of, sir.

Q Well, any capacity.

A Well I would say approximately three or four years.

Q And that is all that you know that she was on his payroll?

A Well I would not know that she was on Mr. McCloskey's payroll.

Q Doesn't she have an office now in Mr. McCloskey's building right next to Mr. Pannell?

A She has an office in a suburban station building.

Q You mean as far as you know she was only employed by Mr. McCloskey for three or four years?

A I never knew her in Mr. McCloskey5s personal payroll. I was speaking of the Democratic City Payroll, not Mr. McCloskey's.

Q How long has she been on the Democratic city payroll?

A That is what I am speaking of when I say approximately three years, to the best of my knowledge.

Q How long did she work for Mr. McCloskey?

A I don't know. I have no knowledge of that.

Q How long have you known her?

A Miss Ford?

Q Yes.

A For approximately twenty-three or twenty-four years.

Q And you mean now that you knew that she worked for the City Democratic Committee—

SENATOR YOSKO: Wait a minute. Is Miss Ford here?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

SENATOR YOSKO: Well can't we get all this information from Miss Ford?

MR. KOHN: I want to ask her. Her credibility is at stake.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: How is her credibility at stake unless she says something that you want to contradict.

MR. KOHN: I don't know. I want to know what she knew about this matter.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Well were you very close to Miss Ford?

A Yes.

Q And can't you tell us how long she worked for Mr. McCloskey or the McCloskey enterprises? Did she ever work for them as far as you know?

A As far as I know, Miss Ford had been in business for herself since her severance with the Democratic Party.

Q Can you answer my question ow. Do you know if Miss Ford ever worked for Mr. McCloskey or any of his enterprises?

A I do know that she handled some real estate for him, yes sir.

Q And when did that start and when did it cease?

A Well now I cannot recall the dates, sir, when that started.

Q Where was her office when that happened?

A Her office was on South Fifteenth.

Q And what was also the McCloskey building?

A No, it was the Robeson building.

Q And whose building was that?

A It was called the Robeson building.

Q And during that time was she handling real estate for Mr. McCloskey?

A Some of the time yes, she was.

Q When did she move into the Suburban Building?

A I am not sure.

Q Did you ever visit her in the Suburban Building?

A Yes.

Q Did you see her name plate, "Marian R. Ford"?

A Yes.

Q "McCloskey enterprise"?

A I did not see the enterprises but I saw M. R. Ford on the board.

Q Where on the board, at her office?

A No, as you go downstairs.

Q How long have you known Joseph Darcy?

A I have known him for a good many years. Well since, I would say, about twenty years.

Q Did you ever consult with Mr. Margiotti or Mr. Pannell before testifying in January?

A I think it was the second day of the trial that Mr. Margiotti spoke to me about testifying, and that was just in the courtroom, that he might call me.

Q Do you know anything about who directed the obtaining of letters in Bucks County from the jurors?

A No sir, I had nothing to do with that.

Q Weren't you consulted about that?

A No.

Q Do you know if Joseph Darcy had anything to do with it?

A That I could not answer.

MR. KOHN: That is all.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q What business are you in, Miss Gordon?

A Real estate and insurance broker.

Q Are you by yourself?

A Yes.

Q Were you ever connected with the Democratic Central Committee in Philadelphia?

A Yes sir.

Q When?

A In, I would say, 1934 until—I am not sure of the dates now.

Q Was it before or after the time you were in the Governor's office?

A That was prior.

Q Prior to that time?

A Yes.

Q And then you were in the Governor's office for how long?

A Approximately a year and a half or two years.

Q And have you been associated with the committee since that time?

A No sir.

Q Does Miss Ford also have an insurance agency?

A Yes she does, sir.

Q Did you help Miss Ford in her financing of—you heard the testimony of Mr. Suto this afternoon?

Yes.

Q Did you in anyway help Miss Ford with the financing of the payments to Mr. Margiotti which you heard about this afternoon?

A No sir.

Q Did you ever discuss this matter with any Member of the Board of Pardons, Miss Gordon?

A No sir.

Q Do you know of anybody else who discussed this matter with the Board of Pardons?

A No sir.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That is all.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No questions.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q You would have no reason to know why Mr. McCloskey would talk to Miss Blatt on the Board of Pardons in 1956 about this case?

A No sir.

Q Miss Ford never discussed that with you?

A No sir. As a matter of fact I haven't seen much of Miss Ford for the last two years. I have recently had an eye operation.

MR. KOHN: Thank you very much for coming.

MR. KOHN: Miss Ford says she has a little cold and is hard of hearing.

MISS FORD: If you do not hear me, just let me know.

MARIAN R. FORD, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows on

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What is your full name?

A Marian R. Ford—F-o-r-d.

Q And where do you live?

A I live at 1810 Rittenhouse Street in Philadelphia.

SENATOR YOSKO: Can you talk a little bit louder, please?

THE WITNESS: All right, I am sorry.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL? The Daily News Reporter wants you to talk a little lounder.

THE WITNESS: I will have to for him.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Just make yourself comfortable.

THE WITNESS: I will try.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q How are you related to David Darcy?

A His late mother was my sister, whom I loved very dearly.

SENATOR YOSKO: Just a little louder, please.

THE WITNESS: I am sorry. Do you hear me now gentlemen?

The late mother of David Darcy was my sister, whom I dearly loved.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q And how long have you been connected with Mr. McCloskey?

A Now just what do you mean, "connected with Mr. McCloskey"?

Q How long have you been employed by him or connected in business with him?

A I was never employed by Mr. McCloskey, never have been an employee of Mr. McCloskey.

Q How were you connected with him in any business manner?

A He engaged my services to handle some real estate matters for him.

Q And weren't you also connected with him when he was the City Finance Chairman, I think it was 1934?

A Yes, I served as his secretary.

Q And when did you first get this business connection with him to handle the real estate?

A Well, I would say that it was in late 1949. He had had several brokers and then he finally came to me and asked me if I would handle certain details in connection with his real estate holdings. He engaged my services for his corporate interests and from that time on, I have handled certain of his corporate interests.

Q You have never been on his payroll?

A Never was I on his payroll.

Q Did you ever testify before the Grand Jury in 1938, Miss Ford?

A Yes, what do you mean by Grand Jury?

Q The Earle Administration, the Grand Jury investigation.

A Yes.

Q Did you testify in regard to some granite that had been delivered to the Capitol to the McCloskey Construction Company?

A I couldn't tell you now what I testified to, Mr. Kohn.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I think I should like to draw the attention of the committee to the fact that grand jury testimony is not supposed to be divulged. Now I take no position on it one way or the other, but I understand that is a well recognized principle of law that testimony which is given before a grand jury is not to be divulged.

MR. KOHN: I thank you, Mr. District Attorney.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Whether or not you are aware of it, I wanted to call it to the attention of the Chair who may view it differently from you.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What I am asking you is at that time were you employed by Mr. McCloskey?

A I was never employed by Mr. McCloskey.

Q How did you get into that Grand Jury investigation?

A I do not know. (Laughter)

Q That is a very good answer. Now can you tell us, did you bring with you the checks and the receipts and amounts of money paid out in the Darcy case and to whom?

A Yes.

Q And will you tell us the dates?

A I have done a little better than that, Mr. Kohn. I have typed a summary of the expenditures which I have made from 1951 to 1956. May I hand you the original?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: May I see a copy of it?

THE WITNESS: Mr. Pannell made two copies.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Now you have listed here expenditures I think to Mr. Margiotti and they coincide with what Mr. Suto testified to.

A That is true, Mr. Kohn, but I have correspondence here which shows the full and complete settlement of the account.

Q You mean of Mr. Margiotti?

A That is right.

Q May I see that?

A You may. Now this is after the death of Mr. Margiotti, but it covers the whole thing from the beginning to end and this first letter that I have before me is from Suto and Schuchert—Mr. Suto, you know, is the attorney for the estate—addressed to me.

"Dear Marian:

"We were all pleased to hear of the successful conclusion of the Darcy matter.

"As you probably know, I have been appointed Attorney for the Estate of Charles J. Margiotti, deceased, and, accordingly, I am now handling all his cases as well as the collection of all monies and fees due the Estate. I notice that Mr. Margiotti had been working on this case since 1951 and that the following summary shows the costs advanced, as well as fees collected, by him on this particular case:"

Then it is summarized, "Costs Advanced" in one column and "Fees" in another.

	"Costs Advanced	"Fees
"1951	$2,004.53	$1,500.00
"1952	378.20	5,000.00
"1953	195.01	1,000.00
"1954	546.31	2,000.00
"1955	288.42	2,500.00
"1956	113.06	2,500.00
"Totals	$3,525.53	$14,500.00

"His records indicate that he had under consideration a total fee of $25,000.00 provided he was successful in securing the commutation. I would appreciate your taking this matter under consideration and advising me.

"With kindest personal regards and very best wishes, I am

"Very truly yours,

"Suto & Schuchert"

Signed, "Alexander L. Suto

"Attorney for the Estate of Charles J. Margiotti, Deceased."

Now I replied to him under date of October 12, 1956, addressing it to Mr. Suto:

"Dear Al:

"I wish to acknowledge receipt of your letter of October 6, 1956, and to thank you for your good wishes. Naturally, after the terrific mental strain for so long, we are sincerely grateful. Our only regret is that neither

Charles, who took such a deep personal interest, nor David's Mother were with us to share the good tidings.

"While I can understand the reason for your letter, in view of your appointment as Attorney for the Estate of Charles J. Margiotti, it is obvious that the correspondence between Charles and myself, pertaining to the financial arrangements, has not been brought to your attention. For that reason, I should like to review the facts for you.

"After Charles agreed to take on the case, at Peg's urgent appeal, he asked me why I had not been in touch with him sooner. I explained that it was only because neither the family nor myself were in a financial position to pay the sort of fee which we knew he usually received in such cases. Charles knew of my limited finances, although I assured him I would do the best I could. This was satisfactory with him. You can imagine that, at the time, I certainly had no idea that the case would last as long as it did or that I would be called upon to lay out such large sums of money. On the other hand, had it not spread over such a long period, I could not have done as well as I did.

"Although I had asked Charles on many occasions what his fee would be and, in fact, made several visits to his office in Pittsburgh to try to get him to state a definite amount, I was not successful until my last visit to the office on November 9, 1955. I explained to Charles at the time that my health was not too good as I was just recovering from a thyroidectomy and, for my peace of mind, I just had to know where I stood, as I was quite concerned about future costs and my ability to meet them.

"At this meeting, it was agreed that I was to immediately remit my check in the amount of $2,500.00 to bring the Darcy account up to date, an additional $2,500.00 was to be paid after his argument before the U. S. Supreme Court, and I was to be responsible for the printing costs. These arrangments were all confirmed by letter. The first check in the amuont of $2,500.00 was mailed to Charles on November 10, 1955, the day after my return from Pittsburgh. The second check in the amout of $2,-500.00 was mailed on May 4, 1956. At this meeting, it was further understood that, should the U. S. Supreme Court act favorably and grant a new trail, we would, as Charles put it, 'cross that bridge when we come to it'.

"On July 9, 1956, Charles wrote me and enclosed a statement of expenses in the Darcy case for the period from March 31, 1956 to July 6, 1956,"—rather lengthy—"in the amount of $643.50, which he felt should be borne by me. He added a postscript to his letter which read: 'I am not going to make any charge for the preparation of the petition for commutation of sentence to be filed before the Pardon Board of Pennsylvania. Letter will follow.' My check in the amount of $643.50, to cover the expenses referred to, was forwarded to Charles on July 13, 1956.

"The letter referred to in the postcript, bearing the same date, read as follows:

"'Dear Marian:

"'I reply to your letter of July 5th in which you ask me what my fee will be for the preparation of the Petition for Commutation before the Board of Pardons. I have given this matter much consideration, and in view of the fact that I have submitted you a bill for some expenses in the Supreme Court matter, I conscientiously believe that I should make no charge for the preparation of the Petition and will not do so. The Petition is now being typed and will be in your hands in a few days. When it is determined who is to appear before the Pardon Board in behalf of Darcy I will then discuss further with you what fees, if any, will be charged. I trust all this is satisfactory . . .'.

"As you are probably not aware, I was personally responsible for many of the additional costs. To cite just a few, the printing bills which I paid were in the amount of $7,450.00. There was the cost of engaging an investigating agency, witnesses' fees, cost of subpoenaing witnesses, voluminous photostats, other attorneys' fees, and so on. Offhand, I would say that $15,000.00 would be a very conservative estimate of additional expenses borne by me.

"At the conclusion of the hearing in Scranton, Charles presented me with the hotel bills rendered by the Hotel, Casey covering his, his staff's stay during the period of the hearing and included the bills for other clients, Buratz and Knohl of Long Beach, N. Y., who had come to Scranton to discuss with Charles other legal matters. My personal check in the amount of $83.50, in payment of these bills, was tendered to the Hotel Casey.

"I am sure that, after reviewing the facts in the case, which are also borne out by the correspondence, you will concur that I have fulfilled my financial obligations.

"May I wish you every success, and my fondest regards to Juliette, the family and you. Please remember me to Mr. Goldstein.

"Very truly yours,

"Marian R. Ford"

Now he responded, under date of November 19, 1956:

"Dear Marian:

"I have reviewed your letter of October 12, 1956, in connection with the above-captioned matter. I have had an opportunity to discuss the matter with the Executrix of the Estate, Mrs Denise Z. Margiotti.

"It is the considered opinion of both Mrs. Margiotti and myself that the Darcy Case should be considered closed and that the fee and expenses as paid constitute full payment for the services rendered by the late Charles J. Margiotti. We trust that these arrangements will be completely satisfactory to you.

"Our kindest personal regards and very best wishes to you.

"Very truly yours,

"Suto & Schuchert"

Signed "Alexander L. Suto"

Q May I have the checks, please? I want to question you about these letters first.

Do you have the envelopes in which these letters came?

A No sir.

Q Do you have the envelop for either letter?

A No sir.

Q Mr. Suto wrote you a very short letter on October 6,

1956. What was the occasion for you writing him a two page letter, going into all this detail? He didn't inquire about any of the details.

A So he would be familiar with the facts of the case from beginning to end. That is all.

Q He asked you to remit a certain amount of money, did he not?

A If you had read the correspondence, you would not have asked that.

Q Read the correspondence to who?

A To Mr. Margiotti.

Q Is there any correspondence here in addition to that?

A No, because this covers it so comprehensively.

Q You were asked to bring in all letters in regard to the Darcy case. Did Margiotti ever write to you?

A Yes.

Q Do you have those letters?

A No sir, after his death, what was the purpose of keeping his correspondence? .

Q Did you keep it in with this file in order that you could refer back to it?

A It was not necessary, I covered everything in one letter.

Q You destroyed the other correspondence with Mr. Margiotti?

A Yes sir, the only correspondence that I had was really where he would enclose me a copy of a petition or where I would confirm having been in his office and that the arrangements were thus and so.

Q You never had any long personal letters with him, like you did with Mr. Suto here on October 12, 1956?

A But, Mr. Kohn, I thought I had to explain to Mr. Suto from the very beginning.

Q You were not a personal friend of Margiotti's, were you?

A Yes, I suppose. What do you mean by "personal friend"?

Q I mean, you were not the one who recommended him or hired him originally?

A No, I did not.

Q Margaret Gordon testified that she was the one who hired him.

A Not hired.

Q Recommended and called him for you?

A Yes sir.

Q So that you had every reason to keep a file on your correspondence with Mr. Margiotti and know what the facts were as the case progressed?

A Up until the time of his death.

Q You have none of it with you?

A No.

Q And none are in the files in Philadelphia?

A No.

Q In fact, you have nothing except this correspondence at the present time?

A Yes.

Q And all that is set forth herein you felt was in explanation of the letter Mr. Suto sent you?

A Yes, sir.

Q Did I understand you to say, Miss Ford, this correspondence you had with Mr. Margiotti you disposed of or destroyed?

A After his death I did and kept only this—kept only the correspondence that would have to do with the moneys owed or acknowledging payment in full or something of that sort or my checks.

Q When did you destroy that?

A I would say shortly after I received the first letter, after I had written my reply to Mr. Suto which gave all the facts.

Q Wouldn't your letter to Mr. Margotti and his letter to you form the background of the basis of your understanding with Mr. Margiotti?

A Not after they gave me an acknowledgment that the account was considered paid in full.

Q That is when you decided to destroy them?

A Yes, sir.

Q Now this statement that you gave me calls for a total expenditure of $26,424.36.

A Yes, sir.

Q This payment to Joseph Keenan, Esquire, of $1,500, on May 1, 1951, had no connection with Mr. Margiotti, did it?

A No.

Q And the I. F. Huntzinger payment of $7,449.80, what did that represent?

A Printing.

Q Printing of the paper books?

A Yes.

Q Did you pay this direct?

A Yes, to I. F. Huntzinger.

Q Do you have checks for that?

A I have.

Q And did E. J. Charters Associates' payment of $830.54, what did that represent?

A That was an investigating agency which Mr. Margiotti had directed me to engage.

Q And the other expenses of $1,500.52 were expenses for hotel bills?

A That is right.

Q Now where are your checks you paid to Mr. Witkin?

A I never paid Mr. Witkin.

Q How did he become engaged in the matter, for free?

A In the beginning you mean?

Q Yes.

A I wouldn't know, sir, because you will notice my dates here are 1951 to 1956. I did not become actively engaged until the father's health broke down.

Q You made your first payment in 1951?

A That is right.

Q Was Mr. Witkin in the case before that?

A Mr. Darcy had engaged him then. I had nothing to do—

Q Was he in the case as far as you know?

A Yes.

Q And what did you pay Mr. Pannell?

A I haven't paid Mr. Pannell anything. Now I know there have been costs in the case. Mr. Pannell—I mean I have asked him time and time again what I owed him.

Q Just tell me what the facts are.

A Nothing.

Q You didn't pay Mr. Pannell anything?

A No.

Q No expenses? Mr. Pannell is Mr. McCloskey's private attorney, is he?

A I never knew him to be a private attorney.

Q He represents Mr. McCloskey corporately?

A Yes, and I would say personal if he had any personal.

Q That is he is his corporate and his personal attorney. Does he represent Mr. McCloskey both personally and—

A I couldn't answer that. I just know him as a corporation attorney.

Q And Mr. Pannell has also appeared on behalf of Mr. Darcy?

A Yes. sir.

Q Now do you know when he entered the picture in appearing for Mr. Darcy of record?

A Yes, I do.

Q Will you please tell us?

A I will be happy to. April 1, 19—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Can you speak toward the committee, Miss Ford?

THE WITNESS: I am awfully sorry.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I don't know whether these gentlemen can hear you.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I would like to hear, too. I am very, very much interested.

THE WITNESS: April 1, 1951 was that—

SENATOR YOSKO: A little louder, please.

THE WITNESS: April 1, 1951 was that awful, awful ordeal that we went through.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q That was at Scranton you are referring to?

A Yes.

Q And did you engage the services of Mr. Pannell?

A I never engaged the services of Mr. Pannell.

Q Did Mr. Darcy, do you know if he ever engaged the services of Mr. Pannell?

A Mr. Pannell, he came into the office the following day and he said to me—

Q Will you answer my question, please?

A Pardon me, sir.

Q I don't mean to be discourteous, but I would like to have you answer my questions.

A I will try.

Q Do you know who did engage the services of Mr. Pannell?

A No one did or I would have known about it.

Q What do you know about it as to how he happened to get into this case?

A Now this is the story. April 2, Mr. Pannell stopped into my office and he told me that Mr. Margiotti had telephoned him and had asked him to prepare a petition and he said to me—

Q May I interrupt you? Is this 1951?

A This is 1951, April. He asked me if I would stand by that night because he wanted me to type this petition, and I said I would be very happy to. So after five o'clock you know, Mr. Pannell started drafting the opinion or drafting the petition, whatever it was.

Q Excuse me, just keep your voice up.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Take it easy and keep your voice up. That is all right; I understand.

THE WITNESS: So, Mr. Pannell drafted the petition and I typed it. He left my office about three or three-thirty in the morning, and I left the office about six-thirty or seven and that was Mr. Pannell's introduction to the case in so far as I know. From then on—

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Do you know who got Mr. Witkin interested in the case?

A No, I don't, only I have certain correspondence that he had addressed to Mr. Darcy back in 1949.

Q Do you have the correspondence here?

A Yes sir.

Q You saved that?

A Yes, I did. That was not my correspondence.

Q What was Mr. Pannell doing there at the office? I mean, was he working for Mr. McCloskey at that time?

A He stopped at my office.

Q And he stated Margiotti called him and wanted him—

A That is what he told me.

Q To enter as counsel?

A Yes.

Q You heard the testimony that Mr. Pannel was never paid anything by Mr. Margiotti, given by Mr. Suto here today?

A Yes.

Q Do you know who has paid Mr. Pannell?

A Mr. Pannell hasn't been paid anything. I know he has expenses.

Q Do you know if anybody promised to pay him anything?

A No, Mr. Pannell just got into this thing. We have been friends, Mr. Kohn, for years and I just bless the day when I first met him.

Q I am trying to find out facts. He has never been paid?

A No.

Q You don't know if Mr. McCloskey paid him or not?

A Why would Mr. McCloskey pay him?

Q I am asking you whether you know whether he has or has not?

A Certainly not.

Q He has not?

A I know of no reason why.

Q Do you know that Mr. McCloskey has not paid him for services in the Darcy case? Do you know that?

A I wouldn't know that, Mr. Kohn.

Q You don't know that but you know, as far as you know, he hasn't paid him anything, but you wouldn't know whether he might have.

A I know that he hasn't.

Q Did you talk to Mr. McCloskey about it?

A I wouldn't think of talking to Mr. McCloskey about legal fees. I would have no reason to ask him such a question.

Q Did you ask Mr. McCloskey why he stopped into the office of Genevieve Blatt to talk about the case?

A No sir, I did not.

Q Did he ever tell you about that?

A No sir.

Q In fact, you and Mr. McCloskey never discussed the Darcy matter, did you?

A No, I couldn't count the times we have discussed it, Mr. Kohn.

Q Mr. McCloskey was vitally interested in doing whatever he could for Darcy?

A Mr. McCloskey was always interested in doing anything he could to help anyone, Mr. Kohn, and I don't know—

Q Am I to infer by that he wasn't interested in Darcy?

A Well, I should think that because I had one time been his secretary that he would be interested in the case.

Q Now understand, I don't see anything wrong with it.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Then let's all go home.

MR. KOHN: There is nothing wrong if he was interested.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q But Mr. McCloskey was interested and you talked to him many times about the Darcy case?

A I talked to him about it any time he would lend a sympathetic ear.

Q And he said he would do anything he could?

A No.

Q He never said that he would do anything he could for you?

A No sir.

Q Never one time?

A No sir.

Q Whenever you discussed things and might make a suggestion or something like that, did you do this or did the attorney do this?

A No.

Q He never one time made an attempt to help you at anytime?

A No sir.

A No sir.

Q And, therefore, you wouldn't know why he did make a visit?

A No, I really wouldn't, Mr. Kohn.

Q Did you and Mr. Pannell and Mr. McCloskey ever discuss this case together, the three of you?

A I would say offhand, we did.

Q I think I did ask you whether or not Mr. Witkin was paid. Do you know whether Mr. McCloskey paid him anything?

A No, I wouldn't know if Mr. McCloskey would pay him or if he ever engaged his services—in another matter maybe, but not in the Darcy case.

Q In other matters he might have?

A In any other matters, but I can't answer for that.

Q But Mr. Witkin had done legal work for Mr. McCloskey on other matters?

A I wouldn't know. Mr. Witkin—I know that I asked Mr. Witkin if he would let me have his bill for the services he rendered or, at least, for expenses and I couldn't even get a bill from him.

Q Mr. Witkin never rendered a bill to you?

A No.

Q Never asked you for any fees?

A He never has.

Q And I don't recall now who you said got Witkin into this?

A Mr. Darcy, from the correspondence.

Q. And that was Mr. Joseph Darcy?

A The father.

Q That was the father. That isn't the boy that is here.

A No.

Q Did the father ever make any payment to Mr. Witkin?

A Not that I know of, sir.

Q I thought here that Witkin got into it in 1949. Do you know whether Mr. Joseph Darcy, the father, had not retained Mr. McBride and consulted with him about the case?

A Pardon me?

Q Do you know whether Mr. Joseph Darcy, the father of David Darcy, had consulted Mr. McBride and hired him to represent Darcy?

A I believe he had.

Q Did you have anything to do with that?

A No sir.

Q At the time that you and Miss Gordon arranged to talk to Mr. Margiotti, what did you determine Mr. McBride's status was at that time? Had he been discharged as counsel or was he still counsel in the case?

A Well, Mr. Kohn, Miss Gordon and I did not do this together. We were at the Darcy house on another very sad occasion. It was the day that the Pardons Board rendered its decision against the commutation to life. Now I would say that was some time in, oh, probably around May 1950 and the family—we were all in the utmost despair at the time and I have since learned that Miss Gordon, who was with us, left the house and went to the corner drugstore and put through a call to the Margiotti residence in Pittsburgh and talked to Mr. Margiotti for the first time. She told him about this case. He had no knowledge and at that time he assured her that if there was anything at all he could do he would get into it and that there would be no fee.

Q Now would you mind answering my question?

A Well, I am sorry. Would you repeat your question?

Q I asked you what Mr. McBride's status was at the time that you made this contact?

A I can't answer that, sir.

Q In other words, Margaret Gordon, on her own, went out to the corner drugstore and called Margiotti and engaged him on behalf of Darcy?

A Yes.

Q Who was there at the time this took place?

A You mean at the home?

Q Yes.

A The immediate family members and Miss Gordon and myself, and I don't know whether there was anyone else.

Q Did you know Miss Gordon was going out to make this call?

A I did not.

Q When she came back, did she advise you that she had made the call?

A She advised the family.

Q And what was the conversation at that time in regard to the position of Mr. McBride as counsel in the case?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Just a minute I wasn't in it at that time. This is after the Pardons Board had declined David Darcy's application. I wasn't even in its when it was presented.

THE WITNESS: In around May 1950.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q When was it?

A I believe it was around May of 1950. It was after Mr. Witkin had first appeared before the Pardons Board, and this was the day that they had announced—

Q Mr. Witkin was in the case?

A That is right.

Q And what was the discussion in regard to Witkin's position?

A Mr. Kohn, at such a time—I hope you never know such sorrow—you don't discuss such things like that.

Q You mean Margiotti took the case knowing that Witkin was in it, did he?

A Well, as the result of the telephone call, he said he would be in Philadelphia within the next week or ten days and then discuss it at that time. I don't imagine he went into too much detail other than—

Q Did you go to see Mr. Margiotti when he came to town?

A Yes sir.

Q And at that time did you discuss Mr. Witkin's employment as counsel? He was in the case free of charge with Mr. Margiotti?

A No, Mr. Kohn.

Q And nobody told Mr. Margiotti that Witkin was in it?

A No, I didn't.

Q Well who else was with you?

A Miss Gordon.

Q And who else?

A That is all, just the two of us.

Q And nobody told Margiotti that there was counsel of record already in the matter at that time?

A I guess not, Mr. Kohn. I didn't.

Q Isn't it a fact that you and Mr. Pannell discussed all this testimony before you took the stand?

A We might have refreshed ourselves.

Q You went all over these checks?

A No. Went all over these checks? Oh, he has been holding them for me.

Q You went all over this testimony, did you not?

A All over this testimony?

Q Yes.

A No.

Q How much do you earn a year approximately?

A I am on a commission basis.

Q Well let's say between the years 1951 and 1956, how much did you earn?

A Well between—

Q That is in your income tax return reports?

A I would say during the years 1951 to 1956 I had a net income annually of somewhere between $11,000 and $12,000.

Q After expenses or gross?

A After taxes.

Q That is net.

A Yes, I say average net income.

Q And these checks were paid out of what bank?

A Well this is a little difficult. The First National Bank was the bank, and then they merged with the Pennsylvania.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Have you got those letters that I can look at while you are examining this witness?

MR. KOHN: Yes.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Will you just give us the dates and the numbers and the amounts and the banks upon which they were drawn. Now just take your time. Will you do that please?

A You want me to write that down?

Q No just give us the checks verbally by reading them off. Give us the dates and the amounts and the bank upon which it was drawn and to whom it was payable, if you will please.

A All right. The first Check is No. 1886. It is dated May 1, 1951 payable to the order of Charles J. Margiotti in the amount of $1500 drawn on The First National Bank of Philadelphia and signed by M. R. Ford.

The second check was dated December 16, 1952. It is No. 2810, payable to the order of Charles J. Margiotti in the amount of $5000 drawn on the First National Bank of Philadelphia and signed M. R. Ford.

The third check was No. 3217 dated December 21, 1953, payable to the order of Charles J. Margiotti in the amount of $1000 drawn on the First National Bank of Philadelphia and signed M. R. Ford.

The next check is dated March 25, 1954, No. 3337, drawn to the order of Charles J. Margiotti in the amount of $1000 and drawn on the First National Bank of Philadelphia countersigned M. R. Ford.

The next check is No. 3641, dated December 29, 1954, payable to the order of Charles J. Margiotti in the amount of $1000 drawn on the First National Bank of Philadelphia and signed by M. R. Ford.

The next check is dated November 10, 1955, X-354, payable to the order of Charles J. Margiotti in the amount of $2500 and signed M. R. Ford and drawn on the First National Bank of Philadelphia.

Now here, this is after the merger of the two banks. The Pennsylvania merged with the First National, and they gave you any check book.

Q That would be all right.

A The next check is No. 564 dated May 2, 1956. It is now, I guess, the First Pennsylvania Banking and Trust Company, drawn to the order of Charles J. Margiotti in the amount of $2500 and signed M. R. Ford.

The next check is dated July 13, 1956, No. 648 and it is payable to the order of Charles J. Margiotti in the amount of $643.50 and that is in payment of his invoice dated July 9, 1956, signed M. R. Ford and drawn on the First Pennsylvania Banking and Trust Company. That is after the merger.

Q And these all came out of your personal account?

A Yes.

Q Or business?

A Business and personal.

Q You used the checking account for both business and private funds, is that right?

A That is right.

Q During this time did you have to borrow any money to finance this.

A No I did not, Mr. Kohn. Now I did have to make great personal sacrifices. I haven't had a vacation in ten years, and a few things like that which I did willingly.

MR. KOHN: That is all.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Miss Ford, I gathered the impression from your reading of the communications with Mr. Suto that the last application for commutation which was filed was prepared by the late Charles J. Margiotti, is that right?

A He drew the petition and sent it on to me, yes. Now whether that was in its final form or not, I don't recall.

Q And had or was Mr. Margiotti intending to represent Mr. Darcy before the Board of Pardons, or had he made arrangements with Mr. Witkin for that purpose.

A No arrangements had been made. You see Mr. Margiotti's health was in a very precarious state at the time and we were hoping that he would, you know, be in good health and would be able to, but yet the last time I talked with him in Philadelphia he was about to make arrangements to go into the Wills Eye Hospital, and his health was very bad. It was just one of those things that you couldn't say.

Q Well you know how Mr. Witkin got into the representation of the case before the Pardons Board?

A After the death of Mr. Margiotti.

Q That was through Mr. Margiotti's request?

A No, Mr. Margiotti had not requested it. He thought he would argue it before the Pardons Board, but then in the meantime he passed away. It was after his death that it was determined that Mr. Witkin would argue it before the Board of Pardons.

Q And who made that determination?

A I did.

Q You contacted Mr. Witkin?

A Through Mr. Pannell, I discussed it with Mr. Pannell and I asked Mr. Pannell would he ask Mr. Witkin if he would argue it before the Board of Pardons because he had been before the Board of Pardons previously.

Q Now, Miss Ford, just how did Mr. McCloskey's name get into this case? Would you know?

A Well, that's the $64,000 question, Mr. Tompkins. I can't answer it.

Q You do some real estate brokerage business for Mr. McCloskey, as I understand it?

A Yes.

Q Are you in the insurance business also?

A Yes sir.

Q Do you carry any insurance coverage on any of Mr. McCloskey's enterprise.

A No, sir but I wish I did.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q I have one question: these checks are all endorsed by Mr. Margiotti personally, are they not? This is his signature on the back of all these checks?

A Well they have all been deposited in the account.

Q But that is his signature?

A I think so.

Q Well I know it is.

A Well, do you. All right.

Q There are a few of them that are deposited directly.

A This is not, for instance.

Q No, that is not, and this is not either.

MR. KOHN: Mr. Chairman, Miss Ford will furnish us with photostats of these to put in the record Miss Ford will furnish us with photostats to put into the record rather than keeping her checks at this time. They contain the endorsement on the reverse side.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That's satisfactory.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Miss Ford, did you ever contact any Member of the Board of Pardons in connection with this matter?

A No sir.

Q Do you know of anybody who ever did?

A No sir.

Q Do you carry any state insurance.

A No sir, and again—

Q You wish you did?

A Yes.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I have a few questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Mr. Witkin's letter to Governor Duff dated November 14, 1949, indicates that he was retained on Thursday, November 10, 1949. Do you accept that as being a correct statement of fact?

A Well, yes.

Q That is, your own recollection is not in disaccord with that, is it?

A No.

Q It indicates also that the last legal step in this case took place on October 26, 1949, being a decision of the Supreme Court, the United States Supreme Court, refusing to hear an appeal from the decision of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

Now Mr. Witkin got in then and handled the first application to the Board of Pardons?

A Yes sir.

Q I was not in any way connected directly or indirectly with the Darcy case after the attempt to get certiorari from the Supreme Court of the United States, is that correct?

A That I believe is corerct, Mr. McBride.

Q Now I think the correspondence bears Mr. Witkin's relationship to the case and to his charging the fee, and I would like to have this marked for the record so that it can be introduced.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Very well.

Series of five letters attached—produced, marked for identification and received in evidenec Board of Pardons Exhibit No. 37 AJP 4-10-57

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Now these deposit which were made were made over a course of years through your business income, is that correct?

A Through my working years.

Q There was no extraordinarily large deposit at any one time during these years, was there?

A No. But there was an extraordinarily large period of years.

Q I understand. The question was, was there any extraordinarily large deposit?

A No. just routine business.

Q It would run average during these years off and on, once a little higher and then a little lower?

A Yes. We had settlements, you know, which would mean you might have a few good deposits.

Q How many people do you have in your office?

A I have three girls.

Q Do you have any real estate salesmen?

A Not at the moment. I have just finished a development.

Q Do you engage in real estate sales?

A Yes I do.

Q And is your business restricted to the McCloskey interests, or do you represent other interests also?

A That was a very minor part of my income.

Q You represent many other interest?

A I will say this, that there was a residential construction program started at the end of 1954 in which he has a financal interest.

Q Yes.

A In 1955 and 1956, you know. It takes long to build houses and then we started to collect commissions and he did have a financial interest in that corporation, and I had handled the corporation.

Q Are you an incorporator or an individual?

A As an individual operator, and on my door I have "M. R. Ford, Real Estate and Insurance" and "Notary Public."

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Miss Ford did you ever receive one penny of this money from Mr. McCloskey or anyone else directly or indirectly except in the ordinary source of business earnings?

A I have never received one penny of the money that went into these bills from anybody but what I had earned and had been able to set aside and pay, and I had more that I would have paid willingly and I would have made any sacrifice that I was called upon to do.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I believe it. That is all.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Miss Ford, I believe you testified that at least several and maybe numerous occasions Mr. Closkey did discuss the Darcy case with you?

A Yes.

Q During any of these discussions did he ever advise you as to the steps to take or anybody to contact or any program that you should pursue in connection with it?

A No, just general conversation.

Q General conversation?

A Yes.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q May I ask you whether or not you ever appeared before the Board of Pardons during the time of the hearings on any of these applications?

A No sir.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Would you care to tell us just what the nature of your discussions were with Mr. McCloskey concerning the Darcy case.

A The nature over the years well I remeber the first time I told him, you know, about the gruesome details and how shocked we all were and what a tragedy it was.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Will you please keep your voice up.

A I said I remember our first discussion was telling him about this terrible tragedy, you know.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Do you know how long it was after this offense it was that you first discussed it with him? When was it that you first discussed it with him with respect to the details?

A Oh, I don't remember. I would say shortly after it appeared in the newspaper because I remember how I first got word. My nephew telephoned me at the office.

Q Well it was shortly after the affair took place in—

A After it appeared in the newspapers.

Q How many times during the course of years since then would you say you did discuss or have discussions with Mr. McCloskey about this matter?

A Well Mr. McCloskey is a hard man to catch up with to start with, and any time I would bend his ear and he would listen to me—and I was thinking of the case—I would probably say something to him, Mr. Tompkins, to be truthful. And if you would listen to me, I would have told you.

Q I believe you would, Miss Ford. And I wouldn't blame you.

Well, then, it was on quite numerous occasions that the discussion took place with him?

A Over the years, yes.

Q And was the nature of the discussion always the same or did it vary as you discussed it at different times?

A Well, thinking back to the best of my recollection, it was probably the progress of the steps we were taking or what we were going to do that we discussed, you know. I think that it would be along those lines.

I remember—I say I remember but I don't know what I remember. I am sorry. But you know, the general progress of the case.

Any time that I saw him and he had a minute to listen, I would probably say, well, we are doing this or we are doing that or Mr. Margiotti is preparing this petition. You know, it was things along those lines.

Q You kept him informed of the progress of the case?

A I tried.

Q And did Mr. McCloskey, during any of these discussions, ever offer you any aid in the matter?

A Financially?

Q Financially or aid to contact anybody to help you out in the matter?

A Well, Mr. Tompkins, I wouldn't accept financial aid from anybody. If I had needed it to further this case, I would have gone out and borrowed it.

Q Well, didn't Mr. McCloskey ever offer it to you?

A No sir. He knows me.

Q I think you said you worked as his private secretary at one time?

A Yes.

Q When was that?

A Well, that was at the end of 1933, and I resigned as his secretary around the 15th of June, 1938.

Q And you haven't been in his direct employment since that time?

A I was never in his direct employment.

Q You were a secretary while he was the Finance Chairman of the Democratic Committee?

A Yes, but he didn't pay my salary.

Q The Democratic Committee paid your salary, is that right?

A That's right.
Q But you acted as private secretary in that capacity?
A Yes sir.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q During the period of September 20 to September 29, did you have any discussions with Mr. McCloskey with regard to this case in 1956?
A When?
Q Between September 20 and 29 or thereabouts, do you recall having any discussions with Mr. McCloskey about this case?
A I don't recall.
Q Right after it was heard before the Board of Pardons?
A September, I probably have, Mr. Kohn. I don't recall anything specific.
Q And right after September 29 do you recall when you first talked to him about it?
A Right after September 29?
Q Yes, of 1956?
A 1956?
Q Yes?
A I think he was a traveling man at that time and was traveling a great deal.
Q Do you recall right after the matter of commutation came out in the newspapers whether you had any discussions with him?
A No.
Q Do you recall when first after that you talked with him about it?
A No, I don't.
Q He did not call you and congratulate you and tell you that he was glad that it had been commuted?
A No. He probably, you know, during the first conversation, I woudn't be a bit suprised if he didn't say something like that.
MR: KOHN: I have no further questions.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Did Mr. McCloskey ever tell you that he had stopped in to see any Member of the Board of Pardons?
A No sir.
Q He never told you that?
A No sir.
Q Did he ever discuss with you the question of maybe getting political assistance or aid along the way some place?
A In this case?
Q Yes?
A No sir, he did not.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q When did you first find out or when was the first moment that you found out that the commutation was granted?
A Through the Philadelphia Inquirer.
Q Through the Inquirer?
A Yes.
Q You found out from the newspaper. You didn't receive any calls from anybody?
A No, we were calling the newspapers.
Q Who were you calling?
A The newspaper.
Q You were calling the newspaper?
A Yes.
Q What gave you the idea the newspaper would have any information on September 29?
A Well—
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, he was going to die shortly thereafter if something didn't happen.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What made you think that they would have any information exactly on the 29th, which I think was a Saturday?
A That's right. I think the first word that I had was round seven o'clock, and it came from the Philadelphia Inquirer. We called and asked if they had any word.
Q What made you call the paper exactly at that time as to whether they had any word instead of at four o'clock that afternoon?
A I probably called at four o'clock.
Q Do you remember who you talked to at the Inquirer?
A We just dialed the number.
Q You just dialed the number and asked for information?
A Asked for information.
Q When did Mr. Witkin then first contact you to inform you about this?
A About the—
Q About the commutation?
A Well, after I got the word from Philadelphia Inquirer, Mr. Tompkins, I didn't wait for word from anybody. That was cause for celebration, and I made plans to go up and visit him the next day.
Q Do you know if the Board of Pardons sent a wire to any member of the Darcy family that the commutation had been granted?
A Well, sir, my sister has since died, and her husband is presently confined in an institution as a result of this tragedy.
Q I understand so.
A And there wouldn't be any member of the Darcy family to send a wire to.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Miss Ford, let's change the subject a little bit: I did not get a chance to read the record, but I would like to know a little something about the boy. Tell us how old he was and a little something about his background?
A Well, at the time this happened, I belive he was twenty-one or twenty-two. I have thirteen nieces and nephews and it is hard to keep track of their ages.
Q How many children in the family?
A In his particular family, six, but I said I have thirteen nieces and nephews and it is a little difficult to know the ages, but I think of the time that this tragedy happened he was about twenty-one or twenty-two, possibly, and had never been involved in any difficulty prior to this time. He is a boy born a blue baby. He had diphtheria when he was quite small. He had a heart condition and was confined to bed for the best part of a year, and I remember we were so terribly concerned at that time. And as a result he had punctured ear drums.
He tried to get in the Service, in the Navy. His brother had enlisted on his eighteenth birthday, and he wanted to follow in the following year when he was eighteen, and he tried ten times to enlist, and they kept telling him if you get your ears treated and come back, we will take you.

So, he went to the neighborhood doctor, Doctor Ruchland, and he underwent what I understand was quite a painful series of treatments, you know, to try. And I believe there is some sort of treatment where you can close the holes, you know. And of course this Doctor Ruchland said—well, he didn't want to tell him that they wouldn't take him anyway, but later he went to a doctor who was assigned to the U. S. Naval Base in Philadelphia, and that doctor had told him they wouldn't even take him.

He was really—I mean he was so dejected about that. He was insulted, you know what they do to young boys who were not in the Service at the time, and all that sort of thing. And his parents went so far as to go out to the U. S. Armory, I think it is at 33rd and Lancaster in Philadelphia, and talked to the Officer in charge there, and they said that they would sign any waiver, any paper, that the Government would offer to them releasing the U. S. Government of any liability whatsoever if they would take him for limited service.

He was so desperate to get in the Service. He had asked his parents to do that, and they just did everything possible, and they were very, very good parents.

Q How much schooling did he have?

A How much what?

Q Schooling.

A I think he didn't complete his high school. And that again is a story, you see, because of the heart condition. And his mother naturally felt that he would never be able to do any hard work or anything of that sort, and she wanted him to take the commercial course, stenography and typing, commercial subjects so he wouldn't have to work hard, and so on.

Where he went to school I think there were about 200 girls and two boys. So, consequently that is when he started to play hookey, you know, because he didn't want to get mixed up with all these girls.

As a result—although after that he was employed at Temple University as a messengar. He was very well liked, and they wanted him to complete his schooling. He was a clean-looking boy.

He treated me with respect. I never went in the house that he wouldn't say, "Hello Aunt Marian," and so on. We have no idea what happened or what caused this; I don't know. It is just a tragedy that hits that you think cannot happen to your family, that your family is a little different, but I guess it teaches us humility.

Q This was not a matter of him being a bad boy all his life was it?

A No, no.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q You did talk to many other people besides Mr. McCloskey during these years?

A Anyone who would lend me a sympathetic ear. As a matter of fact that awful Sunday night, April of 1951, Mr. Witkin called the apartment. That was shortly after his wife had died, and he knew that we were grieving terribly that night, and he wanted to know if he could come over. There were the members of the family there, and Mr. Witkin came over and he tried to console us and cheer us and things of that sort.

Now, how can you pay a fee for something like that for the kindensses and understanding and friendship that he extended to us when we so sorely needed it? You just can't put a monetary value on that. And the same has been true of all other attorneys connected with his case.

You see, God sends you the cross and then He sends you the ways to work them out.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Miss Ford, did you ever interview the families of Kelly or Hellerman?

A Not personally, but I am told that they tried to interview the Kelly family to try to make some restitution for Reverend Reubinski.

Q Who tried to make some restitution?

A The father, Mr. Darcy.

Q The father was not in a financial position to make any, was he?

A Well, whatever they could have done I would have helped them, Mr. Kohn.

Q Did you ever see them? Did you ever talk to the two families of the two dead men?

A No.

Q Did you send your lawyer or a lawyer to see them?

A No sir, but I do know that the members of the immediate

Q You don't know how badly in want they are or how many children they have?

A No sir, I don't know, Mr. Kohn, really I believe Mr. Kelly was unmarried. I couldn't tell you for sure, so I would rather not say.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Have you remembered the dead men in your prayers, too?

A You should see my prayer book, Mr. McBride.

Q You prayed not only for David, but for the people who were killed?

A Yes, I do.

Q We all do.

A I am sure, and Mr. Margiotti and everyone.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Is there anything further?

MR. KOHN: No sir.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Any witnesses who are here who appeared for the purpose of testifying and who have not yet testified will return to the hearing tomorrow morning at 10:00 a.m.

So far as we know we have completed with Miss Gordon and Miss Ford. If they want to come back tomorrow morning, we will be very happy to have them here.

The hearing is now recessed until 10:00 a.m., tomorrow morning.

(Whereupon, the hearing recessed at 10:02 p.m., to Thursday, April 11, 1957, at 10:00 a.m.)

This is to certify that the proceedings and evidence are contained fully and accurately in the notes taken during the hearing before the Joint Legislative Committee to Conduct an Investigation of the Board of Pardons, and this is a correct transcript of the same.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The appointed hour having arrived, these hearings will resume.

All right, Mr. Kohn.

MR. KOHN: Mr. McCloskey, will you please take the stand, sir?

MATTHEW H. McCLOSKEY, having been duly sworn, testified as follows on

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What is you full name, Mr. McCloskey?

A Matthew H. McCloskey.

Q Where do you reside?

A I live at Indian Rock and Ingeborg Road in Overbrook, Pennsylvania.

Q What business are you in Mr. McCloskey?

A My principal business is builder.

Q You are in the contract business?

A I think all of us are contractors. We all contract for our service. I think we are builders rather than contractors. We place quite a difference in those words.

Q What position do you hold in the Democratic Party nationally?

A I am the Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee.

Q What position do you hold in the Democratic Party of the State?

A I am Chairman of the Democratic State Finance Committee.

Q Mr. McCloskey, do you know Marian Ford?

A Yes.

Q Was she connected with you back in 1934, when you were on the Democratic Finance Committee for the city of Philadelphia.

A I think I was co-leader with Mr. Kelley. We started in 1933 to 1938. I think she came to me in 1935.

Q In what capacity?

A Secretary.

Q Was that in your own business?

A No, for the Democratic City Committee, and she was on their payroll.

Q Has she ever been on your payroll at any time?

A Never.

Q How long was she connected with you in that capacity, sir?

A As I said, I told you, from 1935 to 1938.

Q Do you have your offices in the same building that she has her offices at the present time?

Q Well now, the Democratic—

Q I mean your present location.

A No, I don't have my offices there. My building and any of the offices I have there are for the Democratic State Committee, which is shared by some of the other people who are in the Committee.

Q Is there a connecting door between her office and your office?

A That's right.

Q And she has her name on the front of her office, is that correct?

A That is correct.

Q And Mr. Pannell has an office next door, doesn't he?

A No. Mr. Pannell is on the eighth floor, and we are on the thirteenth floor.

Q I see. Her office is right next door to the Democratic Headquarters in Philadelphia, in the Suburban Building at the present time?

A Suburban Station Building.

Q Why is there a connecting door? Is she still rendering some serve to the Committee?

A No, but she does some business with some of my other companies. As a matter of fact, she uses the anteroom there when she has settlements.

Q Now, were you in Harrisburg on September 29, 1956?

A Well, could you—

Q That was Saturday, September 29, 1956, the day this commutation was signed by the Governor.

A No sir.

Q Was your car in Harrisburg?

A No sir, not to my knowledge.

Q Do you know where you were at that time?

A September 29?

Q That was a Saturday, when the Governor signed this commutation.

A No, I don't recall. I would have to look at my diary. I have an idea that I was in Washington. It was during the campaign, and that was where I spent most of my time.

Q But you would say you were not in Harrisburg?

A Yes, I would say I was not in Harrisburg. That is the best of my knowledge, I believe. In fact, I am sure I wasn't.

Q Did you make any telephone calls to Governor Leader on the 28th or 29th of September?

A Not to my knowledge—well, now, you mean about this case?

Q Did you make any phone calls?

A Not to my knowledge.

Q From either Washington or Philadelphia?

A Not to my knowledge.

Q When did you speak to him before September 29, 1956, if you recall?

A I don't have any notion.

Q You weren't in York that day?

A No sir.

Q You weren't at the farm of Senator Leader in York that day?

A Never been there.

Q Never?

A Never.

Q Did you have any representative here in the Governor's office on that day?

A Not on that day or any other day; we never have a representative up here.

Q I mean in connection with finding out whether the Darcy commutation had been granted?

A Nobody.

Q Did you send anybody to Indiantown Gap?

A No sir.

Q You yourself or anybody else?

A No sir.

Q How did you become interested in the Darcy case?

A Because of my association with Miss Ford.

Q And besides Miss Blatt, you gave that to other members of the Board, too, did you not, copies of the brief which you gave her?

A It was an opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Q You gave Senator Furman one, too, didn't you?

A I gave Furman and Finnegan and the Attorney General each one.

Q And you visited them each sparately, did you not?

A That's right.

Q And that was on the same day?

A What day?

Q The day that you gave them to Miss Blatt?

A Oh, yes.

Q Do you recall a certain political gathering at which Miss Blatt and Mr. Furman and members of the Pardons Board were there and you rose and made a public statement in which you stated what you felt with regard to the Darcy case? Is that right?

A No sir.

Q Do you deny that you made such a statement?

A No sir.

Q You just don't recall?

A I just don't recall. If you could refresh my recollection, I might be able to tell you.

Q Besides this particular occasion when you spoke to Miss Blatt, Mr. Finnegan, and Mr. Furman and gave them this brief, were there other times that you spoke to the Board of Pardons in connection with the Darcy case?

A No sir.

Q That was the only time that you can recall?

A Yes sir.

Q But you might have made public statements in their presence at other times in discussing it?

A I don't think so; but, of course, it is a possibility.

Q You were very interested in it, were you not?

A That's right. There wasn't any secret about it. I think the Inquirer and the Bulletin saw to it that everybody knew about my interest.

Q Do you have any interest in Darcy, or was your interest in Miss Ford?

A My interest primarily came through my association with Miss Ford. I saw the grief that had stricken the household. I knew the father. I didn't know this boy. And when I found out the circumstances of what had gone on, I felt that an injustice had been done and something should be done if possible to rectify it.

Q Your knowledge, of course, came from Miss Ford exclusively, did it not, in regard to what had been done and what happened?

A Well, from her and her father. I talked to Judge Bok about it once, and he felt the same way about it.

Q When was this that you spoke to Judge Bok about it?

A In the very beginning, when I first took an interest, after the trial.

Q Do you know whether he then wrote a letter to the Board of Pardons?

A He told me he was going to write such a letter.

Q That was after you talked to him?

A I don't know whether it was after or whether he had already written such a letter.

Q Did he tell you he had written such a letter?

A Yes. He said he either had written or was going to write.

Q Did you know that he had written a letter a year later, too?

A Only from what I have seen in the papers. I have never talked to him since.

Q Now, Mr. Pannell represents your enterprises, is that correct?

A He was one of our legal staff.

Q He has been with you since—

A My association goes back to, that is, with Mr. Pannell, to about 1926 or '27, some place around there. He was an attorney for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers down at Sixth and Maclay, and we built that building for them and he was their attorney. That is how I got acquainted with him.

Q Does he represent you on your personal legal matters?

A I never have any personal legal matters.

Q Did you ever draw a will?

A Yes, but he didn't do it.

Q So, he only represents you in business matters?

A That's right—oh, I don't know that if I had a personal matter I wouldn't have him consult me, but it just hasn't arisen.

Q I see. Did you interest Mr. Pannell in becoming associated with this case?

A My recollections of it is that Margiotti, knowing of Pannell's association with me called Pannell in to do some legal work for him, I think, in the very beginning. And he asked me what was my thought in the matter and I, of course, encouraged him to go ahead and do whatever he could in connection with it.

Q Did you have anything to do with the connection of Morton Witkin as counsel in this matter?

A I talked to Mort Witkin in the very beginning of this case and told him that I thought I would like to have him see what he could do; and he said he would take it on; and we sent Mr. Darcy over to him. And Mr. Darcy made the arrangements with him.

Q Did you have anything to do with the hiring of Webster Achey of Bucks County in the trial of this case?

A No, I never had anything to do with it until after the conviction. I hadn't done anything.

Q However, Miss Ford did talk to you about it at the time it happened?

A I knew about it the day it had happened.

Q That isn't my question. I am asking you whether or not Miss Ford talked to you about it at the time it happened, right after it broke in the newspapers. Did she consult with you?

A Oh, yes, yes.

Q At that time did you make any effort to obtain counsel for Darcy?

A No.

Q So you didn't become interested in it, in the legal proceedings, until after the conviction, is that correct?

A That's correct.

Q Did you have anything to do with the obtaining of Thomas McBride to represent Darcy before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania?

A No sir.

Q Did Mr. Witkin do work for your business enterprises?

A Well, he has a suit against us now. That is the only time we have ever had any legal entanglements with him. No, he has never done any business with us.

Q Have you drawn any checks to the payment of Mort Witkin?

A Not to Morton Witkin; and I would just like to make a categorical denial that at any time to anybody either directly or indirectly have I laid out any money in connection with this trial, unless you want to get into real knick-knacks, whether I paid my carfare to come to Harrisburg or some expense account; but never to anybody.

Q That includes Mr. Pannell?

A That includes Mr. Pannell.

Q As to knick-knacks, do you mean that your car was used by Mr. Pannell to go to Rockview several times?

A Could be; could be; yes.

Q Do you know who the driver of that car was?

A Danny McNeill.

Q At that time I think the Warden was Cavel, was he not?

A I don't know. I never was there.

Q Would you tell us where you obtained the copies of the briefs which you gave to Mr. Finnegan, Mr. Furman, and Miss Blatt, and the Attorney General, Mr. McCloskey?

A I got them from Judge Pannell.

Q And it was your purpose when you came here to give each one a copy of that brief?

A That's right.

Q I don't think that was a brief—that was a decision of the Circuit Court?

A That was an opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Q It was a four-three decision?

A That is correct.

Q Why did Mr. Pannell tell you to give that to each member of the Committee?

There was no case pending before the Board of Pardons at that time?

A Mr. Pannell didn't tell me. This was my idea.

Q There was no case pending before the Board of Pardons in the Darcy matter at that time, was there?

A That is correct.

Q What was your purpose in giving to each member of the Board of Pardons a copy of that?

A Of course, because of my interest in this case, I felt that there wasn't any way that anybody was ever going to know what that opinion had unless they read it.

Q What was wrong or why didn't Mr. Witkin, Mr. Pannell, or Mr. Margiotti afford the Board of Pardons this decision?

A When I decide to do something, I don't have to ask somebody why they don't do it; I just do it myself. That is how we got things done in many instances.

Q Nevertheless, you had not been counsel of record in this case.

A I was a citizen of the United States. I felt I had the legal right to go in and talk to them. I don't know that there is any law against it. I just took the bull by the horns and handed it to them and asked them if they would read it.

Q However, you never attended any of the hearings of the Board of Pardons or any of the legal proceedings that had taken place prior to this time, had you?

A No sir, I never talked about it to the Board of Pardons.

Q But you did talk to each one separately?

A I did talk to each one separately, and I asked them to read that brief; and that was in June or July of 1955.

Q May I ask you whether or not, when you distributed these briefs to each member of the Board of Pardons, you gave the Governor a copy thereof?

A No sir, at no time did I ever discuss this matter with the Governor until after he had signed the commutation.

Q And what was the reason for that discussion?

A I just met him and told him that I understand this had gone through and I told him that I was delighted, and I reminded him of the fact that I purposely had never talked to him about it because I didn't want him to think that I was trying to influence him in any way.

Q Would you mind telling us what the Governor said?

A The Governor said that he felt that the decision of the Board of Pardons was a very fair one and that he affixed his signature as evidence of the fact that he approved of it.

Q Did he tell you where and when he affixed his signature?

A No sir, he did not; nor did I ask him.

Q Do you recall how much time you spent with Miss Blatt on your visit to her office, approximately how long?

A I never spend much time, a matter of minutes.

Q How long previous to that had you visited her at her office?

A Well, every time I come to Harrisburg I go there. Now—and it is not too frequently—

Q How long did you spend with Mr. Finnegan?

A About the same time. I come up here and I usually have a list of things that I would like to talk about with the various departments, and I walk in, state my business, and get out. I usually don't have much time as the law allows. I have to get home for dinner every night or Mom raises the dickens.

Q Now, Mr. McCloskey, did you ever see to it that Mr. Harner got a copy of that brief?

A I never talked to Mr. Harner about it.

Q You didn't see that he got a copy of it—I mean the decision?

A Yes. Never talked to Mr. Harner about it.

Q Had you ever had any conference with Mr. Margiotti in Philadelphia at your office in connection with this case?

A No, not in my office. I did talk to him one day—

Q At the hotel?

A At the Bellevue-Stratford; I met him one time there.

Q Will you tell me whether or not you ever advanced Marian Ford any money on account of a loan during the last five years?

A When I told you that I didn't advance any money to anybody, I meant to include her. At no time did I ever lend her any money; I never advanced her any money; only paid her when she did her work. When she would get her settlements, she would take out of the settlements what was coming to her, and we would get a check for the balance.

Q What kind of property was she handling for you?

A We built about 800 homes in Philadelphia that we called Academy Gardens, and we built about 300 more homes in the suburbs, which we called White Marsh Village in Montgomery County. I think Mr. Greenfield's office handled it first; and then they turned it over to a firm by the name of Pace; and they weren't going very good, and then finally we turned it over to Marian, and she really did a good job on it.

Q In the 1954 campaign in which Lieutenant Governor Furman, Mr. Finnegan, and Miss Blatt, and the Attorney General were active, did you come into active contact with them?

A Very rarely.

Q Were you the treasurer who raised a half million dollars—

A I was Chairman of the Finance Committee.

Q There was an article in a newspaper stating that you raised over a half million dollars yourself in that campaign.

A When you say "yourself," I mean I was the Chairman of it, and you know, I am sure—

Q You are saying I know?

A Yes, all of you know that I don't do it myself. You have to have help. I was just the managing director.

I did a good job, too good a job. That is why I got the job with the National Committee. I wish I hadn't done it now.

MR. KOHN: I have no further questions at this time.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Mr. McCloskey, as a citizen of the United States, in your opinion do you have a right to express your point of view in any matter of public interest?

A Well, whether I have the right or not, I have done it so very often and never was challenged for it that I have continued to do it, and I am fearful that being that I am getting to the stage of life at the age that I am now, I don't think I am going to stop.

Q Mr. McCloskey, as a citizen, do you think you have a right to employ a lawyer or lawyers in any matter in which you have an interest that involves government or anything else?

A I think so.

Q Did you do anything that might be deemed improper in connection with the Darcy case?

A No sir, in my estimation.

Q And when you come to the Capitol and you visit Miss Blatt or Mr. Finnegan, is it in connection with political matters, or was it always about this Darcy case?

A I don't think I—I know I never talked to them about the Darcy case, but that one time; and when I come to Harrisburg, I come on Democratic State Committee business.

SENATOR YOSKO: That is all.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. McCloskey, last evening Miss Ford stated that she had discussed this matter quite frequently with you; and I asked her a question as to whether or not you ever advised or directed her in any of her strategy or what she should do or whom she should meet, contacts and so forth. She said that she didn't recall that you ever did. Do you recall that you ever advised her or such like that?

A That is a pretty broad question. I don't know specifically what you are talking about. For instance, I saw her before she came up here on Tuesday, and she was terribly upset about coming up. She thought it was going to be—

Q Did you ever make any suggestions?

A I tried to comfort her and told her to tell the truth and not worry.

Q Did you ever tell her what attorney she ought to get in touch with?

A No, I never did.

Q Or what proceedings she ought to take?

A No sir.

Q Or what she ought to do in connection with it?

A No sir. I thought that they were purely legal matters, and she had competent attorneys, and she should follow their advice. I may have given her that much advice.

Q I believe you said you paid for your carfare and things when you came to Harrisburg here—

A Well, I say I did. Actually, I have a pass on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and when I come up here by the railroad, I don't have to pay.

Q Do you know how many times your car came up to Harrisburg with Mr. Pannell or Mr. Witkin in this case?

A I don't think Mr. Witkin ever rode in my car; and I don't know how many times Pannell, I don't think he came too often.

Q And you say that Mr. Daniel McNeill was working for you at that time?

A What time?

Q Well, when you took Mr. Pannell around.

A Oh, yes.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right.

CROSS EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q The copy of the opinion which you handed to the various members was, as I understand it, about a year and three months before the case was ever argued before the Board of Pardons?

A That is correct.

Q And it contained both what is known as the majority opinion and the minority opinion?

A That is correct.

Q Both sides of the case?

A That is correct.

Q Did you ever attempt to use any political pressure or persuasion upon anybody in connection with the Darcy case?

A Well, the four members of that Board, as it was then constituted when I came up there, and I think you and I know when you take an oath, it is a call upon God to witness the truth of which you speak. Now these people have all taken an oath to perform their duties up here. I happen to know them personally. I don't think any of them for anybody would violate that oath; and therefore, of course, I would be the last one to ask anybody to violate it. I don't violate them myself and I don't ask anybody else to violate them?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is all.

MR. KOHN: That is all.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That is all, Mr. McCloskey. Thank you very much.

MR. KOHN: I will call Mr. Pannell.

J. DRESS PANNELL, being duly sworn, testified as follows on

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Your name is J. Dress Pannell?

A It is.

Q You are a local boy?

A Yes.

Q You are a member of the Dauphin County Bar and have been for many years?

A Yes sir.

Q How long?

A Since 1916.

A And are you a Judge of this County?

A I was in 1937.

Q How long have you been connected with the business association of Mr. McCloskey?

A I have known Mr. McCloskey for approximately thirty years, and since 1940 I have had contacts with him in a personal way.

Q I think for many years you had your office in the Brotherhood Building in Harrisburg, did you not?

A Yes.

Q At the present time, however, your office is located in Philadelphia?

A In the Suburban Station Building.

Q Is that the same building that Marian Ford has her office?

A It is.

Q You are next to her, are you, or are you on another floor?

A My office is on the eighth floor and hers was on the thirteenth

Q Do you represent her in any business matters?

A Well, frequently she asks for advice and suggestions about personal matters because our contacts were more or less frequent.

Q How long have you been associated with the David Darcy case?

A Since April 1, 1951.

Q And do you know if Mr. McBride was in the case at that time?

A I have no knowledge of who counsel were or anything in connection with the trial or the applications to the Board of Pardons prior to that date.

Q When were you first retained to represent David Darcy and how did that come about?

A Well, when you speak of being retained, I would, of course, say that contemplates a conclusion. What I would like to tell you is how I happened to be interested.

Q All right.

A When I refer to the first day of April, 1951, I was in my office here in Harrisburg in the afternoon. It was Sunday afternoon, and Charlie Margiotti called me from Pittsburgh, and the execution of the Darcy matter was to take place, as I recall, on Sunday at midnight. And he said that an application had been made to the Governor for a reprieve, and whether I would be in my office that evening to receive the notice if there was any extention of time so that there could be presented to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania the following day a petition in connection with the Darcy case for a certiorari and reargument.

I told him that I would arrange to be in the office in the evening. And I was there, and it must have been about half past eleven when the Governor's office called me and advised me that there had been an extension, if I recall correctly, to midnight of April 3, or the beginning of April 4th of 1951.

After I received that information, I called Mr. Margiotti in Pittsburgh and he asked me if I would be in Philadelphia the next morning to file the petition with the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

I went to Philadelphia in the morning and I filed the petition, which he prepared and had mailed to Philadelphia, with the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. That was on Monday.

Q Let me interrupt you there. What made Mr. Margiottti think that you might be interested in this case? Was he doing work for Mr. McCloskey?

A Well, of course, I had been a Deputy Attorney General under Charles Margiotti back in the Earle administration, and, of course, at that time and from 1937 on, he knew that Mr. McCloskey and I were friends.

Q Did you ever do any work for Mr. Margiotti previous to that time?

A Previously I did no work for him. You mean professional work?

Q Yes.

A None other than a deputy in the assignments that were made from time to time when I was a deputy.

Q I mean between the time that you were a deputy and the particular time you had no business connections with him?

A No.

Q And you would not know why he singled you out to help him on this particular case?

A No, I wouldn't know why he would single me out except that he had known me.

Q Margiotti had many contacts in the city, including some deputies who had been connected with his firm. did he not?

A Absolutely.

Q And what arrangements were there at that time between you and Margiotti in regard to the fee that might be involved for those services?

A There was no conversation about fees or anything else. He did not say why he called me or anything. He just wanted to know whether I would be available in the evening, and he told me what he expected, and whether I would get the message?

Q Up until that time you were not interested on behalf of Marian Ford, but you became interested through Charles Margiotti?

A I knew very little about the Darcy case execpt generally, and Miss Ford's interest and her connection, but the first suggestion of any work in connection with it professionally was at the request of Mr. Margiotti.

Q And how do you explain the fact that there was no conversation in regard to the legal fees and expenses which might be involved in your services and the transportation to Philadelphia and the other legal expenses incident to the filing of such briefs?

A Well, what he had in mind was that I should get a telephone message and convey it to him and be in Philadelphia the next day. At that time I went to Philadelphia frequently. It did not seem to me that that would be necessary whether he asked it or whether you asked or whether some other person under the circumstances just delivering a petition, particularly when I frequently made the trips.

Q Then you did stay in the case as counsel from that point until the commutation was granted?

A I may say to you that after I filed the petition I called Mr. Margiotti in Pittsburgh and told him it had been filed, and then he asked me whether I would prepare the petition for a writ of habeas corpus which was to be filed in the United States District Court. He said he did not have time to do it and he did not know how quickly the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania would dispose of the petition which I had filed that day.

So I prepared in the afternoon and evening such petition, and it is a petition which was finally filed in the United States District Court. And Miss Ford typed it; that is, it was typed in her office.

Q Had you in your previous practice ever prepared a petition in a criminal matter before?

A Well, in criminal matters I would doubt very much if I had any previous experience and it was very unfortunate. I realized at the time when I was preparing petitions under those circumstances without the benefit of research and available information, a petition of that kind, and particularly realizing that whatever had to be done had to be done immediately or that it wasn't done at all. And I had the benefit of some petitions which I used in drawing up the one which was later filed.

Q Did Mr. Margiotti explain to you why it was with his large legal staff that he was putting this last minute job on you for the second time?

A No, he didn't except that he did not have time to do it. And of course, at that time he did not know—no person knew when the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania would dispose of the petition.

Q The petition before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court was pending, and no decision had been rendered?

A That was on Monday and the next morning, fortunately the preparation—regardless of how adequate or precise it was—fortunately it was prepared and could be signed by counsel the next morning, because at ten o'clock I was advised by the prothonotary of the Supreme Court that the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania had refused the petition which meant that this boy was scheduled for execution at midnight.

Q Now, how many cases have you had before the Board of Pardons in the last twenty years outside of the Darcy case?

A Comparatively few.

Q Have you had any in the last ten years, Mr. Pannell?

A I would say within the last ten years, no.

Q And who prepared the briefs for the hearing in 1956?

A You mean for the Board of Pardons?

Q Yes.

A The rough draft was prepared in Mr. Margiotti's office and was forwarded to me, and I went over it and then consulted with Mr. Margiotti about certain suggested changes in it, and those changes that I made were forwarded to the printer in Camden to have the brief printed.

Q Who made the trips to the pentitentiary for the signature of Darcy on the habeas corpus petitions and the petitions of the Board of Pardons and the Supreme Court of the United States, do you know?

A Well, my recollection is on the application to the Board of Pardons, I gave that to Miss Ford. It was sent up, I think, by Joe Darcy.

Q Who?

A Joe Darcy.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q The father or the son?

A It was the son. Regarding the petition to the District Court, my recollection is that Mr. Witkin and I signed that.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Were you and Mr. Witkin up to Rockview together?

A No, I am talking about the application to the United States District Court.

Q Didn't Darcy have to sign the affidavit?

A He did not sign that. The affidavit was made, as I recall, by Mr. Witkin and myself.

Q How many times did you visit Darcy personally?

A The young man?

Q Yes.

A I never visited him—you mean at Rockview?

Q Yes.

A The first time I saw young Darcy was at Scranton at the hearing before Judge Murphy and that's the first time that I saw him. I never knew him.

Q You appeared in Scranton in the Middle District Court hearing?

A I went along with Mr. Margiotti at his request.

Q And you went along to the Circuit Court of Appeals hearing?

A May I say that that hearing of April 5, which was scheduled under the Order of the United States District Court, I attended that hearing which lasted one day. After that I had nothing to do with the case until we went to the hearings in Scranton.

All of the papers in connection with the matter after the first Scranton hearing were prepared by Mr. Margiotti. As a matter of fact, they were printed by him. I was not conferred with and had nothing to do with them.

My next connection, as I recall it, was at the time of the hearings, the formal hearings, after the disposition of the case by the United States Court of Appeals. I accompanied Mr. Margiotti upon the occasion of the argument, at least one argument, before the United States Court of Appeals. The papers and briefs and everything were prepared in his office without any consultation.

Q Where did the argument take place before the Circuit Court of Appeals?

A In Philadelphia.

Q What about the hearing at which the Circuit Court of Appeals remanded the case to the District Court for further hearing? Did you attend those hearings?

A There was one argument that I attended. The first argument that was made by Mr. Margiotti I did not attend. I think it was the re-argument before the full Court that I attended.

Q Did you attend the argument before the Supreme Court of the United States?

A I did.

Q Now during all this time what arrangements were made by you and Mr. Margiotti in regard to your expenses in connection with your daily attendance at these hearings and arguments?

A No arrangements and no conversation in regard to them were had with Mr. Margiotti.

Q Margiotti took it for granted that you were doing this for free?

A Well, he certainly did not discuss it with me. He did not volunteer that you are here and what do I owe or anything of that kind.

Q You never asked him for any fee?

A I did not ask him. I did not discuss it. I had no arrangements with him whatever.

Q You had no hotel expenses?

A Yes, I had hotel expenses.

Q Did you pay those yourself?

A Yes.

Q You never asked Mr. Margiotti to reimburse you?

A No.

Q And—

A I never asked Mr. Margiotti for any reimbursement or any money in any way, shape or form.

Q And were you ever paid anything by Mr. Margiotti?

A Never.

Q Were you ever paid anything by Miss Ford?

A No.

Q Were you ever paid anything by Mr. McCloskey?

A Never paid anything by Mr. McCloskey.

Q Or by anyone in regard to this case?

A I have not been paid by anyone.

Q So that you spent some of your own funds in connection with this case, quite a substantial amount, for traveling expenses, hotel expenses, traveling to Washington, Scranton and different places, is that correct?

A That's right.

Q And at no time did you discuss who was going to pay you or why you were interested in this case?

A No. After I got into it and learned particularly of the facts and circumstances incident to the trial which appealed to me, if there was any help to be given, I was glad to render it.

I recognized that Miss Ford had a heavy expense and what I was doing up until the time that I argued the question of the certificate of probable cause before the Judge, Judge Kalodner, I had expended very little time and very little effort; but from that time on I did take a more intimate part in arranging for the printing of this brief and the record and things of that kind because it could not be done in Pittsburgh.

Q Did you spend any sums of your own money for the filing of the appeals or certificates for argument?

A I think that I expended some filing fees.

Q And receipts were issued in your name, were they not?

A Yes, I would say that they were.

Q And at no time did Mr. Margiotti, during the time that you were rendering this service at his request, disclose to you that he was receiving approximately $15,000 for his services?

A He never discussed fees. I never knew of any arrangements. If there was any arrangement of anything that he had with Miss Ford—although I did understand from conversations generally that he was being compensated by her.

Q And subsequent to Mr. Margiotti's requesting that you get into this case and the services you rendered, did he ever send you any other legal work for which you were paid?

A No.

Q You never got any other case out of it?

A No, no reference at all.

Q As I understand the gist of your testimony, it is that you got into this case at the request of Mr. Margiotti and continued at his request to perform services—

A I would say that that was my initial interest in it. That is how I started, but of course, I knew Miss Ford and had known her for years and just like any other individual who, under such circumstances, may be in need of help, that if I could be of any assistance, such as preparing that petition, as you have pointed out, one in which I fully realize my limitations under the circumstances and so on, it was a terrific responsibility to have that pressed upon you knowing that if you made a mistake, why, you could not correct it, because this Board would be gone. And I was glad to do it because she had no personnel to do it, and Mr. Margiotti was not available, and his office could not do it.

MR. KOHN: That's all the questions I have. Thank you.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Did you ever talk to any member of the Board of Pardons about the Darcy case?

A I have never talked to any member of the Board of Pardons about the Darcy case at any time or in any way, shape or form. My connection and limitation was incident to the preparation of the brief and the filing of the brief with the Secretary of the Board of Pardons.

SENATOR YOSKO: Thank you.

CROSS EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Did you exercise any political influence upon anybody, or did you have any knowledge of the attempted exercise or actual exercise of political influence by anybody upon anybody connected with the Darcy case?

A As far as my personal knowledge is concerned, I have no knowledge of any influence in any way, shape or form being used in connection with this case.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That's all I have.

MR. KOHN: Thank you very much.

(Witness excused).

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: May I talk with the Committee for a few moments?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right. We will take a five minute recess.

(Short recess).

MORTON WITKIN, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows on

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What is your name, please?

A Morton Witkin.

Q And what is your profession?

A Attorney-at-law.

Q For how long have you been a member of the Philadelphia Bar?

A Quite long; I would say thirty-eight years, thirty-nine.

Q And have you ever been connected with the Legislature?

A I was a member of the Legislature.

Q What branch and how long?

A I was a Member of the House from 1925 inclusive, continuously until 1936 at the special Session, and I resigned in 1936. I was a Member from the Eighth Legislative District in Philadelphia, and I guess it is superfluous to say I was a Republican Member.

Q And when did you first become connected with the David Darcy case?

A To the best of my recollection, it was about November 10, 1949. I use that date, Mr. Kohn because of my records. From my personal recollection, I would not know the exact date.

Q November 10, 1949?

A Yes.

Q Do you know when that case was tried in Bucks County?

A Only from the history of the case. It was tried in June of 1948, three days after the Zietz and Foster cases, and that was on the 7th of June, I think it wound up, and the Darcy case went on the Monday following the Friday. That might not be right, but it is my recollection.

Q Do you know if Mr. McBride was counsel on that case?

A I do not.

Q Was he counsel of record before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania at that time?

A I would say I heard of that, but I didn't know it, surprisingly, but I did not know it.

Q Do you know when that case was argued—the Darcy case—on appeal from Bucks County?

A Exactly when? No, but it was argued some time—I have the records here.

Q It was after you got into the case, right?

A Oh, no; it was before. Mr. McBride had apparently argued it and a writ of habeas corpus had been filed when I got into it. The Supreme Court had already decided the case because I got into it for the purpose of filing an application for commutation before the Pardons Board, and I could not have gotten into it—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The opinion of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania is dated May 26, 1949. Mr. Witkin says he got in on November 10, 1949.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Who contacted you?

A Mr. McCloskey was one of those who contacted me.

Q And Miss Ford testified, I think, that you were contacted by the father of David Darcy?

A When I said Mr. McCloskey contacted me—Mr. McCloskey asked me whether I would get into the case for Joseph Darcy.

Q For Joseph Darcy?

A The man who, in my parlance, retained me, got me to take the case, was the father of the boy, Joseph Darcy, a tipstaff in No. 6 Court. I had known him after a fashion, but after I had spoken to Mr. McCloskey, Mr. Darcy came in to see me and asked me to take the case, and I did. And Mr. McCloskey had asked me to get into it before.

Q Now do you know when Mr. Margiotti got into the case?

A Mr. Margiotti got into the case after the petition for commutation, the application for commutation. I had argued it and had been refused. I would say that was the 26th of May, 1959, and Mr. Margiotti got into the case, in my opinion, in my recollection, on June 16, 1950. On June 19, 1950 I wrote a letter to the Pardons Board, joining in the application Charles Margiotti had made to the Pardons Board for a re-hearing of the application that had been refused by the Pardons Board on May 26, 1950.

Q Did Mr. Margiotti contact you, or did you contact Mr. Margiotti in connection with this case?

A You are asking me—oh, I remember now; Mr. Margiotti phoned and asked me whether I had any objections to his coming into the case, and I told him I certainly had none, and I was glad to have him come into the case. That was a day or two or three before the 16th of June, 1950, and then he sent me a copy of a letter and the application that he had filed with the Pardons Board for a re-hearing in the commutation case.

Q Then did you continue on with the case up until the time a new commutation was granted as counsel for David Darcy?

A Well, if you ask me whether I did actually, I would have to say my answer is no. If you asked me whether I did of record and of counsel, my answer is yes, but let me explain that more clearly. From the time that Mr. Margiotti argued the case before the Board of Pardons, which I believe was in March, 1951, from that point on when that application was refused, I had very little, if anything to do with the case until Mr. Margiotti died. I remember attending one argument in Philadelphia when Mr. Margiotti argued the case down in the Federal Court. Whether it was an argument before the District Court or the Appellate Court, I couldn't swear, but I did not prepare any of the papers, I prepared none of the briefs, I had nothing to do with the arguments, and I would say Mr. Margiotti graciously kept my name on as of counsel. I am not apologizing for being on. I would have been glad to have done the work and participated in it, and I am not saying that I didn't do it because I am happy that I didn't do it. I am sorry that I didn't participate, but I would say that up until his death, from March of 1951, or perhaps April, I had very little, if anything, to do with it.

Q This hearing that you attended before the Federal Court—at that time there was a meeting between you and Mr. McCloskey and Mr. Margiotti at the Bellevue-Stratford in connection with the case?

A Say that again.

Q At the time that this case was heard in Philadelphia when you say you attended the hearing with Mr. Margiotti before the Federal Court in Philadelphia, didn't you and Mr. Margiotti and Mr. McCloskey have a meeting in the Bellevue-Stratford the night before?

A Absolutely not, to my recollection; definitely not. I recall no such meeting. My answer is definitely no.

Q Then—

A I don't recall ever having dinner with Mr. Margiotti. I may have, but I never had dinner, to my recollection, with Mr. Margiotti and Mr. McCloskey.

Q After Mr. McCloskey contacted you about getting into this case, did he ever talk to you subsequently about the case again?

A When you say "subsequently," do you mean before or after this investigation started?

Q I haven't come to that yet. I am talking about after Joseph Darcy came in to see you; did Mr. McCloskey again contact you and talk with you?

A He did not.

Q Did you ever talk with him from that time up to the time of the commutation?

A You mean during the period prior to the arguments on September 20, 1956?

Q Yes.

A I did not.

Q Did you—

A As a matter of fact, I had called Mr. McCloskey prior to that time on some other personal matter and he never called me back, and that was prior to the argument and I had tried to reach him. Whether if I had reached him he would have said anything, I don't know, but he didn't because I didn't get him.

Q Did you ever do any work for Mr. McCloskey previous to the time he contacted you to take on the Darcy case?

A No, but I had dealings with Mr. McCloskey when I was in the Legislature, Mr. Kohn. I knew Mr. McCloskey very, very well, and had great admiration for him. He was the representative of the Cardinal in Philadelphia and was interested in legislation affecting the Catholic Church, and as a Member of the House—if I may be so immodest—at some of those stages I was the leader of the Minority and Majority Parties, depending on the whims and caprices of the electors, Mr. McCloskey and

I had quite a number of matters only dealing with legislation concerning the Catholic Church.

Q And subsequent to this commutation, did you talk to Mr. McCloskey about the matter?

A Yes, I talked to him about the matter, I would say facetiously; nothing of any consequence.

Q Did you receive a call from Harrisburg on September 29, advising you that the Governor had signed the commutation?

A I do not recall receiving the call. I recall being in my apartment—my apartment that I use in addition to my home—trying to find out what happened, and I recall getting the information by going to the newspapers. I got the first information that Darcy had been commuted from the newspapers. Now if you ask me whether I got a telephone call, I would have to say to you that, to the best of my recollection, I did not receive a telephone call. I received a letter from the Pardons Board a day or two later—I have it in my file—from Mr. Hean, telling me. He said that I probably had already read in the newspapers that commutation had been granted. But I have no recollection of getting any telephone call from anyone.

Q Now when Mr. McCloskey asked you to get into the Darcy case, you didn't know that Mr. McBride was already in the case?

A No, at that time I did not. Now when I answer that, "No, I did not," I may have known and forgotten, but it never occurred to me because, frankly, had I known Mr. McBride was on the case before, I would not have agreed with Joseph Darcy to accept the case. I would have called Mr. McBride and asked him if it was O.K. to go into it. I have never taken a case in my life that another lawyer was on without first asking the other lawyer if he was satisfied to do it. So it must be that after the time I didn't call Mr. McBride; I have no recollection. But I also concede that shortly thereafter, in reviewing the records, I soon found out that Mr. McBride had been counsel—in not a few days; it may have been a week or two.

Q When Mr. McCloskey contacted you, did he explain to you why he called you to take on the Darcy case?

A I just don't know what you mean by that question. You mean why he was coming in the Darcy case—not why I was coming in?

Q What I am trying to say—perhaps I didn't make it clear—is you had not had any business from him previous to that time. Now did he say anything to you why he picked you out particularly in this matter of Darcy?

A Mr. Kohn, you asked me a question that forces me to make an answer. I want to be very frank thatI prefer not to make that answer because I know it will involve a name that would be improperly involved. However, if you persist in your question, I will answer it truthfully. If you withdraw the question, I won't.

Q We want the facts.

A Yes, he told me that he had been recommended—that I had been recommended—and you will have to pardon my apparent lack of modesty here. It is most embarrassing for me to sit here and tell you what he said because it certainly looks as though, to use the vernacular, that I am blowing my own horn and pretending to be what I am not because somebody mistakenly told him that I was the best lawyer that he could get to argue before the Pardons Board.

Q Did he say that he was sending Joseph Darcy in? Did Mr. McCloskey say that he was sending Joseph Darcy in?

A Mr. McCloskey called up Joseph Darcy some where while he was in my office and Darcy came in shortly after he left.

Q You mean Mr. McCloskey was in your office?

A Yes.

Q And then Darcy came in, the father?

A Yes.

Q Now will you tell us how much you were paid over the period of time by Joseph Darcy or Mr. McCloskey?

A I was not paid a single solitary penny at any time. The only thing of value that I received, I received from the lady whom I consider one of the finest characters I have ever met, because I have never met any mother who was more devoted to a son than Marian Ford was to her nephew. She gave me, on December 24, 1956, she sent to Mrs. Witkin a beautiful lamp from Bailey, Banks and Biddle, which I shall always keep and cherish as coming from one of the finest persons I have ever met. That is the beginning and end of anything of any value I have ever received from the Darcy case, and that was on December 24th, accompanied by a card, and I brought the card with me that Marian Ford sent. The card says:

"Just to say a little thank-you and to tell you how sincerely I appreciate everything you did for us.

"Marion R. Ford."

And on the back of it, I have got in my handwriting: "Received 12/24/56."

Q You kept this card?

A I kept it.

Q And made a notation on the back of it?

A Yes, I sure did, because I figured I would be asked the question and kept the card because I thought it was mighty unnecessary for her to do it, but mighty fine of her. I know of no person for whom I have a higher regard.

Q You felt on December 24, 1956 that you might be asked about the matter?

A No. At that time the investigation had been talked about and there were campaign promises that there would be an investigation. I didn't think I would be asked about it; I knew I would be asked about it, and I kept the card purposely.

Q And who paid your expenses?

A I paid all my own expenses.

Q Did Mr. McCloskey ever pay anything to you in regard to the Darcy case?

A I never discussed money in any fashion whatsoever with Mr. McCloskey.

Q Did he ever pay you anything?

A He never paid me anything; I never asked him.

Q Therefore, nobody paid you anything?

A Nobody has paid me a penny, not from the day I first got into it, November 10 1949, down to the present time; nobody has promised to pay me anything, nor shall I ever accept anything if it is paid.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: People don't believe lawyers do that sort of thing.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Who prepared the brief that was filed with the Board of Pardons, Mr. Witkin?

A Pardon me?

Q Who prepared the brief that was filed with the Board of Pardons when the case was argued in September of 1950?

A I can only answer that question by what was told me. I think that Mr. Margiotti prepared it in some form. I think Dress Pannell—some people call it "Pannell," I don't know which is right—I think revised it. I did not prepare the brief. If you look at the brief and read it, you will find it is so good that I couldn't have prepared it. I argued the case.

Q Had you talked to any Members of the Board of Pardons previous to arguing the case or during the day you argued the case, besides presenting the arguments?

A I had not talked to a single person prior to the argument of the case. I depended upon my arguments and the facts of this case to win it, and I think the facts justified my winning.

Q And Mr. Margiotti intended arguing the case as far as you know?

A I couldn't answer that.

Q He prepared the brief?

A Yes, Mr. Margiotti had been ill and I had spoken to Dress Pannell about the case, and Mr. Margiotti, if you recall, was supposed to argue it before the Supreme Court on a certain date, but by reason of his illness, couldn't argue it. It was postponed and whether Mr. Margiotti had intended to argue it or not, I don't know, but Mr. Margiotti finally told me I was to argue it.

Q Had you ever argued the case before the Pardons Board previous to this last argument?

A Yes, I argued the case before the Pardons Board at the May Sesion of 19—just bear with me a minute—at the May Session of 1950, I had argued the case before the Pardons Board.

Q And between that time and 1956, did you ever argue the case before the Pardons Board or any other tribunal?

A No, I appeared in March, 1951, I think, before the Pardons Board and at that time I think I appeared solely for the purpose of saying Mr. Margiotti would argue, but I can't swear to that and just—yes, that is right. On March 20, 1951, I appeared before the Pardons Board, but did not argue the case.

Q The only time you argued was 1950 and 1956?

A That is right.

Q And in 1950, was commutation granted?

A No, in 1950 commutation was not granted, but in answer to that, I think it is only fair to say that in 1950 the reasons for the application for this pardon, as set forth in the application for commutation, were at great and diverse variance with the reasons propounded on September 20, 1956.

By September 20, 1956, as a result of the work that Charles Margiotti had one, three of the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States, Justices Harlan, Frankfurter and Douglas had written and adopted the dissenting opinion of Judge Kalodner of the Circuit Court of Appeals, in which those judges were for granting a new trial to Darcy. In 1950, when I argued the case before the Pardons Board, there was nothing like that before them, but in 1956, if you take the opinion written—

Q Mr. Witkin, we have been all through that. If you could shorten it, we would appreciate it. Miss Blatt has gone into it.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, I think we ought to hear this. This was before the Board of Pardons.

THE WITNESS: I think it is most important. For example, in the opinion of Justice Harlan, the reason, Mr. Kohn, I bring that up—and if you don't mind my trying to be a lawyer for a minute instead of a witness—I bring that out is because when you say the Pardons Board in 1950 refused it, and the Pardons Board in 1956 granted it, if you took those two things all by themselves, people would say, "Well, what happened?" Well, there was an awful lot happened and that is the reason I am going into it.

For example, in the dissenting opinion of Judge Harlan, his own, in addition to adopting the views and the opinion of Judge Kalodner, he said: "The reasons for my conclusion are those which Kalodner has well stated in his dissenting opinion in the Court of Appeals." And may I say to you that Judge Kalodner in that dissenting opinion, which then became the dissenting opinion of Justices Harlan, Frankfurter, and Douglas, said that the decision of Judge Boyer was a shock to the conscience of the Courts; and here we have three—

Q Are you reading now or expounding?

A I am quoting. I am quoting the exact verbiage in order that there be no misapprehension—

Q I was merely asking whether you were reading.

A I am quoting from memory, and in order that there be no question that I am not quoting it directly, I shall read the statement.

Q That is what I thought we started with.

A I will read. I am not arguing this matter. I want to get it clear that what I am now saying is what the courts have said. I am not saying that because I advocated this before the Board of Pardons that it was right. I am going to quote to you what the judges have said.

Page 99. Here is the portion of the opinion, of a dissenting opinion, in which I quote:

> "Judge Kalodner: In my opinion, it can fairly be said of Judge Boyer's conduct that this is conduct that shocks the conscience in violation of the due process guaranteed."

Chief Justice Bigg in that case, in his dissenting opinion, Chief Justice of the Circut Court of Appeals, using the words, and I quote from his opinion:

> "Though Darcy had been granted a separate trial pursuant to the Pennsylvania Act of March 31, 1860, 19 P.S., Pa. 75, the severance was rendered worthless when his trial was proceeded with only three days after that of Foster and Zietz. Under the circumstances, a change of venue, or a delay in putting Darcy on trial, was requisite to fairness."

And Judge Harlan's opinion, he said:

> "Judge Boyer was in the courtroom during the Court's charge. From these admitted facts, I consider that the jury must have been conscious of the unusual interest which Judge Boyer had in the case, and that it might well have concluded that he,"

referring to Judge Boyer—and that is interpolated by me—

"felt the defendant should be dealt with severely. Having regard to the character of the issue with which the jury was confronted, I think these undisputed facts and the inferences which may be drawn from them require us to hold that the petitioner has been denied due process."

And may I say further to you and to the Members of this Committee that in the majority report of the Circuit Court of Appeals, not the dissenting opinion, but in the majority of the Court, they used the words, and I will read them—

Q What is your purpose of putting this in the record?

A I am putting it in the record—

Q It is in the record now.

A I am putting it in the record because I think the people of Pennsylvania do not know and have not been fully apprised of the fact that even the seven judges of the Circuit Court of Appeals, and if you will let me find the citation, I will quote it from memory, said that had Judge Boyer done in the Federal Court what he did in the State Court—and I use their exact quote—they would have prescribed it. In other words, the majority, seven judges, not a minority, but seven judges of the Circuit Court of Appeals condemned and said, in effect, that because it happened, as Judge Kalodner said in his dissenting opinion, on the other side of the street, it couldn't happen, and I will close on that argument by saying one other thing—

Q Wait. Don't argue the thing to me. All this is in the record.

A I am going to quote this that you are going through.

Q Well, this is already—

A No, this isn't. I am going to quote from the majority opinion of the Supreme Court, the six judges of the United States. They said:

"However, he took no action to prevent this possibility from inventing petitioners' trial."

That follows immediately after the statement in the opinion that I am reading from, the majority: "Petitioners' counsel must have been aware of Judge Boyer's statement, of its possible effect, if any, on the jury and the possible effect of Judge Boyer's manifestation of interest."

And then they say: "Justice Burton: However, he took no action to prevent this possibility from affecting petitioners' trial. Accordingly, we may, we may as well speculate that he did not deem it necessary to take any action, any inter alia."

And then they closed with these significant words, and these are the words of the Supreme Court of the United States: "Petitioner has not sustained the burden resting upon him to show that his trial was essentially unfair in a constitutional sense."

Members of this Committee, when I argued this case before the Pardons Board I asked them not to listen to a single argument I made. I ask you not to. I asked them to listen to the utterances, the opinions and dissenting opinions, and I said to that Board, the Pardons Board, "How can anybody let a man die when so many Justices of the two highest courts in our land say he shall not die; he ought to get a new trial? This Board can't give him a new trial; but you don't let a man die when almost unanimously the court and even the majority opinion of both the Circuit and Supreme Courts practically say this is the case for the Pardons Board."

And I argued to that Pardons Board that Justice Horace Stern, in the Zietz case, went so far as to say that the argument that was made in that case was available for the Pardons Board. And as long as this Committee is interested in the question of the Pardons Board and legislation, I would like to call your attention to one other thing, if I may do so, and I say that under the laws of our Commonwealth, under the Constitution of Pennsylvania, the Pardons Board is a board that is supposed to render justice where, due to technicalities of the law, justice cannot be rendered.

Look in Corpus Juris, Volume 67, page 584, paragraph 15. It says: "Such pardoning power and the authority to commute sentences is a sovereign power inherent in the State. It is not judicial; but it is derogation of the law."

Then in American Jurisprudence, it says: "Granting of a pardon is an act of grace and humanity." So that in all cases where the law, due to technical provisions, has a man who has not had a fair trial, the Pardons Board is the only tribunal under which this circumstance can be rectified in this system of government as created by our founding fathers who framed the Constitution. I say to you that the reason I was unsuccessful in my opinion on May 26, 1950, was because the Pardons Board at that time had only had before it other facts, dealing with the life and the usual pleas that are made. But in 1956 this Pardons Board had before it such facts that in my opinion, the use of political influence would have been of no avail.

I say this, that I am as staunch a Republican as ever came down the street; but I must say, whether Governor Leader is a Democrat or not, that he and the Members of the Pardons Board were courageous when they didn't listen to the exhortations that were thrown at them daily, and the attempts to cajole them that were thrown at them daily by newspapers, with reference to the Darcy pardon before the Darcy case was heard. I think that is just as inherently wrong as it is to use political influence, not agreeing that there was any political influence used in this case. They were badgered in the newspapers, but they weren't cowards. They were courageous people. And if ever a man, in my opinion, was a courageous man in the face of all the criticism which was hurled at him—and I disagree with him on all the things he did politically, and I wouldn't vote for him if he ran for office again, never would vote for him—that was Governor Leader.

Q Is that all in the record now?

A Yes, I must admit that I am glad I got it off my chest.

Q Is there anything else you want to say, Mr. Witkin?

A Yes, but I think I have taken advantage of you already.

Q Just one other question. I don't know if I asked you or not; I was so engrossed in your speech—

A Pardon me. You did ask me one thing, but go ahead; I will remember it.

Q Did you contact any Members of the Board of Pardons previous to arguing the case?

A Oh, definitely not. I may say to you, Mr. Kohn—

Q All right. I think you did say that.

A I have been arguing cases before the Board of Pardons since I became a lawyer, and I must say that I carefully select the cases. I never interviewed any Member of any Pardons Board prior to my standing up in front of that Board and arguing my case. It is a record that I am proud of, and any Member of the Pardons Board will so tell you.

I would like to ask permission, if I may, to incorporate by reference only the brief that was filed in this case, the brief of the applicant in support of the application for clemency, and I will leave a copy here with you.

Q We have a copy.

A All right, I think there also should be incorporated by reference, if I may do so without becoming presumptious, the opinion of the Supreme Court, of Justice Burton, the dissenting opinions of Justices Harlan, Douglas, and Frankfurter, and likewise the opinion of Justice Hastings, and the minority opinion and the dissenting opinion of Justice Kalodner and Justice Pace.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think they are in the record.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I don't think that they are.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, if they are not, very well.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Out of an abundance of caution, I think we ought to receive them.

THE WITNESS: I will upply them to you.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Attorney General Cohen appeared before the Supreme Court of the United States as a party to this case, the Darcy case.

A That's right.

Q And he took a legal position opposing your position and Mr. Margiotti's position; I mean he opposed everything that you propounded?

A Yes, that's right. And, Mr. Kohn, you bring out something that I think is vital to this Board to consider. There was no conflict of interest there.

Q I didn't say there was.

A Yes, I know; but you infer that he did, and that, unexplained, leaves a void.

When the Attorney General of Pennsylvania was arguing the constitutional questions involved in this case, the present Justice of the Supreme Court, he believed conscientiously and honestly that within the narrow confines of the constitutional sense, David Darcy got a fair trial, and he had a right and his duty—

Q Did you talk to him about it?

A No, I didn't.

Q How can you say what was in his mind?

A Because it must have been when he did it.

Q I didn't ask you what was in his mind.

A Yes, but I say this. When the Attorney General, in his capacity as Attorney General, proceeds to uphold a conviction based upon constitutional grounds, that shows what a big man he was, because when he stepped out of that role and then came into the role as a Member of the Board of Pardons, where the power is in derogation of the common law, and he then became a Board of Pardons Justice to see to it that even though the technicalities of the law required this conviction to be upheld, then he sat as a Member of the Pardons Board, not as Attorney General; and, therefore, there was no conflict of interest there.

Q Therefore, you say there is no conflict of interest in obtaining a decision which becomes the law of the land by a six-three vote and then going into the Pardons Board—I am not saying there is anything wrong with it; don't misunderstand me. I am merely pointing out for the sake of whatever it is worth to this Committee that there is a conflict as far as I am concerned, even though he has a right to do it. When he obtains a decision through his arguments to the Supreme Court of the United States, obtains that argument and obtains that decision, and then goes to the Board of Pardons and adopts the minority decision of the very court that he argued before and obtained a decision from, there must be a conflict of interest, because I don't see how a man could separate the two duties.

A Mr. Kohn, your statements, if I may very politely say so, that the Pardons Board adopted the minority decision is fallacious. The minority opinion stated he is entitled to a new trial. They did not adopt the minority opinion; they adopted the majority.

Statements coupled with the minority opinion, statements coupled with the fact that it was doubtful as to whether Darcy ever got a fair trial, that is what the Judges say, but you take the position that the Pardons Board, in granting this commutation, adopted the minority position. That is not so. The minority position stated that he ought to get a new trial and he shouldn't plead double jeopardy. They didn't adopt that. They adopted, under the law, where they say, "Here is a case where Justice decreased, even in a constitutional case." Some judges said yes and some said no. And by a scant vote in the Circuit Court of Appeals, one short, the yeses outnumbering the noes by that number—and that is my interpretation of the granting of a commutation, not to let a man die. After he is dead, it is too late.

They never adopted a minority report, and I don't think that Mr. Cohen was in a position that involved conflict of interests at all. I don't think I have argued a case in the thirty-nine years I have been at the Bar that had more merit for commutation. This man didn't get a fair trail, and I will say further—you asked me if I had anything further to say—

Q Please don't argue the case.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Why don't you let the witness speak?

MR. KOHN: Because he is not saying anything in response to a question.

THE WITNESS: You asked me. Mr. Kohn, about the conflict of interests. I say this to you seriously, honestly and conscientiously from the depths of my heart. In my judgment, the real basic trouble in the Darcy case was in Bucks County, when they tried him. They could have sent him to the electric chair with a fair trial, with a proper severance, taking their time. But no, they couldn't wait. One judge wasn't enough; they had to have two. They couldn't give him a couple weeks severance between the first and second trials. Had they not done that, there would never have been eight years of litigation, and perhaps Darcy might have gone or might not have gone—God only knows—to the electric chair.

I say the basic, fundamental trouble in our administration of the criminal law is rushing people to trial and not giving them a fair trial, and then complaining because they take advantage of their rights.

I am going to close with this one statement. In 1931, and I have the date here, there was no greater foe of the criminal than I was. I want to say that I was practicing criminal law in those days. No more vitriolic denunciation of a criminal could ever have been made—and I say to this Board that I had no conflict of interests then; I was representing criminals—but when I spoke to the Legislature in an effort to get the bill which was later known as the Witkin Firearms Act passed, I said, "This bill is aimed at and directed solely at the criminal, solely at the bandit, solely at the citizen who wants to break the law." That was one of the few bills that was ever defeated in both Houses of the Legislature in the same Session that it became a law. I am not going to interpose that any more.

Q How is that relevant to the Darcy case?

A Not at all, but I just want to show you about the conflict of interests.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q. Mr. Witkin, I would like to ask a question.

A Yes.

Q I believe that the question of competency of counsel arose in this matter, did it not?

A Yes, it did.

Q And that counsel, I believe, that they referred to was Mr. Achey, who had tried the case

A That's right, sir.

Q And Mr. Achey did not raise any of these questions during the time of the trial, did he?

A Yes. He objected, Mr. Tompkins, as I recall, to the alleged or the direct handling of a note by Judge Boyer to the District Attorney in the case, and thereafter, Judge Boyer left the bench.

Now my recollection, Mr. Chairman, is that he did do that. My recollection is rather definite on that, and that Judge Boyer incident was of sufficient weight that Justice Harlan, in his opinion, spoke about it as being the thing that might have tipped the scales of justice.

Q Mr. Witkin, I don't believe Mr. Achey made any objection to that. I think his objection was to Judge Boyer being on the bench one day, when they were discussing the quetion of the introduction of certain evidence. No question came up, but I think Mr. Achey's objection was to the Judge's presence there.

A You may be absolutely right, because I am only giving you my best recollection. I didn't go into the facts of the case thoroughly because the facts were quite plain. Anybody knew what the facts were. But the question of whether a lawyer did or didn't, in my opinion, makes no difference.

Forget my opinion, I am not asking you to take my opinion; but what the judges said made a difference.

Q What I am getting at, Mr. Witkin, is this. There was no request for change of venue, none of these other things that the Supreme and Circuit Courts made mention of. None of that was raised, although later they raised the question of competency of counsel in not putting the defendant on the stand, and a number of other issues.

Were you present here yesterday to hear what Mr. McBride said in connection with that matter?

A I didn't hear what Mr. McBride said at all. I am sorry I was not here. But I would say this, that I don't know whether you are talking about—well, I don't know what Mr. McBride said, except from what I read in the newspapers. I must admit I read anything he said, but I don't know if they are printing everything he said on that.

In answering your question as to whether these questions were raised by counsel at the time of trial, the one point was raised, but in the opinions of the Court before the Pardons Board, the seven Judges of the District Court of Appeals said in no unmistakable language that it would have been well for counsel to have asked for a change of venue. There is no question about that. The seven Judges said that. There is no question about that; they said it. I don't think it was raised. I will answer your question categorically.

Q The substance of General McBride's statement yesterday was—and if I am wrong, General McBride, you correct me—that Mr. Achey called him and consulted him with reference to putting Darcy on the stand and a number of other proceedings in connection with the trial; that nowhere along the line was he ever called to testify in connection with those matters and in connection with the trial.

A Mr. Chairman, I would be glad to answer that question. When you speak of Darcy taking the stand, I am frank to say that had I been his lawyer, Darcy would not have taken the stand because the risk might have been too great; and therefore, when Mr. Achey did not put Darcy on the stand, I agreed one hundred per cent with Mr. McBride, because under the Act of 1947 it might have been a dangerous thing for him to do, having been involved in other crimes. That Act was declared unconstitutional, but Mr. Achey did not dare take that chance.

But may it please you, I thoroughly disagree with Mr. Achey's not having put into the record the history of the youth of Darcy; not having spoken of the fact that he was ill; that he had fallen in his youth. It was proved by hospital records that he struck his head against some facet or faucet or something; that he had insanity in the family; that there were many things pertaining to Darcy's early life.

In 1925, may it pleace the Chairman and the Members of this Board, I argued before the Legislature on the life and death bill that was before the Legislature in 1925; and that the purpose of changing the law so as to give the jury the choice of life or death was that where a man was patently guilty of murder in the first degree, it was to let the jury, by mitigating circumstances or his background or past reputation, change that sentence to life imprisonment, because theretofore, when they didn't want to do that, they just gave him murder in the second degree.

Q That, as you say, is a little off the mark from what we are getting at; but none of the issues which you have stated here and none of the issues that were later raised by Mr. Achey or Mr. McBride at the time they took their appeal to the Supreme Court—they had twenty-six exceptions and none of those exceptions dealt with any of these matters that were subsequently brought up.

The General said yesterday with some surprise, I think, why he was never called at any time, anywhere as a witness in connection with this matter, as to the things which took place during the trial.

Would you know any reason why General McBride should not have been called in connection with those matters?

A Well, Mr. Chairman, it is difficult for me to pass upon why Mr. Margiotti hadn't called him. There was no necessity for my calling him because my limitations in this case were confined to the preparation originally and the argument before the commutation Board, the Pardons Board, for commutation originally and then again.

As I said, in the intermediate years, I had very little, if anything, to do with it except that Margiotti would send me copies of all the opinions. But the fact that certain things were not brought up by one lawyer, no matter how good he is—I think Mr. McBride is one of the best lawyers and one of the best in the State of Pennsylvania—maybe that will help Mr. Miller out with his story—but I say that we all make mistakes. I think Mr. Achey was an able lawyer, but I think he made a mistake in not putting any testimony on. What did he expect the jury to do? I think he should have asked for a change of venue. I think he did some of these things.

Q The thing I am trying to get at is this. I can't resolve in my mind, my own mind, after General McBride's statement where the man was not contacted, why he wasn't called upon to explain some of these matters. He left me with the impression that some of these things perhaps could have been cleared up very easily if that had been done.

A I can't answer that.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Mr. Witkin, I think, if my memory serves me correctly, you said that somebody had recommended you to argue the case for the Pardons Board because you would be the proper person to present that argument. Was that because of your ability as a lawyer or because of the fact that you were an active politician?

A I would say the statement that was made to me, and I am embarrassed saying it—it is pretty hard for me to say it—they said I was an able lawyer. I am not ready to concede that, but they said I was an able lawyer, that I had experience in arguing cases, that I prepared my cases, and that I could do justice to my case.

Pardon me for getting that in, but you asked the question and, in my modesty—some people don't think I have any—but I had to get that in.

I am afraid my political effect upon this Pardons Board would be nil. It was nil with the Republicans and I certainly think it would be nil with the Democrats.

Q Do you know of any political influence that was exerted on the previous Pardons Board or the present Pardons Board in connection with the action that was taken in granting this commutation for Mr. Darcy?

A I do not know of any such influence.

Q In your opinion, what I get then, is that the commutation was granted on the merits of the case?

A I would say, in my judgment, the commutation had to be granted on the merits, only on the merits of the case, and no case I have tried in thirty-nine years had more merit for commutation from death to life; nor was there any case that I have ever tried where a man was sentenced to a certain term and had it reduced, which case had more merit. You never sentence a man to the electric chair when so many brilliant judges of our State and Nation say there is a question. Even the present Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania dissented in the case for the Supreme Court. Once you are dead, you are dead.

SENATOR YOSKO: That is all I have.

CROSS EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Mr. Witkin, you have been questioned about your fee. I understand you received a little gift from Miss Ford, What was it?

A It was a lamp. It was a lamp that came from Bailey, Banks and Biddle, and it was scholarly—she apparently got the wrong opinion of me. She had a very scholarly lamp with sort of books and a so-called smart barrister, a learned barrister, on the lamp. It is a beautiful lamp, and as soon as we move to our new apartment, it is going to have a cherished place, because I think Marian Ford loved the boy as much as any mother loved a boy. She is just a fine person.

Q You have the little card with it that you kept?

A Yes.

Q Did you write her a letter?

A Yes, I did.

Q Have you a copy of it?

A Yes, I have a copy.

Q Did you mean what you said in it?

A Mr. McBride, I have the happy faculty of never saying anything I don't mean and never meaning anything I don't say; whether that is good or bad, I don't know.

Q The original of the letter was produced yesterday. I should like to have you read to the Committee the letter you wrote the day before Christmas, upon receipt of that gift, which I understand is the only material compensation you got from the case.

A I don't consider it compensation, but it is the only thing of value I got in connection with the case.

"Dear Miss Ford:

"I received your gift. It is just beautiful. Mrs. Witkin is crazy about it. However, as you and I both know, it was entirely unnecessary. Yet, I must frankly confess that I was deeply moved and touched by receiving it. It was most thoughtful of you, and I shall always remember it as coming from one of the finest characters I have ever known.

"Your devotion and steadfastness in the matter we had together I shall always remember and shall always remember and shall always feel that there are very, very few people in the world who, in a similar capacity, would have acted with the same love and devotion that generated from you. It was my pleasure and privilege to be a part of it, and believe it or not, I feel satisfied for having been a participant.

"With my best wishes to you, I am

"Very sincerely —"

and I signed my name.

Q Mr. Witkin, do you and I have a deal on whereby you are to become a judge of the Court of Common Pleas Court No. 8?

A Well, I think I have been pushed so far out on a limb on that, that I am afraid I will get farther out. You and I never had any deal pertaining to a court.

In connection with that, I think my good friend who sits on my right here was mistaken in one phase of his story. I do not doubt his word that he got the tip on the story, or the scoop—I see where Dorothy Kilgallen made a mistake the other day, saying that Grace Kelley was going to have another baby—I do not doubt that he got that tip. But when he said in that story that Mr. Witkin has for years been ambitious to land a judgeship, that must have been an error, because Joe Miller knew that I never aspired in my whole life to be a judge. Whether I aspire at the ripe old age of sixty-two to be a judge now would be another question; but I am not going to say yes or no, because if I got a chance, I am not going to kick it out of the window. I am not going to make out that I don't want it. I will not say either way. I would take it, but I never aspired for years to be a judge. There may have been times in my life when I had an opportunity to be a judge, but I was too anxious to make money.

Q Was there any truth then to the story that you and I concocted some arrangement whereby you were to be appointed?

A It would have to have been done when you and I were not together, because you and I never concocted it.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Did you come here to testify upon any invitation from the Committee?

A I got an invitation. I didn't consider it an invitation; I considered it a mandatory request to come. You may consider it an invitation, but I didn't. I knew that if I didn't come, I would have been yanked in here.

Q Was any testimony you gave today given because you wanted to apprise this Board of the truth? Or was it given because of a promise that was made to you, as was indicated in the story in the Philadelphia Inquirer?

A My testimony that was given today—I think that all my political friends as well as my political enemies know that I always strive to tell the truth and to keep my word—it was given because I sincerely and honestly believe it. I am willing to sacrifice, if any member of this Committee, or any member of this Pardons Board so decrees, except for the present cases where I am now retained before this present Pardons Board, that I must necessarily argue, if there is any doubt about it, I am willing to forego trying another single, solitary case or taking one from my proposed clients in order that I will not be considered as having apple-polished this Board or put them in an embarrassing position. I feel deeply. I feel so deeply that if it were to cost me some $10,000 or $15,000 in fees during the next year, that any one of you tells me that I ought not to appear on the cases before the Pardons Board except on the cases I have previously retained, I will give it up. At the same time, I am no millionaire, but that is how I feel.

I am telling you honestly what I believe, whether it helps me or hurts me, whether it ruins my chances of becoming a judge or not. I would rather not become a judge than have that impression on the record. My testimony today was given through my own initiative, and as God is my witness, I honestly believe in what I have told you today; and I stand on my reputation as a Member of the Bar, and I hope that I have gained a half decent reputation.

Q This Committee is not here to deter, prevent, or restrain anyone from engaging in a legitimate law practice.

A I know that. I appreciate that.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right.

(Witness excused.)

(Recessed).

AFTERNOON SESSION

(At 1:30 P. M. the Hearing resumed)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: You may proceed, gentlemen.

MR. KOHN: Mr. Hean, will you take the stand, please?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, it may please the—

MR. KOHN: Well, I am not ready to call—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It doesn't matter whether you are ready or not, I am addressing the Chairman of the Committee.

Two subpoenas have been issued, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: General, we will take that up when we are ready.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Just a moment, Mr. Chairman, I wish to have you hear this one short statement, and then I will stop. Two subpoenas were issued by the Committee calling for the appearance of witnesses at 1:30. It is now 1:30. I am prepared to explain in answer to that subpoena. If you want to hear it later, I don't care, but I think it should be heard now because the time for the appearance is now.

MR. KOHN: We subpoenaed witnesses for 1:30, but we are not ready to hear them.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Whether or not you are ready, I think this should be heard now. I think this is the time for it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: When we are ready to call those witnesses, I think that is the time to bring the matter up.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Well, Mr. McBride, is there any particular reason why the Committee should give special preference to the witnesses?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No, I am not asking that they be called. The witnesses are not appearing under my legal advice and I think now since the time for their appearance has arrived and the afternoon session has been called to order, in order that there be no misapprehension about the reason for their non-appearance, it should be stated fully and openly in public now.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The hour was fixed in the subpoena because that was the hour to which we had recessed, and we don't always call witnesses at the hour indicated in the subpoena in support of that. They are supposed to be here.

SENATOR YOSKO: Whom are we talking about?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: About two secretaries of the Governor of Pennsylvania.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Mr. Chairman, you made your ruling, let's proceed.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Of course, Mr. Chairman, I think that the Committee at least ought to have some knowledge of what is going on. I have no knowledge of what is going on.

SENATOR YOSKO: Neither do I.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Nor I.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: When we call the witnesses to respond to their subpoena, in my opinion, that is the time to take up the issue.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, I respectfully submit to you, certainly there is no harm done to anybody since the time for their appearance is now. The explanation, if any, should be given now.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You don't want anybody to assume that they are in contempt for failure to appear. Is there anything wrong about having this matter placed of record now? I appeal to your sense of fairness.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Mr. McBride, let's realize that the Chairman is in charge of this hearing. Neither counsel for the Committee nor yourself are in charge. Now the Chairman made the ruling, and I say, let's proceed.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, I am addressing my argument to the Chair with the attempt of convincing the Chair that we ought to do it now, in fairness.

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. Chairman, as a member of this Committee, I still don't know what the controversy is and I would like you, as Chairman, or I would like our counsel, or Mr. McBride or somebody, to advise the Committee as a whole what this is all about.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: You willl be advised when we are prepared to call the witnesses.

MR. KOHN: Mr. Hean, will you take the stand, please?

FRANK R. HEAN, recalled.

FURTHER RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Hean, I call your attention to your calendar book in the matter of David Darcy, No. 1, September Sessions, 1956. Is that your original docket, sir?

A That's correct.

Q And will you tell the Committee what the significance was, why you put on each calendar the following quotation: "Comment: A letter from Judge Bok dated 6/20/50, recommending leniency." What was your purpose in putting that on each calendar sheet of each member of the Board of Pardons?

A To answer your question completely, I had reviewed the files of previous hearings before the Board in the applications filed, and among them I found this letter of Judge Bok about six years old, and at the time that was significant. Judge Bok is a distinguished jurist, in my humble opinion, from Philadelphia; and also the letters with respect to the jury polling that were included, there were copies of those that I included.

Q You made no mention of any jury polling?

A No.

Q You wanted to call the attention of each member of this Board of Pardons to Judge Bok's letter, and Judge Bok did not have charge of the case?

A No, he was a Philadelphia jurist.

Q And the significance of the letter was that Judge Bok had interceded because Joseph Darcy, the father of David Darcy, was his tipstaff?

A Well, that would be one reason. The next reason would be that he was familiar with the Darcy family by reason of his acquaintanceship with his tipstaff.

Q Now, I ask you whether or not you made a statement on October 2, 1956, as follows:

> "Frank R. Hean, Secretary of the Board of Pardons, indicated a clemency recommendation for Darcy and his pals. Went to the Governor around 4:00 or 5:00 P. M., Saturday."

Did you make that statement?

A I may have said so.

Q Isn't it a fact that I have asked you what time you took it over and you said about 5:30?

A Well, the difference of half an hour or so is not too vital, in my reply.

Q I am asking you whether that might—

A That might have happened, Mr. Kohn.

Q And didn't you further say that he said, "However, he was under instructions not to reveal anything in connection with the Darcy case." Did you say that?

A I may have said that; I cannot deny that I did not, but I have no recollection of saying it.

Q Did you further go on to say, "I was ordered to keep my mouth shut, said Mr. Hean, and was told that the announcement would be made by the Board itself. I got my orders to say 'no comment' to all questions about the Darcy case." Did you say that?

A I probably did. I wouldn't deny that I did. However, Mr. Kohn, at that time the Darcy commutation, which had been announced by the Governor, was the matter of newspaper comment of a terrific type. If anyone said anything, it was magnified, twisted, glorified and diminished. And the best policy is, keep your big mouth shut. I did.

Q Would you tell us who gave those orders to you?

A Nobody gave me orders.

Q You said, "I was told?"

A I was told that because I used that as an excuse for not talking.

Q I see. Did you deliver the commutation and recommendation to the office of the Governor?

A Yes.

Q And to whom did you give it?

A Mr. Heagy.

Q And he has been in that office for many years and received those commutations?

A That's correct.

Q Do you know if the Governor was present in his office that afternoon?

A I wouldn't know because I did that on "E" floor, as it is called, and the Governor's office is on the second floor. I was not upstairs to know whether or not he was in his office.

Q Now this was a Saturday afternoon?

A Saturday afternoon.

Q And you usually work on Saturday afternoons?
A We do not.
MR. KOHN: That's all.
THE WITNESS: And the reason, if we did not properly process this commutation, is that Mr. Darcy was liable to have passed to his eternal reward.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Hean, I have understood in your testimony heretofore that you are the one who usually resolves the different opinions of the Pardons Board and incorporates them into the reasons which are submitted to them for their signature, is that right?
A That is correct.
Q Now did you prepare reasons in this particular case?
A I did not.
Q Who did prepare them?
A It was handed to the Attorney General or rather this way; the Attorney General suggested that he would write them. Now whether he personally wrote them—I am thinking of Attorney General Cohen—whether he personally wrote them or someone on his staff did, I do not know, but he brought them into a meeting of the Board on a Thursday at—I just do not know the date. It was the last Thursday in September, and they were discussed and talked about and found to be satisfactory. They were handed to me to be typed up in our form reasons.
Q Now that was on a Thursday. Were there Pardons Board hearings that day?
A No, no, that was a special meeting for that purpose only.
Q I believe it was brought out here yesterday that there was a note in your book, or in somebody's book here, that there had been a decision made on this on the 20th of December.
A That is correct; that is what the minutes state, as Mr. Kohn has said. However, in writing up the minutes, we take the cases seriatim, one, two, three, four, five, six, and on down, and mark opposite whether they were recommended or refused. So, the significance of having a meeting on the twentieth, in which cases one, two and three, the Darcy cases having been marked as granted or recommended, was not important, other than it was in seriatim with all the other cases that we had under consideration.
Q Then the Board had decided on the twentieth that they would recommend?
A No, it was not decided. It was talked about on the twentieth; that is the first day of the September meeting. Then there was an interval of two, three days, I believe, wasn't it? What is the date on that?
MR. KOHN: Twenty-fifth.
THE WITNESS: And during that time the members of the Board took portions of the vast amount of opinions and paper books and the testimony to study in those three or four days between the next Executive Session.
The next Executive Session was held and then the discussion was more at length as to the feeling of the Board, after again reviewing the material they had in their possession in those three or four days.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q And they again decided to stick by their original recommendation of the twentieth?
A No, they did not make an original decision on the twentieth; they did not.
Q They discussed it?
A But not deeply. They each sort of expressed their viewpoints and let it go at that.
Q Now you say that you received these reasons from the Attorney General on Thursday, is that right?
A That would be the last Thursday of the month, whatever date that was.
Q That would be the 27th, would it not?
A Yes.
Q What time on Thursday did you get them?
A It is my recollection it was during the noon hour, Mr. Tompkins. They had an informal meeting during the noon hour.
Q An informal meeting during the noon hour?
A Yes.
Q These were handed to you after that time?
A They were. They were read and discussed and then handed to me.
Q In the final form?
A Yes.
Q On the recommendation sheet?
A No, it was an ordinary legal size sheet of paper upon which they were typed.
Q And then you were to transcribe those onto final form?
A That is correct.
Q When did you have those transcribed on the final form?
A We started it immediately on Thursday, right after lunch, and before the afternoon was over they were finished and taken over, as I recall, to the Attorney General's office, for his signature. He signed them. I am not too clear whether I went to Miss Blatt's office next, for her signature, or whether I went to Mr. Harner's office next, but either one signed them. Mr. Furman was out of the city and would not return until Saturday. The suggestion was that we get a messenger and an automobile and take it out where he was. I think he was in western Pennsylvania some where, and a telephone call was made, or someone informed me—probably someone in the office of Mr. Cohen or Mr. Furman, by Mrs. Cohen—that he would be surely here in town Saturday morning.
Notice was also given by telephone to Mr. Heagy on Thursday late, of the action of the Board, so that he would have knowledge of the decision.
Mr. Cohen came in Saturday—
CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: You mean Mr. Furman?
THE WITNESS: Or Mr. Furman—on Saturday morning, and he signed the reasons. I delivered them to Mr. Heagy. Then I waited until—

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q When did Mr. Furman sign them?
A Saturday morning. There were three other signatures prior thereto on the application.
Q Then Saturday morning all four signatures were on this commutation?
A Yes sir.
Q Why was it held up until 5:30 until it was delivered to the Governor's office?
A That was delivered to the Governor's office and from there to my office; I waited until I had notice.

Q When was it delivered to the Governor's office?
A I know when I gave it to Mr. Heagy, during Saturday morning.
Q What time?
A Between ten and eleven o'clock.
Q Between ten and eleven o'clock?
A Yes sir.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Meaning what?
A The commutation, reasons, and the warrant of the commutation.
Q What did you deliver at 4:30 or 5:00?
A What did I deliver then? When the Governor signed it, I then had to get hold of Mr. Harner to attest these signatures as Secretary of the Commonwealth.
Q When did the Governor sign it?
A I cannot tell you because I don't know.
Q Was the Governor in his office that Saturday?
A I don't know.
Q Did he sign it some time between 11:00 and 5:30?
A He must have, because that was his signature on the instruments.
Q Do you know where he signed it?
A I do not. You see, I never was on the Governor's floor on that Saturday. I only went to Mr. Heagy, who is the usual officer I deal with in matters of this character, and he in turn would be able to tell you that.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q What time did you get Mr. Harner's signature on, as Secretary of the Commonwealth?
A Mr. Harner was very busy that day, but every hour he kept in touch with me to let me know where I could reach him by telephone. He was then campaigning—there happened to be a campaign on at that time—so that when I had notice that the Governor had signed it, I found Mr. Harner. He immediately came to his office.
Q What time did you get notice that the Governor had signed it?
A Oh, I would say it was in the middle of the afternoon, because after I had taken it to Mr. Harner for his signature as attesting officer, I had to take it over to another office to get the seal of the Commonwealth attached. From there I had to go upstairs and have the phototsate room take a photostat of the whole procedure, as the custom is, and then return the whole bundle to Mr. Heagy, and that would be after 5 o'clock, with the ordinary time delay.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q On these cases then, on September 20, on the Darcy, Zietz and Foster cases, they were actually held under advisement for further consideration?
A I wouldn't call it that; for study, because they were going to make a decision for the work of that September term.
Q How do you explain the fact that under September 25 there are quite a few cases marked, "held under advisement?" Why was this listed as having been commuted on the 20th?
A Because we take them in seriatim. If you will notice the minutes there, they are on through one to seventy, or whatever the number was.
Q Regardless of when they act on them, they still take them seriatim?
A Yes.
Q And that was the date of the hearings?
A Yes sir.
Q Now where cases are continued or held under advisement, you so mark them and then put them under the date that they are decided?
A The next month.
Q But you didn't do that in this case?
A This was not considered a held-under-advisement case.
Q Who makes up his mind about that?
A I do.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Hean, do you know what hour of the day it was that the Governor signed this commutation?
A I honestly cannot tell you what hour of the day. I have only the feeling that it was early in the afternoon of that Saturday.
Q Well, there are newspaper reports to the effect that he signed it at Indiantown Gap, and after the time that he came home from a football game that afternoon.
A I read that account in the newspaper, as many of us did, and where they got this information I don't know, because I had no better information. I didn't know where he was. I didn't ask.
Q You don't know what hour of the day he signed?
A No, I don't know.
Q Or whether he signed it in here or at Indiantown Gap, or some other place?
A That is right.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Nevertheless, the fact remains that you delivered them Saturday morning and he signed them some time in the afternoon?
A Yes sir.
MR. KOHN: Any other questions?
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No questions.
MR. KOHN: Mr. Evans.
JAMES WILLIAM EVANS, recalled

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q You may state whether or not you served a subpoena on Richard Heagy, of the Governor's office, to appear here at 1:30 this afternoon to testify in this matter.
A I did, about twelve o'clock noon. I served the subpoena on him in Mr. Randall's office.
REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Will you speak a little louder, please?
THE WITNESS: I served the subpoena on Mr. Richard Heagy this noon, today at 12:00, in the office of Mr. Randall, to appear here at 1:30 this afternoon.
MR. KOHN: Any questions?
CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Is Mr. Randall here?
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Randall is not here, sir.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Did you subpoena anybody else?
A No.
MR. KOHN: Mr. Arnold did.
Are there any questions?
CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Is Mr. Heagy in the room?
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Heagy is not here, sir.
MR. KOHN: Any questions?
(No response.)
CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right, you may call Mr. Arnold, and then take them both together.
JAMES K. ARNOLD, recalled

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Did you make service of a subpoena upon David Randall, Secretary to the Governor?
A Yes sir, I did.
Q What time?
A Approximately 11:00 A. M. this morning, in Mr. Randall's office.
Q Is Mr. Randall here?
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Randall is not here, sir.
MR. KOHN: Any questions?
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No questions.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Now, May I address the Committee?
CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: You may, sir.
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: May it please the Committee, the question was raised some time ago as to whether the Governor of Pennsylvania would respond to subpoena and whether he would respond to an invitation before the Committee to express his views. I told the Committee in Executive Session that I would advise the Governor not to appear either voluntarily or under subpoena.

Then request was made, in a letter from the Chairman of the Committee, to be advised by letter as to certain information. You will note that although the subpoena today has not yet been read into the record, the request is that Mr. Randall and Mr. Heagy appear and bring with them the following papers:

"All records showing receipt by the Governor's office of the date and time when the commutation recommendation for David Darcy, Harold Foster and Harry Zietz was delivered to the Governor's office, and the date, time and place it was signed by the Governor."

That is the information requested of the Governor's Secretary. That was requested in a letter, which I believe was dated March 12, 1957.

In response to that letter, the Secretary to the Governor immediately wrote a letter to Mr. Thompkins, as Chairman of the Committee, which I have just, through the courtesy of Mr. Kohn, been permitted to have for the purpose of reading to the Committee. It reads:

"Dear Mr. Tompkins:

"In reply to your letter of March 5, 1957, please be advised that I have transmitted to Attorney General Thomas D. McBride, information indicating the exact date, place and time at which the Governor's office received the recommendation of the Board of Pardons that the sentences of Darcy, Zietz and Foster be commutated, as well as similar information as to when these recommendations were returned, approved, to the Board of Pardons.

"Sincerely yours,

"David V. Randall"

And then I transmitted to the Chairman of the Committee the original of the matter spoken of therein which was sent to me by Mr. Randall, which reads as follows:

It is from the Secretary to the Governor, March 12, 1957, and to me as Attorney General.

"Dear Mr. McBride:

"Please be advised that the recommendations of the Board of Pardons that the death sentences of Darcy, Zietz and Foster be commutated to life imprisonment were received in the Governor's office, Harrisburg, shortly after noon on Saturday, September 29, 1956, and were returned, approved, to the Board of Pardons from the Governor's office at 6:00 P. M. on the same day.

"Sincerely yours,

"David V. Randall"

I transmitted that letter as I said.

Now the Committee has seen fit to require two men to be present to present the same information personally, and subpoenas have been served upon Mr. Randall and Mr. Heagy, both of whom are part of the Governor's Office itself and, as such, a part of the office of the Chief Executive of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

I have, in accordance with law, and as I believe it to be, today after being notified by letter here this morning that these subpoenas had been served, prepared the following letter, which I have delivered to the Governor:

"Dear Governor:

The Joint Committee of the General Assembly has subpoenaed your Secretary, David V. Randall, and your Chief Clerk, Richard Heagy, to appear before it, to bring certain records and to answer certain questions as pertaining to action taken by you pursuant to your constitutional power to grant commutation of sentence. I advise you, your Secretary and your Chief Clerk not to appear before the Committee. This decision is based not on any criteria applicable to you or them personally, but on the fundamental separation of powers of our government, which vests in the office of the Governor the supreme executive power.

"By necessity, the exercise of this power is not subject to review or question by either the Legislature or the Judiciary, for if it were, the executive power would become subordinate to the other branches of government. No compromise with this principle should be permitted. It is your duty to maintain the high office of Governor undiminished by legislative encroachment, to pass it on to your successsor as it was passed on to you, in full possession of its rights and powers.

"Express recognition of this principle was given by our Supreme Court nearly eighty years ago in an appeal of Hartranft, 85 Pennsylvania, page 433. The court held that neither the Governor nor his subordinates are subject to the process of the courts when engaged in his official duties and that he is the sole judge of what those duties are and when they are to be performed.

"In addition, whether the Governor is to reveal any information coming to him was held to be a matter within his discretion. Such a broad and proper protection from process should not be lightly surrendered by voluntary action.

"Since no compelling reason exists which should lead you, your Secretary or Chief Clerk to appear before the Committee, neither you nor they should appear or produce any records."

I should like only to add that this is not a decision by George Leader as an individual. As an individual he might be perfectly willing to appear before this Committee and subject himself to your vigorous examination, but as Governor of Pennsylvania, there is inherent in him the duty of carrying on, as it has been carried on in the past, the full executive power of the Commonwealth, which has been protected by his predecessors and which it is his duty to protect for those who follow after him.

So, it is with the greatest deference and the most sincere respect that I say to this Committee, neither Mr. Randall nor Mr. Heagy, who are as close to the Governor as the fingers of his own hands, and who are part of his executive function, will appear before this Committee. In addition, they have submitted, and I have submitted, all the information sought by this subpoena.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: I yield to the Chairman.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I quite agree with you that we have no right to review the action of the Executive, but I disagree with you that we don't have a right to call personnel in his office to review administrative acts that have nothing to do with the exercise of the executive discretion of power.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Mr. McBride, on the second page of your letter, I believe you made a statement that this right not to appear extends to the Governor's subordinates.

ATTORNEY GENERAL BcBRIDE: That was the holding of the Hartranft Appeal, Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: What is the meaning of the word "subordinates"?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It would extend at least to those closely connected with him in the exercise of the executive function. It would not extend to everybody under the executive power, obviously.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Would it extend to Members of his Cabinet?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It is according to whether the action performed by the Member of the Cabinet is either directed by the Governor or was the joint action of the Governor and the Member of the Cabinet. It does not mean that merely because you are a member of the Cabinet that you are in all cases immune.

For instance, I myself have submitted here freely and fullly to questioning, but it certainly extends so far that what you are requesting here is to know when and where the Governor performed a certain discretionary act.

Now, that information has been given to you, and the decision of the Governor at that point must necessarily remain final, just as much as if I, as a part of the Executive arm of the Government, would subpoena for the witness or try to get forthwith a judge or a Member of the Legislature.

You yourselves must protect legislative power from encroachment by the Executive and by the Judiciary, and so must the Judiciary protect itself from encroachment either by the Legislative or the Executive. Unless they do, our whole theory of separation of governmental powers will fall into disrepute, and therefore, it is not a personal matter at all.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Now, you perhaps forestall my next question: Who is more personally closely associated with the Governor than his Attorney General, now as a matter of principle, when you have testified, and are you not now saying, that these men who work in the Governor's office cannot come in and testify as to the time when these items were received?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: When you say the Governor's office, the Executive office itself is involved.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Now the principle that you are expounding, to defend their absence—to excuse their absence, to put it more politely—that principle is not being applied when you take the stand.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No, Mr. Bell, I must disagree with you. And, as a matter of fact, I thought in executive session you were heartily in accord with me on this proposition.

When I testified here as Attorney General, I did not mean to suggest that everything I do, as Attorney General, is beyond the scrutiny of the Legislature. I have never for a single moment contended that this Legislative body should not have a right to inquire into corruption, and so on, in the Board of Pardons. I would never go that far.

I do think it would be a terrible thing if the body which makes the laws has no right to inquire into whether or not the laws are enforced. And so I have never taken that position.

The only position that I take is that in the exercise of its discretion, the Board of Pardons could not be inquired into any more than you gentlemen could be interrogated as to your reasons for voting on a certain measure.

Now I am convinced, at least in my own mind, and if you will take the trouble to read Hartranft's Appeal, which I have cited, I think all of you will be equally convinced that the protection afforded to the Governor as Chief Executive extends also to those closely associated with him in an intimate matter such as this.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: And that would be your interpretation of the word "subordinates"?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That would include them. It might also include others, but I would never maintain, for a single instant, that because I was a Member of the Cabinet I thereby become immune from all questioning. I take no such position. I don't take the position that the Members of the Board of Pardons cannot be questioned as to corruption and so on, because I think they can, and they ought to be.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Thank you.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: As a member of the minority of the Committee, Mr. Chairman, I want to state that we were not informed that such a subpoena was being issued, and having no knowledge of it, of course, did not concur in its being issued.

I agreed with the position as stated by Mr. McBride just a few moments ago; and had I had a chance to vote upon whether or not the subpoena should be issued, I would have opposed it for the very same reasons.

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. Chairman, we did, in executive session, discuss the proposition of getting the Governor, or, as was indicated, his subordinates, to this hearing. And I think by a unanimous vote we decided that we would extend that invitation, not by subpoena, but by letter.

That letter was prepared and it was addressed to the Governor, but before it was mailed it was circulated among all the members of the Committee for approval. And when the final draft was approved, it was mailed to the Governor. Whether he responded to it, I don't know. But I join with Mr. Lopresti in saying that if a change in procedure was to be had, I think the Chairman should have called another meeting of the Committee and the subject should have been discussed. But aside from all that, I understand from what I have heard here there was certain information wanted relative to the time and place the commutation was delivered from the Board of Pardons to the Governor's office. And from the letter that the Attorney General has read here this morning, that information has been conveyed to us, and it is part of the record. For that reason, I see no further reasons for discussing the proposition, although I very much appreciate—and I am sure everybody else here appreciates—the lecture that was given to us on the subject because it has been very educational.

SENATOR FLEMING: Well, Mr. Chairman—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Just a moment. The letter addressed to the Governor telling him he was welcome to voluntarily appear here was not mailed. It was delivered personally to his office. We had no response to that. I don't recall that we ever discussed the question of the personnel in his office. We did discuss the question of the Governor, and I stated at that time, and I state now, that I agree with the Attorney General's position with reference to inquiring into the discretionary acts of the Governor. And as I previously said, I disagree with his position that we dare not inquire into mere administrative acts of personnel who are in his office.

I merely want to set the record straight as to that so that there can be no misunderstandings that the Chairman has gone off the deep end on any of this material.

SENATOR FLEMING: Mr. Chairman, I would thoroughly agree with Senator Yosko about the letters to the Governor, but I don't think, Senator, that we did include the personnel of the Governor's office in that letter. I am almost sure that we did not. I only say that to keep the record straight.

I think we are all in accord that the Governor should, out of courtesy to him as the Chief Executive, be accorded the opportunity, if he so desires, to appear here, and that is entirely at his discretion. But at no time did we make any mention at all of any of the clerical help in the Executive office.

SENATOR YOSKO: Senator, in reply to you, I interpreted our action in the broad sense. I construed it to mean not only the Governor but those who are closely associated with him. And I repeat that if there was to be a deviation from what we had agreed upon, the least the Chairman of the Committee could have done before the subpoenas were issued was to call a meeting and advise us so that we could discuss the problem further. And that is the only question I am raising.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Mr. Chairman, my recollection of the conversation is very clear, and it is as expressed by Senator Fleming. It pertained to the Governor alone.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: That is correct, I believe. And if we want to recall the discussion, I think we will also have to say that the Attorney General at that moment advised the Committee that he would advise the Governor, in order to protect the office itself, not to appear before the Committee; and then our letter was written that we were not requesting him to be here but that if he himself wanted to be here, he was welcome.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: That is correct.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: And it applied only to the Governor, and not the staff.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: On the issue as to the subordinates—and while we are on the subject, may I, because I want you to have it clear, refer to the Hartranft's Appeal to give you an idea of what was involved there. It grew out of certain riots. There was an investigation by the Grand Jury, and the Grand Jury issued subpoenas to the Governor and certain other persons.

I would like to read an extract from the opinion showing who those other persons were and how far this immunity was extended in that case so as to cover not merely the Governor but any other subordinate or agents who acted under him in this particular aspect of the matter.

(Discussion off the record.)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right, General McBride?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, in order to show the broad coverage of this opinion in the Hartranft Appeal by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, I would like to read starting with page 443, as follows:

> "For the purpose of this case, however, we may admit the regularity of this subpoena and that upon an ordinary citizen it would have been binding and obligatory for we regard the question of the liability of the appellants to attachment, in any event, as the prime one of this case. In order to resolve this, we must first understand who the persons are against whom the Court has directed its attachment or for what purpose they have been subpoenaed. They are the Governor of Pennsylvania, the Secretary of the Commonwealth, the Adjutant-General, Chief Officers of the Executive Department of the State Government, and two officers of the National Guard, the latter subordinates acting under the orders of the former.
> "The purpose for which these officers are subpoenaed is that the Grand Jury may be put into possession of any information they may be possessed of or that may be within the power of their several departments concerning the military or other means used by them in the suppression of the late riots in the City of Pittsburgh.

"It will be observed that these persons are subpoenaed for the purpose of compelling a revelation of such things as come to their knowledge in their official capacities and which strictly belong to the several departments as officers of the Commonwealth, as is clearly set out in the answer by the Attorney General to the application for the attachment, and there has been no denial that that is so upon the argument before us.

"In order to simplify matters, we may treat this case just as though the process first and last were against the Governor alone, for if he is exempt from attachment because of his privilege his immunity protects his subordintes and agents."

And the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania quashed the attachment which had been issued by the lower court even as to the two officers of the National Guard of Pennsylvania and against all others, including the Governor.

Now I should like to say that I conceded once that the Committee was prefectly justified in issuing the subpoena. I contend, and I think the Committee counsel will probably agree, that the answer that the Attorney General makes to this body with respect and with deference, is also a correct answer, under the law.

Is that correct?

MR. KOHN: I do so concede, Mr. McBride, for that matter. I would like to say this, that that case is an 1877 case. I still think it is a law in force, and I think we had a right to issue the subpoena as the case holds. I also issued to the Committe a subpoena for Thomas K. Hodges, the former Press Secretary of the Governor, and that has not been served. And I imagine Mr. McBride would take the same position with respect to that.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, in respect of such an executive matter.

MR. KOHN: I must concur that that is the law of the land. I think that is their privilege.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Gentlemen, may we have those letters?

(Discussion off the record.)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Very well, these hearings will now recess until Monday, April 22, at ten o'clock a. m.

(Whereupon, at 2:40 p. m., the hearing was adjourned until 10:00 a. m., Monday, April 22, 1957.)

This is to certify that the proceedings and evidence are contained fully and accurately in the notes taken during the hearing before the Joint Legislative Committee to Conduct an Investigation of the Board of Pardons, and this is a correct transcript of the same.

REPRESENTATIVE PHILIP LOPRESTI.

SENATOR ROBERT D. FLEMING.

SENATOR WILLIAM Z. SCOTT.

SENATOR JOSEPH J. YOSKO.
Members of Committee.

APPEARANCES:

THOMAS D. McBRIDE, ESQUIRE, Attorney General, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania
For—Board of Pardons.

VICTOR H. WRIGHT, ESQUIRE, Deputy Attorney General, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania
For—Board of Pardons.

DAVID S. KOHN, ESQUIRE, 9 N. Front Street, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania
For—Committee.

JAMES WILLIAM EVANS, ESQUIRE, 5 N. Front Street,
For—Committee (Assisting Counsel).

JAMES K. ARNOLD, ESQUIRE, 2109 Market Street, Camp Hill, Pennsylvania
For—Committee (Assisting Counsel).

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: At the time of our recess the Attorney General had agreed to furnish the committee with certain information from the Governor's office. I wonder maybe if he has been able to get that information yet for us.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, I did get the information but I did not bring it down here in writing this morning. Would it be sufficient if I have it this afternoon?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Just so the committee gets the information.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, with particular application to the Darcy case and because of the Darcy case generally applying to the relationship between the Board of Pardons and the courts, I should like without the necessity of calling any formal witness to briefly show the committee the relationship of the very recent case of Willie Green which is fresh in the minds of the Board of Pardons and I would like to read briefly from the Supreme Court's opinion. I think it throws a whole lot of light that the Committee will want to have on the relationship between the two, not only as it applies to the Darcy case but to the broader question that the Committee is going into; that is the relationship of the Board of Pardons itself to the courts and I would like to hand these copies to the committee.

The case of William S. Green was one which had been in the courts for a number of years and he had been in the courts for a number of years. There was an atrocious murder committed on South Street at the Standard Theater in Philadelphia, and William Green was sentenced to life imprisonment and had served twelve years. I will not go into any great detail except to say that finally the case came before the Supreme Court under the Act of 1903, which in homicide cases provides for a new trial granted after term time on after discovered evidence. The lower court refused it. There were various lie detector tests taken and certain documentary evidence produced and one of the witnesses in one aspect of the case recanted, and great doubt was thrown upon the guilt of the defendant who was then serving time sufficient that the District Attorney of Philadelphia County appeared in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania urging that the new trial on after discovered evidence be granted.

Now I shall read from the opinion of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, holding its appellate review to be strictly limited and actually indicating that the proper place to go in such a case, even though all the judicial tribunals had held that there had been a fair trial and that due process of law had not been violated, was the Board of Pardons. The latest opinion of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania is still in the advance reports and it is reported at 387 Pennsylvania, 515, and after reciting the contentions, the Supreme Court said at page 518:

"The essence of Appellant's petition is that he was convicted on perjured testimony of a crime for which he has served almost ten years. Under the Act of 1903, our Appellate review is severely limited. There is obviously another door open to the Appellant. If his further restraint is unjustified in the light of subsequent developments, he may ask the Board of Pardons to recommend that the Governor exercise his power to grant a pardon. The appeal is dismissed."

That is the majority opinion and then there was a dissent. The dissent says at page 533—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Who was the dissenter?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Musmanno dissented, but the majority said what I have already read but both the majority and the dissenting Justices concur on this aspect of the case.

"This court, therefore, has already gone on record to the effect that if a man is convicted of murder and is then later proved innocent through the processes of a pardon, he must nevertheless bear the brand of Cain throughout the remaining journey of his life no matter how many witnesses recant, regardless of the unassailable proof of innocence presented to the Chief Executive of the Commonwealth and the Pardons Board and in spite of the language of a pardon which may completely exonerate and clear him of guilt. This court still insists that the once convicted but now guiltless free man must, so long as he lives, walk "as a fugitive and a wanderer on the earth!"

Now, therefore, despite the fact that he had exhausted all his purely legal remedies, he came before the Board of Pardons and the Board made a recommendation which the Governor approved and granted a pardon to William S. Green, an action which I think I am safe in saying has met with universal approval. The recommendation of the Board of Pardons points out what I would like to say.

It says:

"William S. Green was tried and convicted of Murder in the First Degree with punishment fixed at life imprisonment in April 1947. He is presently confined at the Eastern State Penitentiary. Persistent efforts on his behalf by his mother and several attorneys who had seriously doubted his guilt all these years have uncovered documented evidence which tends not only to cast doubt on his guilt but even to establish his actual innocence of the crime.

"Petitions for a new trial have been presented to the court, but the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania felt that it had no jurisdiction to grant a new trial over the adverse finding of the lower court even though the District Attorney joined with counsel for Green in requesting a new trial. The Supreme Court suggested that the matter be brought before the Board of Pardons. At the hearing before the Board the District Attorney's Office not only did not oppose the application but joined in it. The evidence presented and the presentation both indicate that there is more than reasonable doubt as to William S. Green's guilt. They both apparently establish his actual innocence.

"This case is peculiarly one calling for action by the Board of Pardons. Here is presented a situation where our ordinary legal processes are impotent to rectify the wrong to Green and to require his immediate release. As the Supreme Court pointed out in noting that Green may go to this Board, its appellate review in these cases is 'severely limited.' Hence, the Board may and should be called upon to act, to go beyond the strict confines of law and to exercise its ultimate power to do justice and recommend executive clemency. The Board exists primarily to carry out this extra-legal and extra-judicial function, and no better case could be presented exemplifying the need for it to take action. In its absence no other tribunal could remedy the wrong done to Green; a vacuum would exist in which an innocent person would be confined without reason.

"William S. Green has languished in jail for over ten years. It is time that he be released. Accordingly the Board recommends that a full pardon be granted to Green and that he be released from the Eastern State Penitentiary."

We think, may it please the Board, that this is a case which highlights and brings into direct focus the contentions that this committee will be called upon to resolve.

SENATOR SCOTT: General, what does the Act of 1903 authorize the Supreme Court to do then? If it is limited in its scope and does not allow them to go this far, what does it acutally authorize the Court to do, take jurisdiction in what type of appeal?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE. We are all familiar with the fact that under Pennsylvania law there can be no motion for a new trial made after term time and there is, however, a way of bringing up errors of fact as opposed to errors of law, known as the writ of error coram nobis. Now the Act of 1903 as far as homicide cases abolishes the writ of error coram nobis as held by the Supreme Court, and abolishes also the requirement that a motion for new trial be made in term time.

It indicates upon presentation of a petition, the lower court can get the approval of the Supreme Court to review by it, the lower court, of the evidence notwithstanding the expiration of the term for the purpose of determining whether the evidence, A, is after discovery and, B, whether that after discovered evidence is sufficient to warrant a new trial.

Now the lower court did get that permission, reviewed it and decided that it did not warrant it. Then the appeal was taken to the Supreme Court and the issue in this part of the Supreme Court's review of the Green case was limited to the question of whether or not there is actually an appeal at that point from the lower court and they held, the majority held, that the Supreme Court was powerless to act except on what would be called a certiorari, which went only to the jurisdiction of the court and since the court did have jurisdiction, their review was strictly limited but in making that decision, the important part to observe is that even though they had affirmed the conviction originally, even though the lower court had reaffirmed it by refusing to grant a new trial and all judicial remedies were at an end, the Supreme Court nevertheless pointed out that the way is still open, obviously as they said, with an appeal to the Board of Pardons.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: May I see that sheet just a moment?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: General, I would be interested to know—could you tell me who wrote this Reason for the Pardons Board?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I did.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: It sounds like good Attorney General language.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I tried to make it so.

SENATOR SCOTT: And the Governor did grant a full pardon there?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: He did.

SENATOR SCOTT: There was no commutation of sentence?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: He and all of us were mindful of precisely the contradiction that you, Senator, pointed out; that where there is proof of innocence, there should be no trifling with it by granting a commutation. The man should be pardoned fully and that was done.

SENATOR SCOTT: Which I agree with one hundred per cent.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I was not at liberty at that time to cite this case. I had it in my mind and the Board of Pardons had already decided the matter. I did not feel at liberty to call it to your attention publicly until the Governor, until the Reasons were written up and until the Governor had acted.

Major Conway.

CARL G. CONWAY, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Major, what is your occupation?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: May we get his full name, General?

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Will you give your full name for the record, please?

A Carl G. Conway—C-o-n-w-a-y.

Q What is your occupation?

A I am a Major of the Guard at the State Penitentiary at Rockview, Bellefonte.

Q How long have you been in the State service?

A Next year will be sixteen years.

Q And how long have you been at Rockview?

Q Sixteen years, all that time?

A Sixteen years.

A Yes.

Q And you have come up through the ranks so that you are now a Major?

A Yes sir.

Q At Rockview, what are your duties?

A To supervise the custodial staff of which there are probably 155 custodial officers.

Q Do you also have any supervisory jurisdiction over what is known as the death house?

A Yes sir, the custodial treatment of the inmate population at large.

Q Including that?

A Including the death house, yes sir.

Q Did you know Harold Foster, Harry Zietz and David Darcy?

A Yes sir.

Q Do you remember when they came in?

A Yes sir.

Q I do not think the committee will mind my prompting him as to the precise date, just to get it on the record; March 31, 1951 at 9:27 a. m.?

A Yes sir.

Q Were they immediately sent to the electrocution building?

A Yes sir, they were taken directly there.

Q And how long did they remain there?

A They were there until October—just a moment—until September 30, in the electrocution building. Then they were removed to the maximum security cell block until October 3, 1956, when they were returned to the Eastern State Penitentiary.

Q Now during the course of these hearings, there have been statements pro and con about the method of handling persons in the electrocution building. How long is the average person in that building?

A The time of arrival of these men is normally the time of arrival of any condemned man and up until recently, the date or the time of execution was 12:30, after midnight Sunday night or 12:30 Monday morning. They usually came in Saturday from early morning until noon or early afternoon, and would remain until Monday morning at 12:30 and the executions were scheduled as nearly after 12:30 a. m. Monday morning as possible.

Q So that they would remain less than forty-eight hours?

A That is correct, sir.

Q It would be less than forty-eight, wouldn't it?

A They came in Saturday morning and would remain until after 12:30 Monday morning.

Q Were there any others in your sixteen years that remained in the electrocution building as long as these men?

A No sir.

Q Now when they are brought in, are they placed in a cell?

A They are; the execution building room is on the second floor of what we call the Deputy Warden's Building. They are immediately taken into a receiving cell and there their clothes are removed, they are bathed, their heads are shaven and they are given a shave, and then we take some questions from them to fill in for our execution docket, such as their date of birth, where they were sentenced, how long they remained in county jails, their religion, service if any, in the Armed Forces and so forth.

Q Was the normal procedure followed in the case of these men?

A Yes sir.

Q Now they, however, were not electrocuted the following Monday morning or Monday evening?

A No sir.

Q And they remained in that building until October 1956, which would be about five and one-half years.

A September of 1956; then they were removed to a cell block.

Q Now while they were there, would you tell us the procedure as to lights on and off?

A There are no lights in the cells in which they are kept but there is a light on a standard that is turned toward the entrance of the cell. It hangs from above the doorway of the cell and it shows through the grill at all times.

Q At all times, at night and day?

A Yes sir, if the day is a particularly bright one, why sometimes it is not necessary to keep it on but normally night and day there is light.

Q It is never turned off at night, is it?

A No sir, there is a custodial officer in full view of the men at all times.

Q Were there any other men brought to that room to be executed during the time that they were there?

A Yes sir.

Q Could you tell us how many?

A At least seven.

Q And were they executed?

A Yes sir.

Q Did those men for the short period of time they were in that building occupy cells adjacent to these three?

A Yes sir.

Q Were they prepared for execution in the immediate vicinity of these men?

A Yes sir.

Q Were they taken from that room into the electrocution chamber?

A Yes sir.

Q Did they receive their last rites from the clergyman of their particular faith and the last visits of their families in that room?

A Yes sir.

Q Were these men in adjacent cells?

A That is correct, they were taken from the cells to receive visits but it would be in the same general room.

Q And how big is the room, about how many feet? I think you said there are eight cells. How wide are they?

A There are eight cells and approximately six feet each.

Q So the whole range of the cell is about forty-eight feet?

A Yes, but there is a wide corridor. When you would bring them out of the cells to have a visit, that, of course, would be in the wide corridor forefronting on the cells, the front end of the cells.

Q During the time that these three were there, starting with March 31, 1951, did they receive exercise?

A The first exercise they received was on order of Secretary of Welfare Brown, on recommendation of the General Devers Committee, who were at Rockview either the latter part of February or the first part of March of 1953. Before that they did not receive exercise.

Q So that for two years they had no exercise at all?

A That is correct.

Q Were they able to talk to anybody out of the general prison population?

A No sir.

Q Were they able to talk to anybody at all?

A Well there was a custodial officer and they periodically had visits from their families which were regular visits.

Q Now were these men themselves prepared for death on any occasions?

A Yes sir.

Q How many?

A Well I am certain of one. The first time, the first week end they were there, and I would hesitate to say any further.

Q Were their heads ever shaved preparatory for execution?

A Yes sir, as each date when they were respited and the new date drew near, their heads were shaven. That was standard procedure.

Q How near?

A I would say if it were set for Sunday night, perhaps Tuesday or Wednesday of the week prior to that.

Q And about how often did that take place?

A Well I would hestitate to say that, depending upon the number of respites they had or the dates that they had.

Q Now I have a list. I do not think it would be important or material to read the names, but this list indicates that from April 23, 1951 to and including May 26, 1956 there were twenty executions.

A Yes sir.

Q Is that in accord with your own recollection?

A Yes sir, and the first seven, they remained in the execution building during the executions but the balance of them, after Commissioner Prasse became Commissioner of the Bureau of Corrections, they were removed to another cell block.

Q So that starting with the execution that took place on the 15th of March 1954, they were removed sometime before the execution?

A Yes sir.

Q How long before?

A I would say about 9:00 o'clock in the evening before, 9:30 or 10:00 o'clock.

Q With the execution to take place when?

A As nearly after 12:30 the next morning.

Q About three or four hours before they were removed?

A Yes.

Q Then after the execution they would be brought back?

A After everything had been cleared away, all the people had gone; of course, everything was back to as normal as it could be at that time of the night.

Q Your own duties in connection with executions were to gather the official witnesses and so forth and accompany them into the execution chamber?

A We prepare the warrants for the witnesses and the newspapermen and the sheriff to bring the body, and then the night of the execution or the night preceding we would—

MR. KOHN: Could you raise your voice a little? We can't hear you with your face turned.

THE WITNESS: Yes sir.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Just sit back and take it easy.

THE WITNESS: I am sorry. We would gather in the warden's office and receive the witnesses and the newspapermen there, and when the time arrived that we would go into the execution building I would escort the witnesses and the newspapermen into the Warden's Building where everybody would be registered and when that was finished, we would go up to the second floor and the execution would take place. Of course, there was a time for all of that.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Now during this period from March 31, 1951 up until September 30, 1956, do you know of any judicial proceedings or any procedings of any kind which were pending in the matter of Harold Foster and Harry Zietz?

A I do not believe I could answer that, although I seem to recollect that Zietz had filed for a commutation of sentence but I do not know that that was taken up in the courts.

Q Do you know whether it was after March 31, 1951?

A Yes sir, it seems to me that there was an attorney by the name of Kaminski, who came there sometime in the summer of 1956 and I was in on a visit with him and I seem to recall that he had Zietz sign some papers at that time.

Q What I meant really—I know that all of them had their cases taken up before the Board of Pardons in 1956, but until that happened before the Board of Pardons, was there anything pending in the courts that would prevent the execution of Harold Foster or Harry Zietz?

A Not to the best of my knowledge.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is all I have.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q You say there was nothing in your files. Did you go over the files in this case?

A No sir.

Q You say there was nothing in there to prevent the execution of Zietz or Foster?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: There were no judicial proceedings.

MR. KOHN: I know your question. I am asking him what he knows.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Do you know of anything in the file which would prevent the execution of Zietz or Foster? That is the question I asked, not judicial but otherwise.

A May I answer in my own way? When a date is set for an execution, up until the time another respite is issued we proceed as though there is going to be an execution.

Q Did you receive respites?

A Yes sir, the Warden's office would receive that.

Q That prevented their execution, didn't it?

A Yes sir.

Q And did you testify to all the facts that you testified to here before the Board of Pardons at any time?

A Did I?

Q Yes.

A No sir.

Q Do you know of anybody that did?

A No sir.

Q Do you know of any of these facts ever having come before the Board of Pardons at any time?

A No sir.

Q Were you asked to testify here today?

A Yes sir, the Commissioner—

Q Who went over your testimony with you?

A Nobody, sir.

Q You were just called in here and you testified. Nobody ever questioned you about what and no one went over the facts with you?

A No sir, what few facts I have I brought with me.

Q That is in your head, you mean? You brought the facts from your memory? You didn't bring any records along?

A I brought one sheet of paper, yes sir. In fact, several sheets of paper.

Q Where are they?

A Over at my chair.

Q Did you make notes of the case?

A I assumed that whenever I was informed that I should be here, that it would have something to do with how many executions there were and the fact that—

Q How many did you testify that you knew about?

A I answered General McBride's question that there were seven happened while the men were in the execution building.

Q How many altogether that you know of in the last six years?

A There had been twenty since they were at Rockview.

Q Were these men treated any different than any other men who were up for execution and given respites from time to time?

A Well we never had any that had that many respites before.

Q What I mean, were these men treated any different when they got respites from time to time for either judicial proceedings or stayed by the Governor? Were they treated any different?

A Yes sir.

Q They were?

A Yes sir.

Q Well how were they treated different?

A They were granted privileges that normally a condemned man does not get.

Q That is right. Who was that?

A Darcy, Foster and Zietz.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q I think that General McBride asked you a question—I don't recall that you answered it, you went into something else—as to what is the average length of stay in the death house?

A Normally a man will arrive the morning before the date of execution and the sentence is—

Q You are telling us that the average stay is only a matter of some several days, as over a week end?

A Yes, not even two full days.

Q Now you say you have been out there sixteen years?

A Yes sir.

Q What is the longest time that anybody has been in the death house in your sixteen years experience prior to the Zietz, Foster and Darcy cases?

A To the best of my recollection, about three months.

Q About three months?

A I would not want to state for certain but I seem to recall.

Q Do you know from the records what is the longest stay anybody was in the death house prior to these three since executions have taken place by means of the electric chair?

A Only from what I have heard. I have never checked the records but I have heard it said that I believe seventeen months.

Q I believe the warden, not the warden but one of your men—

A Deputy Warden Johnson.

Q Made that statement to me in your presence when I was up to Rockview some several months ago.

A That is right.

Q How heavy a light is that in that cell? What wattage or voltage?

A I would say forty. We have forty watt bulbs on all through the institution.

Q And there is no reason why they should be any different.

A I would not be able to answer that.

Q That would not be considered a glaring light, would it?

A I would not think so except that it is in a metal shade and all the light is focused toward—reflected toward the cell.

Q Do you know if this light ever disturbed their rest at night time? Do they ever make any complaints about this light disturbing their rest?

A At night time?

Q Yes.

A No sir, not to the best of my knowledge.

Q When the people came to visit up there, what would be the duration of the average visit, Mr. Conway?

A About an hour and a half.

Q About an hour and a half. And how often did these three men receive visitors?

A They varied; I believe probably Darcy received the most visits, with Zietz next and Foster the least.

Q What would be the average of Darcy's visits?

A Almost every two weeks, there would be exceptions probably but they were pretty regular visitors as well as Zietz's family.

Q Do your records or the notes that you made before you came down here show how many times the heads of these three men were shaved in preparation for execution?

A No sir, we have no record on that.

Q It runs in my—I don't know how correct I am, but in going through the records they indicate I believe that they had their heads shaved on three different occasions, at least that close to the execution.

Do you know how many reprieves there were in this case, Major?

A No.

Q I think there were twenty-three, were there not?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Twenty-three of Darcy, twenty-nine of the other two.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q These men were not prepared twenty-three different times, were they, had their heads shaved twenty-three different times?

A No sir.

Q Now you speak of exercise for these men sometime in the beginning of 1953. What did that exercise consist of, Major?

A We would take them out of the building, under guard, of course, and let them walk around a compound that we had between cell blocks until an exercise yard was completed for them approximately in September, I would say the middle of September 1953. After that they were exercised daily, weather permitting, in that exercise yard which was probably an area, oh say, twenty by sixty feet, something like that.

Q What would be the duration of that exercise?

A About an hour to an hour and a half, depending upon the weather.

Q What would it consist of, Major?

A They played games of their own. We permitted them a baseball bat and a baseball, and they would take turns pitching and batting and fielding. That was about it.

Q And that was a daily occurrence excepting for weather conditions?

A Inclement weather and week ends we did not have sufficient personnel to do it.

Q How did these men generally behave while they were up there?

A Generally they behaved pretty well.

Q Were you acquainted with the report which Warden Baldy made I believe in the fall of 1954 or 1955?

A Yes sir.

Q Do you know what his report stated?

A I do not know everything that it stated, no sir, but I have read the report.

Q You don't happen to have a copy of that report with you do you?

A No sir.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Just as a matter of information, why are the executions set for 12:30?

A That has been changed, too. It is now 9:00 o'clock on Monday night.

Q Why is it 9:00 o'clock?

A They have to arrive at a time. The sentence reads the week beginning Monday and in prior times, it was as soon after Monday as possible and it is the Warden's prerogative, I believe.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That is an arbitrary rule, it is not?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: In any humane State when a man is about to die, the Governor and probably the Attorney General stand ready with an open wire in case anything happens at the last minute that warrants a respite. We are reminded of the case in California just some time ago where the Governor instead of being at the Executive Mansion, happened to be out on a ship and tried desperately, so he says, to get into the prison chamber and was a minute or two late.

Now when the executions take place as they had been after midnight, it was thought to be a decent thing—that is when the order is to execute during that week—instead of keeping a man on the anxious bench prepared for the execution and delaying it until Tuesday or Wednesday, they used to do it immediately after midnight but it was thought also that it would be better if it were fixed for 9:00 o'clock Monday night and so those whose duty it was to stand by, prepared to issue a last minute respite should there come to the attention of the authorities anything that warranted it, then they would all be available. I think all the Governors of Pennsylvania have remained in their offices for an hour or two at least, and possibly more, before every execution took place.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Mr. Conway, you said that Mr. Zietz and Mr. Foster and Mr. Darcy were prepared for execution at least one time, is that right?

A One that I am positive of.

Q And on that one occasion, did I understand you to say that the newspapermen and the witnesses and all that sort of thing were assembled in the execution chamber?

A No sir, they were in the Warden's office which is outside the stockade fence.

Q And how much time elapsed between the hour set for the execution and the time you were notified or somebody was notified that a reprieve was granted?

A That first week end?

Q Yes.

A As I recollect, it was about 11:30 when the Deputy United States Marshal arrived with a respite. Now there could have been phone calls prior to that; I do not know that but where I was—

Q Eleven-thirty at night?

A Yes sir.

Q And the execution was set for around 12:30?

A Twelve-thirty.

Q Who issued the reprieve?

A I do not know.

Q What year was that in?

A That was in 1951.

Q You do not know of any other times that these three prisoners were prepared for execution?

A I seem to recollect that one respite was from early Monday morning until the latter part of the week, maybe Wednesday or Thursday, but I cannot tell you the date but I seem to have recollection of that.

Q Well then how much time elapsed, if you know, between the time set for the execution and the time the next reprieve was granted?

A I do not know that.

Q Would your records show that?

A Yes sir, all those records are all here somewhere. We sent them all down.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I believe Mr. Kohn has them all here.

MR. KOHN: They are up in the Pardons Board file.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q That would be two occasions then that you are familiar with?

A Yes sir.

Q Were there any others?

A Not to the best of my recollection. I wouldn't like to say "no" or "yes."

Q Then on two occasions at least they were prepared for execution?

A Yes sir, the one I am positive of. The other I assume they were.

Q You are not positive of the others?

A I am assuming that they were, but I do not know how soon the respite came after the scheduled—the temporary respite before the respite came setting another date. I do not know that. That would be in the records but I do not know.

Q You said that their conduct was pretty good.

A Generally I said.

Q Well what do you mean by pretty good?

A Well after confinement and such close confinement for that many years, naturally once in a while they would act up, not viciously, nothing like that, but they would become dissatisfied, liked more privileges and so forth, but that would seem to me in all those years a pretty normal reaction.

Q What affect did you notice on either or all of the prisoners after the first reprieve was granted?

A Well naturally they were overjoyed when they received the information the first time and I cannot say what reaction occurred in them after that, but at the time they gave thanks to God and one fell on the floor and that was the only time that I recall any emotional show of their reaction.

Q You say he fell on the floor. Just what do you mean by that?

A Well the one boy dropped on the floor and cried and gave thanks to God and got back up on his feet.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q You mean he kneeled or prostrated?

A Yes, he just went on his knees and hung onto the grille in front and cried. That was the first week end.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q What change if any did you notice in the mental attitude of either or all the prisoners from the time they were admitted to the death house until they got their commutation?

A Well I am, of course, not qualified to speak for that but I was amazed that they held up as well as they did after that many years under such close confinement. They improved after we took them out for exercise. When they got outdoors and were able to be in the weather and got some sun, their physical appearance improved. I cannot speak for their mental condition.

Q Are they at Rockview now?

A No sir, they were taken away from there on October 3, 1956.

Q You said, too, or I heard Mr. Kohn ask you a question about special privileges.

A Yes sir.

Q What special privileges did they get?

A Well normally a condemned man only has a Bible, crucifix, rosary or something of a religious nature in his cell with him. After they were there a number of months or perhaps a couple of years, we permitted magazines, fiction books, paper and pencil and so forth.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Radio?

A And radio, yes sir, not in the cell but out in the corridor.

Q You had the control of it on the outside?

A Yes sir.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q The first set of rules you were talking about or restrictions, they applied to the prisoner who comes in seventy-two or forty-eight hours before execution?

A That is right, usually he is not concerned with anything else because a chaplain takes up most of his time in the normal procedure where they only remain forty-eight hours.

Q And they were subjected to the same rules in the beginning?

A Yes sir.

Q You said there were I think two other prisoners there that were there for a period of—one was for a period of three months I guess.

A The one I know of for three months and the other I heard in the presence of Mr. Tompkins was there seventeen months, but that was before I was there.

Q The prisoner that was there for three months, did the strict rules that you talk about apply—the prayer book?

A At that time, that was quite some time ago and I was very often up in the execution room, but I was not in charge at that time. I could not say that.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Major Conway, what type of cells are persons sentenced to solitary confinement placed in? What do you class that type of cell?

A That is our prison cell. You mean the court sentences to that?

Q No, what I mean is that if a man receives I believe you call it separate solitary confinement sentence, is he put in a special type of cell?

A No sir, when they come to Rockview they go in the general population.

Q Do you have cells where men are confined by themselves at Rockview?

A We have disciplinary cells, punishment cells for infraction of the rules. The cell is alike except they are restricted as to privileges and so on.

Q Now at Rockview are men in separate cells?

A Yes sir.

Q And are those cells lighted at night?

A The lights go out at eleven o'clock.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: That is all.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q That is the corridor light and everything else?
A I beg your pardon.
Q Corridor lights and everything else?
A No, just the cell lights.
Q Just the cell lights.
A Cell lights.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Major, separate and solitary confinenment as it used to be known years and years ago is now reserved only for punishment cases, isn't it?

A Yes, and all our punishment cells are in a line.

Q Yet even those are not a true "separate solitary confinement"?

A That is right.

Q Now when it was brought out that these men got special privileges that was because of the humane attitude of the prison officials?

A Yes sir.

Q It was not the result of any special influence or anything like that?

A No, it was no order. It was within the prison itself. The Warden and Deputy Warden decided they should have privileges in order to occupy their time.

Q It was considered good prison discipline?

A It was certainly to our advantage to keep them in the best of health and best of spirits since we had them.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is all.

SENATOR FLEMING: Major, I wanted to ask you two questions if I could. Sometime during this hearing it was brought about that some of the inmates in various penitentiaries are given to believe by the grapevine that there were certain attorneys and only certain attorneys that could plead their case correctly before the Pardons Board. Assuming that that is right, then the committee and I came to some kind of an agreement and I believe General McBride—I think I am correct in this, sir—that you agreed word would go out to the prisons that that was not to be the practice. I mean that that did not mean anything, is that correct?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I certainly do agree with that.

BY SENATOR FLEMING:

Q Well now my question to you, Major, would that have any effect on the inmates? Would they still think there were certain types of attorneys that you should go to?

A I think that is an individual like or dislike. There are many inmates in there that have faith in a certain few attorneys and none in others.

Q Yes, believe me I am not trying to trap you into any type of an answer at all. Isn't the feeling prevalent that there are certain types of certain attorneys that might have influence with a Republican Board and other attorneys that might have influence with a Democratic Board?

A I imagine the inmate population feels that, yes sir,

Q Is there anything we could do to quell that in their minds, to put that out of their minds? That is what I am trying to get at.

A I doubt that.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Are there any attorneys as far as your experience is concerned that are considered to be prison lawyers?

A No sir, but if I may say so there are several inmates that act as prison attorneys in the prison and try to get the other inmates to file writs or attempts to file writs and so forth. They will argue their case for them out of court.

MR. KOHN: In fact, there are some prisoners up there who issue writs of habeas corpus.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: There are prisoners up there who prepare writs of habeas corpus and sell them to other prisoners.

THE WITNESS: We do not permit that in our place. The chaplain takes care—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Wasn't one of the demands of the prisoners during the riot that they get law books, a whole set of Purdon's so they could prepare cases?

THE WITNESS: That is right. We still permit them to prepare writs but—

MR. KOHN: But you haven't furnished them with the law books?

THE WITNESS. And those prison attorneys are all in there, too. They are not all out on the street

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Do those prison attorneys tend to adjudicate that stuff?

A A certain percentage of the population, a small percentage of the population.

Q Is that some basis for unrest sometimes among them?

A Well very often a man who returns to prison several times is something of an attorney himself he thinks. He is always looking for a legal technicality by which he can beat the sentence.

Q Well what is the position of the Warden in connection with that kind of practice?

A Well we frown on it if he is caught, but we wouldn't let him go around holding sessions, advising inmate groups or bodies, but naturally we do not know about most of the sessions.

Q These three men were up there at the time of the riot at Rockview, were they not?

A Yes sir.

Q Did the riot reach the section where they were?

A Well they probably could hear the noise but they did not make any. They, of course, were interested in what was going on but they did not—

Q They did not participate?

A They did not give vent to their emotions at the time, no sir.

BY SENATOR FLEMING:

Q Major, I would presume through the newspapers the inmates would know about this investigating committee.

A Oh, yes sir, we permit them—

Q Has it had any type of affect on the prisoners involved, either good or bad?

A Not to the best of my knowledge, no sir. I have heard of no incident.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Major, was the conduct of either or all of the three, Zietz, Foster and Darcy, such that required punishment during the time they were there?

A No sir, most of the infractions, should I say, they were guilty of was they bathed regularly and we put ar normal amoutn of water in the tub. Sometimes they would ask for the tub filled and that would irritate them, and I think at times they objected to not receiving more than one portion of food, one serving, and they would complain a little about that or perhaps we use compartmental plates and I imagine the juice from one vegetable could run over into the other, carried the distance it was carried, prepared in the kitchen and carried over to the execution builling which I imagine is nearly 100 yards, I would say.

Q And did you say there were twenty executions during the period they were confined in the death house?

A Yes sir.

Q Was there any display of emotion by any of those electrocuted that was witnessed by either one of these three prisoners?

A No sir, we had six cells that we could use for condemned men and they would be removed to the last three cells the day before or perhaps early the day that the new ones would arrive, and they could not actually see them. We had a screen between them but they could hear.

Q And did any of the prisoners that were being led from the death cell to the execution chamber, did they scream or yell?

A Not that the others could hear, no sir. There is not any screaming or yelling to the best of my knowledge; there has not been.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Major, this recreation pen that was built for these three boys, during the time that they used it or since, has it been used by any others?

A Yes sir, we use it for all punishment cases now. If they are confined for a very long period, they are given exercise according to the rules. We use it everyday.

Q How about the men in the death house or weren't they there long enough to use it?

A We have not had anybody since.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q How far is it from the death cell to the death chamber?

A Well, as I said, there are eight cells approximately six feet wide, so that would be forty-eight feet. Then there is a corridor of possible ten feet; then there is an anteroom of maybe six feet and then you are in the chair room.

Q How long does it take to get from the death cell to the death chamber?

A During an execution?

Q In time, yes, a minute, half-miute?

A Not over a minute if they walk slow. The normal procedure is for the condemned man to follow his chaplain and they walk very slowly. Usually the chaplain is praying and very often the condemned man is following his prayer or repeating it.

Q And is there any kind of a noise when the switch is thrown?

A Yes, when they close the switches it makes a noise. I cannot describe the noise but it is two thousand volts and when you throw the switch, there is a noise. there is a sound.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It dims the lights.

THE WITNESS. Very little.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Would anybody in the area of the death cell where these people are confined, would they know that the switch was thrown?

A I would think so. I am in there so I cannot speak for those outside.

Q You don't know then?

A I mean I definitely hear it. Of course, I can see it. Then there are rheostats that are turned up and down, and they have a tendency to make a little noise, too, but how far it can be heard, I cannot answer that.

Q What are they?

A Rheostats.

Q What is that?

A Well it is something that applies amperage, to the best of my knowledge. I am not an electrician either but I know that they close the two thousand volt line and then the amperage is turned on.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I believe that is all, Major.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE. Thank you, Major.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Just one more question I wanted to ask you. Did Darcy ever make any remarks in your presence that they would never burn?

A No sir.

ARTHUR T. PRASSE, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q What is your full name, Mr. Prassse?

A Arthur T. Prasse.

Q And what is your occcupation with the State government?

A I am Commissioner of Correction for all of the State penitentiaries.

Q How long have you been connected with the government of the State of Pennsylvania?

A Well off and on I have been fifteen years, twenty-two years with the State government and thirty years in prison work in State-aided institutions, ten years in State-aided institutions. The rest of the time was State institutions.

Q Now which Governor appointed you Commissioner of Correction?

A Governor Fine.

Q And Governor Leader continued you?

A That is right, sir.

Q At any time either under Republican or Democratic Administrations were you required to get any political sponsorship?

A I have never had any political sponsorship.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Before he testifies, I would like to read the Devers Report, congratulating Governor Fine on Mr. Prasse's appointment and it says this:

"Your Excellency's choice of Commissioner or Correction is to be commended. During this short tenure in his new capacity the Commissioner has demonstrated a determination and ability to overcome obstacles with efficiency and expedition; he has exhibited insight into the needs of an effective peno-correctional system, and his leadership has been inspirational to the employees in the institutions under his jurisdiction."

This is the report of the Devers Committe.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I agreed with the report at that time and I still agree with it.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: And I might add to it that he had a very fine record out at the George Junior Republic.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: And at White Hill.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Therefore, I think the committe and all of us would appreciate hearing from you, Commissioner, about the death house—not to dwell on it too long because we have heard it from Major Conway—your acquaintance with the Zietz, Foster and Darcy case and then I will put some other questions to you.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Are you familiar with these three men?

A Well I had seen them on two or three occasions. When I went up, I always talk to the prisoners in the death house when I am in the institution, and I had spoken to these three boys, asking them how they were and how they were getting along. One time one of them complained at little about a fissure that he might have and the doctor took him over into the hospital and performed an operation, and I think that one of the boys—I believe that was Zietz. He went to the hospital quite a number of times I think to have his eyes taken care of. He had a little trouble with this eyes.

Q Can you throw any light for the committee on the question of this practice of not giving them exercise and what, if anything, you did about it?

A Well they were not given any exercise until just after the Devers' Committee had suggested that they be taken out for exercise and I became Commissioner of Correction September 1, 1953. At that time they had taken them around. Major Conway has said that they had given them some exercise but there was a yard built just for these three men.

One of the things they did not do, and that was brought out in the other, but there was some procedure in the execution of men that was changed at my insistence and my direction. One of them was that they be taken from the death cell and taken across into one of the other buildings before an execution would take place, and not to be brought back until sufficient time had elapsed so that there would be no signs of the execution and I also directed that a screen be put up where none of the prisoners would know even when we had two or three executions; that the one man would not go through the torments of watching the other fellow make the trip to the electrocution chamber. I thought it was inhuman to keep people in there and knowing that probably their number would come up in the same way. I think from the psychological standpoint, I think it was hard on them. That was the reason that change was made.

The change in the hours was again at my direction and that used to be at 12:30 or after 12:30, but it necessitated holding a line open at that time and two or three people sitting over in the Governor's office here and any number of men who had to be called in for an execution—there are quite a number of people—and it went on until 2:00 or 3:00 o'clock in the morning before anything was settled and men would have to come back to work again at 6:00 o'clock and even those who spent time here at the Governor's office did not get home until 2:00 o'clock in the morning. So, the time was changed so that we would have it right after the boys were locked up and regardless of when an electrocution is taking place, there is a calm that comes over an institution. There is a sense that you can feel it when you go in there. It is not a pleasant thing, and we tried in every way to make it as humane as possible for everybody because it is something no one likes to do.

Q Is that the reason for the special privileges, such as reading magazines and things that these men, by reason of their long stay there, got which are not usually given to those who have a day or two stay?

A Well certainly with a man who was coming in there for his last twenty-four hours, he did not care to read a novel. He spent his time with the clergyman or the chaplain of his faith, and there was plenty there to be done. He was preparing himself for his last hours and it is different with boys that you have in the cell for a long period of time. They have to have something to—one of the boys I think was studying history and another one was taking up shorthand. Certainly that was the reason it was given to them. They are not privileges. I should say it is more program. Where they should have been was back in the population, because we have in the Commonwealth today about 478 lifers and they have a program and they have nothing more to look to than the Pardons Board; that they have hope and that hope comes from the Pardons Board. They know that if they follow the program that is layed out and if they have a change and they move along to become more useful, better citizens possibly, and by their conduct and by their application in the prisons, some day they have hopes that they will be returned to society.

Q Could you run a jail if those men did not have that hope?

A No, it is a part of the whole correctional program, rehabilitation. A man takes upon himself the duty to punish and, of course, he must take with that the duty or the responsibility to restore and without the Pardons Board or without the Parole Board, you have taken away from these men hope, all of the hope that they have. The prisons are a gift of the community and it is an asset to the community the same as your police officer is a gift of the community by the community; your courts, all of it is one in the whole process of law, your general hospitals, your mental hospitals, and we think that we are making, doing our part to try to rehabilitate and try to bring men back to society after being with us and with that, and without this due process of law that includes probation and parole, the custody of course, education and training, hospitals and everything else that goes with it, I think one is as important as the other.

Q Are you a member of the National Association of Prison Wardens or whatever the name is?

A Yes, I am. I am an officer in that.

Q Do you know most of the wardens in the United States?

A I think I know all of them.

Q Are they generally in agreement with the views you expressed?

A That is generally so.

Q Do you have a program as to lifers, for instance, of moving the men who are trying to be rehabilitated from Western to Rockview?

A Yes, we do.

Q And is your whole effort concentrated upon the weeding out of the men as to whom you have reason to believe that they can be rehabilitated and others that you think have a less chance?

A We have hope for all men. Of course, some of them we realize, too, that their chances are not as good. They have not accepted and that ten per cent possibly never will be the kind of people we want them to be, that society wants them to be, but for the most part I would say most of these people can be reclaimed. We have a process, of course. It is not only a process of classification of the prisoners but it is the classification of the institutions and when these men fit the classifications or they are best suited or the program is suited to take care of the individual's needs, that is the institution he is sent to.

Q Now you have had experience both with the present Pardons Board and the preceding Pardons Board. Now without directing your attention to any particular one or attempting to make a distinction between them, do you find generally that they paid close attention to recommendations given by the prisons?

A I say that all of the Pardons Boards that I have had to deal with, of the individuals that have been elected or come into office, I have had no reason at any time to not respect and honor their integrity, and they have a job to do and whatever their decisions are, we have abided by them.

I say this, that although we have no suggestions or recommendations to make in capital cases—we have no suggestions to make there unless it be a life imprisonment—that we do examine and we do report on all of the prisoners to the Pardons Board and to the district attorneys and to the judges, so that they have the material that we have found and the material that we have or any examinations are for the courts and Pardons Board. We have even gone further. I think that we take a vote through our classification and our treatment clinic as to what they individually think that the person's chances are; whether he has made progress, whether they approve or whether they are for or against, and I would say that every Pardons Board—and there have been some changes in the Pardons Board—I would say they have treated us and treated our suggestions with all due regard.

Q Are you presently, in connection with the present Pardons Board, making recommendations for or against the granting of executive clemency?

A Yes, we do. We do from the clinic; from the treatment clinic we do that. The behavior of the man, his past record, his institutional record, all of that is brought out and those recommendations do go to the Pardons Board.

Q Now speaking generally, do you feel that those recommendations are given weight judging by the results of the cases? You know what recommendations you make and what results occur. Do you feel that they are paid no attention to or that they are given appropriate weight?

A I think that they are given appropriate weight and we have gone over our records here for the last several months and with very, very few exceptions I think that we would be looking at the problem and we would come up with about the same answer.

Q That is the staff and the Pardons Board?

A Staff and the Pardons Board, that is right.

Q Now have you had reports from those under your supervision who present cases before the Board of Pardons as to whether or not they are treated courteously, listened to and their recommendations in general accepted or refused?

A There again is another change that we have made since the Bureau of Correction has been started. There was a time when from the four penitentiaries, each of the institutions would have a representative come into the Capitol here and present these cases before the Pardons Board. Of course, the feeling then was that the boys in the east probably got more consideration because they had a better representative than the boys in the west. They probably felt that their representative was good but he was not getting fair and square treatment. So, it was decided then that we would have one man who was capable and one man who could present all of the cases before the Pardons Board unless the individual wanted to have an attorney of his own. So, we do have one man now that goes over all the cases and he sits down with the district attorney. That is something just new in Allegheny County, but we have been doing that in Philadelphia County. Their district attorney has gone to see the prisoners, so that all in all it is bringing the real problem of deciding whether or not a prisoner should have consideration—

Q Now to bring out one thing you said, for some years it is a fact, isn't it, that the district attorney or his representative in Philadelphia County actually goes to the penitentiary and if there is private counsel, he does it with his approval? If there is not private counsel, then he does it with the Bureau of Correction's approval and interviews the man himself who is making the application, talks to him?

A That is right, sir.

Q And forms his own impression as to what kind of a recommendation he, the district attorney, will make?

A That is right, sir, but you see the change since now that we have of transferring and we transfer prisoners right across this State. We have a man operating out of the Western Penitentiary and one out of Eastern, and it would be almost impossible, oh I would not say impossible, but improbable that they would send the district attorney from the Eastern Penitentiary over to the Western Penitentiary or from the Eastern district to the Western district to interview these men, so now we are undertaking to bring them up even with the prisoners who were further away. Of course, that is the reason for this movement. Maybe, as I said, they may be moved out of Eastern up to Rockview simply because they are going out of a maximum security institution into a minimum security institution which would give a man a better opportunity to prove himself.

Q Now, Mr. Prasse, do you personally have any information or knowledge of any corruption or political influence exerted upon the Board of Pardons?

A I do not and if I had, I would definitely come out with it.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Cross-examine.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Prasse, did you make any recommendations to the Board of Pardons in the Zietz, Darcy and Foster cases?

A No sir.

Q Recommendations in that type of case are not made by—

A We do not have anything to do with capital cases.

Q And after a man's sentence has been commuted from capital to life, then he is treated alike as far as his rehabilitation? His possibility of getting out is just as good as the other men, who were originally sentenced to life, isn't that right?

A That is right.

Q It is a question of his behavior?

A Yes.

Q And if the Bureau of Correction would consider that the man has been rehabilitated and after his sentence is changed from capital punishment to life, why he could be rehabilitated just as fast as any other prisoner?

A There is no question, yes sir.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Could I ask one question on what Mr. Kohn brought up?

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Mr. Prasse, on capital cases where a man is sentenced to death, prior to being put in the death house he isn't sent through the diagnostic and classification center? Is that the reason you have no recommendation?

A We have no recommendation to make because we are not to know the man. As I say, we usually get them just twenty-four hours before and we have very little on their record. However, today we have opened up the Eastern and Western Centers to take care of capital cases that may be held rather than keep them in some of the small counties, so we tried to help them by keeping them and to cut this terrific cost down, because it does necessitate twenty-four hours supervision.

Q That is merely custodial on those cases?

A Yes sir, we take them in and hold them because that runs into a lot of money when you have got to have men around the clock.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think I was a cosponsor of that bill.

THE WITNESS: Yes sir.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q When the commutation of Zietz, Foster and Darcy took place, then they were put through the diagnostic and classification center or at the time they were put into the prison population?

A When they received the commutation of sentence, they went then for the first time to the classification center and I think at this time Darcy is in Graterford and two of them I think are still at Eastern, but there was no reason that maybe Darcy—they are handled routinely; just a new prisoner as far as we are concerned.

Q But the reason you don't make the recommendation while they are in the death house is they have not gone through that process?

A We have no recommendations to make for men in the death house.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Were you asked for a report by the Board of Pardons when this case was considered for commutation?

A No, we were not asked, sir.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Mr. Chairman—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Yes, Mr. Bell, go ahead.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Mr. Prasse, if there was a feeling among the prison population that political influence could assist a person in obtaining a pardon or commutation, what affect if any would that have with your prison population?

A Well it would not be good. If there was any political implications whatsoever within your prison, you would by the grapevine—it is slow in some instances, but when it is slow that way it gets tighter I don't know, grapevines as a rule are usually fast but it does not mean anything; there is no truth to them, but prisoners watch and they watch every move that you make and they get a chance, they get to see the newspapers, they hear the radio and they are quick to put two and two together, so to speak, and whenever that would get into the prison, it is pretty hard to fight down. I could name instances and probably that would clarify it.

Q Well what specific detrimental affect would it have in the type of prison administration you are endeavoring to follow in Pennsylvania?

A Well when you set up a program and you say that you have to complete this program and then here is somebody who is going along with the program, who is totally opposed to anything that you ask him to do and he gets out, the rest say, "What are you trying to tell us? That's the end of that. Why should we go along and try to do when it does not make any difference, if you have the right people on your side?" So, that would wreck your program.

Q Now what affect in your prison program or discipline, whatever you may call it, would a feeling that if a man knew the right people he could get special hearings?

A Well it would upset the program again, as I say. We do not ever want the feeling to come into the prison that there are specials and when you get that and when you get prisoners—even with guards, when they think there is favoritism shown, it is one of the worst things we have. Favoritism cannot be shown.

Q You have to run a prison on impartiality.

A It is absolutely that way. If it is going to stand at all, it has got to be impartial treatment.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Prasse, do you know of any attorneys in the State of Pennsylvania who tried to openly solicit Pardons Board business through the prisons?

A I cannot say that I know of any attorneys who openly solicit Pardons Board business. I think that the only thing that I would have would be to refer to the records and find out from there whether there were some attorneys or more attorneys soliciting Pardons Board of taking pardons cases. I think that the record will speak for it. I know of none.

Q There was some implication here by one of the prior witnesses here that he thought maybe one of the attorneys was openly soliciting business among the prisoners. Would that be possible, Commissioner?

A It could be and we have had such a case, but this was not in conjunction with pardons. This was in conjunction with parole plans and we occasionally have had difficulty along that line but I think they have been taken care of in the proper manner, and anytime we see it come up, that is the way it has been handled.

Q Now you speak about a man that you have that handles your over-all picture of your institutions before the Pardons Board rather than separate ones from each institution.

A Yes sir.

Q How are these proceedings instituted in the prison to get in this man's hands? Is it from your clinical report or just how?

A Well the prisoner may apply, he may apply when he has served so much time. We have no way of stopping him from doing that. That is his right. He may apply to the Pardons Board. However, we may sit down with the prisoner and explain to him that according to his record and according to the time, that it is premature or we might say that you just have not been the kind of a fellow and we could not do anymore than tell the truth. We will not perjure ourselves; we will only tell the story as it is.

Q You tell that to the prisoner?

A We tell that right to the prisoner. "Now if you want to, knowing what we have told you, you can apply."

Q You still do not deny him the right?

A No we cannot; we are not allowed to. So we let him apply and, of course, that is why I think that the calendar is so clogged. There are many, many of them. Of course, we have a lot of writ writers in the prison, too. You have seen some of them.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q What is that?

A Writ writers.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Well then you send a report along with that from the prison authorities, of course?

A Yes sir.

Q Can you tell me—from your recollection, of course, it would have to be—is there much variation in the action of the Pardons Board from the recommendation of your prison authorities? In other words, do they deny a lot that you would recommend and recommend a number that perhaps you would be against?

A No, I would say we are pretty even. If anything, if I am recollecting here properly without my records, I think there are some that we would have recommended that they have denied.

Q And vice versa?

A Yes, but I would say if it is heavier one way or the other, I would say that our recommendations were even more lenient than their action.

Q How long has the system been in practice, Commissioner?

A Well that has been in practice ever since the Bureau of Correction has been formed, about 1953.

Q That being your experience over the time that your office has covered it.

A Yes sir.

Q Now, Commissioner, I am quite interested in the question as to—well let me ask this one other question here first. What is your experience in connection with the percentages of men who have been paroled in their being returned for violation of their parole?

A The percentages—now are you speaking on any particular type? Are you speaking of lifers now?

Q I am speaking of parolees generally now, Commissioner.

A Well I would have to, I think my Deputy is here and he is the Director of Treatment and he would have the exact—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Could I say for the information of the committee that I have the statistician of the Parole Board who will give you that precise information in decimal points. We could call him as our very next witness.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well I am interested in that information, General.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, I know and I am just saying that we have it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right, we will get exact information then.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Now, Commissioner, there is one more question I want to ask you and that is on a second and third offender who comes to you, upon what basis do you determine that man's fitness for additional release into society before he serves his sentence that has been imposed?

A Well again, he cannot apply for parole until he has completed a certain amount of time. We give him credit or we give him credit for the time served, and considering his previous offenses and his readjustment while at the institution and that is done in every case. So, if a man has been there two or three times, certainly he is going to have a little longer time to do than the time in which he would ordinarily have gone out. The ones that perturb us more than any are those who reach their majority or maximum sentences.

Q You have no control over that?

A We have no control and even there we try to cover it. For instance, if a man is going out on a maximum sentence and we know he is not a good risk, the least we can do is to get in touch with the court and the police officers and the community to which he is going, to let them know that he is there because in many cases they are going out and they are really bitter.

Q Now that is in case of parole?

A No, that is in case of release.

Q What about the case of clemency? What do you do in connection with clemency on second and third offenders? I have in mind now the very unfortunate occurrence that took place last week in the killing of this F.B.I. Agent, in which it is alleged the offense was committed by a parolee? Now how do men of that type get out?

A We have no power of release. As Commissioner of Correction, I have no powers of release in any instance. All we have is power of recommendation, so that anybody that is released from prison is released either through the Parole Board or through the courts, if it is a juvenile case, and we do have some through the judge of the committing court. So, all we do is recommend and, of course, the study is made by the Parole Board other than the maximum cases.

Q Suppose you have a third offender who is not going before the Parole Board but is going up before the Pardons Board for a commutation of his sentence, either minimum or maximum, upon what basis do you determine a recommendation to the Pardons Board that the man's sentence should be commuted?

A On the length of time that he has served, on whether or not he has served this time in a proper maner, on his progress, on his feeling and his attitude toward the people and society in general, on his ability to work and on his ability to take care of himself; all of these, the psychologists, the psychiatrists, all of them have a hand in knowing and in saying what they think about this individual. He is given a complete study.

Q Commissioner, was there any particular reason for the separation of Darcy, Zietz and Foster when they were taken from Rockview and placed in these other institutions?

A No, except that is the way we like to do that. If three people come in, we separate them as best we can simply if they come in on the same charge. Now it did not make any difference whether it was Darcy, Foster or who it might have been.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Why weren't the other two separated that went to Rockview?

A They are still at Eastern. They may be separated, any of them. As I say, it is a matter of routine. We do not treat them, those three boys, any different than we would any other three boys who came in there; no special movements or anything else. It has to be routine. We dare not show partiality and we will not tolerate anybody showing that.

Q Well, Commissioner, entirely from a statistical standpoint now, do you get many men returned to prison for violation of parole without having committed another offense?

A Yes, we get quite a number back from, the recidivist, but they are technical violators and we are working—

Q They have done something contrary to the parole regulations?

A That is right.

Q They have not committed another offense?

A They have not been recommitted.

Q And who determines that?

A The parole agents and the Parole Board decides that.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Mr. Prasse, is was testified to here this morning that in the case of Zeitz, Foster and Darcy, after they had been in the death house for a period of time there was a small yard or enclosure constructed for them in which they played ball and took exercise, am I right in that?

A That is right.

Q Was that enclosure or little yard constructed because of any outside influence, political or otherwise, or was it a mater of procedure that emanated from the prison officials themselves?

A I would say it was from the prison officials themselves. The suggestion was made before I became Commissioner of Correction that they be exercised, and Secretary Brown at that time gave that order. From the first of September, any orders that were issued about those boys were issued by myself and I had absolutely—no one ever contacted me in any way about those three boys.

Q On the other privileges that they were given, such as reading of magazines and whatever they might have been that it was testified to here this morning, did any of those privileges result from any outside or political influence.

A They had my approval and I will assure you that no one ever spoke to me about these privileges. I was strictly doing it from a humane standpoint. Here are men who are incarcerated and have been in these cells all of this time, and certainly if they are going to call numbers back and play checkers, I could see no harm in that and I could see no harm in letting them study and I approved it, but certainly by no one's suggestion even. It was my own.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q The office of Commissioner of Correction was created at the time that the prison jurisdiction was transferred from Welfare to Justice. That is right, isn't it?

A That is right, sir; yes sir.

Q And Brown that you speak about was Secretary of Welfare prior to the time that Justice had jurisdiction over the institutions?

A That is right, sir.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Mr. Prasse, I think that one fear in people's minds in Pennsylvania is that hardened criminals might possibly be coming out of the jail doors. Now I have been very interested in how you process a man before he comes up before the Pardons Board. Do you have any suggestions to this committee as to any legislative assistance that would assist the prison officials in filtering these men for release, because I think we are convinced that no one wants to turn a hardened criminal loose on civilization and if you had any suggestions whereby the Legislature and this inquiry could assist the prison officials, I think we would be interested in hearing that, sir.

A Well, sir, we have some legislation that we are going to ask for and Mr. Lawley is handling that.

I do not know any way that we can better the whole program by legislation. It is by activation and by doing the thing. There isn't anything wrong with the laws. It is the matter of enforcing the laws that comes and I think if we are honest and we are fair one to the other and we see these things and as we judge a prisoner, and certainly the people who live with the prisoners know better than anyone whether they have made any change for the better or for the worse, and I think that we people who live in the prisons would have it and have it understood that we will be firm but we will be fair and we will be kindly with the prisoners, but certainly not put back into society someone who we do not feel has profited by being in the institution.

Q Now your present setup, in your opinion, how does it compare with that found in other States as being effective to filter out the hardened criminal, in other words, so that he is not turned loose on society?

A Well, I can only say what other States have said about us, and they say that we—they are writing to us. We are sending materials, we are sending our record books and our forms to many of the States who have said that we are leading. We have taken our place again and Pennsylvania at one time was the leader and we have the finest—I would compare our people from our personnel or professional personnel right down to the least of the custodial officers, man for man and woman for woman, with any institution in the State or any other State. I think they are fine people and they are people of intergrity.

Q And would you also reassure the people of Pennsylvania that everything is being done to filter out the hardened criminal?

A Definitely, we do not want to ever turn out and certainly we will not turn anybody out or recommend anybody who would do other than that. We would let it be known that here goes a man who we do not believe should be in free society.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Do you feel on the whole that the Board of Pardons agrees with you on that?

A I think that they do.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Commissioner, here is a practice—I do not know whether this is what Mr. Lawley is drawing up or not, but I made the recommendation myself here a few years ago from an experience I ran into where the Parole Board feels that a man has become rehabilitated to an extent that he should be released under supervision.

A Right sir.

Q The Parole Board makes that recommendation; he is granted that release but there is a detainer for him at the institution, where he is to be taken into another county to face a charge on a similar offense which occurred in the chain of events that happened in that one night. I am thinking now particularly of an event where boys will go out here and they will rob a half dozen service stations in three or four counties in one night.

Now the Parole Board thinks that boy is fit to be released; they so say and they release him. Then the detainer is here from the other county. He is taken to that other county. He is slapped back in jail in that other county. Should there not be some relief from that if the Parole Board thinks him fit to be released?

A Mr. Chairman, that is one of the bills that we are trying to put before the Legislature now. So that we can—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I will add, I have approved it when Mr. Lawley brought it to me and I think the Chairman is introducing such legislation.

THE WITNESS: It is certainly a much needed piece of legislation and that is only one of several of them that could help us, because there again it can help us in the program of getting a man ready. For instance, we set up a program for a man in an institution and if there is a detainer hanging on him, it just does not make sense.

It is not fair to the prisoner, it is not even fair to society if it gets this man bitter. It is like having a boy finish four years of high school and when he comes to the day of graduation, and our prisoners have a program set up for the prisoners. We say, "You must follow this. You must go to school or you must complete such of your training in school. You must complete a trade and all along the line you must be the kind of a person we want you to be." And when he finishes that and we say, "Just a minute"—like the principal at high school would say. "Well back here in the eighth grade you were not so hot, so you will just have to do another year," and that is exactly the way the detainer works on a prisoner. He has completed his program, we have gotten a plan for him but somebody comes in and says, "Wait a minute, we have got a detainer on this fellow and now we are going to exercise that," so we put him back into the same institution and the program that he has completed for another two years.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Is the rest of the committee familiar with what the proposed legislation is?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think I am.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I know the Chairman is. I can tell you briefly if you are interested.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Well that same man could readily become a trouble maker and ruin other men who were on their way—

A It would take years to bring that man back to thinking as his fellowmen, as friends.

Q But his associates, he might have an adverse influence.

A Oh he certainly would have on them. He would be the first one and he would be a living example to those men in prison. "It does not make any difference. Don't let them talk to you about the program because it does not mean a damn thing. It does not mean a thing."

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Now, Commissioner, there are three quick questions I would like to get over. Is it true generally that lifers who are commuted from life imprisonment to life on parole have the very best record out in society?

A Yes, I would say that they are and in prison our lifers are probably the least troublesome of all the people.

Q And is it true also, secondly, that as between men who are released at the expiration of their minimum term and those who are released by commutation of the minimum term, the latter group—that is the commuted group—has a less high rate of recidivism?

A I think that is, if I remember our statistics and we just looked that up recently, I think it is about six of one and a half dozen of the other. I do not see any difference between those that have been commuted and those who have been paroled. I think it is about even.

Q Well we have the statistics. I thought you were familiar with that.

A I think it is about even, General.

Q I think it turns out to be not that way, Commissioner, but we will get the exact figures from the statistician.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Commissioner Prasse, you are of the opinion you should call the individual case because with statistics and figures, sometimes you have horrible examples that come out. For instance, lifers may be a good risk but when one of them bumps off an F. B. I. man, that is a horrible example.

A That is bad.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I think this is correct, if the committee please. I think that there are only two men in the history of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania who were paroled from life imprisonment who ever committed another homicide. Now I do not mean that they did not commit other crimes but they were killers who were paroled from life imprisonment. I personally have known of only two who ever committed another murder.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: My point in following up, General, is that we do not want the mistaken impression to get out through the Commonwealth that anyone is favoring opening the doors to lifers because they are a good risk once they do get out.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Oh no, I think it so happens that the lifers in many instances are aids in the actual running of the prison. They have been there so long, they help with advice to incoming prisoners and so forth, don't they, Commissioner?

THE WITNESS: Yes, definitely their influence is felt on the prisoners because of their long term of office. The older men, they understand they have the most to lose so, therefore, they would be more anxious to have the group go along so that it does not cause them any undue embarrassment. It might lengthen their time.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Also, Commissioner, is it not true that for a lifer to get turned loose, he has to have a very fine record behind him?

A Excellent.

FURTHER RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Prasse, I would like to ask you just a few questions that I think we have not covered which might be very interesting.

When a man has served his minimum, do you and the Parole Board cooperate in any way in regard to leaving that man out at the expiration of his minimum?

A Oh yes, we at the institution help the inmate plan for a home and a job and a sponsor. We make up his program, help him make up the program which again is submitted to the Board of Parole and they must approve it.

Q I mean between you and the Board of Parole, do you go back into his record, that is him minimum, to see whether or not he should be eligible for release at the end of his minimum?

Yes.

Q And it is possible that if you and the Parole Board agree that he has not served enough time and is not ready for rehabilitation, he may not be left out, is that correct?

A That is correct, sir.

Q All right, now you have the other situation where you have no jurisdiction over cases in which men are sentenced to county prisons and the Parole Board makes an investigation for the Board of Pardons. You have nothing to do with that, do you?

A Would you repeat that again, I—

Q Now when a man is sentenced to the Delaware County Prison for the length of twenty-three months or Dauphin County Prison for twenty-three months and he applies for a commutation of his minimum, as far as you are concerned, the Bureau of Correction has no interest in that case except through what the Board of Parole may do in investigating the facts of that particular case, is that right?

A Yes, that is right and, of course, if he is in a county prison we have nothing to do with the county prisons or city jails except the inspection thereof so we would be out of that entirely.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q You do not have jurisdiction over the Parole Board, do you?

A No, we do not.

Q The Parole Board has on occasion cooperated, however, with county judges in supervising some of the parolees, have they not?

A They do that; the Parole Board themselves do take care of the county prisoners after a certain period of time I mean.

Q Now, Commissioner, there is one other question I wanted to ask you before. Once you fellows get off the witness stand, we do not see you again and I would like to get your views on it. Information which has come to me indicates that a part of the difficulty particularly in the Western Penitentiary riots back in 1953 arose by reason of the fact that men who were considered by the Board fit for release were unable to be released because they could not get a sponsor. What is your view in connection with the mandatory requirement that a person have a sponsor before they are released?

In some cases it is excellent and some cases I think that it is not necessary. I think that the Parole Board today is working closer with the Bureau of Correction than I have ever known it.

Just two weeks ago we had the Parole Board, the complete Parole Board, and their superintendents in my office with all of our staff, and we have agreed to eliminate these boys and they are a problem in prison, these boys who have had their time in and yet the program did not enable them to be released, so the Parole Board has designated their superintendent of that particular district to work in that prison with our parole men—that is the institution's parole man—to work on those cases that are being what they called held over and to expedite them as soon as possible. We are doing that right now.

Q Well, Commissioner, do you think legislation to give that discretionary power might be of help?

A I think it might be of help to give that power to you, meaning to the Parole Board. They have that power I think. They have that power. They do not need it. It is just a matter of administration where they require the sponsor.

Q Up to this point, it has been taken more or less that it was a mandatory provision of the law that they had to have a sponsor and I think you are well acquainted with the fact that there have been bills before the Legislature in the last several Sessions and there is one now before it to eliminate that mandatory provision for a sponsor.

A I think it was a provision, I am pretty sure it is just a provision of the Parole Board themselves that set that up. I think that they are free to release them without a sponsor. I am sure they are.

Q Should there be any question about the thing, do you think that that would be good legislation to give them that discretionary power?

A I think it should be.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Now when we are on the subject of legislation, Commissioner, take up the next two hours, please, and tell them about your appropriations that they can do something by legislation about your appropriation.

THE WITNESS: I think they will be all right with it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We are not the Appropriations Committee.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Before turning the Commissioner loose, Mr. Chairman, I have personal knowledge that he did a wonderful job in western Pennsylvania with the rehabilitation of young boys and in the George Junior Republic, and I think that it is wonderful we have a man of his caliber in our prison system.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, I certainly didn't expect anything like that in here this morning.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: And his experience at White Hill, I want to second that remark.

We will recess until 1:30, and I would like to have a Committee Meeting in the committee room at 1:15, if I may please.

(At 12:30 p. m., the hearing was recessed until 1:30 p. m.)

I hereby certify that the proceedings and evidence are contained fully and accurately in the notes taken by me during the hearing on the above cause before the Joint Legislative Committee to Conduct an Investigation of the Board of Pardons, and that this copy is a correct transcript of the same.

AFTERNOON SESSION

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: This committee will come to order.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Jacks, please?

WILLIAM L. JACKS, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q What is your full name?

A William L. Jacks.

Q J-a-c-k-s?

A Right.

Q And by whom are you employed?

A The Pennsylvania Board of Parole.

Q That is, of course, distinguished from the Pennsylvania Board of Pardons?

A Oh yes, it is an entirely different unit. The Pennsylvania Board of Parole is a legislative body.

Q And how long have you been so employed?

A A little over ten years.

Q And what is the title of your job?

A Statistician.

Q And what is the general nature of the work of a statistician?

A In the Board of Parole, to keep records, especially on all of the men who are released on parole, and the supervision of our district offices throughout the state and out of the state.

Q Now as the statistician, have you made any compilation that could be used here to show the relative rate of recidivism as between persons who have had their sentences commuted and those who have served their minimum sentences and been released upon parole?

A We can't break it down as fine perhaps as you want it, that is, limited to the minimum sentence, but we do have a clear-cut distinction between commutation cases and all of the rest of the parolees. Now what I mean by "all the rest" are those who are released at the minimum of the sentence, those who are released after being refused at the minimum sentence, and also those who are released upon re-parole as parole violators.

Q And also the commuted sentences?

A And the commuted sentences, yes.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Now is that distinction clear to the Board? It is not just between the rate of recidivism in commuted cases versus non-commuted cases, but it is commuted cases versus all other kinds of cases on parole including re-parole, minimum sentence and commuted cases all lumped together.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Now, Mr. Jacks, will you tell us what kind of study you have?

A In the cases that were released by commutation in 1953—

MR. KOHN: Do you have a copy of that?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I will give you one. They have just arrived this instant.

MR. KOHN: It is easier to follow. I would appreciate having a copy at this time.

(Copy handed to Mr. Kohn.)

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q I hand you the study covering 1953, 1954, 1955 and 1956.

A I hope you will excuse this delay. I had only my original figures, and then the Attorney General asked to have copies made so that we could distribute them so you could follow these different figures.

First of all, we will take the group released during 1953, because we are giving these men a fair chance on parole. Now these figures are checked as of the end of February 1957 so that these men will have a possibility of three and one-half years out under parole supervision.

The total number of cases was 203, and when this report was made out there were 133 of those men in good standing. One absconded from parole supervision. And with respect to the group not on parole, we had 33 that were returned to prison; 12 of them as parole violators and 21 because they had committed new crimes on parole. Twenty-three were granted final discharges; four were closed for commutation of maximum sentence; five of them died and four were pardoned.

Now if you want a comparison like was asked for this morning of Mr. Prasse, if we take all of the delinquent cases we find that 33 were returned to prison; one absconded from supervision, which makes a total of 34 delinquent, or 16.7 per cent we can regard as delinquent for 1953.

Q Now in that delinquency, does that include the parole violator without the commission of the new crime and also the man who commits the crime?

A Yes.

Q So that approximately one-sixth of the total number of commuted cases get back in jail for one reason or another?

A That is right.

Q Now for the year 1954?

A Do you want me to read all of these figures for 1954 as I did for 1953?

Q I think we could streamline it by later putting the figures in the record and just asking you the questions as to percentage for 1954, as I did for 1953.

Does that meet the committee's approval?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS. Yes.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q All right now, what is the percentage of delinquent cases commuted for 1954, including both the technical parole violators and the new crime men?

A That would be 16.1 per cent.

Q As against 16.7 for the previous year.

A That is right.

Q Now what is the figure for the year 1955?

A For 1955 you must remember one thing, that these men had only been an parole a little over a year. Now, even though you have your highest rate of recidivism during the first year when about two-thirds are returned, we must take that into consideration here. These men haven't been out too long.

In 1955, 12.1 per cent were delinquent.

Q So that is 16.7 for 1953; 16.1 for 1954 and 12.1 for 1955, but with due allowance, the 1955 might be somewhat the same as the 16.1?

A That is right. At the end of perhaps another year on parole it might get up to that point, but I don't think beyond it.

Q For the year 1956 is there any real basis in this short space of time for using statistics?

A No. I hesitate to give anything for 1956 because some of these—well, nine of the men commuted in 1956, that is nine out of 79, are still in prison. They haven't gotten out yet. So the significant thing in 1956 is the small number of commutations granted. Where you had 203 in 1953, 299 in 1954, 140 in 1955, you only had 79 in 1956.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Well, are these figures on commutation alone?

A That is one thing I'd better straighten out. These are Parole Board cases where the sentences are commuted and they are put under the supervision of the Board of Parole where the minimums are commuted.

Q That includes the commutations?

A Yes.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: But in fairness there would be some others like the commutation of maximum sentence granting pardons and other forms of executive clemency which would not be represented in your figures?

THE WITNESS: That's right. These are only men who have had their minimums commuted so that they could be released from prison to go on parole.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Now let me get this straight. This doesn't include the actions by the Board of Pardons in commuting sentences?

A Oh yes, it does.

Q Are you just breaking down the number that was commuted by the Board of Pardons? The question that is in my mind is, was the number commuted by the Board of Pardons as to how they turned out and the number commuted by the Parole Board, not commuted, but left out on their minimums?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: We haven't gotten to that yet, Dave. All of these up to the present time are commutations by the Board of Pardons.

MR. KOHN: All right.

THE WITNESS: That is right, these are Pardons Board cases only.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q We have a record of 16 per cent in two instances and twelve in the other. Let's assume it is all 16 per cent for purposes of discussion.

Now what is the rate of men who have served their minimum time and been released on parole as against the men who have been commuted by executive clemency?

A The statistics we have on that are based on a study made over a period of four years of all men released on parole. Now remember that includes commutation cases, and we find that 28.4 per cent of all men released on parole were returned to prison.

Q So that if, in view of the fact that the commuted sentences had people with only 16 per cent, if you withdraw them from that total of 28 per cent, the 28 per cent would be even higher?

A That's right because they are included in that figure.

Q So that the rate of recidivists among the persons who have received executive clemency is something like about half the number of recidivists among those who have not received executive clemency?

A I would say that is about true. You have 16 per cent as compared to 28 per cent, yes.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Does this include county prisoners?

A Yes, this is all the parolees that come under our jurisdiction. They must have sentences of two years or more.

Q Of two years or more?

A Yes.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is all.

CROSS EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Isn't it a fact that the figures may not properly reflect the number of violators because it is within the discretion of the Parole Board as to whether or not they are going to cite a man for a violation?

A Well, yes, it would be—

Q Just answer the question if you understand it. If you don't I will repeat it.

A It is up to the Parole Board to decide whether or not a violation is serious enough for the man to be returned to prison. But that can happen to anyone. It isn't just limited to—

Q I am not arguing the question. I asked you a simple question; whether or not this does not reflect the cases in which there were violations and the Board decided they would not return them?

A That's right. These are actual returns to prison.

Q Do you know of cases where a man is on parole and is picked up for carrying concealed deadly weapons, convicted and sentenced, and the Board didn't consider it a violation?

A I don't know of any cases. And I wouldn't know of any cases.

Q Well, a case like that wouldn't come to your attention, would it?

A No, I am a statistician.

Q There can be many cases in the files of the Board where either tehnical violations or violations or conviction of another crime may occur but wouldn't come to your attention in compiling these statistics? Is that correct?

A Oh, that is true.

Q You are familiar with the case of Thaddeus John Skalski (S-k-a-l-s-k-i), which was before the Board on October 18, 1955, and he was convicted in Michigan of carrying concealed deadly weapons, and the Board refused to bring him back?

A No, I am not acquainted with that case at all.

Q That wouldn't be in your department?

A No, I would have nothing to do with that.

MR. KOHN: All right, that is all.

(Witness excused.)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Are you going to file with the committee a complete breakdown on that, General?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I am going to pin these together now and put them in order and submit it as an exhibit.

Four-page study—produced and marked for identification Board of Pardons Exhibit No. 38. AJP 4/22/57

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: This exhibit will accompany the record instead of being incorporated as part of the testimony.

KENNETH B. TAYLOR, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows on

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Doctor Taylor, what is your full name?

A Kenneth B. Taylor.

Q And what is your present position with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania?

A I am the Deputy Commissioner for treatment in the Bureau of Corrections.

Q Did you have any specialized training prior to coming with the Commonwealth?

A Yes sir, I have a Ph.D. degree in Psychology.

Q And have you worked in the Western State Penitentiary?

A Yes sir, I have. I have had about twenty years' experience with the State now in the penitentiary setup.

Q Now in connection with your work there, have you been connected with the staff in making prison evaluations for possible applicants for executive clemency?

A Yes sir, that is part of my duties.

Q Now from the point of view of the Deputy Commissioner in charge of treatment, in view of your experience as a psychologist, will you briefly inform the committe as to the view that you have as to the part played by the Board of Pardons?

A Well, we feel that the Board of Pardons is a very necessary, let's say, part of this entire treatment program. When a man comes into the institution we try to get a general idea about how much time he is going to have to serve and then we set up a program that we feel he can complete in that period of time. At the present time we have almost—in fact, we have, over 7500 prisoners in our seven state-owned institutions and there are over 500 of those who have life sentences. That means that they have absolutely no way of ever being released except through executive clemency. We have a number of others—I do not have the figures—who have what we call rather lengthy sentences, forty to eighty years, sixty to one hundred twenty years, some of them eighty to one hundred and sixty. We know, of course, that in the normal life span they would not be eligible for parole. They will die before the minimum is completed. And we feel very strongly that it is almost impossible to set up a treatment program for these men if there isn't somewhere that they would have hope of eventually being released. And we feel executive clemency will help us, not only us by the State and the taxpayers as a group in three ways:

First of all, there is not much use in setting up a program for a man to effect some type of rehabilitation if he is not eventually going to go back into society anyway.

Secondly, it is very difficult and would be very difficult to handle men in an institution if we took away from them all hope of eventually being released. And then, of course, you have the economic factor, which I don't think anybody has touched on today; that it costs roughly three dollars to three dollars and a half a day to keep these men in an institution, whereas on parole or probation, it is a mere fraction of that amount of money.

If these men are denied an opportunity to eventually be released it is going to mean adding to our present facilities, which is expensive, plus the three dollars or three and a half dollars per day to keep them. So the economic factor, even though we normally don't think of it in terms of that, is an important factor in so far as getting these men back into society again.

Q Doctor, being familiar with the way in which the staff operates and makes it recommendations, what comment, if any, do you have as to whether the Pardons Board disregards those recommendations or seems to follow them?

A Well, I would say that on the whole the Pardons Board very definitely takes into consideration the recommendations we make and perhaps in the last three or three and one-half years since the Bureau of Corrections has been started, there is even more of that taken into consideration.

Up until 1953, the latter part of 1953, some institutions did not give the Pardons Board very much information. They would come out and say we think this man should be commuted or we think he shouldn't and they got very little additional information.

But since the latter part of 1953, and we have had, of course, two different Boards since that time, both Boards have been working very closely with the institution. We not only make a recommendation but we give them a lot of supporting information as to the past background of this man and also the adjustment within the institution, plus some of the plans that the man has for the future when he is going to be released.

Q Now knowing that a man will sooner or later by expiration even of his maximum term be released and go back into society, is it the thought of the staff that there is an opportune time at which he should be released, that prior to that time might be too soon and subsequent to that might be too late?

A Yes sir, that is quite true. We frequently find out with these men there comes a time—and it is sort of a nebulous thing—it is very difficult in any one case, or a series of cases to say specifically that it would be five years or ten years or fifteen years. Unfortunately in sentencing these men our judges are more or less faced with that proposition. They'll say, "We'll give this man ten to twenty years hoping that at the expiration of ten he will be ready to be released into society again." But it doesn't always work that way. You may find one man who in five years would be ready to go out and without some type of executive clemency he couldn't be released.

On the other hand, you may find an individual who should stay fifteen years and of course the Parole Board can handle that angle because they may keep him longer than ten years.

We often think of it in terms of a physician sending a man to a hospital. It would be rather foolish for him to say here's a man who had some kind of heart coindition and he must stay in the hospital for eight months, here's a man with diabetes, he must stay in the hospital for two years and so on, when we know that after he went into the hospital when he reaches that point where he can safely go out again, he is released. In prison we don't have that, except through executive clemency; and when that man is ready we try to encourage him to ask for clemency.

I think perhaps we are a little more lenient than the Pardons Board is, but by and large we get together on many of these cases and come out very closely on the recommendations.

Q When the staff does recommend the release of a man who is sentenced to not less than ten nor more than twenty years; at the end of, let's say, six years, do you have the feeling that you are in any sense overruling the judge?

A No sir. We don't feel we are doing that because in every case the judge and the district attorney are furnished with the information that we give to the Pardons Board so that they have their opportunity to state to the Board their objections if any to this commutation, or they can also recommend if they want.

But we feel as long as they are being notified we certainly are not overruling them. In fact, very frequently judges will ask us for confirmation concerning these men even though they have not asked for commutation because some of their people will go to them and ask how the man is getting along and so on, and we will give them that information if they ask for it.

Q Now in this particular reference to the Foster, Zietz and Darcy cases, did there come a time in the program when you were asked as to the desirability or undesirability of their getting magazines or other privileges ordinarily denied to those who occupy the death cell only for a space of a day or two?

A Indirectly they had some of the privileges before the Bureau of Correction was started back in 1953. But on several occasions while I was at Rockview I talked with the men and the staff there has asked my opinion as to whether or not we should continue these special privileges, if you call them such, or whether we should discontinue them. We mainly operated on the basis that men are sent to prison as punishment and not for punishment; that the courts and society do not ask those of us who work in institutions to punish these people; that they were sent there as punishment for a crime they had committed and it is up to us to do everything possible to help these individuals while they are in the institution so that if and when the day comes that they can be released they will be better able to adjust to society.

Anybody who is incarcerated for a long period of time naturally has some reactions against it, and we know that it can become so severe that they have a mental breakdown. We call it a psychosis. It is not unusual to have people in prison have psychoses, and it is my feeling and I know it is the Commissioners feeling because we discussed it in those three cases, that we would much prefer to give them some privileges to help them keep their sanity than to punish them and then perhaps have a double drain on society should the time ever come when they would be commuted. We should then not only have a criminal on our hands but we would also have a psychotic and that would mean expensive medical treatment and so on following the time that they might get out.

And, of course, we run into legal complications, too, if a man becomes a psychotic in so far as electrocution is concerned.

Q Doctor, did you notice any change in these men, physically or mentally, either before the order came through that they should have exercise or after. Do you have any information that you can give the committee on that or as to their reaction to the whole program?

A I am really not in position to answer that very well because I did not know them before the exercise order had come through. I was still at the Western Penitentiary at the time, so I really couldn't answer that.

Q Now then, did you get to know them?

A Yes, I did.

Q Now, tell the committee if you can whether they improved in their mental, physical or spiritual outlook or whether they were retrograded or that there was no change, whatever the situation was?

A I would almost have to give some hearsay testimony there. They tell me that up until the time that—

MR. KOHN: Just a minute. If you will just answer the question, please?

THE WITNESS: As I say, I didn't know them before that order came out.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q From the time you got to know until the last time you saw them?

A I would say definitely there was an improvement in their psysical condition, and I would judge also in their mental condition, judging from the fact that they were reading and studying, as the Commissioner pointed out this morning. One of them was taking shorthand; one of them was studying history. They were spending their time—well they weren't just wasting their time, let's say, in their cells out there.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is all.

CROSS EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q You say that you are now sending to the judge and district attorney information concerning prisoners in a psychiatric report regularly.

A No sir, I didn't say that. I said we were sending them reports when the man comes up for commutation.

Q When did you start that?

A Well, that has been going on about three years that I know of in some cases.

Q Who sent these out?

A That was sent out by the Board here.

Q Is that what you were told, that that was sent out—

A I think that's right, that it goes out from here, because some of the judges and district attorneys have asked information that they couldn't have gotten—

Q I am not saying it is not so. I say that is where you got your information. It was sent out by the Board.

A Yes.

Q And how many copies do you furnish them?

A We furnish them nine copies.

Q That goes with the application which is sent out?

A That's right

Q In regard to these parole violators that the Parole Board pulls back and puts back into prison, do you make a re-examination of those?

A Yes sir, we do.

Q Did you ever make a re-examination of—maybe you wouldn't know—Thaddeus John Skalski in 1956?

A If he came to one of our diagnostic centers, and he should have, we would have re-examined him.

Q And to whom would you furnish that report?

A That report—one copy would go to the Parole Board and another copy would go to the county in which he was sentenced originally, and the rest of the copies would remain in the institution. Now, should he ever file for commutation, then it would also go to the Pardons Board.

Q Now, this last question that Mr. McBride asked you in relation to these three men, that was an unusual situation where a man's sentence was commuted from capital punishment to life imprisonment?

A I understand that since 1915 there have been about between 80 and 85 cases like that.

Q And you say their condition of happiness and other things that you describe isn't unusual when a person has had his sentence commuted?

A No sir.

Q I mean you were not describing anything unusual, were you?

A No sir. I have only seen two other cases.

Q Were you there in 1953?

A Yes sir, I was there in 1953.

MR. KOHN: That is all.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q I want to see if I got that information correctly. That 80 or 85 cases you referred to were cases where men had been sentenced to death and their sentence had been commuted to life?

A That is right, sir, since 1915.

Q Since 1950?

A No, 1915.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q How many since 1950?

A I don't have those figures, ir. There have been very few.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: What was the question?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: How many persons under death sentences have had their sentence commuted from death to life imprisonment since 1950? The information he gave us was since 1915.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I have a record that says 83.

THE WITNESS: That is since 1915.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Senator Yosko is now asking since 1950.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Oh, since 1950?

THE WITNESS: I can get those figures but I don't have them with me.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: We can get them, too, but we don't have them prepared now.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Taylor, are you concerned with the diagnostic clinic?

A I have general supervision over both clinics, the one in Philadelphia and the one in Pittsburgh.

Q There is a change in the setup since 1953. Now the court can send them to a diagnostic clinic, and then you determine where they shall be in prison?

A That's right.

Q Previous to that time it has been the custom to have the person sentenced to a particular penitentiary, and then the psychiatrist there would make an evaluation, would he not?

A That is right.

Q And the same prisoner might be transferred from Eastern to Western and the psychiatrist at Western would make an evaluation?

A That is right.

Q And quite often those two would be exactly opposite of each other?

A Not quite often. It can happen but I wouldn't say quite often.

Q Well, I went over quite a number of cases. I think you know that.

A That's right.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q What is the number of sentences commuted from death to life imprisonment since 1950? How many of those subsequently received a pardon or release since then?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I think it is very likely that none were pardoned.

SENATOR YOSKO: Have any been released, paroled.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, they are commuted to life and are on parole, then the Parole Board would supervise them.

SENATOR YOSKO: Well then, how many of them were paroled and out of prison?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is the record we do not have, but which Mr. Hean will get for the committee. We didn't make that up for 1950 to date.

SENATOR YOSKO: How many since 1915 were electrocuted? Does anybody have that information?

THE WITNESS: Yes sir, we have that figure.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Now is this since 1915?

THE WITNESS: This is all since 1915. It should be 344.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Apparently I didn't know it was this high; 344 since 1915.

SENATOR YOSKO: Were electrocuted? How many did you say had their sentences commuted from death to life imprisonment?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Eighty-three.

THE WITNESS: Eighty-three, and that includes the three in question, so it would be eighty.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, of those eighty-three who had their sentences commuted from death to life, were there any of those eighty-three whose life sentence was later commuted to parole for life?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

SENATOR YOSKO: I asked that question. I wanted to know how many.

THE WITNESS: In twenty years, off-hand I can think of two but I am sure there must have been more than that because I am not familiar with the cases in the eastern part of the State.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I am sure that there are some.

THE WITNESS: But I do know two from the western part of the State.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: It would be interesting information.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, we didn't get it. Now do you want it all the way back or since 1950?

REPRESNTATIVE LOPRESTI: I think both.

SENATOR YOSKO: Well, if you have both, you can break one down.

MR. HEAN: The death record that shows the persons convicted of death and then those commuted going back to 1875?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, and then the next question is those who have been sentenced to death and then commuted to life imprisonmnt and then commuted from life imprisonment to life on parole. That is what we want to get. I do not think you need to get it today.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We would like very much to have that on these eighty-three whose sentences were commuted from death to life. How many of those eighty-three later had their sentence commuted to life on parole?

SENATOR YOSKO: Who were they?

MR. HEAN: I know two, Polens and Senauskas, both of Warren County.

THE WITNESS: Those were the two that I had in mind.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Both from Warren County. Their cases were in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania on the contention that a judge had made a promise of what sentence he would give to the defendant. So, you will find the Senauskas case reported, I think, in Volume 326 Pennsylvania. I think Polens is in the same Volume.

Is there anything further?

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Taylor, could you tell me and tell it just for information purposes, what is the population turnover in the prisons in the State of Pennsylvania?

A Roughly 3,000 per year.

Q Three thousand per year?

A Of the 7500.

Q Does the population stay pretty well stabilized around 7500?

A It hasn't been. In 1953 when the Bureau started we had about 6600 and a couple of weeks ago we passed 7500, and it has been a gradual increase ever since the end of 1953. However, in 1951 and 1952 we had been as high as 7700 and then when the Korean War broke out, the population dropped which is a phenomenon that happens with every war. A lot of the potentials go into the service and population drops and then after the war it starts building up again, but there has been a gradual increase since 1953.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Well, how many do you have in Western Penitentiary?

A At the Western we have a little over 1000 right now. That includes the diagnostic center and what we call the house population. There are roughly about eighty in the diagnostic center.

Q How long do they keep them at the diagnostic center?

A Anywhere from four to eight weeks depending upon whether or not they have been in the system before.

Q And after they are given the diagnostic service who determines where they shall be incarcerated?

A That is my responsibility.

Q That is your responsibility?

A Yes.

Q Depending upon severity of the crime and the individual?

A Yes sir. We classify the institution of Western and Eastern as maximum and medium security, respectively. Rockview is minimum. Graterford is medium and minimum and, of course, Camp Hill has the boys under twenty-one. Huntingdon has defective delinquents. Most of those are men who wouldn't have an I.Q. over seventy-five. If they can finish second grade they are doing very well. Then the new institution will be for defective delinquents. Huntingdon will become a penitentiary and it will then take the same type of cases as Graterford.

But you have Eastern and Western for the people who—when we say maximum security, we are not necessarily thinking in terms of escape-proof, of whether or not they can escape, we are thinking of those who need the most attention. Serious medical cases, those who are becoming pre-psychotic, those who are escape risks, serious homosexuals and those who are combatant and assaultive. Those that we feel need more than the usual amount of custodial attention stay at Eastern and Western. The best cases go to Rockview and the in-betweens to Graterford.

Q Where did you send Darcy, to Eastern?

A Well, the big reason for it was that whenever we get cases where there has been a great deal of notoriety or a great deal of publicity we try if possible to separate some of the men. In the institutions, of course, you have clicques and you have a certain status of individuals—

Q Well then, couldn't he be sent to Western, which had been the same designation as the Eastern, maximum security?

A We could have. It wasn't the feeling of the staff down there that he needed maximum security.

Q Well, it was the feeling of the staff that Zietz and Foster both needed maximum security?

A In one of the cases, very definitely.

Q What about the others?

A There were some cases.

Q Which ones needed maximum security?

A Zietz, they felt should definitely stay there. I might say in Foster's case that one of the points that was taken into consideration in not moving him at this time was because of the physical condition of his mother. He got very few visits at Rockview. She wasn't able to travel. She had very little money.

Q There was no consideration at the time along the same lines as the Darcy case that his relatives were in Philadelphia?

A No, that didn't come out. But, of course, those men might be moved later on, but normally we do. If you have a group and there has been notoriety we try to separate at least the one who got the notoriety.

Q Do you separate the people who get life sentences from the other prisoners?

A No sir.

Q They are in the general prison population and enjoy the same privileges and same exercise?

A That's right. In fact, we have thirty some lifers up at Rockview righ now in the minimum security institution. We try to pick them out on the basis of personality factors rather than the amount of time they have. There was a lot of people who were opposed to that when we first came up with the idea about three years ago. Now that it has actually been tried up there, they are very happy with the arrangement.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q I think you said the population increased substantially during a certain period. What period was that?

A The increase started almost immediately after the cessation of the Korean war and boys start coming back. Now we had the same type of increase after World War II.

Q What type of crime was the majority?

A Whenever you have good times, you have an increase in crimes against persons; and in very hard times, you normally have an increase in crimes against property. We feel this is due to the fact that people have more money; they get out in the world and mix more with other people; they can travel more; they drink more and do a lot of those things, and you normally get an increase in the crimes against persons, such as rape, homicide, assault and battery, and so on during periods of relatively good times. Then during depressions, you get your burglary, larceny and robberies and so on.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Your prisons are overcrowded, are they not, Dr. Taylor?

A We will not be too seriously over-crowded when we get our new institution. We have some overcrowding now but once—providing of course, that this increase doesn't continue, and there has been no let-up so far.

Q What is the capacity of the new institution?

A Its capacity will be 1000 and that will relieve our over-crowding.

Q In Huntingdon?

A No sir. That is the one in Luzerne County, but Huntingdon will then become a penitentiary to take care of the overcrowding.

MR. KOHN: No further questions.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is all.

(Witness excused)

HENRY E. HARNER, recalled.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Mr. Harner, you have been previously sworn?
A Yes sir.
Q You were a member of the Board of Pardons that commuted the sentence from death to life of Foster, Zietz and Darcy?
A Yes sir.
Q Did you vote because of any political or improper influence?
A I did not, Mr. McBride.
Q Did anyone ever talk to you in advance of the case with the idea of influencing your vote?
A In this particular case?
Q Yes.
A No one—and you can underscore the words and you can put them in italics—no one ever spoke to me about either Darcy, Dietz or Foster.
Q Did you receive a copy of any Court of Appeals' Opinion?
A No, I had to look that up myself.
Q There was testimony that some members of the Board were handed a copy of an opinion.
A I did not receive any.
Q Mr. McCloskey testified that he did not give you one, and I ask you, did anyone else give you one?
A No one gave me a copy.
Q Were you motivated by anything else except by your conscience and your sincere view of the case?
A I was not motivated by anything other than those facts, Mr. McBride.
Q Would you have voted the same way had the other three voted the other way?
A I believe I would have and I would vote the same way today as I did in September of last year.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That's all.
MR. KOHN. I have no questions.
(Witness excused)

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR ROY E. FURMAN, recalled.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Governor, you were a member of the Board of Pardons which commuted the death sentence of Foster, Zietz and Darcy, is that correct?
A Yes sir.
Q There has been testimony by Mr. McCloskey that he handed you a copy of the Court of Appeals' opinion including both minority and the majority opinion, will you comment on that?
A Had I been asked that question prior to listening to Mr. McCloskey, I would have said "no." But since I heard him testify that he gave it to me, I know it must be true. I can honestly state that I have no recollection of it.
Q Have you any recollection of having read it?
A I read it at the time of the hearing but I haven't any recollection of reading it prior to that. It completely escaped my mind.
Q Were you influenced by any political or other unworthy considerations in voting the way you did?
A No sir.
Q Did you vote as you did only because of your conscience and your sincere view of the merits of the case?
A That is correct.
Q Would you have voted the same way if the other three had voted differently?
A Yes, I would have.
Q If the matter were presented to you now afresh, would you still vote the same way?
A I definitely would.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Cross examination.
MR. KOHN: I have no questions.
CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Any questions by members of the committee?
(No response)

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: May it please the Committee, we have some good news for you. We thought we might take all day today and part of tonight, if not a bit of tomorrow morning, to present our testimony, unless there is more in respect to Delaware County. You remember I ask the indulgence of the Board so that we would present Mr. Lord. and I got some kind of an intimation that there was more testimony on Delaware County. Except for him and my ability to get Justice Cohen from the Supreme Court which is sitting in Philadelphia, actually sitting, today and may be sitting even on Thursday and if the Committee is inclined to wind up on Thursday perhaps I can insert a statement from Justice Cohen in the record unless the Board wants me to get him here which I will be delighted to do. But I think the Supreme Court would like him to be personally present while they are sitting because he represents the seventh judge on that court.

Now with the exception of that, I don't know of other testimony that we as a Board of Pardons will be presenting, unless anything else should turn up, then we are prepared to go ahead and listen to any other testimony of the Committee or Mr. Kohn or any testimony any member of the Committee wishes to present.

MR. KOHN: Then you have nothing further to present except Mr. Lord?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That's right, and except Justice Cohen.

MR. KOHN: Nothing else—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I know of nothing else.

MR. KOHN: . . . the Board of Pardons wants to call to the attention of this Committee?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I don't know if you are going to hear any argument or not, maybe you want to dispense with them.

MR. KOHN: I would rather not argue.

SENATOR FLEMING: Mr. Chairman, I think from the standpoint of expediency, we should accept the statement from Justice Cohen in lieu of his appearance here, recognizing the fact that he is engaged.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Let us go into executive session on that. I was about ready to suggest we take a brief recess for 15 minutes, if the General has concluded with his information, to give our counsel an opportunity to get whatever information he has ready to present.

We will now have an executive session for a few minutes in connection with your suggestion on Justice Cohen.

(Short recess)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Mr. Hean, I am going to ask you to reappear on the stand, please.

FRANK HEAN, recalled.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Hean, there has been a matter that the Chairman, at least, wants to get cleared up and I think the rest of the Committee would be interested in it, too:

The other day we had the case of Elliott before us in which the commutation was made based upon the man's mental deficiencies. Now so far as the record was concerned, it showed that those examinations had been made in periods considerably prior to the time of the hearing before the Board. And the question came up whether or not the Board had a current psychiatric report on him at the time they had the hearing? Do you remember that case?

A I have a recollection of the Elliott case. I do not have the file before me, Mr. Tompkins, to give you an accurate review of it. Probably Mr. Kohn—do you have it?

MR. KOHN: No.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q No, I do not have it here, but I have here a record of those who have been executed since January of 1955, all of which were before the Board, and in none of them do I find any psychiatric report on the parties.

Is it customary for the Board to have psychiatric reports in those capital cases that are under sentence of death at the time they hear them?

A There was only one that I recall where there were allegations made before the Board that the man was sane under the Mental Health Act, Amendment of 1953. There was then a request made for an examination. I believe the present Attorney General asked for that. It was in December, I believe, of 1956.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Not that late.

A What?

Q Not that late? What case, Gossert?

A Yes. There was one where there was a question as to sanity.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That was this past year where you raised the question about the man's sanity between sentence and the date of execution.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The case that you are thinking of is a case known as Lemur in which—do you want me to tell you exactly what happened? I will tell you that.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: What I am trying to get at is this, General:

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, that is still pending in the court.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, as long as it is pending, we do not want to go into it.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is what I thought.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: What I am getting at is this: Here is a record of nine cases where the men were executed. All the men were before the Board. There is no psychiatric report in any of them excepting one that I find, and that I will take up separately.

Now in those cases which come before the Board when the man is under sentence of death, is the Board furnished with psychiatric information as to the man's condition at the time he comes before the Board.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Sometimes it is and sometimes it is not. In one case which was sent back, there was a plea for a psychiatric examination, and Dr. Philip Roach made a psychiatric evaluation. The matter was then taken up in Delaware County and is still pending. The Board took no action on it because counsel said to the Board, a Mr. Turner, that he was going to file a petition in the court of Delaware County, and the district attorney said that he thought that was proper.

Mr. Turner did present such a petition to the court in Delaware County. I know the petition was entertained, but what result, if any, there has been since that time, I do not know. It has not yet come back to the Board.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: General, you still seem to be missing the point of my inquiry, and that is this: Here are nine men who have been executed since January of 1955, two years ago. All nine of these cases have been before the Board. There is no record in any of these cases as to whether there was a psychiatric report before the Board to determine whether or not these men were sane and could be executed. Is there a psychiatric report on these cases which is not included as a part of the file?

THE WITNESS: No sir.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I would say I do not believe that is so. I can answer from actual kniwledge only since I have been a part of the Board, which is December, 1956, to the present day, and there have been two capital cases before the Board. Both of those resulted in further court proceedings which are in the courts now. I have no personal knowledge as to what the Board acted on prior to that time and commencing with 1955.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well then, I should like to make this inquiry. With the present status of the law, do you not think that when the Board hears these capital cases it should be a mandatory requirement to have a psychiatric report before the Board to determine whether or not a man is sane and whether or not the execution should be carried out?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I would say where the question is raised, I would agree thoroughly that it ought to be mandatory. If there is a question of the sanity of a man about to be electrocuted, there should be as part of the Board's function and duty a psychiatric examination that will help it to come to its own conclusion on that point.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Don't they receive psychiatric information on other cases which are not capital cases?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, we do.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Isn't that part of the parole board record or part of the prison board report that they sent you, psychiatric reports?

THE WITNESS: Not in capital cases because as the testimony this morning indicated, these men are brought into the penitentiary 48 to 72 hours prior to their execution, ordinarily, and there is no opportunity nor do they attempt to give the man a psychological or a mental or a psychiatric examination. They are there distinctly for execution, being held at the penitentiary for 48 to 72 hours.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Previous to that they have been in county prisons?

THE WITNESS: They have been in county prisons. There has been none. But the suggestion you make is a good one. We find we have the power to call on, or the Act would so provide, that the Board of Pardons had the power to call on the psychiatric physicians in the various diagnostic institutions.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Do you see the point I am trying to make, General?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I not only see it, I find myself in hearty accord with it. Since it has been part of the common law for 300 years that if a man is insane prior to trial, he should not be tried. If he goes insane during his trial, the trial should not be completed. Even though sane at the time the judgment is passed, should he become insane subsequent to judgment but prior to execution, the execution shall be stayed. Therefore, the Board of Pardons, where the question is properly raised before it that this man was insane subsequent to judgment but prior to execution, there should be a psychiatric examination sufficient to satisfy the Board itself one way or the other.

I heartily approve of that suggestion.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, do you think it should be only in those cases where they raise the issue?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, Mr. Chairman, if there is no contention by anyone, the counsel, the court, or anybody else, I do not then believe that the law mandatorily ought to compel the Board to require such an examination. I believe the furthest it should go is to provide that where the contention is made, or the suggestion is made, then the Board ought to satisfy itself. But I would not deny the Board power to do it of its own motion in any case, because I believe it has that power.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The reason I raised the issue is because I do not find any record in any of these nine cases where the men had been executed and that question was considered.

THE WITNESS: You will not find it because the penitentiary, as has been stated this morning, does not—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, I realize that, but is that not a fault along the way some place that should be corrected?

THE WITNESS: The Board, of course, can employ a psychiatrist, but we use the penitentiary or diagnostic institutional psychiatrist.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: For the one case in which the question of sanity was raised during the course of the trial of the case I find no psychiatric report in the file at the time it went before the Board regarding the man's sanity at that time.

THE WITNESS: You are thinking of the Altoona case.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: No; the Lance case.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I know nothing of that case.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Patrick A. Lance.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: I don't think the Mental Health Act imposes any obligation. As a result, it seems that nobody would raise the question, and unless the prisoner himself or his family or friends indicate he happens to be an insane person, he probably would not admit it.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It always turns out that the defendant himself insists he is sane.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The thing that has struck me so forcibly is that in so many of these cases that we reviewed, we found the psychiatric reports as a part of the record in the proceedings before the Parole Board, and in those cases where the men have gone to their deaths there is no psychiatric report.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, well I have no objection to making it automatic, none at all.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: That would probably have to be by an amendment to the Act.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I realize that.

THE WITNESS: We have had this, Mr. Tompkins, where the attorney or friends asked that the Board employ a psychiatrist independent of the institutional psychiatrist. We have no funds to provide such service.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, the thing that strikes me is, here are men who are under the sentence of death; they have gone to their deaths, and there is no record of anything of that kind having been done to see whether or not they should be protected in that field.

Mr. KOHN: In the Elliott case, they plead insanity but there was no recent report upon which the Board based its commutation. They based it on an old psychiatric report.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That is right.

Well, that is one issue I wanted to bring up for clarification and consideration of the committee. Thank you, Mr. Hean.

Mr. KOHN: Mr. Hean, will you please remain in the witness chair just for an explanation on one case here? I have several cases the Senator wanted discussed. I would like to get rid of this one here.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Do you have your book here for the May Session, 1957?

A May 1956 Session, yes.

Q I will give you the facts if it is all right with you. Caeser Ricci, R-i-c-c-i. The defendant was charged with bribery, misdemeanor in office and conspiracy from Allegheny County; sentence started on October 10, 1955. This is an application for a commutation of the sentence.

A I think it is March of 1956. We will get it.

Q Now, Mr. Hean, I ask you to look at the folder which is No. A-3460 and I ask you when that case was decided by the Board or when they made the recommendation?

A Well, is must have been heard in the March Session. It was continued from Februaryg until March of 1956, as the note here would so indicate. Then the action of the Board became effective on the second day of June, 1956. Now, I would have to have my book to give you just a run-down.

Q Here is what your book says, pending that we get it, I will read it. "A special Executive Session was held of the Board of Pardons on 6/5/56 at 3:35 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. All Members were present. The following unanimous action was taken on cases as have been held under advisement."

Under that is listed No. 10A, March 1951, Caeser Ricci, granted. Now if your record shows as I read, how do you explain the fact that this commutation was signed by the Governor at least three or four days in advance of the Board's action, according to the warrant here as attested by the Secretary of the Commonwealth?

A 1956, second day of June.

Q The Board action was dated 6/5/56.

A The only thing there would be that there was an error in putting in the correct date here on this paper.

Q Who would make that error?

A Well, this comes down from the—

Q Well, who inserts those dates?

A I insert the date. I would say I made the error of putting in the second instead of the fifth.

Y That error would be a typographical error?

A That would be a typographical error.

Q Are those checked by anybody?

A Yes.

Q We have had several of those. Are those checked by anybody?

A Yes, I checked them. I checked them, Mr. Kohn.

Q How would it be possible to have a meeting on the fifth of June and the warrant dated on the second?

A The only explanation is that either this date or that date is in error.

Q What about "fifty-four"?

A"Fifty-four," we corrected that and made it "fifty-six." That was done in the presence of several people.

Q You checked those yourself?

A I checked them, yes.

MR. KOHN: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

DAVID KOHN, recalled

THE WITNESS: Now, Mr. Yosko asked that several cases be looked into, and I would like to give a report on one of them.

Here is Frank Ciraolo, C-i-r-a-o-l-o, A-673. This defendant was given seven and one-half to fifteen years and three to six year, to run concurrently, with a fine of $2,000; charges, burglary and armed robbery. He was sentenced to the Western State Penitentiary and his sentence began on November 26, 1948. This arose in Blair County and the defendant plead nolo contendere and the Judge was Chester Fetterhoff and the District Attorney was Parker H. Loose.

The defendant had applications in the February Session 1951, January Session 1952, April Session 1955 and June Session 1956. He had several attorneys representing him at different times. He had a previous record in 1948 of petty larceny which was withdrawn; and in 1943, petty larceny, three years' probation. The district attorney was opposed to the application, and his defense in the application was that he was not guilty. He had only served one-half of his minimum.

I might say that the application had been granted by the Pardons Board composed of Truscott, Livengood, Wood and Smith, who recommended a commutation of sentence from seven and one-half years to six years, two months. Governor Fine disapproved this recommendation on June 17, 1954.

Gene Smith, a Member of the former Pardons Board, appeared before the Pardons Board which heard the last application on behalf of Ciraolo, although he was represented by M. Barney Cohen of Pittsburgh.

The Board turned the last application down also. At that time, Smith reviewed the case, gave his opinion of the case, the facts in the case. I know something about it because one of the three men involved in this case—. They robbed a man by the name of Daniel Lamont, who was a bookie operator and a race horse man up in Altoona, and forced him by gunpoint to open his safe and took $25,000 cash and valuables from him. Lamont, the victim, identified James Langden and Frank Ciraolo, but did not identify Louis Sprucio, who was released on a writ of habeas corpus.

Langden was found in Dauphin County, near Hershey, with two bullet woulds in his head, and nobody has ever been picked up for that, although it happened very soon after the robbery.

Now, there are no letters in the file from anyone that I could see that was in any way politically connected. The Governor turned this down and Gene Smith took exception to Governor Fine's formal action. He stated as follows:

" 'This case was heard in December, 1954, at which time I was privileged to be a member of this Board. The Board unanimously recommended commutation. Shortly after it was heard and the recommendation was made, I was contacted by a friend of mine from my home town in Allentown, Pennsylvania, who had been seen or talked to by the priest of this boy's family in Brooklyn. He naturally gravitated to me, and I personally investigated and looked into the matter after the Board had recommended it.

" 'The then Governor refused the Board's recommendation, and my inquiry revealed that he did so on information given to him by a former Attorney General, Judge Woodside, who did not hear the case, whose knowledge of the case stemmed from information and publicity given to a sequel to the robbery, to wit, the finding of a dead body in Hershey. I was a little shocked at that time to learn of the intervention of a man who had not heard the facts. And, in addition to being shocked, I had been a little alarmed because I saw the beginning of a star chamber where, without hearing, a man could be tried, convicted, and sentenced without appearance, witnesses, or testimony.

" 'I spoke to the Judge about this matter. He took the position that it was within his province, and, of course, I was in no position to argue with that type of thinking.' "

He goes on: " 'There is another item in this, in his record, which may cause you some concern and that is the fact that he was given a suspended sentence because of the prison riots back in 1953, I think. That has always been rather a confusing issue, at least to me. Those prison riots were terrible, and those who were involved should have been punished. The Department of Justice investigated them and I believe they made wholesale indictments. Many of them claimed they were innocent; they were in the prison, they could not get out; they could not avoid being there.

"'One of the most terrible moments in a man's life is to be involved in a prison riot because there is savagery at the worst.

"'So they made a deal. The Department of Justice made a deal with the counsels for these boys who said: 'I am not guilty; I did not do anything, but here, I am indicted.' They said we have got to produce a record; we have got to show the public that we have convicted people. So they plead guilty and the deal was made and they were given suspended sentences by the court.

"'So it is my position, and Frank Ciraolo's position, that I believe there are around 15 or more who went through the same ridiculous rigmarole. They were in-involved in the prison riot, so that then they should have been punished severely. But putting this hoax to the people of pleading guilty and getting a suspended sentence is just what I call it, a hoax.

"'So that we have that, and that may becloud the record. It may have beclouded Judge Woodside's judgment when he took it upon himself when he advised the Governor to ignore the Board's recommendations.

"'I believe this boy is ready. I think he was the victim of an over-officious public servant five months ago.'"

Now, inasmuch as I, at that time, happened to know something about the prison riots—actually, I was in charge of the prosecution—I wish to state that Mr. Smith did not know what he was talking about. There were not any deals made. It is true that the Allegheny County courts were very reluctant to impose sentences on any of the prison defendants. I think we brought 135 prosecutions and I think about seventy-five percent convictions were gotten. The reasons for the Allegheny courts not wanting to impose sentences on these boys were because the prison riots happened in Allegheny County, the criminal act happened there, and the courts of Allegheny, the County of Allegheny, did not want to bear the expense of imprisoning them any further than they had been given by their own county. There were no deals made. Gene Smith is a classmate of mine, but he did not know what he was talking about when he alleged there were any deals made.

Now, is there anything further that you would like me to bring out, Senator Yosko?

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Did the recommendation of the Board of Pardons mention that he was found guilty of the prison riots?

A If you will just wait a minute, I will be glad to find that for you.

Q He was found guilty?

A Of the prison riots? He plead guilty.

Q He plead guilty and he was given a suspended sentence?

A The comments here on this sheet show he was involved in the Western State Penitentiary riot, not sentenced for riot. I mean they didn't sentence them; they just suspended sentence on all of them.

Q Did the recommendation of the Board of Pardons say what the district attorney's position was?

A Oh, yes. He opposed it all the way through.

Q Yes, but did the recommendation say that?

A Wait, I'll get that for you. The recommendation of the Board of Pardons, no.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Was the commutation finally granted in this?

A No.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Parker Loose did object?

A Yes.

Q He had two larceny cases?

A Yes.

Q One of which was withdrawn; the other on which he got three years' probation.

A Yes.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I have no further questions.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Mr. Kohn, you read so fast that I lost the trail somewhere along the way. The defendant here was convicted of—

A Armed robbery.

Q Armed robbery in connection with the stealing of $25,000?

A Yes.

Q And he got how much?

A He got seven and one-half to fifteen years for armed robbery and three to six years for burglary to run concurrently.

Q That was when?

A That was on March 22, 1949, to date from November 26, 1948, when they were imprisoned.

Q The first application for pardon was made on what date?

A February Session, 1951.

Q That would be approximately three years after he had been in jail?

A That is right.

Q And the Board at that time recommended?

A No.

Q They did not?

A No. The recommendation was not until the April Sessions, 1954, which was on the third application.

Q There were three applications?

A That is right.

Q On the third application, then the Board recommended commutation of what, to what period?

A From seven and one-half to six years, two months.

Q From seven and one-half to six years, two months. Had the time expired at the time of the hearing, or approximately that time?

A No, the Board said as follows: "Expiring on January 26, 1955", which would have been some time later.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q But it really is still 1954?

A Yes.

Q Not 1955?

A No, they recommended expiring on January 26, 1955, but they heard it in 1954 and recommended the seven and one-half years be commuted to six years, two months, expiring in the future, on January 26, 1955.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q The Governor then refused to accept the recommendation of the Board?

A The seventeenth day of January 1955, Governor Fine disapproved the action of the Board of Pardons.

Q Now, do I understand that there is something in the record that indicates that Governor Fine refused the recommendation of the Pardons Board on the basis of something that someone else told him who had not heard the case?

A That is what Gene Smith said.

Q And when did he say that and to whom did he say that?

A He said that on April 20, 1955 on the hearing before the present Board of Pardons—not altogether the present Board—I think Livengood was still on. That is the only one.

Q At that time Mr. Smith said that Governor Fine had refused this on the recommendation of—

A Of former Attorney General Woodside.

Q Former Attorney General Woodside?

Now when Mr. Smith appeared before the Pardons Board, did he appear as attorney for the man?

A No. Barney Cohen was the attorney. He said this: "'Frank Ciraola is represented, and still is represented, by Attorney M. Barney Cohen of Pittsburgh who sits on my left.'" That is what he said to the Pardons Board.

Q Yes, but what was Mr. Smith's capacity in the case at that time? Was he also counsel or just as a friend?

A He certainly got into it as a friend of the family because he talked to the boy's family priest. He thought the boy was innocent.

Q Does the application show whether or not he was listed as the attorney?

A No, the application does not list his name as counsel for—wait a minute. No, the application shows M. Barney Cohen alone as counsel.

Q I notice assitant counsel over there, Mr. Arnold does not quite agree with that statement.

A What is that?

Q Your assistant counsel does not quite agree with that statement.

A I only know what the record shows.

MR. ARNOLD: I was under the erroneous impression that he was.

THE WITNESS: He is not listed as counsel. I was the one who excerpted this case, not the assistant counsel.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: While you were saying that, assistant counsel was shaking his head "no."

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Well, in what capacity was he appearing?

A I guess as a friend of the family. He says so.

Q Did he have any official position with the Commonwealth at that time?

A No, he did not.

Q Was he counsel for the Auditor General?

A That I would not know, Mr. McBride. I really don't know. Could be, but I really do not know. I mean, the record would have to show that.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Well then, the commutation was refused at that hearing, too, and there has never been any commutation of the sentence?

A No sir. Do you want me to go over that, how he got into the thing? He said, "'I was contacted by a friend of mine from my home town in Allentown, Pennsylvahia, who had been seen or talked to by a priest of the boy's family in Brooklyn.'"

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Gene Smith sat on the Pardons Board when it first heard the previous application, did he not?

A That I could not tell you. I imagine he did because they were made in 1951. I do not know whether he was on the first one, Senator Yosko, but he was on the other two.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Pardon me. I have one other thing I don't get quite clearly. Who was shot here in Dauphin County?

A Well, the accomplice was shot—wait I will tell you his name.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Langden.

Langden, or something like that. I know because I helped investigate that case at that time.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q He was an accomplice of this defendant in this same robbery?

A Yes, that is right. I will give you his name. A fellow named Langden, and he was identified by the victim as having worked with Ciraolo in the holdup.

There was another fellow involved by the name of Louis Sprucio, who got out on a habeas corpus because they could not identify him. There were three of them involved. Langden was shot later and killed. Ciraolo was picked up in Brooklyn.

Q He was convicted and identified by the victim?

A Yes.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Langden had shortchanged his accomplice of $1000?

A Yes, ten 100-dollar bills. They found some money attached to his leg, but they could never prove the shooting.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Now, there were some vicious characters along the line?

A Yes.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Mr. Smith did sit on the Board with one of these applications?

A He did and recommended the commutation which Governor Fine refused.

Q Would you, as an attorney, say that it was good ethics for Mr. Smith to represent this man before this Board who previously sat as members of the Board of Pardons?

A Senator Yosko, I am not going to express my opinion of another man who is a lawyer. That would be a lawyer's opinion and I don't think you ought to ask me that question. I don't think that is a fair question. I mean I don't want to be disrespectful to you, but being in my profession, I don't think I ought to express my opinion of another lawyer.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: If he was convinced of the man's innocence, certainly it was ethical.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Was there a conflict of interest there?

A You are going back to the same principle that I don't feel I ought to comment upon to criticize or justify another man's—I don't even know how he got into it or why he got into it or whether he was paid.

BY SENATOR SCOTT:

Q The sequence of events is that he sat on the Board. He recommended favorably and he convinced them. Then after he went off the Board he represented him as an attorney—or was it as a friend?

A As a friend; not as an attorney.

Q And there was no evidence to show that he got any money?

A The evidence seems to point to the contrary. They say the boy's priest came to him and talked about the case.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Well, there is no use asking you. That is why it is not fair to present these cases through you because you cannot answer. The questions we want to ask you refuse to answer because you are a fellow attorney.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It's a tight union.

SENATOR YOSKO: Yes, I know it is.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Mr. Kohn, how many of the members of the previous Boards with whom Mr. Smith sat were still members at that time?

A Mr. Livengood.

Q Just Mr. Livengood?

A Do you mean at the last time he appeared before the Board?

Q Yes. Mr. Livengood was a member of the Board?

A Previously when they made a recommendation.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q When the Pardons Board granted this commutation, Mr. Truscott, Mr. Livengood, Mr. Wood, Mr. Smith, and—I don't know who the Attorney General was at the time—were all members of the Board?

A It was Truscott, Livengood, Wood and Smith at the time the commutation was granted.

Q And when Smith argued the case, who was on the Board then?

A Well, I couldn't tell you that, but I do know that—I missed Miss Blatt—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No, she was not yet on. It was Lieutenant Governor Furman, Attorney General Cohen, Secretary of the Commonwealth Finnegan and Secretary of Internal Affairs Livengood.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Mr. Kohn, on what basis did the Board recommend the commutation? What did they use for their reasoning?

A Just a moment of indulgence, please.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Do I understand this man has never been commuted?

A No, he is still in jail.

SENATOR YOSKO: He was never commuted, Mr. Chairman, because the Governor disagreed with the Pardons Board but the Pardons Board which was functioning at the time in spite of the facts in the case and in spite of the fact that he figured in a prison riot, plead guilty to it, he was still recommended for commutation.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Well, there might be good reason for it. That is what I would like to hear.

THE WITNESS: Do you want the reason, Mr. Lopresti?

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Yes, the reason why the Pardons Board recommended commutation.

THE WITNESS: Our recommendation is as follows:

"This applicant is thirty-one years of age and this was his first major conviction. He was sentenced to a term of not less than seven and one-half years nor more than fifteen years on a conviction of burglary and robbery in which $25,000 was taken. No others were sent to prison as a result of these offenses, but they, the accomplices, were released upon a writ of habeas corpus. At the present time this applicant has served more than six years of a minimum sentence. Since he has served more than six years of his minimum sentence of seven and one-half years and has an excellent institutional record in the Western Penitentiary, we recommend that his sentence be commuted and ask for commutation of seven and one-half years to six years, two months."

In other words, at the time it was heard, he had served six years.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Well, the principal reason then was that he had served a substantial part of his sentence?

A Yes, his first offense.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Then he had a good record.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q There was no mention made in the reasons for the commutation of the fact that he figured in the prison riots and plead guilty to it?

A No sir.

Is there anything further, gentlemen?

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Kohn, just one question on the last case you had: Was there more than one recommendation at any time?

A No, just one recommendation.

Q All other Boards just refused, and that was all there was to it?

A Yes, that's right.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Yes, that's right.

Any other questions of Mr. Kohn?

(No response from members of the Committee.)

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

MR. KOHN: Now, Mr. Chairman, Mr. Evans has excerpted some cases. We will call him at this time to testify as to those.

JAMES W. EVANS, recalled.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

THE WITNESS: The first case is Lester Gore. January Sessions, 1953, No. A7140. This particular applicant had been sentenced for perjury before a Philadelphia Grand Jury concerning certain fixes and bribes in a Zoning Bureau down there and was sentenced from one to three years.

He started his sentence on October 8, 1952. Then two months after that he applied for a commutation. If you will pardon me it has been some time since we read these, and I have to bring myself up to date. It was December, 1952 he made his first application to the Pardons Board, and that case was continued until January, 1953 when the Board recommended commutation.

Governor Fine again refused to follow the Board's recommendation in January of 1953. The applicant applied in April of 1953 when it was refused. Re-argument was granted in May of 1953, and at this time it was granted, and the Governor signed the recommendation for commutation to be effective June 18, 1953. He was actually released from prison in June of 1953.

Six months later in December of 1953, he applied for a pardon, a full pardon. This was recommended to the Governor, and this was in December, 1953 and the salient feature here is that Governor Fine sat on this recommendation until January 14, 1954, which I think was the last day he was in office.

Now there is nothing in this file except these two things for whatever they are worth.

There is a letter in the file dated March 31, 1953, from the applicant's attorney, Harry J. Bellwoar, to the Pardons Board in which he makes reference to the fact that His Excellency, the Governor of Pennsylvania, had in a letter to the applicant's wife indicated that if the applicant had served more time, he would be inclined towards favorable consideration. Now this was when he was still in prison. There is nothing else in the file on that.

There is a letter in the file from the applicant's wife, Mrs. Gore, to the Board, I believe. It is in the file but it is a letter from the wife to Mr. Meehan. I just assume that by "Mr. Meehan," they mean Austin Meehan of Philadelphia.

There is nothing in the file that brings any further direct connection of a political influence other than that.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Austin Meehan is a political leader in Philadelphia, isn't he?

A As far as I know, I don't know him personally, but I have heard the name here.

Q And Mr. Gore is a ward leader in Philadelphia, a Republican Ward Leader?

A I don't know that of my own knowledge, but I have since heard that to be true.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q What is in the letter from Mrs. Gore to Mr. Meehan?

A She is soliciting his help. The minimum sentence was commuted from one year to eight months and ten days.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q What was that again, Mr. Evans?

A The minimum sentence was commuted from one year to eight months and ten days. Wait until I find that letter. I made a note of it.

Q And then he was subsequently pardoned?

A That's right. That letter is here. I had made a note of it. I can tell you the substance of the letter without even being able to find it. It was an appeal to Mr. Meehan to do what he could to get her husband home to her. In this file there is a petition with a substantial number of names on it all favoring commutation. In looking over that petition, they all appear to be neighbors of Mr. Gore. They all have a similar address.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Now is that letter addressed to Mr. Meehan or is that letter from the wife to the Governor?

A No, it's a letter to Mr. Meehan. I have a copy of the letter.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Is it addressed to Austin Meehan?

A Here is a copy of the letter. Would you care for me to read it? It says: "Dear Mr. Meehan." It has no address on it. It has the date of May 14, 1953.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Does that bear any relationship to the rehearing date? Does it have any significance to that?

THE WITNESS: I don't believe. but I will tell you very quickly as soon as I get this thing in order here.

It bears a relation here that the defendant had applied in April, 1953 at which time he was refused. He was then granted a re-argument in May of 1953. I don't know the exact date in May. At that time the sentence was commuted to be effective June, 1953.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Was that after the letter to Mr. Meehan? Was it commuted afterwards?

THE WITNESS: I believe so.

Did you want me to read the letter, Mr. Lopresti?

MR. LOPRESTI: Yes.

THE WITNESS: It reads as follows: "Dear Mr. Meehan:

"As you probably know, Lester's appeal is to be reheard before the Board in Harrisburg on Wednesday, May 20th. I certainly hope that this time Governor Fine approves, for the importance of Lester getting home as quickly as possible is very real.

"Bill's graduation"—incidentially, if I may interpose here, in checking through the file, Bill is the son of the applicant—"takes place on June 6th and if at all possible I hope that his father can be there—it will mean everything in the world to Lester and even more to Bill.

"Doris is expected to have her baby about the same time and I hope that her child does not have to be born without her father being home. And there is, too, the natural apprehension that parents have until these events are safely over.

"Of the most immediate and perhaps the gravest concern at this moment, is that Lester's mother is in a critically ill condition. His devotion to his parents, and most especially to his mother is something far beyond the usual feeling between children and parents and if anything should happen in this direction before he is home, I hesitate to even think of the effect that it will have on him. He has gone through this ordeal with courage, I think, but this he would not be able to take, I know. I don't know what to do about this and I can only pray hard, I guess, that such a terrible thing does not occur before he is home.

"I spoke with her doctor regarding the exact condition and what to expect and from what he told me, I realize that if Lester does not get home very soon, he is going to get this blow while still in prison. The doctor, incidentally, said that he would be willing to confirm this opinion, if I wanted him to do so.

"I can only hope that if Lester's appeal is granted this time, that the Board and Governor will find the human sympathy in their hearts to expedite the matter as quickly as possible under the circumstances. You have done so much for us already, that I hate to continuously be asking your help, but if you can be of any assistance along this line, I need not tell you how grateful I will be.

"Thank you once again for all the help and all your many kindnesses and my very best wishes to you for a successful "May 19th."

"Sincerely,

/s/ "Marion Gore"

"P. S. Lester is not aware of his mother's condition and I do not think it wise that he be told how serious it is, at this moment."

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Was the rehearing granted after that letter?
A No.
Q The re-argument, I mean?

A No. The re-argument had been granted prior to that time but the open hearing on the re-argument was held about a week after this letter was sent. Now that's the time that the commutation was granted.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Is there anything in this file to indicate how a letter to Mr. Meehan would get in the Pardons Board file?

A Nothing whatsoever except that it is stamped "Received at the Pardons Board," with the Pardons Board stamp. I checked. I tried to find that out, but I could not.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Is there another letter in the file?

A Another letter? Yes, there is a letter of May 20, 1953, to the Honorable, Governor John S. Fine from Marion Gore.

Q It is a letter of the—

A This is the letter from which I got the information that Bill was the son. I can read that and I can give you a very brief resume of it. It recites the illness of Mr. Gore's mother; it recites the fact that the son is to graduate on the 18th of June, 1953 from Valley Forge Military Academy.

Incidentally, as a point of interest, he was released the day after his son's graduation anyhow.

It recites in this letter—I'll read it if you want. We may save time.

This letter to Governor Fine from Marion Gore, the wife of the applicant, and in effect is a repetition of the letter to Austin Meehan. It recites essentially the same particulars.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What is the date of that letter?

A It is dated May 20, 1953, six days after the letter to Mr. Meehan.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q I can understand how that letter can be in the file, but I was trying to understand how a letter addressed to Mr. Meehan could be in the file.

A I can't explain that, I don't know. I looked over the file and I don't know.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q What were the facts that constitute the crime? What was the sentence?

A Mr. Gore had been called before a Grand Jury to testify as to certain alleged bribes and pay-offs having to do with zoning violations, I believe, as I recall it. And he had testified under oath he had never received anything in the way of bribes or improper payments. I believe it was shown later on he received $600. He was found guilty of perjury and he was charged with perjury.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Was he also a member of the particular Board?
A I believe he was, yes.
Q He wasn't tried on the bribery charge, but just on the perjury charge?

A Just on perjury. Mr. Dilworth, I believe, was the district attorney who tried him at that time.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q What was the recommendation of the district attorney?

A He thought that it was premature, and I don't believe there was any opposition later on. I am not certain about that; I will check that for you.

You are talking now in regard to the district attorney's position in regard to the pardon or the commutation or both?

Q Both.

A December, 1952, the district attorney's office was opposed to clemency.

Q Who was the judge?

A The trial judge was Leventhal, Louis E. Leventhal.

Q What was his recommendation?

A He was to make his feelings known at the time of the hearing. And I am trying to find now his letter. There is a letter in here from the judge I am quite certain. I believe, as I recall it, he felt that the application was premature.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Was that the first application or the reargument?

A Each time this case came up, or every time a new application was filed for a re-argument or rehearing, I didn't find any evidence in the file that there were new opinions obtained from either the trial judge or the district attorney. I find, as I say, the letter of December, 1952 for the district attorney. At that time he was opposed to it. I can't find the letter I have in mind, but there was a letter.

The parole report says the trial judge withdrew his comments, but I see nothing in the file that the trial judge did withdraw his comments.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Will you give us the time sequence of the filing of the original application plus any rehearings or supplemental applications or whatever you have in the file?

A Sequence?

Q Yes sir, the time sequence.

A The first application was fild in December of 1952. That is the first application for a commutation of the minimum sentence.

Q When was that?

A December, 1952.

Q What was he sentenced for?

A He started serving time on October 8, 1952. Roughly, two months had elapsed from the time he entered the penitentiary until the time the first application had been filed.

Q Yes?

A The case did not come up for the December Session of 1952. It was continued to January, 1953, another month. At that time, in January, 1953, the Board of Pardons recommended to the Governor the minimum sentence be commuted. That was refused by the Governor. He refused to follow the Board's recommendation. According to the recommendation that was prepared at that time, it states here that he had served three and one-half months of a minimum sentence of one year.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q What reason did they give for recommending it, Mr. Evans?

A Do you want me to read it entirely, or do you want me to give you a resume of it?

Q A resume is all right.

A The sum and substance of the recommendation was that he had a very good reputation. His neighbors had presented this petition before the Board. This was presented in open hearing, incidentally, by a neighbor of his named Hugh Moon, that his previous character was good and that he had no prior criminal record of any kind.

The Eastern Penitentiary had advised the Board of Pardons that the applicant had an excellent institutional record. It does state that the D.A.'s office is opposed.

That is the sum and substance for the basis of the recommendation in January, 1953.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q All right. When did they have the next hearing?

A He then re-applied. I believe it was a re-application. He then applied in April of 1953, which was roughly three months after—well, it was actually a month and one half after Governor Fine had refused to accept the recommendation of the Pardons Board because the Governor had refused them on the second day of March, 1953. H then re-applied in April 1953 and this was refused.

He requested a re-argument for May of 1953, and at that time the sentence was commuted May, 1953 to be effective June 18, 1953. And Governor Fine signed it on June 12, 1953, but the prisoner was actually released on the 19th of June, 1953.

Q So that from the time he was sentenced, he was granted three hearings, or two hearings and one re-argument?

A He had a continuance in December of 1952 which was heard in January of 1953. He applied in April of 1953 and was refused. He had a re-argument in May of 1953 at which time it was granted. Three, I would say.

Q Assuming that you are familiar with the rules of the Pardons Board which we discussed at length when we opened these hearings, was there a violation of any of those rules in these procedures?

A The only thing I could say to you, if you are asking me for an opinion, I will have to give the stock answer given here. It is a constitutional Board which makes its own rules and adjusts them as they see fit.

Q Did they have those rules at that time?

A As far as I know they had the same rules at that time.

Q I think you said at the second hearing the Pardons Board refused to recommend it?

A That was in April, 1953, that is right.

Q What condition had changed between the first time that they recommended it and the second time when they refused to recommend it?

A I don't know. There is nothing in the record indicating what the change was.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Well, isn't there a rule we discussed at length requiring some new evidence before a petition would be granted or approved?

A I will say this. I don't know the answer to your question specifically, but as I recall the amended rule that we have had floating around here was a mimeographed sheet. I believe that was passed by the present Board in March, 1955, but I believe that was just a re-affirmation of a rule that had previously existed. They had intended to strengthen that or abide by it more strictly than they had in the past.

Q From your examination of the files, there are no new facts that were presented as a basis for the second petition and the re-arguments, aside from the reasons indicated in the letter from Mrs. Gore?

A It is difficult to say, unless you would call new facts the critical condition of the applicant's mother or the graduation of the son. Other than that, I see nothing new that was not in the case before, and even those things may have been in the case before. I don't know.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q So that both Boards had a rule that required one year to lapse between a new petition, and it was this recent Board that required new evidence to be furnished if you wanted to hear it before a year had expired?

A I am not certain that is exactly correct. If my recollection serves me correctly, the rule has been for a good number of years if you wanted to have a new hearing or rehearing within one year, you had to present to the Board new facts or new evidence of some sort to substantiate it. However, the present Board, I believe, in March 1955—I think I am correct on that—in one of their executive sessions had agreed or had a resolution to the effect they were going to enforce it a little more strictly than it had been in the past. I believe that is the way it worked out.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Now again how much time elapsed between the last argument for the pardon and the actual date of the granting of the pardon?

A The argument?

Q Yes.

A Well, it was heard in the May Session of 1953, and I would assume that was usually in the second or third week in the month. I don't know the exact date offhand. The 20th, it is in the record.

Q You are referring to the pardon, not the commutation?

A Yes, that is what I am referring to. Are you referring to the pardon?

Q Yes.

A In December, 1953 that was argued and recommended to the Governor by the Board, that is the pardon. Governor Fine didn't sign the warrant until January 14, 1955.

Q When did he leave office?

A I don't know the exact date, but I think I heard the 14th or 15th was the last day he was in office.

Q Does the warrant indicate when the recommendation was sent to the Governor's office?

A I don't believe it would. I don't think they ever do.

MR. KOHN: No.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q What date does the recommendation of the Pardons Board bear?

A There is no date on them. They just have the December 1953 Session.

Q What date is indicated on the warrant that the Governor signed?

A January 4, 1953.

Q We would presume, then, that is the date that it was sent down to him?

A Well, if you want to presume that, you can, but I don't know.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Well, there was over a year's time between the action of the Board and the action of the Governor?

A That is correct.

MR. KOHN: That is all.

Any further questions?

DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL WRIGHT: I have a couple of questions to ask.

BY DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL WRIGHT:

Q Now what reasons were given by the Board on the occasion upon which the Governor approved the recommendation for commutation of sentence?

A The reasons given by the Board of Pardons to the Governor for commutation of minimum?

Q At which time he approved the recommendations. Do they vary significantly from the recommendations made by the Board prior to that time?

A I don't believe that they did. I will check.

The only recommendation that is in the file, Mr. Wright, is the recommendation of May, 1953 which is the one that I read into the record before, at least, I think I gave the substance of it.

SENATOR YOSKO: You did.

BY DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL WRIGHT:

Q The recommendations which the Board made in January is not there?

A I don't see it in the file anywhere. I don't have any recollection of having seen it either.

Q Now can you tell us what reasons were given by the Board to substantiate their reasons for recommending a pardon?

A It is right here. I will read them. They are very short. This is December 1953:

"This applicant is fifty-two years or age. He had no prior criminal record. He was convicted on perjury in Philadelphia County and sentenced to a term of not less than one nor more than three years. After having served approximately eight months he was granted commutation and has been on parole approximately one and one-half years.

"He desires this pardon because he has alleged that he is completely rehabilitated. At the present time he is in the building business and is unable to apply for bids and fidelity bonds of any sort by reason of this conviction.

"Since he has been in no further difficulty and since he is completely rehabilitated and will not again offend against society, we are recommending that a pardon be granted."

Q That was in December of 1953, is that correct?

A That's right.

Q And they had granted his commutation in June of 1953?

A That's correct.

Q How could he have been on parole supervision for a year and a half?

A I can't answer that question, Mr. Wright. I don't know.

There is a letter here from Roy G. Farrow, Assistant Superintendent of the Parole Supervision, dated December 7, 1953 which is fairly short which might throw some light on your question. I don't know him personally but here is a letter that is in the file.

"This parolee is applying for a pardon in the December Session of the Board of Pardons. He is white, about fifty-two years old and has been on parole since 6-19-53. He was sentenced in Philadelphia County on 10-8-52 to serve one to three years in the Eastern State Penitentiary for perjury.

"The subject had been employed as Secretary of the Philadelphia Zoning Board and was accused of seeking and accepting money for issuing permits and reclassification orders. Under oath he denied having done this but was convicted. He had no previous criminal record.

"He was paroled 6-19-53 after commutation of sentence to live with his wife in Philadelphia and to work as a carpenter foreman for his father who had a construction company. The subject continued at this job and appears to have adjusted well.

"He applies for a pardon on the basis of his desire to return to public life and has need for a pardon in order to do so. The maximum sentence expires 10-8-55."

Q Well, that letter indicates that he had been out of prison only approximately six months, too, does it not?

A Yes, it does.

Q And yet the reasons stated by the Board in support of their recommendation for pardon states that he had been under successful supervision of the Parole Authorities for one year and one-half?

A No, I don't believe a year and one-half, this letter was written on—

Q No. I say the reasons given by the Board?

A He has been up here approximately one and one-half years, you are correct.

Q You have no idea what may account for the basic possibility of that statement?

A No, there is nothing in the file to indicate any basis for that statement.

Q And there is nothing in the file to indicate the reasons given by the Board for their action in January, 1953?

A No. You mean the recommendation of the Governor that was refused?

Q Yes.

A No, I don't see it here and I can't recall having seen it before.

DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL WRIGHT: That is all.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q One more question, Mr. Evans. Was the composition of the Board the same the first time that they granted or rather recommended it, the second time when they refused to recommend it, and the third time when they recommended again?

A As far as I know, it was with the possibility the Attorney General might have been replaced. I don't know for sure, but I think the Board was substantially the same. I don't know when Mr. Woodside left office and Mr. Truscott came in. I don't recall, but that is the only possibility to my knowledge where there would be any change.

Any further questions on that?

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: That is all.

(Witness excused)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We will now receive in evidence Pardon Board Exhibit No. 38.

Four sheets entitled "Commutation Cases for 1953, 1954, 1955 and 1956" respectively—produced, marked for identification and received in evidence as Pardon Board Exhibit No. 38.

MR. KOHN: Are we ready to proceed, Mr. Chairman?
CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Yes.

. . . THE HONORABLE RICHARDSON DILWORTH, Mayor, City of Philadelphia, sworn:

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Senator Yosko, Mayor Dilworth was subpoenaed at your request, so I will turn the witness over to you

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Mr. Dilworth, during these hearings we heard testimony on the commutation and pardon of Lester E. Gore, a former Secretary of the Zoning Board of Adjustment in Philadelphia; and in connection with it there was a letter in the file from Mrs. Gore to Austin Meehan, in which she solicited his assistance. The day after the hearings were held, a statement was issued by Mr. Meehan in which he said, and I quote from the letter, "Certainly I tried to help him," meaning Gore, "just as I have tried to help thousands of other people," Meehan said. "I didn't think he should have gone to jail."

Since I, for one, as a member of this Committee, am not sufficiently acquainted with the fact as to whether or not he should have gone to jail, although the jury decided that, I would like to get from you the background in connection with this case.

Were you, Mr. Dilworth, the District Attorney for Philadelphia at the time the commutation and pardon was applied for?

A I was then, yes.

Q And did you write a letter, or did your office write a letter to the Pardon Board, either objecting to or approving the application for commutation or pardon?

A Well, we had the proceedings before the Parole Board and the Pardon Board, and they were always covered by one Assistant District Attorney who was assigned to that, and he discussed all the cases with Michael von Moschzisker, the First Assistant District Attorney, and, if they were of any importance, he would discuss them with me in person.

We didn't prosecute Gore. He was convicted and prosecuted before we came into office. We did oppose the parole. I think that there was an application for parole first—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Commutation.

A (continued) Commutation. We did oppose the application for commutation and parole and pardon.

Q Did you review the case, and what sort of a recommendation did you make?

A I was familiar with the particular case because in the 1947 campaign I had stated that this was going on in the Zoning Board.

Q What was going on?

A A regular practice of shaking down people who wanted permits and changes in zoning and things like that.

Q Permits in connection with what?

A With applications for zoning changes or zoning exceptions or zoning exemptions.

Tow matters we brought out. One was in connection with zoning and one was in connection with the permits for the installation of the oil tanks and oil burners in homes, apartments, and office buildings. That was, of course, over in the Fire Marshall's office. We brought those matters out in 1947. The Committee of 15 went into it further, and a special Grand Jury of 1950 indicted the Deputy Fire Marshall and Mr. Gore.

Q And you did familiarize yourself with the facts before you wrote your letter to the Pardon Board?

A I was very familiar with the facts. I was the first person, I believe, to bring them out, to make the charges. That was in 1947.

Q What sort of recommendation did you send in to the Pardon Board?

A Well, we opposed it because this had been a uniform shakedown in the Zoning Board. It was not a question of a man having slipped once or anything of that kind. This was a real mill that they were running over there. If you wanted changes in certain categories, you paid certain amounts of money. There was practically a fee list.

Q According to the testimony, what part did Mr. Gore play in that so-called shakedown as you described it?

A Oh, he was the key of it.

Q He was the key of it. He was found guilty by the jury—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Of perjury.

A That's right. He was indicted and convicted for perjury. As I said, that was done before we were in office. That was done by Mr. Kunzig special counsel, who was appointed by the Court, as my recollection—

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q He was a Deputy Attorney General?
A Deputy Attorney General for the 1950 Grand Jury.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q According to the record, he was given a sentence of from one to three years in prison. Do you think that sentence was exorbitant?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I don't think that is a proper question.

SENATOR YOSKO: I asked that question because in Mr. Dilworth's letter, if my recollection serves me correctly, he says the application was prematurely filed; and I just want to get his reasons for saying that.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Let me see the letter.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Will you read your letter to the Pardons Board?
A I don't think that is my letter. I think that was prepared by Mr. Berkowitz.
Q Was there a letter sent in by your office?
A That is the only thing I was able to find in the file. Of course, I didn't have a chance to look at the files of the District Attorney's office.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Is this the Pardon Board file or your file?
MR. KOHN: Pardon Board file.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Was this letter written on the stationery of the District Attorney while you were District Attorney?
A That's right.
Q Was the case discussed with you before the letter was written?
A Oh, yes, because I was very interested in this case.
Q This letter was written, then, with your knowledge and your consent?
A That is right.
Q Will you read the letter, please.
A It is not a very strong letter.
Q Well, read it, please.
A "Upon being arraigned on November 28, 1951, the petitioner, Lester E. Gore, pleaded not guilty to the above Bill. He was found guilty on November 30, 1951, and sentence was deferred pending a motion for new trial.

"On February 8, 1952, the motion for new trial was denied; and on February 13, 1952, the petitioner was sentenced to one to three years in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

"On appeal to the Superior Court, the conviction was affirmed.

"On October 8, 1952, the petitioner was committed to the Eastern State Penitentiary to commence his sentence. The petitioner has served two years of his sentence.

"The facts are as follows. A special Grand Jury of 1950 was instructed to receive evidence regarding—"I have to get this further and further away without my glasses—"to receive evidence regarding extortion and relating crimes in any department of the Bureau granting licenses. The petitioner testified before the Grand Jury that he never received nor demanded any money in connection with the obtaining of a building permit, zoning permit, use permit or any other matter that came before the Zoning Board of Adjustment. The testimony showed that on six different occasions during the years of 1946 and '47 the petitioner demanded and received a total of $675 in connection with the issuance of building permits and certificates for zoning variances relating to six separate properties.

"Max Houghton, building architect, testified he gave the petitioner the sums of $100, $50, and $200 in connection with building permits. The other witnesses corroborated the testimony in connection with that.

"Another builder, Carl J. Meyer, testified that he gave Calder A. Weingartner $100 in cash, with instructions to deliver it to the petitioner. Weingartner testified that he gave the money to the petitioner.

"James G. Durham, another builder, testified that the petitioner demanded $100 before an application then before the Zoning Board would be approved.

"One Marvin R. Pole, an officer of the club which was interested in the zoning approval, testified he placed $100 on a desk in the office of the Bureau of Building Inspections, and that the petitioner immediately went by the desk.

"Finally, one John McDevitt, a construction superintendent, who was employed to supervise the erection of a building, testified that the petitioner demanded $125 from him for the approval of a permit. When Mr. McDevitt brought the money to the petitioner, the latter refused to accept it, but said to hand it to Weingartner. Weingartner then gave the money to the petitioner.

"In all cases the applications for variances, which at first had not been acted upon or were held for disposition or were denied or refused, were immediately approved after payment to the petitioner.

"After an investigation was begun by the Grand Jury, the petitioner admonished Weingartner not to admit the various payments. The petitioner categorically denied that he received any payments in connection with the issuance of any zoning permits, and that his testimony was the truth.

"In connection with his large bank balance, the petitioner stated that these were funds that were used for his father's interests.

"The Commonwealth is opposed to the granting of clemency in this matter."

Q Mr. Meehan said he didn't think Mr. Gore should have gone to jail for the crime which he apparently committed. Do you agree or disagree with that?

A Well, I don't know that I should comment on that, really. I think the case—we opposed the plea for commutation, also the plea for parole, also the plea for pardon. It seemed to us that, if anything, the Judge had given him a very fair break in the sentence.

Q Who, to your knowledge, was Mr. Gore in Philadelphia, outside of being connected with this zoning?

A He had been active in Republican politics for many years.

Q In what capacity?

A He had been a ward leader.

Q Mr. Meehan was also active in politics in Philadelphia?

A Yes, sir.

Q In what capacity?

A Generally active.

Q As a leader?

A Yes. He has certainly been one of the leaders.

Q Do Mr. Gore and Mr. Meehan live in the same ward? Or don't you know?

A I didn't think so.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I don't believe so.

SENATOR YOSKO: That is all I have.

BY SENATOR SCOTT:

Q Summing up, Mayor Dilworth, you were not the District Attorney at the time the prosecution was had on Mr. Gore?

A That is right.

Q You were familiar with the situation?

A That's right.

Q And then you were questioned as to whether or not you opposed the commutation of the sentence?

A Yes.

Q And in your judgment at the time, you felt as though the sentence should not be commuted at that time?

A That's right.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q This case was prosecuted by the Attorney General's office, Mr. Woodside being Attorney General at that time; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And this letter was written by you on December 9, 1952; is that right?

A That's right.

Q And you knew, of course, that Governor Fine disapproved the recommendation of the Pardon Board immediately after the recommendation was made in January of 1953?

A I am not precisely familiar with the course of events. I remember that three times or more we came up to Harrisburg—or our Assistant District Attorney came up on the matter. I don't remember precisely the dates.

Q Well, in January, after the Board recommended to Governor Fine, the Governor disapproved the recommendation of the Board?

A Yes.

Q And his sentence was from one to three years?

A One to three years.

Q Actually, his sentence was not commuted until he had served ten months; do you know that?

A I think it was eight months and a few days.

SENATOR SCOTT: Was that on a later application?

MR. KOHN: That was on a rehearing.

Governor Fine signed the commutation on 6/12/53, and his sentence started on October 8, 1952.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That would be slightly over eight months.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Did you write any other letter besides that on a subsequent hearing, Mr. Dilworth, that you can recall?

A As I say, Mr. Kohn, I don't think this letter was written by me. I think this was prepared by either Mr. Shraager or Mr. Berkowitz.

Q You knew the position that your office took on the matter at the time of the subsequent reconsideration about June of 1953 of this matter?

A Yes.

Q Can you tell us what that position was? What it was at that time?

A It is my recollection, without having seen the file in the District Attorney's office, that we consistently opposed it.

Q Even after he had served that time?

A Yes.

SENATOR SCOTT: Mr. Kohn, what was the reason given by the Board in its recommendation to the Governor that the sentence be commuted?

MR. KOHN: You mean the first time?

SENATOR SCOTT: At the time Governor Fine refused the recommendation; what did the Board say as to its reasoning in suggesting that the commutation be granted?

MR. KOHN: I will read it. "This applicant is 51 years of age. He was never before arrested for any offense. He was convicted of having given perjured testimony in connection with the operation of the Zoning Board of Adjustment in Philadelphia.

"Following this testimony, he was convicted in the Court of Quarter Sessions and sentenced to a term of not less than one year or more than three years.

"At the present time this applicant has served 3½ months of his sentence. Prior to this conviction he had an excellent reputation. In fact, his reputation was of such character that at the time of the hearing before the Board, his neighbors presented a petition which contained the names of over 500 persons, and which requested the Board of Pardons to give favorable consideration to this application.

"The Eastern State Penitentiary has advised the Board of Pardons that this applicant has an excellent institutional record.

"The District Attorney's office of Philadelphia, however, is opposed to the granting of clemency.

"It has often been said that a man's reputation is based on his past conduct and what his neighbors think of him. If such is the case, this applicant certainly bears an excellent reputation in the community in which he lives, and how better can a good reputation serve a man in his time of need? Therefore, in light of the petition which was presented to the Board, and which is made a part of this record, as well as the fact that this applicant has never been arrested before for any offense whatsoever, we recommend that his sentence be commuted."

The sentence at that time was to be commuted from one year to four months. The Attorney General did not vote. Mr. Livengood, Mr. Smith, and Mr. Wood made the recommendation. That was on the 2nd day of March, 1953.

Governor Fine said, "This recommendation on the part of the Board of Pardons is disapproved."

SENATOR YOSKO: Just for a little review, he was sentenced when?

MR. KOHN: October 8, 1952.

SENATOR YOSKO: Then he filed an application for commutation in November of 1952?

MR. KOHN: Filed in November; it was heard in December.

ATORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Within a month.

MR. KOHN: They were within a month. They were all listed within a month.

SENATOR YOSKO: Give us the sequence that you have there.

MR. KOHN: The sequence is that it was filed on November 12, 1953. It was heard in December Sessions, 1953, which was the usual term at that time. It has been increased to 60 days since the new order took effect.

SENATOR YOSKO: What was the next step?

MR. KOHN: The next step was, of course, the recommendation, which was made to the Governor, that the sentence be—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: What was the date of the recommendation?

MR. KOHN: I don't know, sir. It says, "January Sessions, 1953." I don't know. I mean it was the following month when it was heard. None of these, and I think that is something you ought to take into consideration, all these recommendations do not bear a date. We have no way of telling.

The Board of Pardons recommended the commutation. The Governor sat on it until the second day of March, 1953, when he disapproved it.

SENATOR YOSKO: Then what happened?

MR. KOHN: Then there was a petition for reargument of the case, and it was heard on—"Defendant again applied on April, '53."

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Any new grounds?

MR. KOHN: I don't know. "—but was refused and granted a reargument." He made a second attempt and was refused again. He was granted a reargument for 5/53. At that time the sentence was commuted to be effective 6/18/53, and he was released then on that petition. The Governor then approved it.

SENATOR YOSKO: And how long after the Pardon Board acted did the Governor approve it?

MR. KOHN: I could not tell you that, Senator Yosko. Probably very shortly after that.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: What Sessions was that argument held in?

MR. KOHN: May, 1953; and the approval was on 6/12/53.

SENATOR YOSKO: After the commutation was approved, there was an application for pardon, wasn't there?

MR. KOHN: That is right. The application for pardon was filed for the December, 1953 Session. That was granted.

SENATOR YOSKO: How long after the Pardon Board recommended it, did the Governor act?

MR. KOHN: That I cannot give you again. This is not dated. I can give you the dates of the warrant, however. That was the 14th day of January, 1955.

SENATOR YOSKO: Just before the Governor went out of office?

MR. KOHN: Yes.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: 13 months?

MR. KOHN: Yes. He sat on it for 13 months.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You mean the Board sat on it for 13 months?

MR. KOHN: No; the Governor.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The Board heard it in December of 1953, and the Governor granted it in January, 1955?

MR. KOHN: 1955.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Just before leaving office?

MR. KOHN: That is right.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Mr. Dilworth, was Mr. Gore tried for any other crime, other than the crime of perjury?

A No. The perjury, as far as I recollect, and I say I haven't had an opportunity to see the records, but I am pretty sure that is correct. He was tried simply for perjury.

Q Well, the perjury itself would have indicated that at least he would have been guilty of another crime prior to the committing of perjury?

A Yes.

Q And you say he was not tried on that, or don't you know?

A I am reasonably certain that he was only tried and convicted on the ground of perjury. It may have been something to do with the Statute of Limitations. Mr. Kunzig handled the prosecution of the case. He was a special Deputy Attorney General appointed specifically for the probe, as I recollect, for the Special Grand Jury of 1950.

Q Well, the facts here indicate that he could have been indicted for what other crime?

A Extortion—

SENATOR SCOTT: That is very hypothetical. The fact is that he was not.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: He was not. The fact that he was convicted of perjury does not mean to say that he was perhaps guilty of any other crime.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Mayor, is this Mr. Kunzig, or was he counsel for the Un-American Activities Committee for the Congress of the United States?

A That's right, Mr. Bell.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q You heard the reasoning of the Pardon Board on the granting of the commutation of the sentence. I don't know whether this is proper or not, but I am going to ask you did you think the reasoning was sound or unsound?

A We opposed it.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q. When you say you opposed it and also were asked the question whether you thought he ought to have gone to jail, would you have opposed it had you been of the opinion that he should not have gone to jail?

A Sounds to me like What's My Line.

Q Well, he was in jail and you were saying that he ought not to get out—

SENATOR SCOTT: I thought we established here that the Pardon Board was a Board of mercy and so on.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is what I was hoping that we had established.

SENATOR SCOTT: That is what I thought we had. That is not in accord with the question you have asked.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes. The question I have asked was calculated to clear up this one question that Mr. Dilworth was asked, whether he thought that Mr. Gore should not have gone to jail.

SENATOR SCOTT: That is an unfair question to ask of Mr. Dilworth.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The point is that if he had thought that, he scarcely would have opposed his release from jail. Doesn't that help to clear it up?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We are getting into another area.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Well, if he is an expert, we can talk about the Erie cases, too—

SENATOR SCOTT: Do you want to go in through the back door?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No. I think it helps to clear it up. But if you don't, it isn't important enough for me to—

SENATOR SCOTT: Wouldn't the reverse be true, that if he did think he should have gone to jail in the first place, but since he served a long enough term, he woudn't have opposed it?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Then he wouldn't have opposed it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Isn't that an inference for the Committee to draw from the facts?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Even though you are to draw inferences, there is no reason why you cannot have testimony about it.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Didn't Mr. Dilworth testify that this action was done by one of his assistants?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: If you are familiar with the Board of Pardons and the District Attorney's office of Philadelphia County, the District Attorney's office does not personally appear at their hearings. He sends his assistant up at every session of the Board of Pardons.

But the statement and policy as to the office, as to whether there shall be opposition is decided by the District Attorney or, as he says, in consulation with the First Assistant. But it is stated by the Assistant in that type of letter, and that is the thing that guides.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Are there any letters in the file other than what the Mayor has read?

MR. KOHN: No.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Even though the prosecution was had by the Attorney General, was it you who called the facts in the Gore case to the attention of the public?

A It is my recollection, and I think that it was in 1954.

BY SENATOR SCOTT:

Q During a campaign?

A During a campaign.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q It didn't turn out to be just campaign talk, though, did it?

A Luckily.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right. That is all, Mr. Mayor. Thank you very mhch.

(Witness excused)

. . . KENNETH E. TAYLOR, sworn:

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Mr. Taylor, you testified here last Monday, did you not?

A That's right.

Q And after the hearing, there was a story written on the testimony that was taken here, whish appeared in the Philadelphia Inquirer on Tuesday morning, April 23. I quote from the paper. It says, "At Graterford, Joseph Rock, Secretary to Warden David M. Meyers, refused to divulge information on Darcy other than the fact that he was sent there from the Classification Center at Eastern Penitentiary on September 18. Rock said Graterford officials were under orders to withhold information on prisoners unless otherwise directed by Commissioner Tracy. What can you tell us about that?

A Sir, I think that, while they would probably be a little bit scared because of this investigation, they are not under orders that they should not cooperate with the papers in giving information. The Commissioner has asked that, on a matter of policy, the wardens check with him before any special information is given out. However, I would like to point out an incident that happened just about two months ago, which I think will refute this.

Down at the Eastern Penitentiary, the inmates had a press conference, and all of the Philadelphia papers were invited. Inmates were in there without any officers or guards or any of the professional people from the institution, and they were allowed to talk with the press on any problems that they wanted to discuss. I know that at least three of the Philadelphia papers were present at that time.

As far as I know, there is no other institution in the United States that would allow something like that without somebody from the institution being present, and that certainly will refute, I feel, any implication that the Commissioner has said that we don't want information about prisoners to be given out. His point is to give them information.

Q Did you read this story?

A. Yes, sir, I did, this morning.

Q Did you make any inquiries from officials at the prison as to what information the newspapers wanted?

A. No, sir, I didn't. We are having a conference next Monday and we are going to definitely check into it then. The Commissioner is away today. There has been a death in his family, and I didn't feel that I should do that checking now; but I know that it will be taken up at the warden's conference on Monday.

Q What will be taken up?

A This matter of these people, at least according to the paper, refusing information to the papers. It certainly will be discussed.

Q Do you have the file here on Darcy, Zeitz and Foster?

A No, sir. We turned our files over to the Committee.

Q Which committee?

A To your Committee. There is quite a file.

Q So that whatever information the paper wanted from the warden is available here in the files of the Pardon Board?

A That's right.

MR. KOHN: Wait a minute. I don't agree with that.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q We have everything up until the time of the commutation, but do we have the files since that time?

A Yes, sir, you do. You would not have, let us say, job changes for the last two weeks or information like that.

Q How about information like the reason these men were separated?

A That's right.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Mr. Chairman, I have not seen them, but it is a fact that Mr. Kohn called me and asked me if I would arrange through the Commissioner that all files on the case in the hands of any prison anywhere be made available to the Committee. I directed the Commissioner to make those files available, and they have been assembled in the office of the Board of Pardons and have been completely available to the Committee at all times. I myself have not even examined them.

THE WITNESS: I brought them over.

The classification summaries are here on all of them. I gave them to Mr. Hean.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: If you want to have them brought down, Dr. Taylor could look at them and enlighten you on them.

SENATOR YOSKO: I just want to read one more paragraph here.

The sub-heading is, "More Publicity. At the office of William J. Bandmiller, warden at Eastern Penitentiary, information on Zeitz and Foster also was refused for the same reason."

Now, when I read that, it sort of threw a cloud, a suspicion, on withholding of information on the classification and assignment of these prisoners to the jails that they were in; and I thought it was only fair to remove that cloud by producing records here so that this Committee could look at them and ask such questions in connection with them as might be deemed necessary.

I also understand that some individual wrote letters or complaints on withholding of information in connection with this case, and the assignment of prisoners; and I would like, for one, to see that cleared up.

For that reason I suggest that you bring those files in so that we can take a look at them and ask such questions as we deem necessary.

THE WITNESS: Yes, sir, he will get them.

SENATOR YOSKO: Turn them over to the newspapermen and have them take a look at them.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Senator, I have just asked Mr. Hean to go and get them immediately and bring them down to the room, and you can look at anything we have.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Why don't we do this, then? I have gone through many files up there. They covered such a volume, and I do not know whether I got to read all of them. Why don't we let Mr. Taylor go through those records and then we can recall him.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is a good idea.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Mr. Taylor, who assigned Darcy to Graterford Prison?

A I was partially responsible for that I have the final say on all transfers in the State.

If I may, I would like to take about five minutes and perhaps clear up some misunderstanding that apparently arose after I testified here last Monday.

The institutions at Pittsburgh and Philadelphia are what we consider maximum and medium institutions. That is the Eastern and Western State Penitentiaries. Western can hold approximately a thousand men, and Eastern about eight hundred. That is exclusive of the Diagnostic Centers. We do not in this State have anywhere near 1800 maximum security cases. So that at both Eastern and Western we have many, what we consider, medium security cases.

At Graterford we have 2000 individuals, and that institution holds medium and minimum security cases. They have at the present time approximately 200 to 300 at Graterford who work on the farm, and we consider them as minimum security. There are about 1700 there that are medium security. So that we would have perhaps at Western 700 or 800 medium security; about 1700 at Graterford; and perhaps 500 or 600 at Eastern.

When these three men were classified at the Eastern center, following their commutations, all three of them were classified as medium security. That meant that they could not go to Rockview because that is only minimum security; but we could send them to Western, to Eastern, or to Graterford, because all three institutions had medium security cases.

Normally, we do not transfer them from one end of the State to the other, unless there is a good reason for it.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q. What is this, now?

A I say normally we do not transfer from one end of the State to the other.

Q Let me ask you, if I may interrupt you, is there any law against your transferring them?

A No, sir, there isn't any law.

Q In other words, if you want to send a man from Eastern Penitentiary to Western, there is no legal entanglement?

A No, sir. In fact, we do it.

I can think of one case particularly, a notorious group in Philadelphia, the Philadelphia area, called the Green Street Counts; and we broke that group up. We sent some of them to Western; some to Graterford; and kept some at Eastern. But in this case we didn't feel it was necessary to transfer one or more of these members over 300 miles to Western. We did feel, however, and the Diagnostic Center made the recommendation, that one of the members at least be transferred to Graterford, in the medium security capacity, and Darcy was the one that was selected. There was absolutely no outside interference of any kind. I was not contacted by anybody; neither was anybody down at the Diagnostic Center. And I think that perhaps there had been the impression that Darcy was given special consideration in being sent to Graterford. Actually, among prisoners, it is not considered a country club. Most of our prisoners would prefer not to go there, and I have in my files over in the office perhaps—oh, I could easily get 300 letters from inmates and from relatives of inmates asking that people who are at Graterford be transferred to Eastern, or people who were at Eastern not be transferred to Graterford, even though, from the Bureau of Corrections' standpoint, it is a medium and minimum institution.

Now, part of that, I am sure, stems from the fact that Graterford is a little difficult to reach for relatives. At Eastern they can get into a streetcar or bus and they can visit. But, for people in Philadelphia to get to Graterford—and many of our inmates come from poorer families, and they do not have cars; if they had cars there would be no trouble—but they usually have to take a train from Philadelphia to Norristown; they take a bus from Norristown to Collegeville; they take a taxi from Collegeville out to the institution.

I do not know of any cases offhand of individuals who have asked to go from Eastern to Graterford. The prisoners just dont ask for it. But we do have many of them the other way around.

In Darcy's case, he let it be known at the time that he was being classified that he preferred to remain at Eastern; but it was a clinic suggestion, and I went along with them, that he be transferred to Graterford. The other two men also asked to remain at Eastern, and they are still there.

Q This newspaper article indicates that Darcy was given preferential treatment by being sent to Graterford. Would you consider his assignment to Graterford as preferential treatment?

A No, sir, I would not. I would say that it perhaps could be considered a break for him eventually, in maybe 10, 15 or 18 years from now, when they might consider him to work outside the wall. We do have two men up at Graterford, lifers, who now work outside the walls; but as far as the present time is concerned, it was pretty much an academic decision as to which one of them would go to Graterford. But we did feel it was well to split them, and I would not consider it preferential. I would say this, that the prisoners, if you would ask those of them, they would say that Darcy made out the worst of the three of them because he was transferred up there.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Taylor, when you speak of Darcy being given a break because of the probable future of getting outside the prison walls to work, do they get outside the prison walls to work at Eastern?

A There are about 5 or 6 people who clean the sidewalks and take care of the little bit of grass we have around the institution. Outside of that, none of them.

Q Would you consider Zeitz and Foster to have an equal break as far as their future?

A They would have this break in that in the future, we could transfer them to Graterford. That does happen. In other words, we do make transfers from Eastern to Graterford. Right now Graterford is filled. We are not making too many transfers.

Q You have no present plans for Zeitz or Foster?

A No.

Q You have no present plans to put Mr. Darcy outside the walls?

A Oh, heavens, no. There are only two men that have life sentences that work outside, and they have been in 15 years.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q For my own information as a member of this Committee and for the Committee and for the public generally, the headline here is, "Killer Darcy shifted to Soft Graterford." Is Graterford considered soft? And what is the difference between being confined to Graterford so far as prison routine and confinement and duties and all the other things that a prisoner is subjected to are concerned? What is the difference between those rules and regulations at Graterford and the Eastern Penitentiary?

A As far as basic rules and regulations are concerned, there isn't too much difference between a medium, minimum and maximum. In other words, they all get visits. They get newspapers and radio. For those few privileges —at Graterford we have a little more problem, or we have a more difficult problem in controlling. We have 2000 inmates up there. We have only 5 blocks, which means that we have 400 men on each block; and of necessity, they are stricter up there in marching to meals and things like that. I mean they keep closer control on them. If 400 men get out of—if we had difficulty with 400 men it would be pretty hard to handle.

On the other hand, the institution is broken up into many smaller blocks at Eastern, which house anywhere from 30 to 70 on a block, and the officers get to know the men, of course, better when you have a small group like that, and they are not quite as rigid when it comes time to—well, just in general. They are not quite as rigid because it is easier to control a much smaller group than it is a large group.

So by an large, I would say the control problem and the amount of regimentation at Graterford is greater than it is at Eastern, and the inmates regard it as such. As I say, I have hundreds of letters from fellows who would like to get out of Graterford.

Q Would you say that that was an erroneous description of confinement at Graterford?

A Yes, it is. We don't consider it soft.

Perhaps the only advantage that I can see there is that there is a large, a much larger recreation yard there. There is a lot more space inside the institution. It is a newer institution by a hundred years. It is newer than the old Eastern Penitentiary, and, of course, we do have a farm and eventually some of these men work outside the walls.

On the other hand, other than that, I see no advantages to being at Graterford over being at Eastern; but it is certainly not a country club. It is out in the country, but it is still a prison.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q How about your accomodations in the two? Hasn't Eastern Penitentiary at times been referred to as a dungeon?

A Yes, sir. You very frequently hear it referred to as a dungeon. Actually, the cells are what we call inside cells, and they come off a corridor somewhat like the spokes on a wheel; and many of these do not have—they cannot look outside that cell.

At Graterford the cells are arranged in blocks, so that the man does have a window to the outside. In that respect, the cells would be nicer at Graterford.

The cells, however, at Eastern, are larger, and we are doing some work on them the last couple of years. They are in better shape now than they had been.

Q How about their sleeping accommodations? Is there any difference?

A They are the same in both institutions.

Q Do they have a radio in one and not the other? Do they have any television in one and not the other?

A No, sir. In fact, at Graterford, they do have TV in the blocks. The men have pitched in out of their commissary and they have TV in two of the blocks; and they are allowed two hours at night when they can go out of the block and watch TV.

Up to this moment they do not have television down at Eastern—well, they had them for the World Series last year, but eventually, using their own funds, they will probably have TV sets down there, too.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Do they both have recreation halls?

A No, sir. They do not have a gym in either place.

Q Do they have an auditorium?

A They have an auditorium. They have a much larger auditorium at Graterford, but they both do have an auditorium and they do have movies once a week.

Q Do you bring outside shows like choruses and things like that?

A Not too often.

Q But you do?

A They do on occasions.

Q Do they bring them in at Eastern Penitentiary and also at Graterford? Or just Graterford?

A Both places.

Q How do the kitchen facilities compare between the two institutions?

A I would say there wouldn't be any real difference as far as the quality and quantity of food are concerned.

Q Are both kitchens modern?

A Yes, sir. The one at Eastern has just been modernized. They have just put in a new-type kitchen. They have started baking their own bread there within the last couple of months.

Q How about the plumbing and bathing facilities?

A We now have a contract to put hot water in the cells at Eastern. They do not have hot water in there now for shaving and so on.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Does Graterford have that?

A Yes, sir. The way they have it at Eastern, one of the men comes around with a bucket of water and he pours the water through the cell door into a cup, and they use that for shaving.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Is there an inside recreation area at Eastern that would be covered with grass?

A There is very little grass at Eastern.

Q Is there grass at Graterford?

A Not in the recreation field; but there is some in some of the other parts.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It makes it worse when you can't get to it.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q While General McBride is getting to it, when would Darcy become eligible for either a commutation or pardon, so that he is turned loose on the street as a free man?

A As I understand it, he could apply now if he wanted to. The only rule is that if a man is turned down, then he must wait another year before he can apply again. There is no time limitation on any man as to when he may apply; but of course, it would be rather foolish for him to apply at this point.

Q At this point, yes; but how is his prison record? Are you familiar with it?

A All I know, sir, is that there haven't been any complaints about any of the three. There have been no complaints about them.

Q Of course, I am not going to ask you the next logical question, which I don't think is fair, which would be what would be your recommendation. But I won't ask that—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I think it is fair, Mr. Bell.

THE WITNESS: I will be glad to answer it.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is, if he did apply, what would be your recommendation?

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q If Mr. Darcy applied today for a commutation or pardon on his prison record today, on his rehabilitation program, are you free to give us what the recommendation would be—

A Of the staff? The staff at each institution makes a recommendation; but judging from other lifers, the answer would definitely be no at this time, because they would say, "We have not had nearly enough time to really know this fellow."

Q Then, when would he be well enough known to go?

A That depends on the individual. I have known of cases where men have been in an institution for thirty years and have not been recommended just because the institution thought that they should not be back on the street.

Q Do you know of any who have been released, any lifers, after receiving, say, nine years?

A I haven't known any personally, but I know there have been a few down at Eastern who have gone out in nine or ten years. Most of them do somewhere between 15 and 25.

Of course, we have some lifers who have served more than that and are still not out.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think, Mr. Bell, we have asked for information from Mr. Hean. I don't know whether he has it compiled or not.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: He has it here.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: You mean since 1915, those who have been under sentence of death and had their sentence commuted to life and whether they were further commuted from that life sentence?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I have just been handed the paper by Mr. Hean. There are 80 in that period who were commuted from death to life. Of that 80, 37 were commuted to life on parole; 4 were pardoned.

The number of persons sentenced to death from January 1, 1915, to January 1, 1957, appear to be 443. I would say that the 443 group would include the 80. It would be 443 minus 80, or approximately 363 who did go to their death.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: General, would you repeat those who had their death sentences commuted?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: From death to life since 1915?

MR. KOHN: Yes, sir.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Yes, sir.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: 80.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: And of those, 37 plus 4, or 41, eventually got out on the streets again?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, after some expiration of a number of years, whether it was 15, 25, or whatever it was; and I would like to add that we once, in connection with the Philadelphia Bar Association, looked up the question of how many later committed a capital offense. I think there was only one since 1915—

MR. KOHN: Is there any report on that? I heard differently.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The only one I know of is a man named Maloney.

MR. KOHN: Who made the report on that?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: We checked it a few years ago. I don't have it officially.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Is that only for Philadelphia or is it for the State at large?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It is for the entire Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Do you know of any men who, having been committed to life in prison and having their sentence commuted to life on parole, have subsequently committed another murder?

MR. HEAN: I am not too clear, but there was a man by the name of Blackie Supowski.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That was not a commutation for life—

MR. HEAN: Maloney.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Maloney was the only one I know of. Supowski was a man who received a sentence of 50 to 100 years for a series of robberies. He was commuted and then later was sentenced to death and put to death in New Jersey for a subsequent crime.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: He wasn't originally in this classification?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is right. The only one I know of was a Delaware County case with which Mr. Bell will be familiar. It was a killing of a man in a taproom in Delaware County about 6 or 7 or 8 years ago, and he had been in a group in which he had gotten life in prison. He was later commuted to life on parole, and while on parole, participated in a holdup in which another man killed the owner or bartender of this taproom, and he was executed.

But in the whole range of Pennsylvania history, since 1915, he is the only one that I know of. I understand that prior to 1915 there was another man. I believe his name was Epps, and I think he committed a second crime.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Well, this that you are telling us, would that apply to their committing a second killing any place in the United States, or just in Pennsylvania?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: So far as I know, any place in the United States.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: But the records would not be complete, would they?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No. This last volunteered information from me was as the result of what we studied a few years ago. I have no official information other than that.

MR. KOHN: Can you give us any information on how many lifers that are let out committed felonies?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I have no information other than that.

MR. KOHN: In other words, they restricted their studies strictly to the ones that committed murder?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes. What we were concerned with was a debate on capital punishment that took place in the Philadelphia Bar Association. I have no figures as to whether they committed another offense, but I am sure that Dr. Taylor would agree that the rate of recidivism for very obvious reasons among the lifers who are released to life on parole is the lowest of all possible kinds of prison release; and the obvious reason is that they know that if they commit another offense the penalty is to go back to jail for life, with very little chance of subsequent parole.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS. Is that going to be submitted to the Committee, General?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We don't want to incorporate it as part of the record.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Do you want to mark it?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We will just attach it as an exhibit and not as part of the record.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I will make this part of the record. It gives not only the date of the case and the action, but it gives the name of every single man. It is a two-page memorandum and includes Darcy, Foster and Zeitz, along with the date of the first action of the Board commuting.

(Listing of capital cases that have come before the Board of Pardons from 1915 to date marked for identification and received as C-39.)

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q So that the short of it, Dr. Taylor, is that this was not done at Darcy's request?

A No, sir. In fact, Darcy had requested that he remain at Eastern.

Q He did request that he remain at Eastern?

A Yes. So that if we did give in to him, he would have remained at Eastern. In fact, all three of them would have remained at Eastern.

Q So the words "maximum security," is there any such thing as so-called maximum security except with relation to a very few prisoners who are particularly risky?

A Yes, sir. I am afraid that all too often those who do not work in prisons get the wrong impression by what we mean by maximum security. When we speak of maximum security, we are not thinking in terms of how escape-proof is a jail. We are thinking in terms of how much checking you have to do on these people; and it could be medical; it could be custodial; it could be psychiatric. It is people you have to keep an eye on most of the time. Two years ago we were thinking in terms of having a separate institution for just—

MR. KOHN: Will you just answer the question.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I think he is answering the question.

MR. KOHN: All right.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It won't take him long. Why not dispel any illusions if they exist?

A (continued) But we were thinking at that time in terms of setting up a small unit to handle the really incorrigible. I went around and discussed it with every warden and every staff; and out of some 300 inmates we had at that time, we came up with 17 that we would have had as maximum cases. So it is not really the large group that people think it is. That is why these people are considered medium rather than maximum.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q What is your record of escapes from these prisons?

A The escape rate in Pennsylvania is very low. Two years ago we only had three out of all of our institutions. This year I think we have something like eight thus far, and most of the people walk away or get out of Rockview, where we—

Q They are out in the fields, working, and they just walk away?

A Except the last six that got out of there. They either went out of the fence we had or sawed their way out. There are about 500 or 600 that could walk away anytime they want. But this last six that left, actually, they went over the fence. Since it is minimum security, we don't use any fire arms up there. The last three that got away, had they had fire arms, they could have shot them pretty easily. But with minimum security, we don't use the firearms.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Were they recaptured?

A Yes, sir, they were recaptured the next day. Since the Bureau of Corrections started, there are only two men who escaped that have not been recaptured.

Q Was that Denuto and Sutton?

A No, sir. That was quite a while ago.

(discussion off-the-record)

SENATOR YOSKO: It is difficult for me to say exactly what we want. Let me suggest to Joe Miller from the Inquirer, since the question we are discussing was incorporated in the story, what information would you like to have in connection with it?

MR. MILLER: You talk to the editors; don't talk to me. I don't ask the question.

SENATOR YOSKO: What information do the records contain?

THE WITNESS: Well, there is a great deal of information there. That would be any previous criminal record they had; story of the present crime; social background, past work history; educational history; religious history; medical examination; psychiatric examination; and psychological examination.

All of that is sent to the clerk of the court at the committing county. Normally we do not give that information to the newspapers. A lot of that is very personal information and it does go to every court. I mean we normally do not discuss prisoner's relatives and so on for publication.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q If Mr. Miller calls his editor and finds out exactly what information is desired or was desired at the time the telephone calls were made to both prisons, we will be glad to have Mr. Taylor produce the records and give him that information; is that right?

A Yes, sir, I would be glad to get it for him.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Is there any particular reason why Zeitz shouldn't have been sent to Graterford, and Darcy and Foster kept at Eastern State Penitentiary or any other division?

A No, sir. That was purely academic. It is one of these things that we felt, with the group up there at Graterford, with 2000, things would die off a lot faster than if we kept all three together.

Q What I am getting at is whether there is any reason why the other two could not have been sent out to Graterford rather than Darcy.

A Or we could have split one out to Pittsburgh. Since all three had the medium classification, they could have gone to any one of the three places. But if Mr. Miller will tell us what he wants, I will be glad to get the information for him.

SENATOR YOSKO: That is my only interest in it.

MR. MILLER: What?

SENATOR YOSKO: That is my only interest in it.

SENATOR SCOTT: Then, if it is understood that if Mr. Miller's editor wants to call you and get some information, you will cooperate with him and you will guarantee that they will get the information?

THE WITNESS: They have always had that right.

SENATOR SCOTT: This paper says that the officials were under orders to withhold the information.

THE WITNESS: I think they were just a little scared about the whole situation.

BY SENATOR SCOTT:

Q You don't deny that that could have happened?

A It could have happened.

Q Did they give them the information?

A I will tell you that at the wardens' hearing tomorrow—

Q All right. It is understood now that they will give any information that is desired?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Sure. I think these men may have come to the conclusion that it was their duty to speak to the Legislative Committee through the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner rather than sounding off through the newspapers. It probably amounted to no more than that. Certainly there is no disposition for anybody to issue an order that is going to make the prisons not susceptible to public opinion. It would be an outrage if prisons were run in such a way that public opinion could make or play no part in seeing to it that they were run properly, any more than any other public business.

THE WITNESS: The Commissioner's orders are just the opposite from that, that every courtesy will be shown. I know of many cases where the newspapermen had been in the institution.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: This is the entire record that ever existed in any institution from the time these men were arrested. This contains all the information which I directed the Commissioner to have the wardens send to Harrisburg to be made available to this Committee and its counsel.

SENATOR SCOTT: And it was brought down here, General McBride, at the time we were on the discussion of the question which Senator Yosko asked?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I think that it must have been here six weeks or more.

SENATOR SCOTT: I mean the Committee room.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes; but it has been available, and, as Mr. Kohn says, he looked at that—

MR. KOHN: We agree to that. It is all there.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I don't know if I had the right section or not—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Even the Committee papers are here.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: General, maybe I didn't hit the right spots in there; maybe I didn't go far enough; but I was looking through there several nights to try to find the report of Warden Baldi, but I wasn't able to find it.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: If you want Dr. Taylor to do it, he is here and will go through it right now and get anything you want. Please, just tell us what you want, because we don't want any dangling questions.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That is all. Thank you.

(witness excused)

MR. KOHN: I would like to call the case of Thomas Wheatley, Sr., 82853, December Session, 1954.

This defendant was sentenced from 3½ to 7 years; received a fine of $1,000 on prosecution of two Bills of Indictment, covering the same offenses.

He started to serve his sentence—

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. Kohn, did you say that Mr. Nissley is here?

MR. KOHN: Yes.

SENATOR YOSKO: Was Mr. Nissley the Secretary of the Pardon Board at the time?

MR. KOHN: Yes.

SENATOR YOSKO: May I suggest to you that you have Mr. Nissley take the stand and testify on this case just as Mr. HEAN testified in the other cases.

MR. KOHN: I would be very glad to, if you want to do that.

SENATOR YOSKO: He is probably familiar with the file—

MR. KOHN: He hasn't prepared this file.

SENATOR YOSKO: Maybe you can conduct the examination just as you did in the other cases.

MR. KOHN: I would be glad to do that.

SENATOR YOSKO: We will follow through on it as soon as you get through.

MR. KOHN: All right. I was trying to save you a little time.

. . . JOSEPH NISSLEY, former Secretary of the Pardons Board, sworn:

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Your full name?

A. Joseph Nissley.

Q And you were the Secretary of the Board of Pardons until when?

A April of 1955.

Q When did you go into office?

A April of 1945.

Q And you were Secretary when this case that I just called to your attention was up before the Board of Pardons?

A Yes, sir.

Q What was the number of this case?

A 82853.

Q What was the crime with which this defendant was charged?

A Assault and battery with intent to kill.

Q What was his sentence?

A 3½ to 7 years; a thousand dollars fine.

Q What was the name of the judge that gave the sentence to him?

A Judge Satterthwaite.

Q Do you know the name of the District Attorney that tried the case?

A Williard Curtin.

Q Do you know when the application for the commutation came into the office?

A It came in on November 12, 1954.

Q What month was it listed for hearing?

A December.

Q Is that the usual procedure? Was there any special listing on this case?

A No, sir.

Q When did the Board consider the matter?

A On December 14, 1954.

Q When was the recommendation of the Board made?

A Well, I would have to have the minutes of the Board to know exactly when that was made.

Q We don't have those here.

A We usually consider the cases immediately after the session of the day in which they were heard.

Q The rule at that particular time was that if it was applied for in one month, it was heard the next month; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q That rule has been changed now, so that when they apply in one month, it isn't heard before two months.

A I haven't had any connection with the Board since then.

Q Will you tell me whether the District Attorney opposed this commutation?

A My records indicate that he thought it was premature.

Q Do you know whether Judge Satterthwaite opposed the commutation?

A According to the records, he was opposed to it.

Q Will you check the letters in the file to see if there are letters from Judge Satterthwaite here?

A There are letters from Judge Satterthwaite and they are opposed.

Q Will you please read Judge Satterthwaite's letter into the record, pleas?

In Re: Application of Thomas Wheatley, Sr., for Commutation.

Dear Sirs:

"I have your letter of November 16 enclosing a copy of the application of the above for commutation of his minimum sentence so that he might apply for parole.

"I have not reread the notes of testimony in this case. The version of the offense given by the applicant apparently was not believed by the jury and is to a great extent not in accord with my recollection of the facts.

"I do happen to know that the civil settlement of $20,000 mentioned in Paragraph 17 of the application was agreed upon at the time the suit was called for trial, inasmuch as I participated in the final arrangement of that settlement. Whether the amount was actually paid, however, I have no knowledge.

"My views in this case are fully set forth in the opinion of the court in disposing of Mr. Wheatley's application for a new trial, a copy of which I enclose against the possibility that your file does not contain it.

"In view of the serious nature of the charge against this man, particularly since a state police officer was the victim, I personally would be inclined to oppose any application for communtation at this time. So far as he is concerned, the situation is exactly the same except for the fact that the victim is still living, as it would have been if he had been indicted for murder if the victim would have died. In my opinion this would have been a capital case.

"I am not in a position to give you any information regarding the further allegations of Paragraph 17 of the application with respect to applicant's financial and family situation at the present time.

"Very truly yours,

EDWIN H. SATTERTHWAITE."

Q Do you know whether the District Attorney sent a letter in on this case?

A He did.

Q Will you read that letter, please?

Hon. Joseph Nissley, Secretary

Board of Pardons
Harrisburg, Pa.

Re: Com. vs. Thomas Wheatley, Sr.
Dear Sir:

"I am informed that Hon. Edwin H. Satterthwaite wrote a rather extensive letter to the Board in this matter. The views of our office are in accord with his views. We feel that the Board should consider rather carefully the Commonwealth's evidence and particularly that of Officer Caldarelli, which is at rather great divergence from the version given in Paragraph 15 (a) of the application. Although Mr. Wheatley insists that he is innocent of the crime, all of the matters were very capably urged to the Jury, and the Jury quite properly brought in a verdict of guilty.

"Our office also believes that the Court did not give a heavy sentence in view of the extreme seriousness of the charges and that the Court took into consideration the difficult family situation that would be created by placing the Defendant in jail.

"In any event, we feel that the present application is premature and that it should not be granted.

"Very truly yours,

DONALD W. VANARTSDALEN."

Q Will you tell us who counsel was for the applicant?

A Robert C. Duffy, Esquire, 1224 Lincoln Liberty Building, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Q Do you know whether or not Paul J. Brenan, the President of the Bucks County Chiefs of Police Association, sent a telegram in on this case?

A He did; but I don't think this was received until after the Board action. In fact, the telegram indicates that it was received on January 24, 1955, a month after the Board acted.

Q It was after the Board's action. All right. Will you read the telegram, please.

"Bucks County Chiefs of Police Association wish to go on record as opposing the action of the State Pardons Board in recommending the commutation of the sentences Thomas M. Wheatley, Sr., and likewise the approval of former Governor John S. Fine last week. The viscious premeditated action of Wheatley in shooting state trooper Calderelli is particularly distressing to police attempting to protect people of the Commonwealth when such clemency is shown this action should be an incentive to depraved criminal to continue their nefarious deeds and shoot police officers at will. We respectfully urge that everything in your power be done to at least have Wheatley serve his minimum sentence of 3½ years.

"Paul J. Brenan, President Bucks County Chiefs of Police Association."

Q Will you read the statements of fact in the application?

A (reading)

"Commonwealth's version was that on May 30, 1953, about 10 minutes after 1:00, an accident occurred on Route U. S. 1 near Langhorne, Pennsylvania. Applicant and his son arrived upon the scene shortly after the accident in a wrecker and tried to get the business of removing the car involved. As soon as the State Police arrived, Officer Caldarelli ordered applicant and his son to remove their wrecker and to leave the scene because they were visibly intoxicated. An argument followed between applicant's son and Officer Caldarelli in which Officer Caldarelli ended up by striking applicant's son over the head with his flashlight causing him to fall to the ground with Officer Caldarelli on top. Applicant was about four feet away from the scene. When they removed applicant's son to the police car on the charge of disorderly conduct, applicant disappeared. He returned approximately five minutes later. Applicant called to Officer Caldarelli to come over to him, that he wanted to talk with him. When Officer Caldarelli was about four feet from applicant, somebody suggested to Officer Caldarelli that applicant may have a gun. Officer Caldarelli noticed that applicant was carrying what appeared to be a gun and lunged for it. As he did so, he was struck in the stomach by a bullet. He fell against applicant momentarily, grasping the gun and then fell backwards. As he lay on the ground several more shots were fired and he was hit on the leg in addition. Officer Caldarelli then fired three shots at applicant who fell to the ground and then fled. Applicant, however, denies that he or his son were visibly intoxicated and testified that as soon as the State Police came on the scene, they ordered applicant and his son away. Officer Caldarelli then started to abuse his son and struck him viciously several times on the head causing a deep wound. When applicant tried to separate the two, another officer restrained him, saying that if he was not careful he would get the same. Applicant then was ordered to remove his wrecker again, and did so. He returned to the scene to find out what had happened to his son because his son was apparently dragged unconscious to the policeman's car. As applicant left his own car, he brought with him a gun in a holster which he had left in his car three or four days earlier from a hunting trip. Applicant took the gun with him because he didn't know what might happen and whether they might do the same thing to him. He saw Officer Caldarelli and asked him to come over, with the intention of finding out what had happened to his son. When Officer Caldarelli was about four feet away he made a lunge for his gun which was secured in a holster around his hip. When Officer Caldarelli grabbed the holster, the gun went off. Applicant did not shoot Officer Caldarelli nor did he intend to do so. When Officer Caldarelli fell to the ground, shots started to ring out around applicant and he fled for his life."

Q Did the applicant have any previous criminal record?

A This shows that in 1933 he was arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter in New Jersey; held under $3,000 bail; and discharged as not guilty.

Q Any other records?

A That is all.

Q Do you know what connection Robert Duffy had with any political organization at the time he filed this application?

A No, I don't I think he later became City Chairman, Republican City Chairman in Philadelphia.

Q At the time?

A I don't know that he had any at that time.

Q Tell us whether or not the Board recommended that a commutation be granted in this case.

A Well, yes, because here is the commutation charter.

Q Was Mr. Duffy a practicing attorney?

A Yes, sir.

Q I don't know whether he argued this. Do you know whether he argued this before the Board?

A Yes, sir.

Q At that time did he inform the Board that $20,000 had been paid in civil settlement of the damages?

A Yes, sir.

Q What was the recommendation of the Board?

A That the sentence be commuted to one year.

Q And the Governor approved that recommendation?

A Yes, sir.

Q What is the date of the warrant?

A January 14, 1955. The usual practice while I was there, the last session in which the Governor was leaving office, he always cleaned up everything from his administration.

Q When was the report received by the Governor?

A This was in the September Session.

Q This was just about two or three weeks later?

A It takes about two or three weeks to get the papers prepared and have all the members of the Board sign them.

Q What correspondence is there in the file with regard to the attitude of the Board of Parole on this matter after the recommendations by the Pardons Board and the signature by the Governor?

A Well, there is a letter here from the Board of Parole.

Q Will you read that into the record?

A It is addressed to me as Secretary, Board of Pardons; Re: Thomas Wheatley, Senior—

Q What is the date?

A March 2, 1955.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q That was after the commutation had been granted?

A Yes, sir; and it was received by us on March 3.

Secretary, Board of Pardons
Department of Justice
State Capitol
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

Re: Thomas Wheatley, Sr.
SPG No. E-4309
Parole No. 1255-E

Dear Mr. Nissley:

"This will acknowledge receipt of your February 28, 1955 letter, wherein you advise that the Board of Pardons accepts the recommendation of the Board of Parole in the action taken to refuse release for subject at this time.

"Your letter was brought to the attention of the Board Members yesterday and the Secretary was instructed to write further, clarifying its position in cases of this nature.

"After carefully reading the letter addressed to you as the Secretary of the Board of Pardons in which the Board of Parole set forth its reasons for refusing parole to Thomas Wheatley, we are unable to find anything therein which would indicate that this Board believed that the Board of Pardons should not feel 'free to act upon any case, according to its merits.' As a matter of fact, we believe that to be the duty of your Board.

"We do not find any indication in our handling of this case that would show that the Board of Parole felt that the Board of Pardons should 'surrender any of the prerogatives or authority vested in them by the constitution, to any stautory body.' We certainly intended no such suggestion.

"In keeping with the law after commutation is granted by the Governor upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons, the prisoner becomes immediately eligible to apply for parole. The application of Wheatley was filed with us and the case properly processed by our Board.

"Under the law in cases of refusal, the Board of Parole 'shall within ten days after the date when the minimum term expires, transmit to the Board of Pardons a written statement of the reasons for refusal to parole the prisoner at the expiration of the minimum term fixed and appearing on the charter. Thereafter, the Board of Pardons may either accept the action of the Board of Parole or order the immediate release of the prisoner on parole, under the supervision of the Board of Parole.'

"The minimum sentence in this case fixed by the Board of Pardons expired February 19, 1955. The action of the Board of Parole to refuse with reasons therefor was transmitted by the letter to your Board on February 16, 1955, three days before the expiration of the minimum sentence appearing in the charter.

"We wish to assure you that it is the purpose of the Board of Parole to cooperate at all times with your Board within the framework of the law governing our respective Boards.

"Very truly yours,

FOR THE BOARD
J. M. DesRochers
Secretary"

Q What happened was that the Board of Pardons recommended, and the Governor refused, to release the prisoner; is that correct?

A That is correct.

Q Actually he wasn't released until November 22, 1955 or about ten and one-half months after the Governor signed the warrant commuting his sentence, is that correct?

A I have no knowledge of that.

MR. KOHN: Any questions?

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Is there a letter in the file there from the Parole Board to the Pardons Board as to why they would not honor the recommendation of the Pardons Board and the Governor?

A Yes, there is a letter of February 16.

Q Will you read it?

A "As your record will show, the Governor upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons on January 14, 1955, commuted the minimum sentence for Wheatley, thus making him eligible to immediately apply to this Board. Wheatley was interviewed by Representatives of the Board on Wednesday, February 9, 1955.

"The case was before the Board in executive session this morning. After giving careful and thoughtful consideration to the various factors involved, his parole was refused.

"In view of the nature of the case, the strong public sentiment expressed against releasing him, the vigorous objection of the Trial Judge and District Attorney, and the Board's considered judgment that to return Wheatley to society at this time would not be in the public interest, or in the best interest of the Commonwealth, the aforementioned action was taken.

"The Secretary in keeping with the law, was instructed by the Board to give you the above information."

Q What followed that?

A Letter from the Board of Pardons to Mr. DesRochers. These are not in chronological sequence because of the way in which I read them.

Q Do I understand that after the Parole Board refused to release Mr. Wheatley, the Pardons Board insisted that its recommendation be complied with?

A No, no, what happened was—

Q Was the argument between the Parole Board and the Pardons Board then?

A There wasn't any argument, Senator. We just wanted our position made clear. The new Board had just come in, the present Board of Pardons, and the case had been heard by the old Board of Pardons and they wanted to explain their position to the Board and that is all there was.

The Board then directed me to write a letter to the Board of Parole; a copy of my letter is in here.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q What is the date of that letter?

A February 28.

Q And what year?

A Nineteen fifty-five.

Q That was after—

A After the first session of the new Board.

Q Headed by Governor Furman?

A That is right, sir.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: I think we ought to hear that letter. We heard the rest of them.

THE WITNESS: Letter to:

"Pennsylvania Board of Parole,
"In re: Thomas Wheatley

"Dear Mr. Des Rochers:

"The Board of Pardons considered your letter of February 16, 1955, regarding the above captioned inmate. The present Board of Pardons did not have the benefit of oral argument in the case, and they were, therefore, at a decided disadvantage to act upon your refusal to parole.

"Had the Board the opportunity of oral argument they would have been in a position to either concur with, or overrule the action of the Board of Parole, whichever they deemd to be the proper course of action. Since this was the first meeting of the Board of Pardons under the new administration they have nothing to do but reluctantly accept the recommendation of the Board of Parole. This, however, is not to be considered the course of action to be usually followed by the Board of Pardons. The Board of Parole must understand that the Board of Pardons feels free to act upon any case, according to its merits. They do not propose to surrender any of the prerogatives or authority vested in them, by the Constitution, to any statutory body.

"The Board, however, is of the opinion that in good conscience, these facts concerning the Board of Pardons and the Board of Parole's action should be fully disclosed to the applicant and his counsel.

"It should be further pointed out to the Board of Parole that since the Board of Parole's action did not come within the statutory requirement of ten days, the Board of Pardons is of the opinion that the Board of Parole has left itself open to litigation in the form of a writ of habeas corpus by this applicant.

"The Board of Pardons hereby reports its decision in the above matter to the Board of Parole.

"Very truly yours,"

Signed by myself.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q That followed the letter from Des Rochers which you have read into the record?

A Yes.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q And how much time elapsed between the recommendation or the commutation by the Board and approval by the Governor and the release of the prisoner by the Parole Board?

A Well I don't know when the prisoner was released, Senator, because I was no longer on the Board.

MR. KOHN: Mr. Des Rochers is here at your request and he will be able to give it to you.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Who represented Mr. Wheatley at the trial?

A At the trial when he was convicted in Bucks County, it says J. Leslie Kilcoyne, Esquire and Syndey Krawitz, Esquire.

Q You mean the application?

A Yes.

Q Did either of them appear before the Pardons Board in connection with the application for the commutation?

A No sir, the record doesn't indicate it. I don't know whether they were there that day or not because we saw lots of—

Q Did you read the reasons the Pardons Board gave for commuting the sentence?

A You want me to read them?

Q Yes.

A "Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

> "This applicant is fifty-two years of age. This is his first criminal conviction. This applicant committed an assault and battery with intent to kill on a police officer, seriously wounding the police officer and causing him to be hospitalized for several weeks.
>
> "At present time this applicant is in the State Penitentiary at Graterford and he has a good institutional record. This applicant settled a civil case for damages in the sum of twenty thousand dollars on the police officer that he assaulted.
> "Although the officials in Bucks County feel that it is premature, the Board is of the opinion that this applicant is not a criminal and that he bore a good reputation in the Community in which he lived. The Board is of the further opinion that having once entered prison he was as completely punished as any individual could porribly be and since he has now served over ten months of his minimum sentence, we feel that he has been sufficiently punished and we, therefore, recommend that his sentence be commuted."

Q Does the record show anywhere on the application or during the argument that Mr. Wheatley, after he committed the crime, absconded from the State and remained away from the State until he found that the policeman did not die and would recover?

A Well I wouldn't know without looking through this file, Senator, but—

MR. KOHN: I will agree.

THE WITNESS: He fled the State and went into New Jersey.

SENATOR YOSKO: New York or Maryland.

MR. KOHN: Maryland, I think the Parole report gives some of that, Joe.

THE WITNESS: The institution report.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Of course, this probably isn't fair to ask you, but the prisoner contended he was not guilty yet he absconded from the State after the crime was committed, is that correct?

A Well that is in the record.

Q Now in the notes of the Parole Board, I understand that there was a statement by Lieutenant-Governor Lloyd Wood and I quote it, and if I am wrong you tell me. He said:

"Of course, if he had shot someone else other than a policeman, I don't think there would be too much objection. The only thing that riles me a bit is that he shot a State Policeman."

Is that statement in the record somewhere as made by Mr. Wood?

A Well it is not in the Board of Parole record, as you first stated.

Q No, in Mr. McBride's transcript.

A Well that is it. You are quoting from the record, Senator.

Q But in spite of that statement, Mr. Wood voted to commute the sentence, is that correct?

A Well, I think perhaps the record so indicates that he voted in favor of it but Mr. Duffy's remarks in answer to the Lieutenant-Governor are enlightening on the fact.

"MR. DUFFY: He did that only because he saw the son, and there's no denying the fact the police officer hit the son with such force he broke the flashlight. My whole argument is the fact he did everything possible he could do after the situation was over towards making compensation."

Q But he did make the statement and voted to release him?

A Yes sir.

Q Was Mr. Duffy up to your office at any time that you can remember prior to the time this case was argued?

A The Wheatley case, not to my knowledge.

Q Did he talk about the case to you?

A No, Mr. Duffy never discussed any cases with me.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Do you know if he discussed the case with any of the Members?

A No, not to my knowledge.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Do you know of any political influence that was used in this case?

A None to my knowledge.

Q Was Mr. Duffy in this case as the attorney for the applicant for a commutation or a pardon?

A For a commutation.

Q For a commutation?

A Yes.

Q In other words, he was the attorney?

A Oh yes, he had cases before the Board frequently. Some were granted, some were not.

MR. KOHN: I would like to ask Mr. Nissley some questions but I would like to finish this case first.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: There are a couple questions I would like to ask, too.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q The minimum sentence was three and one-half years and after doing ten months, the recommendation was made that it be commuted, that is correct, isn't it?

A Yes, the recommendation was made that it be commuted to one year.

Q Now you said that you believed that Mr. Duffy was not Chairman of the Republican City Committee at the time. Do you know when he became chairman?

A No, I don't.

Q Do you know when he ceased to be chairman?

A No, I don't.

Q Wouldn't your best recollection be that as of November or December 1954 he was Chairman of the Republican City Committee?

A Well, General, I am not certain. I am not familiar with Philadelphia politics and I don't know whether he was Chairman of the Republican City Committee in 1954 or whether it was after the election in 1954.

MR. KOHN: He will take your word for it.

THE WITNESS: I am making no statement.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q But you specifically stated he was not.

A No, I don't think I did because I don't know.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Do you know how long he was Chairman?

A No, I don't.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: In this connection, is Mr. Nissley going to testify further, because there were a couple—I don't want to go into other matters?

MR. KOHN: I thought we would finish this case first.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: But there were a couple of matters that I am sure Mr. Nissley would want to be heard on that have been in the record in this case. I don't say that he should answer them now, but there are a couple of questions that ought to be cleared up, not involving this case.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Not involving this case but other cases?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Involving matters —there was a letter introduced and so forth—that I think Mr. Nissley would have the right to be heard.

MR. KOHN: Mr. McBride, may I suggest that, sir, we get those cases down and we can interrogate Mr. Nissley on other matters.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Go ahead then.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Lets finish this one first.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I was considering his time. That is all.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Were you present when the argument was made on behalf of Mr. Wheatley?

A Yes sir.

Q And do you believe that this is all of the testimony, all of the argument that was made before the Board at that time?

A Oh yes, some of them were very short.

Q And that was the extent of the argument?

A Yes, because—

Q What reason was given by Mr. Duffy for the granting of the commutation in his argument?

A Well I wouldn't know unless I read it over here.

Q It is very short, isn't it?

A Well lots of the arguments are very short in front of the Board of Pardons.

Q I mean this particular one is very short and you can read it over very quickly.

A Well he first discussed the facts and then the Attorney General asked him if "there was a civil settlement in this case of $20,000. The point in the judge's mind is whether the $20,000 has been paid," and Mr. Duffy said: "It has been paid"; that "The police officer has completely recovered. Although he hasn't served a lot of time he has been a decent, law-abiding citizen. I think he has tried to do the right thing. We have letters from people in the community . . .

"THE ATTORNEY GENERAL: You mean you have letters from people who want him out?

"MR. DUFFY: Yes. They say he is a fine type of citizen. In the letter from the preacher, he says he's a great family man," and then the Lieutenant-Governor's comments which are already in the record and then Mr. Duffy's comments.

Q Now the only other comment and it was very short, was it not, was that they had a petition from some people who would like to have him out?

A And that he was a good, law-abiding citizen before that and they had letters from the people in the community, which was a normal argument.

Q And that was the extent of the argument made by Mr. Duffy?

A Yes.

Q Now did you have anything in the records from the Parole investigation, which is conducted generally for the Pardons Board, let's say, and the prison authorities prior to the action on the application?

A Yes sir.

Q What did the parole investigating staff recommend?

A You mean in the institution?

Q They have a parole investigation, do they not?

A The institutional adjustment is rated very good. Now the Board of Parole investigation, which is made for the Board of Pardons, stated that:

"Reputation of Applicant. Good in community, prior to current offense.

"Parole Violation. None. Applicant has never been on parole.

"Comments of Judge and D. A. Judge Satterthwaite is opposed to commutation at this time.

"District Attorney Van Artsdalen expresses same views as those given by Judge Satterthwaite."

That is the content.

Q That isn't all of the comment, is it?

A Well I think there is some discrepancy that the point out.

Q Yes, they—

A In the applicant's story, that is all.

Q And what were those discrepancies?

A Well the applicant claimed that he was not visibly intoxicated and, according to Police Officer Metroka and William Lambert, "they did smell strong odor of alcohol." Now I don't consider that a serious discrepancy, because one place they said he was visibly intoxicated and a mere strong odor of alcohol doesnt make a man visibly intoxicated. "In addition, applicant's son pleaded guilty to the charge of Operating a Motor Vehicle While Under the Influence of Intoxicants." But that is the son; not the applicant. The "Applicant also claimed that his son was abused by Officer Caldarelli. The fact is that applicant's son grabbed Caldarelli by the collar of his shirt and applicant made an attempt to jump upon Caldarelli's back when Caldarelli was on top of applicant's son on the ground. However, this act was prevented by Officer Metroka. Applicant further claims that he had his gun in holster when Caldarelli made lunge for him. However, the fact is that applicant had the gun out of holster, pointed at Caldarelli, when Caldarelli made lunge for the gun, at which time applicant opened fire. Applicant also claimed that he did not shoot Caldarelli, nor did he intend to do so. The fact of the matter is that applicant left the scene of the accident in his truck and returned in an automobile, having on his person a pistol which he used without any provocation."

Q Now do you, likewise, think that none of these discrepancies are important?

A Well that is a matter of opinion.

Q Well you have expressed your opinion. So, since you involved it, what about the other discrepancy?

A I don't think I expressed my opinion. I don't think I offered any opinion.

Q Well I beg to differ.

A All right, you can differ.

Q When you first answered my question, you said that in your opinion the fact that they smelled a strong odor of alcohol, that wasn't a very serious discrepancy. I am now asking whether you consider the other things serious discrepancies or not? I did not ask for any opinions; you involved them.

A I only involved it as to the matter of visibly intoxicated.

Q It looked to me as though you were trying to justify the action of someone by your first observation. Now do you think the other discrepancies are serious or not?

SENATOR SCOTT: These are discrepancies in what, statements in the application and what the—

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: You see, Senator, at the time the Pardons Board was listening and deciding on this particular case, they had before them the confidential report of the Parole Board, which they should have and probably did take into consideration, and I just wanted to bring out that the Parole Board did not first object after it had been granted, but objected previously and pointed out certain discrepancies in the application.

THE WITNESS: Now may I point out, sir, that they never give a statement of opinion that they object. They only state the facts in this report to us. They don't make an opinion or they don't give an opinion.

MR. KOHN: Those facts relate to the facts appearing on the trial of the case.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q They made an investigation which, in effect, gives you what they have found out.

A That is right and then it is up to the Board to find out whether or not, in their opinion, these facts are material in relation to the case at hand. It is the Board's opinion.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q In that connection, they do say "Applicant's version," don't they?

A That is right.

Q And then they have another section called "Official version"?

A That is right.

Q Either by consulting notes of testimony, where there are notes of testimony, they state the actual occurrences at the trial and a summary of the testimony?

A That is right.

Q And it is that that they said the discrepancy occurred in?

A That is right.

Q And the Board did consider it to be of significance that he had paid $20,000?

A Well I think so.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q You think so. So you would rather not give me an expression of opinion as to the importance of the discrepancy other than the one?

A I can't give it to you, sir, because it was the decision of the Pardons Board. I am only the Secretary.

Q My question is that you don't want to express an opinion other than on the first instance when you did?

A That is right.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q And, Mr. Nissley, as I understand the facts, the defendant left the scene, went home and brought back with him this gun, is that correct?

A That is what the report shows.

Q Which is an indication that when he went home to get the gun, he brought it back to use it on the policeman and actually did use it, didn't he?

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: For which he got a jail sentence.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Which was commuted?

A Well the Board of Pardons, in the exercise of their judgment, thought that he should be commuted. I don't know any more than that.

Q And the Parole Board thought it was of such a serious nature that they ignored the recommendation of both the Pardons Board and the Governor, and retained the prisoner in jail?

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: And a different Pardons Board backed them up.

SENATOR YOSKO: I don't care about which Pardons Board or who backed up who.

MR. KOHN: I think all those facts are in the record.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q We are not talking about Pardons Boards. We are talking about the action of a Pardons Board. If you want to go into Pardons Boards, the Pardons Board that made the original recommendation was the Pardons Board that is not serving at the present time. It was the previous Pardons Board.

A There was one Member on the Board, still one Member on the Board in February.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q There is an issue involved in there, however, that I would like to know whether or not in your experience as Secretary of the Board you ever had any others, and that is I gained the impression that the Parole Board took it upon themselves to ignore or override the actions of the Pardons Board by keeping this man in jail?

A That is correct.

Q Now in the course of your experience in ten years as Secretary of the Pardons Board, did you ever have any other cases where the Parole Board, as you can recall, took it upon themselves to override or ignore the recommendations of the Pardons Board?

A Mr. Tompkins, I just can't recall. There may have been one other. I am not certain, but I believe this was the only time. The law provides that if the Board of Pardons recommends commutation and it is approved by the Governor, the Board of Parole, if they do not agree with the action of the Board of Pardons in recommending commutation and release of the prisoner, the Board of Parole must so notify the Board of Pardons within ten days of their action and then it is up to the Board of Pardons to either concur in the action of the Board of Parole or overrule the Board of Parole by official action and immmediately discharge the prisoner.

Now in this case, between the action of the Board in December of 1954 and the action of the Board of Parole, a new Pardons Board, that is three new Members had come onto the Board of Pardons due to the change of Administration. Mr. Livengood was the only remaining Member on the Board, his term not expiring until May of 1955. So, he related to the present Board, with the exception of Miss Blatt, his feeling and understanding of the case and then since they had heard none of the argument on the case, they were at a loss to know what to do and they reluctantly stated that they would go along with the action of the Board of Parole.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q When you say that the Parole Board overrode the Pardons Board, that isn't correct, is it? It acted entirely within its discretion, didn't it?

A Well, General, the action of the two bodies is separated.

Q Sure, the Parole Board had lawful authority to do what it did.

A That is right, if in their opinion they weren't entitled to release.

Q In every case, the commutation simply makes the man eligible for parole. It doesn't turn him out of jail?

A That is right.

Q And then the Board of Parole, in accordance with its lawful authority, decided not to parole him?

A That is right.

Q So that is not overriding, is it?

A The Board of Pardons has further authority then.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: If the Parole Board disapproves, they can direct his release.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I wanted to get that point clarified, General, for this reason. I want to know just exactly how strong is the power of the Pardons Board and how strong is the power of the Parole Board. If it is fixed by statute, then that is the answer. I was wondering how much conflict does exist, or in previous years, between the Parole Board and the Pardons Board on the actions of the Pardons Board.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE. I think Mr. Nissley explained it very carefully.

THE WITNESS. I think there were only two cases in the ten or eleven years that I was there. This was one of them.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Then you considered this as an extraordinary situation. I think Mr. Nissley adequately explained the law. If it isn't clear, I am sure he would go over it or I would.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I was trying to resolve the conflict between the power of these two Boards.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: There is no conflict. As he said, the Board of Pardons, under the case coming up from Delaware County, when there is a minimum and a maximum imposed, the Parole Board has no authority to act except after the expiration of the minimum. Now where the Board of Pardons acts and commutes that minimum, that makes the man eligible for parole and it becomes purely a question for the Parole Board to investigate his parole plan and so forth and so on, and decide whether he should be released and if they decide that he should not be released, under the law as Mr. Nissley said they have to report that to the Board of Pardons which then has the right, by statute, to overrule the Parole Board and direct his immediate release and in this case, the Board of Pardons chose not to direct his immediate release. They, in effect, accepted the action of the Parole Board.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I was merely trying to clarify the power of the two Boards. I am satisfied.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Now, Mr. Nissley, during the time you were on the Board, can you tell us approximately how many special listings that were made by your Board of cases?

A What do you mean by "special listings"?

Q I mean somebody would write in and say they were filing an application and you would have it specially listed, and then it would get on the printed list.

A I don't know of any case where that ever occurred.

Q And where did you keep the advertising of the cases, proofs of publication?

A Well they were kept in the fifth floor, in the files of the Board of Pardons.

Q Did you keep them?

A Yes, we had copies of the advertising that was sent to the newspapers and the Legal Journal in the county, if there was one, and a copy was kept of the advertisement and a copy was kept of the proof of publication.

Q Were there any cases specially listed by request of counsel or outsiders in the case where you did not advertise and still listed the case extra on the printed list?

A No.

Q And at that time, I think the rule of the Board was that you had a file and it would be heard at the next month of the Regular Session?

A You filed on the tenth day of the month preceding the month in which it was to be heard unless that month happened to fall on Saturday or Sunday and in that event, we held the list open until the following Monday because we get a lot of things—

Q Did you list any cases that came in that were not advertised?

A No, because the Constitution requires that you give due public notice and while I was Secretary of the Board, we felt that due public notice meant giving it by advertising in the newspaper and then sending out, of course, the calendar of the Board to those persons.

Q There were no cases added to the calendar after you sent it out, no cases heard after the calendar was made up?

A No, Mr. Kohn, I would say that there were cases added but if they were added after the calendar had gone to the printer, we inserted and sent to the institutions an extra sheet and we sent a letter to the newspapers requesting them to add the names of the persons who were added to the calendar.

Q You would then insert an extra sheet into the calendar and, thereby, all cases were listed when they came up for hearing?

A You mean listed in the calendar? Not if they were a capital case.

Q I am talking about other than capital cases now. I mean, what I am trying to say,—maybe I am not saying it plainly—would you hear any cases that were not listed on the calendar outside of capital cases?

A You mean listed in the printed calendar?

Q Yes.

A Well going back over eleven or twelve years is pretty difficult to state. I don't recall of any.

Q That was not the practice?

A No, it definitely wasn't the practice.

Q In other words, you would not get a request for a special listing or a listing and then just put it on your calendar sheet that you distributed to the Members of the Board, and not have it listed on the regular calendar in some form or another for hearing?

A I don't recall of any case like that.

Q Now what was the practice of the Board in regard to rehearings that were granted?

A Well, of course, when they got the sad news that they were not going to have their sentence commuted, why, the attorney or the applicant's representative would usually write in and in most instances they would write in and request a reargument of the case.

Q In regard to those rearguments and rehearings, what were the requirements of the Board before they would grant such reargruments or rehearings?

A Well what would happen is that I would send a round robin around, with the representative's letter, to the Members of the Board so that they could review the situation, together with the file. The file went along, too, and under the rules of the Board at that time, if two Members were in favor of a reargument, a reargument was granted at the next Session of the Board, at which it could be properly placed on the calendar.

Q What I mean is, what requirements did the Board have before they would even send out a round robin, no special requirements?

A No.

Q Did they have to file new reasons or anything of that kind?

A Yes.

Q Just a request for reargument or rehearing?

A Yes.

Q You are familiar with the new rule passed by this Board?

A No. I am not; no, I am not.

Q What recommendations could you give this committee in particular in regard to the files before the Pardons Board? I mean there is no chronological listing of letters received or petitions received or anything of that kind. They just are put into the file, are they not?

A Yes.

Q Some files contained as high as three or four applications.

A That is right, when the application first comes in, it is assigned a number. When we got up to 10,000, then it got to be too many numbers and we decided to put an A, and I think they are up now pretty close to A-9.

Q Do you have any recommendations you would like to give this committee for, or suggestions in connection with, the procedural rules of the Board of Pardons from your experience?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Isn't this the kind of thing we were going to go into after you finished the Wheatley case? I think it is very interesting and I would like very much to hear Mr. Nissley. I thought we were all reserving our questions generally until after the Wheatley case.

MR. KOHN: We finished the Wheatley case.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: If we have finished the Wheatley case, there are some questions I would like to ask Mr. Nissley.

SENATOR YOSKO: There is just one more question I would like to ask Mr. Nissley.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q I think you said that Mr. Duffy, while arguing the case, said there were letters in the file from people from Bucks County. How many letters are there favoring?

A There are three here. I just see three here.

Q Is one of those from the sponsor?

A No.

Q Are the letters substantially the same?

A Well I haven't looked at them for several years; I wouldn't know. Well the usual type of letter we received in those cases or in any case.

Q In substance, they say what?

A They say that he had a good previous reputation, that he had been in no difficulty before, that he was a religious man and that they recommend that commutation be granted.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Is one of them from the minister?

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: I would like to look at them to see what they are.

The WITNESS: No, he is Secretary of the Trustees of the Oxford Valley Chapel, this one man, Mr. Erwin.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Mr. Nissley, on the question of advertising, you would advertise every case before the first hearing but you did use the—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS; Just a minute, General. I think we wanted to finish this question and then I want to take about a fifteen minute recess.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I just wanted to ask one question while it is fresh in our minds.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q On the question of advertising, you advertised the first hearing and then if there was a request for reargument, you used the round robin method, didn't you?

A Yes, but, General, we also advertised it in the newspapers.

Q. You mean before the first hearing?

A That is—

Q What if a rehearing was granted for the following month, did you cause a new advertisement to be issued to the newspapers?

A Yes, I think we did.

Q Are you sure?

A There may have been instances where it wasn't done but we tried to get every case in because we felt that the due public notice—

Q Even on the rehearings?

A Oh yes sir.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS

Q How about special listings?

A In murder cases, the applicant's attorney must do the advertising and include that in the application when it comes before the Board, in a death case where a man is under sentence.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Nissley, just one other question occurred to me. Do you recall, during the time that you were on the Board, of any rehearings or reaguments requested by Congressmen or others who were not counsel of record on the case that were granted to anybody?

A Oh I wouldn't know. We heard thousands of cases and I couldn't possibly—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: To be fair to Mr. Nissley, Mr. Wright read some letters into the record.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Were any rehearings granted on the application of some Congressmen?

A I really couldn't remember. In that period of time, eleven years, I think we probably—I processed maybe 12,000 cases and I wouldn't know. One session I know, in the June 1945 Session of the Board of Pardons, we heard nearly 400 cases in five days. We had sessions Monday through Thursday.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: God Almighty.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Let us take a recess for fifteen minutes.

(After recess.)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Out of deference to the gentlemen who traveled some distance to get here today, we will take them next and then finish up with Mr. Nissley.

EDWARD M. SATTERTHWAITE, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Will you please give us your full name?

A Edward M. Satterthwaite.

Q What position do you hold in Bucks County?

A Judge of the Court of Common Pleas.

Q How long have you been a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas?

A A little over five years.

Q You may state whether or not you tried the Wheatley case.

A I did.

Q And you heard the testimony in regard to the facts here on both sides, and is that an approximately correct statement, Judge Satterthwaite?

A I am, Mr. Kohn, I am not in a position at this time to review the facts in the case. It was a very lengthy record and I cannot state whether one or another version of the facts is correct.

Q Did you oppose the commutation by the Board of Pardons of Wheatley's sentence?

A I did.

Q And your letter was read into the record, was it not?

A That is right.

Q And do you feel that the Board of Pardons was mistaken in their judgment in allowing the commutation?

A You use the words "mistaken in judgment." I am not quite sure it is within my province to say whether or not they made a mistake. If I were in their position, I would not have done it, put it that way.

Q But you did definitely oppose it?

A I did.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Judge Satterthwaite, on some previous cases judges were called in to express opinions and that is one of the reasons why we asked you to come up here today, and I trust we didn't inconvenience you too much.

A It happened, sir—off the record—that today was a better day than any other day you could have picked.

Q That is fine. What was the reaction of officials, people generally, relative to the commutation of the sentence of Mr. Wheatley?

A I am not sure that I understand what you mean by "reaction." The public press raised a considerable fuss about it. I can't say that I can advise you in any other connection.

Q Was there public resentment to it?

A In my opinion there was.

Q And when you wrote the letter objecting to the commutation, your reasoning behind it was based on the facts as they were presented to you at the trial?

A Yes, as sentencing judge I had imposed a sentence which I, in my best judgment, thought should be carried out.

Q Could you have imposed a heavier sentence than you did?

A You mean legally?

Q Yes.

A I believe so; I don't recall offhand what the maximum sentence is.

Q It was one to three years.

A No, the sentence itself was three and one-half to seven but what the sentence could have been under the Penal Code, I just don't know offhand.

Q But you gave the maximum sentence?

A I don't recall whether I did nor not. My recollection is—and I don't want to be held to this—that I did not impose the maximum sentence.

Q The sentence that you did impose, you thought fitted the degree and the seriousness of the crime?

A That is right.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Did any of the law enforcement officials of the community make any comment on the action of the Board to you at the time?

A Not to me, no. They were quoted as opposing it in the public press. That is all I know about it.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Was that at the time the commutation was made and not at the time of the parole?

A Mr. Kohn, I don't have any distinct recollection at all about the time the parole was actually granted, any public opinion or anything else at that time.

Q Well the commutation was granted I think—

A The commutation, let's not misunderstand each other. Are you talking about the commutation or the parole?

Q I am talking about public sentiment. You are talking about whether or not that was at the time the commutation was granted.

A That is the time I was directing my remarks to Senator Yosko about.

Q Of course, the Parole Board kept him there until November 22, 1955. At that time was there any public sentiment?

A That is what I meant when I said my last remarks; that I don't distinctly remember whether there was any sentiment or additional public sentiment at that time or not.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Just one more question. I don't want to inject politics into it except to ask you one question.

Are you a member of the Republican Party?

A I don't think that is any of the committee's business. I can say this. I was appointed by Governor Fine, I was elected in 1953 without opposition by both parties.

Q Do you know whether or not Mr. Duffy was Republican City Chairman of Philadelphia at the time?

A I dont' know anything about Philadelphia. I don't know anything about Mr. Duffy.

Q Did Mr. Duffy participate in the trial of the case?

A No sir.

Q Does Mr. Duffy practice very much before the courts?

A He is not a member of our Bar. At least in my time on the bench, he never has practiced in Bucks County.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q A motion for a new trial was made and disposed of and there was no appeal taken.

A I am not sure, sir, whether an appeal was taken. I have no opinion as to whether an appeal was formally decided by the appellate court.

SENATOR YOSKO: Will you let me see those three letters please?

(Mr. Kohn handed letters to Senator Yosko.)

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Judge, do you know Joseph A. Keating?

A Yes.

Q How far does he live, if you know, if you know from Mr. Wheatley?

A Roughly five miles I would say. It may be four miles; it might be six. It is in that neighborhood.

Q Do you know whether or not they ever had any business relationships?

A That I don't know.

Q Do you know Donald H. Outcalt—O-u-t-c-a-l-t?

A That name is not known to me.

Q How far is Yardley from the place that Mr. Wheatley lives?

A Again, Mr. Yosko, it would be an estimate; between five and ten miles. I just don't know exactly. They both are in lower Bucks County.

Q Do you know Robert Erwin of Bucks County, R. D. 2, Langhorne?

A I am not sure who you are referring to. I do know a man by that name in Langhorne.

Q It is one of the persons that wrote a letter to the Pardons Board. How far is Langhorne from the place where Mr. Wheatley lives?

A Again, I would have to give you an estimate of between 5 and 10 miles.

Q What is the occupation of Mr. Wheatley, if you know?

A At the time of trial he was employed as—self employed as a proprietor of a garage, service station, towing business.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Do you know anything about him now?

A I have heard nothing about him since.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Judge, were you Judge of the Common Pleas Court of Bucks County at the time of the commutation of the Darcy case?

A I was.

Q What was the reaction of the public officials, the public officials, the police, and the people generally to the commutation of the Darcy death sentence?

A I don't know that I can add anything to what has already been said in that connection, sir. I presume it has already been testified at hearings before this Committee as to the general situation, that there was public resentment.

Q We would like to know because of the fact that there have been statements made that public resentment was due to newspapers. We would like to know what was the actual public resentment in the county or portion of the county through the commutation of the death sentence.

A It is a thing that is hard to put into words. I think I am speaking purely for myself in this. I think we had the same resentment as you would have in any case where you felt there had been an injustice done. People felt strongly about it, there is no question about it.

Q You said "injustice done." Will you enlarge on that, sir? In other words, why do you feel it is an injustice?

A That the dignity of legal process had been maligned and abused. As I said, it is hard to put into words.

Q Do you have any knowledge of any adverse effect upon the administration of criminal justice as the result of those cases?

A Which cases are you referring to?

Q The Darcy case. We class the Zeitz, Foster and Darcy cases informally as Darcy. I am thinking now of perhaps police officials.

A I am not in a position to speak for any police association. As a matter of fact, you have a representative here of the Bucks County Police Association.

Q The administration of criminal justice in general, then.

A Again, I don't think I can put anything into concrete words on the subject. I think, by and large, the reaction of the general public of Bucks County and people throughout the State is that the Darcy case is a mockery to the criminal laws of the State.

Q Was there actually bitter resentment in the County to the commutation of Darcy and his two accomplices as the result of the commutation from a death sentence to life sentence?

A No question about it.

Q On another subject, Judge, do you have any suggestions to give us on the matter of remedial legislation as to, perhaps, a change in the composition of the Pardons Board?

A No, sir, I have not. I have not made any study on it. I don't know enough about it to be able to discuss it. I was just asked yesterday to come here, and I certainly have not had time to make any investigation on the subject; and previously, I had had no occasion to.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: I see. Thank you very much.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Judge, is your opinion the same relative to the administration of justice on the release of Mr. Wheatley?

A Yes; certainly.

Q Except for the degree of the crime, the reaction was the same; do I understand you to say that?

A Well, it is probably a different degree in that the Darcy case received much more widespread public opinion than the Wheatley case; but the reaction was of the same type.

Q It was just by the grace of God, though, that the police officer that was shot didn't die. I mean they were both shooting. The one case, as I see, the one was deliberate, and the other, as I gathered here from the testimony, it has never been established, but a bullet from the gun fired by Wheatley could have killed the victim.

A You have me at a disadvantage, Mr. Yosko. I don't know enough about the facts of the Darcy case in order to discuss it.

Q That was testified by the District Attorney of Bucks County.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think the one case, the

Wheatley case, was more or less provoked; and the other one had no provocation at all.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The Commonwealth's testimony did show it was provoked.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Judge, in your opinion, had the officer died, the officer who was shot by Mr. Whaetley, it would have constituted murder in the first degree, would it not?

A I have already said, and I say it again; it would have.

Q And the death penalty would have been warranted had the police officer died?

A Yes.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q By saying that the public reaction in the Darcy, Foster, Zeitz, or Wheatley case, it is very difficult to separate what is caused by publicity and what is not caused by publicity, is it not, Judge?

A You are covering a lot of territory, Mr. McBride. I don't know how to answer that, except to agree with you in general; certainly.

Q As to the mockery of justice, you don't mean to intimate that the Board of Pardons acted beyond its jurisdiction, do you?

A No. I don't question the jurisdiction of the Board of Pardons in either case.

Q Now, as to Foster and Zeitz, all legal proceedings having ended possibly 5 years before the commutation and they having been kept in separate and solitary confinement, without exercise, for about two of those years in any event, and then ultimately commuted, would you think that, as to those two, who had not caused any delay at all, and as to whom there were pending no legal proceedings, it would have been proper, after the passage of all those years, and then having endured that kind of punishment, to then put them to death?

A Mr. McBride, you have me at a disadvantage in that I have already said I have no official knowledge or connection in any way with the Darcy, Zeitz, Foster cases.

As an abstract proposition, I still think that the sentences imposed by the Court and duly affirmed by all the various courts they were taken to should have been carried out.

Your point is that Mr. Foster and Mr. Zeitz did not participate in those appeals.

Q Yes; and they were kept alive for 5 years, with no proceedings pending, and kept under these conditions. Wouldn't that, in your mind, create some reason for commuting the sentence after that kind of punishment had been imposed, in view of the fact that the Statute prescribes either death or life imprisonment, but not in addition that they be kept alive under such conditions for 5 years or more.

A Well, it would certainly, as you say, provide some reason. Whether that reason is one with which you or I would agree is a matter of opinion. I don't have any definite opinion on it, no. It is not my province to say so.

Q Thank you, Judge. Do you know of anything corrupt or improper in connection with the commutation of David Darcy?

A No.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Do you know anything improper in connection with the other ones?

A No. I have no knowledge at all of anything in connection with the Darcy, Foster, Zeitz case, and, therefore, have no knowledge of any improper influence or corruption or anything of that sort. In answer to your question, Mr. Kohn, even though I was officially connected with it, I have no konwledge of anything improper or corrupt connected with the Wheatley case.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right. Thank you very much, Judge.

(witness excused)

. . . DONALD W. VanARTSDALEN, District Attorney, Bucks County, sworn:

BY MR. KOHN:

Q You are the District Attorney of Bucks County?

A Yes, sir.

Q You did not try the Wheatley case?

A No, I didn't.

Q You were elected after the Wheatley case had been sentenced?

A I took office at least afterwards, yes.

Q And you opposed this commutation on the basis of information you received from your predecessor?

A Yes; and, of course, I did have some personal knowledge of the case, having been an assistant at the time.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Did you appear before the Pardons Board to present your objection?

A No, I did not. We have a comparatively small staff, and it has always been our policy not to appear except in a capital case. I think they are the only cases we have ever appeared at personally.

Q When you were up here before, I think you were asked questions about the reaction of the public and police officials and that sort of thing with regard to the Darcy case.

Would you care to express an opinion on the same reaction in the Wheatley case?

A Well, I don't know whether you could say it was the same reaction. Certainly, amongst the people who are familiar with the Wheatley case, I think they felt a strong resentment to the action that was taken. When you say the same reaction, I wouldn't say the same—

Q Well, a similar reaction.

A Neither in intensity nor necessarily in actual feeling; and I think that is for this reason: of course, in the Darcy case you had a capital punishment that was initiated by a jury. In the Wheatley case, it was merely a matter of cutting down a sentence that had been imposed by a judge.

It seems to me that because of those different factual situations, the type of reaction that was generated by the positions of the Board of Pardons was somewhat of a different nature.

Q Did you participate in the trial of Wheatley?

A Not in the trial itself, no, sir.

Q Your name appears somewhere in the file, and that is one of the reasons you have been called here.

A Well, I wrote a letter to the Pardons Board, opposing the commutation. I know that Mr. Curtin tried the case, sir. It is possible that I appeared on one of the statements or something of that sort. I know that Mr. Curtin tried the case.

Q And your objection to the commutation was based on the facts as you know them, so far as the commission of the crime was concerned?

A Yes, plus one other factor, my complete confidence in our courts and in the fairness of the sentences that are imposed by our judges.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Thank you very much.

(witness excused)

. . . PAUL J. BRENAN, sworn:

By MR. KOHN:

Q What is your full name?

A Paul J. Brenan.

Q Were you on, January 24, 1955, the president of the Bucks County Chiefs of Police Association?

A I was.

Q And did you send a telegram that has been read into the record to the Board of Pardons, opposing the Wheatley commutation?

A I did.

Q And did you feel that it should not be commuted?

A Personally, I felt as though it shouldn't be commuted, and I was acting on the requests of various other police chiefs, who were members of our Association and contacted me by telephone, requesting that such a telegram be sent.

Q And you were asked to come up here by me, at the request of Senator Yosko; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q I sent you a telegram requesting that you come up here; is that right?

A That's right.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q You said that you sent that telegram at the request of numerous police officers and police chiefs that contacted you?

A That is correct.

Q Did you feel the same way about the situation?

A I did.

Q So that whatever sentiments are expressed in that telegram are yours plus others that contacted you?

A Substantially, yes.

Q What was the general reaction of the people and police officers and public officials in Bucks County resulting from the action of the Pardons Board?

A Well, I think I can speak for the police officers, not the public in general. They were pretty incensed over it. They felt that if that was allowed to continue or go through, that—and I think the telegram brings it out—in effect, that the police officer, his life wasn't worth too much down around Bucks County.

Q Did you hear the names of the people that I mentioned that sent in the letters, who did not object to the commutation?

A No, I did not. I couldn't hear very well back there.

SENATOR YOSKO: Will you read those names to him?

MR. KOHN: Do you want the letters, Senator Yosko?

SENATOR YOSKO: Yes.

MR. KOHN: Sylvester E. Keeting, Pendel, Bucks County.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Do you know Mr. Keeting?

A I know a Mr. Keeting.

Q He is the insurance man?

A I know a Mr. Keeting who was at one time a justice of the peace. Whether this is the same man—I know of a Joseph Keeting, but a Sylvester—oh, it is Sylvester and Keeting, excuse me. I know a Joseph Keeting, yes. I see his name here.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Do you know a Joseph Keeting?

A Yes.

Q Take a look at those letters. Would you say those letters are of a voluntary nature or do you think they were solicited?

MR. KOHN: How could you tell that?

SENATOR YOSKO: Because it is addressed, "To Whom it May Concern," and if I were to write a letter to a Pardons Board, I would address it to the Pardons Board.

A Yes, sir. What is the question relative to these letters?

Q Whether they appear to be voluntary or of the type that would be solicited.

A I can't answer that just from sitting here, reading a letter.

Q I beg your pardon?

A I say, I can't answer that just from reading a letter.

SENATOR YOSKO: All right.

(witness excused)

. . . JOHN M. DesROCHERS, Secretary, Board of Parole, sworn:

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What is your full name, please?

A John M. DesRochers.

Q What position do you hold with the Board of Parole?

A. Secretary.

Q I asked you to bring with you the files of the Wheatley case. Do you have them with you?

A Yes.

Will you tell us when Mr. Wheatley was paroled?

A He was actually released on parole November 22, 1955.

Q When was the commutation granted?

A The commutation was granted—

Q January 14, 1955?

A Signed.

Q Yes. And he was kept in by the Board of Parole because they did not feel that he was ready to be released to society, Mr. DesRochers?

A That is true.

MR. KOHN: I don't know what else you would like to have, Senator Yosko. We have gone over the letters between the Board of Parole and the Pardons Board. I don't know what else you want to bring out.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q What inspired the Parole Board to take the actions that it took in refusing to go along with the recommendations for commutation by the Pardons Board?

A What expired?

Q What inspired? What were the reasons?

A Well, Senator, first, to tell you the reason that the Parole Board had, in addition to that, the Board had the advantage of interviewing the man at the prison. Of course, they did not appear in person before the Board of Pardons.

Now, with that interview and with the investigative material the Board had, and along with plenty of letters as the Pardon Board received, we likewise received in opposition to that, the Board felt that, in view of the sentiment expressed, that to release this man at the time would not be in the public interest. Therefore, they took action to refuse.

Q What was Mr. Wheatley's attitude while he was in prison?

A Well, at the time they interviewed him first, he didn't consider himself guilty of any crime. He says the officer had beaten up his son and in a struggle with a police officer, his gun was discharged. He knew nothing about the bystander who was shot. He fled from the scene; surrendered to the officer at Doylestown. He admits having 4 or 5 beers on the evening when the occurrence took place. He said he intended to return to his wife and business. He denied any previous controversies with any state police. He maintains that he had many good friends on the police force.

Institutional adjustment was all right.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q What was that last statement?

A His institution adjustment was satisfactory.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What about his reputation so far as your records show, his reputation in the community in which he lived?

A Well, you read the Pardons Board—

Q Well, I was just wondering whether there was a subsequent investigation.

A No, I do not believe so.

Q You agree with the Board of Parole report dated December 2, 1954, in which it is stated that from investigation, it discloses that the applicant did bear good reputation in the community?

A Yes, I would have to.

Q You didn't have any subsequent information?

A No.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q You said in your original statement that due to investigations that you made and from public sentiment and from letters that you received—

A That's right.

Q (continued)—the Parole Board decided to disagree with the recommendation of the Pardons Board and to retain Mr. Wheatley in prison?

A Yes.

Q Now, from what you have read, you didn't substantiate those reasons. Will you please elaborate on them?

A The investigation end of it?

Q Yes.

A Well, understand, Senator, we made the investigation for the Pardons Board and, of course, the Board had access to that. That was the investigation into the effect of crime as well as the community sentiment, which was read this morning.

Q Did you have any other letters other than the letters we have?

A We have plenty of letters. The Chief of Police letter, just like Mr. Nissley got from the Pardon Board; the Head of the American Legion, and various other citizens of the county, opposing the action.

Q Do you have that file with you?

A Yes.

Q Give us the letters and from whom they were received. There is no letter in the Pardon Board file from the American Legion, not that I had a chance to see, anyway.

A Do you want me to read this letter?

Q Yes.

A It is on American Legion stationery, signed by Harry A. Hall.

"January 28, 1955

"Dear Major Hill:

"It just so happens that I am Vice-Chairman of the Americanism Committee of the Pennsylvania Department of the Legion for the past 5 years.

"In the first place, I want to go on record with you that this communication is not an official Legion letter, because the subject was not discussed by our body or by any post of the Legion, to my knowledge, but I do personally want to go on record as a tax-paying, honorable citizen of this Commonwealth, who helps to pay the freight by taxes to maintain one of the best police departments in the United States. My idea of a hundred percent miscarriage of justice was exemplified just a few weeks ago when the then Governor Fine granted Thomas Wheatley a commutation to three and a half years from the seven-year sentence in the State Penitentiary.

"State Trooper Caldarelli was shot down while in the performance of his duty for this State by Wheatley, who even took time out to go to his home to get the gun to shoot down an officer of the law. I am clipping out newspaper articles of the statements that Trooper Caldarelli had been given a cash settlement of his injuries for $20,000; but he did not say that this was due process of law by judge and jury.

"This is absolutely nothing to do with the offense against the State of Pennsylvania. My question is: what are we coming to by condoning such a miscarriage of justice? Ex-Governor Fine is wrong by every measurement of sound judgment. This is not good Americanism. It is my sincere hope that the State Parole Board will be able to keep this man, Wheatley, in jail, to serve at least his minimum sentence."

It is signed by Harry A. Hall.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What Legion post was that?

A You see, he was Vice-Chairman of the Americanism Committee of the Pennsylvania Department of the Legion, a State Officer.

Q State Officer?

A Yes, and he indicated it wasn't coming from any particular post.

Q To whom was it addressed?

A Major Hill.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Who is the next one from?

A Well, this one was written— this was written to Governor Leader by Howard Lister, Philadelphia. Do you want me to read the letter that he wrote to the Governor?

Q Is it favorable or unfavorable?

A It was unfavorable. During the period of 1930 he was a member of the Pennsylvania State Police; so it was unfavorable.

Q What was the next one?

A Well, this is from a Mr. Raymond Gibson, in Philadelphia. It is rather brief: "I wish to voice my objection to the proposed parole of Thomas Wheatley, convicted of shooting a state trooper. How can you keep the cops' morale up in freeing this attempted killer?"

And there is probably the same thing, Fraternal Order of Police—

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Who signed that letter, sir?

A That was signed by—I am very sorry—Ladies' Auxiliary of the Fraternal Order of Police; Mr. Warlick President, and Mrs. McNeil, Secretary.

Q This is, very frankly, against the parole?

A That's right. She says, in effect, that the Women's Auxiliary of the Fraternal Order of Police believe Wheatley should be compelled to serve his maximum sentence.

"As wives, mothers and sisters of policemen in the vicinity in which this near-fatal tragedy occurred, we feel that paroling Wheatley would leave an open door for similar occurrences. We pray that you consider the ruined physical condition of Trooper Caldarelli, struck down while working as a servant of the people of the Commonwealth."

The next one was to Governor Leader, also from a Mrs. Naomi Gohring, of Cooperstown—I guess that is Bucks County—likewise opposed.

Samuel Gorson, Esquire, an attorney in Philadelphia.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Gorson, isn't he the counsel for the Chiefs of Police Association?

A That is right. "The Pennsylvania State Lodge of Fraternal Order of Police, at a meeting assembled at Pottsville, Pennsylvania, on Thursday, January 27, passed a resolution condemning the proposed parole of Thomas Wheately, who shot a state policeman on May of '53. The details of it are set forth in a copy of my letter to Major Hill, enclosed."

This is a letter from the President of the Bucks County Police Association.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q What is the next one?

A Judge Satterthwaite.

Q That is opposed.

A Clarence—

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Pardon me just a moment. Let us return to Judge Satterthwaite's letter. Was that after the Parole Board had—I mean the Pardon Board—had acted on the parole, or was that before?

A No. This was to us in the contemplated hearing for parole, dated January 21, 1955.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Read it.

A (reading)

"Dear Sir:

"I have your notice advising that a hearing will be held on February 2 or thereabouts on the application of the above-named, for parole. I understand the Board of Pardons has recommended and Governor Fine has approved the application to commute the sentences from three and a half to one year.

"I have little more to add than what already appears in the record of that case except to say that I am unalterably opposed to releasing this man at the present time. As far as I am concerned, except for the skill of medical science, he would have been probably convicted of first-degree murder, with the death penalty; but for the fortunate circumstances in that the victim of his unjust and unprovoked and unjustified attack happened to live—if there ever was a case of wilful, malicious attack with deadly weapon, this certainly is it.

"I certainly believe it would be a miscarriage of justice to permit him to be released after serving one year of his sentence. I am fully familiar with the circumstances. At the expiration of a minimum as reduced by the Pardons Board, such Parole Board must transmit its reasons therefor, and if it then becomes the duty of a Pardons Board to either abide by such refusal or its order to release.

"I strongly urge that in this case the Board of Parole take advantage of this provision and place the responsibility of the man's release upon the Pardons Board if he is to be released and which I hope will not happen at this time. While it has no legal bearing, the announcement of the fact that the Governor had commuted Wheatley's minimum sentence has aroused a storm of protest in Bucks County. The situation is especially aggravated since his victim was a Pennsylvania State Police Officer, acting in the performance of his duties and while in uniform. The confidence of the public in the administration of justice would be severely undermined if he is released at this time.

"Very truly yours—"

Q What else do you have?

A Bucks County Police Association, signed by Wenhoe. "We, the Bucks County Police Association—"

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Are they opposed?
A That is right.
Q. All right.
A Gorson and Cohen, Philadelphia attorneys for him, opposed.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Who signed that letter?
A Gorson.
Q That is the second one?
A That's right. I believe that—Mr. Herman Esterline, Fraternal Order of Police. Well, that is a telegram—

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Do you have any letters in there recommending—
A No, there are not.
Q You are familiar with the subject matter of each of those letters, are you not?
A Yes.
Q I am going to read a statement to you that was made by Mr. Wood, who was a member of the Parole Board at the time. This is what he said, and I quote: "Of course, if he had shot someone else other than a policeman, I don't think there would have been too much objection. The only thing that riles me a bit is that he shot a State Policeman."

That sentiment is equivalent to the sentiment expressed in those letters?
A It appears to be.
Q And I think the record shows that, in spite of that, Mr. Wood, plus the other members of the Pardons Board, voted for a commutation?
A Apparently.

Q Do you know whether Mr. Duffy, at the time he appeared before the Parole Board, was a member of a political party or a chairman of a political party, at the time?
A As far as I know, Senator, Mr. Duffy did not appear before the Parole—Pardon Board, you mean?
Q Yes.
A I do not know. I only know the gentleman by correspondence. He wrote to us later.
SENATOR YOSKO: Any other questions?

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q How many cases did the Board of Parole refuse to parole after commutation by the Board of Pardons?

A Well, now, General, Mr. Nissley answered that; but I believe that Joe's memory slipped a little bit. I have been secretary 12 years—I can't give you a definite answer but I believe there were 5 or 6 cases. Now, among those 6. there were 2 or 3 that, between the time the Governor commuted and the time, which may be 2 weeks, 1 week, 3 weeks, the Board interviewed and for the actual parole hearings, they became involved in the institution itself, in a misconduct—but there were 3 that I know of, this case and 2 others, that the Board did not go along with; and their adjustment in the institution was still satisfactory. And in each of those cases the Pardon Board went right along with us.

Q In the personal interview of Mr. Wheatley, did he show any repentance for this conduct?

A I would almost say not too much in the fact that he did not consider himself guilty of any crime, so he says. That is what he told the Board members.
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is all.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q You say Mr. Duffy wrote to the—
A Board of Parole?
Q Board of Parole.
A You see, in February, the Board refused parole.
Q Let me ask this question. Are those letters merely routine letters, inquiring as to your action?
A From Mr. Duffy.
Q Yes.
A No. That is what I was going to say. It was through Mr. Duffy's letter to the Board—and that was August or September—that prompted the Board to review the case. Attorney Duffy, of Philadelphia, in his letter dated July 27, 1955, a two-page letter, pleaded to the Board. Do you want me to read that?
Q No, if it was a routine matter.
A Well, appealing to the Board to grant a review of the case, which was some months later. And the Board, upon reviewing the file, did grant a review of the case for the month of September.
REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: That is all.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q How much total time did he serve?
A Well, he served from February 19, 1954, until November 22, 1955.
Q Two years and about nine months?
A One year.
Q One year and nine months; that's right?
A Yes.

(witness excused)

. . . JOSEPH NISSLEY, previously sworn, recalled:

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Mr. Nissley, you testified that you did not recall any special listing. I call your attention to the case of James D. Crawford, No. 7330, in the bound volumes for January to June, 1950, and ask you whether that was a special listing?

A General, I do not know. It is seven years ago. I wouldn't be able to say. You see, some cases, General, if they did not get this in time, when we send the stuff to the printer, if they did not get a chance to print it, we would put this—we would put in an extra sheet like this, if it couldn't be printed in the calendars.

Q In any event, we can agree upon this, can't we, that the other cases preceding and following are printed, and this is entirely in typewriting?
A That is correct.
Q That is true, also, of Joseph Edward Santeli, No. A-67. That is all in typing, while the others are in printing?
A That is correct.
Q And that is true also of—
A I don't know, May 26, reargument granted, you see.
Q Yes.
A Now, that was refused in '49. Reargument granted on May 26th. Then it had gone to the printers; but nevertheless, this would have been advertised.

Q This was a reargument granted after refusal in 1949, reargument granted on May 26th?
A That's right.
Q That is not printed either?
A No.
Q That is also true of John Spapingi, 4293. That is entirely in typing, isn't it?
A Yes.
REPRESENTATIVE BELL: What year is this?
ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: This is the book for February to June, 1951. I only want to cover hurriedly the cases within this resolution.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q That is true also of Domenic Diversa, A-499? That is in the book for the Board of Pardons for 1950.
A General, may I point out that this is a capital case.
Q I was just going to point it out to you.
A Yes.
Q That application was filed on September 5?
A That is correct.
Q And listed for the same month?
A Oh, yes.
Q September?
A Yes. They always did that in capital cases.
Q They were normally special listings, weren't they?
A Yes, sir.
Q Now—
A That is another capital case.
Q (continued)—Robert Clement Shuck.
A Yes, sir.
Q That was filed not on the regular 10th of the month before?
A That is correct.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Would the reason for that be that the man was sentenced for electrocution?
A He was under sentence of death.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is a situation that very often arises. That is why capital cases are heard on special listings usually and decided expeditiously.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Were any of those cases that you referrred to before capital cases?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No. The only ones were the ones we called our attention to.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q This one, Clyde Crianbure was not a capital case?
A No.
Q This was on the list for—
A It was filed in August, August 31. It would have been on the October list. For some reason or other it was continued. When it was continued it was continued to the December Session, and it may have been an oversight that we didn't get it in.
Q But this is also typed?
A That is correct.
Q The others are printed?
A That is correct. I wouldn't call that a special listing.
Q Maybe it was.
A It may have been overlooked.
Q Maybe it was, but it was not under the type listing—
A No, but it may have been on one list before.
Q All right. Now, you spoke of not having a rule as to rehearings. Will you look at Rule 6, sub-section B; wasn't that your rule?
A Well, I don't know whether this is the rule that was in when I was there. This is a rule that—the present members of the Board—
Q I show you the present change. Isn't the present change, Rule 6, Section B, "Will be closely followed by the Board; no petitions for rehearing of cases will be considered for allowance unless there be new facts both subsequently, and also material not previously presented." This is the present Board's rule, but isn't the printed form which I show you now, the rule when you were Secretary?
A No. This is the one that was printed by the present Board. I don't know whether this was in our rules or not. I don't have our rules here.
Q Well, then, your best recollection is that you had no rule on the subject of rehearings?
A General, it has been two years since I have been there. I can't tell you whether these are the original rules or the rehearing rules. I know that we had printed rules—
Q But this on its face, on the last page says, "Rules Adopted February 20, 1935; last revision, October 19, 1951." That is this paper, isnt' it?
A Well, that purports to be the rules of the Board of Pardons.
Q As of the time you were Secretary?
A No.
Q It says, "Last Revision, October, 1951."
A I'm sorry, that is self serving, because I do not know whether it is or not.
Q Then, would it be your position that there were no rules at all when you were Secretary, governing rehearings?
A No, I wouldn't take that position; but I am not saying that those are the exact rules, because I do not know. I do not have a copy of the rules here that we used or that had my name on them at the time.
Q Now, here is a folder, part of which was offered in evidence. John Cominsky, application, A-1863, and contains a paper in it. Whose handwriting is that?
A I don't know, sir.
Q Do you know how it got in the folder?
A No, sir.
Q It says, "Calendar T-U-E-S, April 21, 1953; hold for Dave Walker; refused in May, '53; approved June, 1954."
A I don't know that handwriting, sir; I have never seen it.
Q And you have no explanation as to how that got into the folder?
A No.
Q Do you recall this case?
A This does not ring any bell with me.
Q Did you ever talk to Dave Walker about any case?
A No, sir.
Q Now I show you a folder in which there was read into the record a copy of a letter purported to be signed by you. Will you read that aloud?
REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Will you identify the file, General?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes. It is the file of Benny Divone, A-914.

A "John Patrick Walsh, Esquire, 1732 Commercial Trust Building, Philadelphia 2. March 20, 1952.

"Dear John Patrick:

"As I said, what we would do in the Benny Divone application, Bill brought up this application and requested that—"

Q Who is the "Bill" mentioned therein?

A Well, there is only one Bill on the Board. That was Bill Livengood.

Q Is it usual or was it usual during your term as Secretary that commitments be given formally for public hearings?

A Well, this had been heard before, this case had been heard before.

Q And so there was a reargument?

A Yes—no. It was heard in '51. Then it was on the March list. And then it was continued from the March list. Evidently—I don't know.

Q There was a rehearing granted, wasn't there?

A A reargument was granted for the June Session, evidently. We had heard the case, and everybody knew what it was about. And the three members of the Board wanted this man to serve four years, and they directed me to write this letter, telling him that we would hear it again in June; and that at the end of four years, they would grant this commutation.

Q That was not joined in by the Attorney General, was it?

A Yes, it was—he was opposed.

Q He was opposed?

A Yes; and there was Livengood and Smith.

Q Two voted for reargument, did they not?

A Yes, sir.

Q One voted against?

A Yes, sir.

Q What happened to the fourth vote?

A I don't know, sir.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q What year was it?

A '52.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Is it usual for the Board to write counsel a letter, stating what the Board is going to do prior to the public hearing at which it will do it?

A Well, they had heard the case.

Q Yes, I agree.

A They had a public hearing on it.

Q That is right, and they were going to hold another one, weren't they?

A They were going to hold another one. They told him—he asked for credit for jail time, which was not given, contrary to the Act of Assembly.

Q All right.

A And so, in order to give him credit for the jail time, they granted the reargument and gave him the six months. That is what it amounted to.

Q Now, I will repeat my question. Is it usual to write a letter for the applicant, telling him what the Board is going to do when it hears the case?

A No.

Q Was this unusual?

A Yes. I was directed by the Board to do it.

Q But you were directed by the Board prior to the reargument to tell counsel what they were going to do at a reargument?

A Yes, because they had decided at the March Sessions what they were going to do. They were going to give the man credit for his six months.

Q Before they had heard it again?

A Yes.

Q Before they had had opportunity to hear opposition to it?

A I don't think there was any opposition. If I may look at my records—

Q Sure.

A Do you have the '52?—

Q I think they are both here.

A No, it isn't. I want '52, March and June.

Q This was first heard in June, 1951, was it not?

A Yes, sir.

Q What action was taken?

A It was refused.

Q Now, then, it was heard again in March, 1952?

A Well, I don't know unless I look at the calendar, and see; but it was on the March list.

Q I thought that was—

A It was on the March list.

Q You said that there was some decision that was arrived at as to what they were going to do, and that decision was arrived at in March, 1952.

A. That is correct.

Q When was the reargument granted?

A It was after the March Sessions.

Q Yes, So that, despite the fact that the rules provide that a case cannot be heard until the expiration of one year, this one was heard before the expiration of one year, wasn't it?

A Oh, sure. It wasn't anything—

Q Now, what appears—

MR. KOHN: Let him finish the question.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Certainly.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Go ahead and finish, Mr. Nissley. You said that wasn't unusual? Is that what you were going to say?

A No, I wasn't going to say that. On occasions when they have had applications for reargument, they have granted reargruments.

Q What appears in there as to why they granted reaguments? Anything?

A No, except that from what I see in the record, it was to give the man credit for six months' jail time, which he didn't get.

Q That wasn't done in March, was it?

A Yes. That is what was agreed up in March, that they were going to have another hearing in June and give him six months' jail time which he didn't have before.

Q And prior to doing that, they notified counsel as to what they were going to do?

A Yes.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q You only had a six months' rule at that time, did you not?

A In what year was that?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBride: '52.

A (continued) Mr. Tompkins, I don't remember when that was changed from six months to a year.

Q Was it during your term that they changed the six months to one year?

A Yes, sir.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q This last revision, October, 1951, says 12 months, Rule 6-A, applications—

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Nissley, I think you recited to me the basis for that six months to one year.

A I think it was after the June Sessions of '45, when Governor Bell was then the Lieutenant Governor, and we then had this terrific upsurge of cases, about 360 or 370 in the June Sessions. We sat from Monday through Thursday. He said, in order to lighten this load, because these fellows continued to apply after six months, we will lengthen it up to 12 months. It did have that effect. I think it was after the June, 1945 Sessions; it may have been in September or October of 1945 that we changed it to one year.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Well, then, it was one year in '52?

A Yes; but the Board could grant arguments on the motion of two members at any time, even the next month.

Q Will you tell us what if any reason appears either in the folder or this record as to why the rehearing was granted within the year?

A The only thing I can do is to guess. I don't know. The only reason I could say is that it was refused at the March Sessions and it was decided at that time, because these notes were made for me at the time of the hearing, reargument, "June; don't circulate," that is, that they had agreed that there was to be reargument in June, and the only purpose I could think of now would be that it was for the purpose of giving him credit for the jail time which he did not have.

Q To get this straight, it was turned down in March?

A That is correct.

Q There was to be no circulation; it was automatically to be put on in June?

A That is right.

Q Then, why was it circulated?

A It wasn't.

Q I thought you said before that it was circulated in March?

A I'm sorry. I was in error then. At the June Sessions, General, all members of the Board voted in favor of a commutation as of September 28, 1952, which would have given him his five years' sentence or would have given him four years with his jail time.

Q Was there anything to prevent them from doing that if that was their decision in March? Was there any reason that they couldn't have done that in March?

A No.

Q They didn't have to have a reargument in June, did they?

A No.

Q Was the Attorney General present at the time that decision was arrived at?

A Evidently, because all members were present.

Q You mean at the hearing in March?

A Yes, sir.

Q What do you mean, then, when you say that the Attorney General had protested, but that you have a commitment from the three members of the Board?

A Well, evidently—I don't remember what it was. It is so long ago. It is more than five years ago.

Q But the commitment was to be effective no matter what turned up at the June meeting, wasn't it?

A Yes, to give him the six months for the jail time. They felt it was an injustice.

Q Is that all he got?

A He didn't get credit for it at the time he was sentenced. That was a Judge McDevitt sentence, I believe. He was sentenced by Harry McDevitt.

Q What was the sentence?

A 7½ to 15 years.

Q How much time had he done at the time that he was let out?

A He had done 4 years.

Q Does that sound like knocking off six months for commitment time?

A Well, you see, he was not given his six months from the date of his original sentence. In connection with the fact, I guess it was ninety days, somewhere along there.

Q Well, 3 months, 6 months, or 9 months, if that was knocked off and that was the only thing that he was going to get, he would have to do almost seven years, wouldn't he?

A No.

Q Wasn't the sentence 7½ to 15?

A Yes.

Q And you say the only effect of the Board's action was to give him the commitment time? If the commitment time was 6 months, then that means he would have had to do 7 years.

A That's right.

Q So that they gave him a whole lot more than the commitment time?

A Yes.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is all.

THE WITNESS: But I see here what they were trying to do. They were trying to bring the sentence in line with the one from Delaware County so that they would both expire at the same time.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q In effect, they knocked almost 3 years off his sentence, didn't they?

A 3½ years.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is all. I just want to see if Mr. Nissley might know how this letter to Mr. Meehan got in the Gore file.

(discussion off-the-record)

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Mr. Nissley, it has been brought out in this hearing that a copy of a letter sent by Mrs. Gore to Mr. Meehan appeared in the folder of the Board of Pardons. Now, it appears also that that letter bears a stamp, "Received, Board of Pardons," et cetera.

Do you personally recall how that letter got in the folder; or, secondly, what, if anything, would the presence of that stamp indicate?

A I have no personal recollection of the letter, because we received hundreds of letters. But if it has this stamp on it, "Received, Board of Pardons," that would indicate to me that it arrived in the course of the mails, was opened, and the girls stamped every letter that came in with that stamp. And then it was reviewed by me and placed in the file.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Could it also appear that that would be a carbon copy of an original?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: We agreed that it was; but being a carbon copy, that is what made it look odd that it happened to be in the Board of Pardons' folder.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: The reason I asked that sometimes attorneys will send information copies. Perhaps others do likewise.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That is normally the kind that would not be such. It is not addressed to the Board of Pardons. But I think Mr. Nissley has done the best he can about it. He cannot be expected to remember everything. He says he does not remember this letter, and if it had the stamp, then it would have been received in the mail. That is the best we can do about it at this point, unless someone else does know about it

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Daylight Saving Time is going into effect on Sunday. We will recess these hearings now until 10:00 o'clock, Daylight Time, Monday.

(The following transpired at side-bar)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: General, we have been very fortunate. We have been trying to get Mr. Meehan to come in on Monday. We have another case that we want to bring up that will take perhaps 15 minutes or an hour for presentation.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Which is it?

MR. KOHN: I have had trouble with that before.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You made a solemn agreement.

MR. KOHN: I didn't get any of yours. You put 15 cases in and I didn't get any one of them.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You don't want to tell me. All right. But you are violating your agreement.

MR. KOHN: So did you, General.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No, I did not. If you want to stick one case in at the last minute, you can just stick it in.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: What else do you have?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I still want to find out whether the Supreme Court will be finished this week, because Chief Justice Cohen wanted to appear personally if he could. I wanted to call him if the Supreme Court is adjourned. Otherwise, I will have his letter.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Is there anything else other than that?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I don't know of anything.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: You don't know of anything else?

(discussion off-the-record)

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Since the hearing is going to recess until Monday, and in view of the arrangement that we have that, if the Supreme Court is still sitting, Mr. Justice Cohen so sent a letter, we do not know yet whether the Supreme Court will be finished to permit him to personally appear on Monday. If they are finished, I will request him to come up; and if he doesn't come up, then, in accordance with the permission granted by the Committee, we will submit a letter by him covering the subjects as to which I would question him.

In addition to that, having reserved the right to present the testimony of Mr. Lord, we expect to have him here on Monday. However, if it is impossible, for any reason whatever, for us to have him here, we are not requesting any further extension for the purpose of getting him here.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right, General.

(End side-bar conference)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The hearing will come to order.

While waiting for exhibits which we requested early this morning to come down from the Reporter's office, Mr. Kohn, do you have another matter to take up so that we can proceed?

DAVID KOHN, recalled

THE WITNESS: I think I have been sworn.

I'd like to take this opportunity to testify in the matter of the case of Bowman Francis Kennedy in which I was counsel and in which Mr. Harner testified that I got in touch with—

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q What was the name?

A Bowman Francis Kennedy. Mr. Harner testified that I called him and asked for favorable consideration and then stated that I had asked for no commitments and he didn't make any.

The fact is I did call Mr. Harner. He and I, as I stated, had gone to school together, both he and his wife, college and law school, and then we practiced together at this Bar Association. At that time as I recall we had a real estate deal on. It took quite a few months and there were several calls between Mr. Harner and myself, back and forth.

I called Mr. Harner and told him that I felt that this case was coming up and had been up twice before and that the fellow had lost four fingers, and all the facts I told him were in the record. I felt he should look at it because the father of the applicant thought that he had the wrong lawyer, that is an attorney of the wrong political faith. And I looked at the record and I felt that the record justified some action on it. And I would like to have him look into it to see whether that was the case or whether there was something that I didn't know in the files.

Mr. Harner said he made no commitment, and I didn't ask any. It was turned down and I never talked to him about it thereafter. Those are the facts as near as I can recall them.

I felt that I should be given an opportunity to keep the record straight as to how this thing came about.

BY SENATOR SCOTT:

Q Well, did Mr. Harner make any statements when he was testifying that you didn't agree with?

A Yes, I will say, Senator Scott, that he did. He said that I asked him for favorable consideration and then in the next breath he said that he didn't give any commitment and I didn't ask for any. It was probably an inference on his part because after you know a fellow and go to school with him for thirty-one years, and just talk to him about cases, it isn't a request for favorable consideration. I never asked him for favorable consideration. I asked him to look at the facts and find out what the facts were because I just couldn't understand.

The father of the applicant felt that he had counsel in the wrong political affiliation on the case and that was borne out by a letter which I received later in which he fired me and said that he got a big wheel in Blair County.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Have you got that letter?

A No; it's in the folder.

Q Well, I gather your statement, like Senator Scott's, in the matter was pretty much the same as Mr. Harner's, but you feel that Mr. Harner added something that you felt was not present and that is that you asked favorable consideration.

A He added that, yes.

Q Well, you didn't call him for unfavorable consideration?

A No, definitely not.

Q And there is a difference between asking for favorable consideration and asking for a commitment?

A He didn't say I asked for a commitment.

Q He said that you did not ask for a commitment?

A That's right.

Q But the mere statement that you did not ask for a commitment does not mean that he said that you did not ask for favorable consideration?

A Well, I don't know, if you want to play on words, Mr. McBride.

Q Well, I'm not. Are you?

A I talked to him about the case as I stated. I told him to look at the facts and I really felt that the facts were there. The boy lost four fingers in the tag shop, and as far as I knew his institutional record was good. The district attorney did not oppose it. The judge didn't oppose it. There must have been something behind the case that I didn't know of, and I asked him to look at the case and see what the trouble was.

Q Well, everything you told him was calculated to get favorable consideration. I'm not saying that it was improper, but—

A That's your inference.

Q Weren't you making an argument—

A No, no.

Q Well, then why did you tell him about the boy losing four fingers?

A That was all in the record. I was telling him the facts in the record; that I couldn't understand why the Board hadn't acted on it favorably twice before. There must be something in there, and I asked him to look into the facts to find out what the facts were. Either I was in the wrong political affiliation or there were facts in there that I didn't know. Subsequently, I looked at the file and I found out what the troube was.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Well, Mr. Kohn, if you didn't ask for his favorable consideration directly, indirectly you wanted to see the fellow get a break?

A I wanted to see justice done. I looked at the folder later, and I don't blame the Board, I'll tell you very frankly, because there was a confidential report in there that I didn't have access to before.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Now the lawyer who succeeded you had represented him before you got into the case?

A No, I dont think before the Board. It may be. I think if you will check it you will find the very lawyer who succeeded you represented him before you did.

A It could be, General McBride, I know that.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: That's all.

(Witness excused.)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Now, General, while we are waiting here for the exhibits to come, do you have some information that we had previously requested from the Governor's office?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, if you hand me the letter that was sent in, I'll explain why this supplemental letter is sent.

Under date of March 12, I presented to the committee a letter from David Randall, Secretary to the Governor, saying, "Please be advised the recommendations of the Board of Pardons that the death sentences of Darcy, Zietz and Foster be commuted to life imprisonment were received in the Governor's office, Harrisburg, shortly after noon on Saturday, September 29, 1956, and were returned approved to the Board of Pardons from the Governor's office at 6:30 p.m. on the same day."

I was subsequently asked by the committee to get information that the committee felt was not implicit in that letter as to where it was that the Governor signed the commutation, and the time.

Now this subsequent letter therefore says, "Please be advised that the recommendation of the Board of Pardons that the death sentence of Darcy, Zietz and Foster be commuted to life imprisonment were received in the Governor's office, Harrisburg, shortly after noon on Saturday, September 29, 1956, were signed between 5:30 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. by the Governor at the Executive Mansion, and were returned approved to the Board of Pardons from the Governor's office at 6:30 p.m. on the same day. Sincerely yours, David V. Randall."

MR. KOHN: Was that the Executive Mansion in Harrisburg or at Indiantown Gap?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I don't know of any other Executive Mansion except at Harrisburg and I certainly assume that that's so, and it is my information.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well they sometimes do refer to Indiantown Gap as the Executive Mansion, too, General.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I have never understood of what importance it was. Everything I have heard indicated the Executive Mansion here in Harrisburg on Front Street. And that is what I understood the letter to mean.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: There have been some rumors to the effect and printed rumors, as a matter of fact, that the Governor on this date was out to a football game and did not receive them until sometime after he returned.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, that part is definitely answered in both letters, that he received them shortly after noon.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, it says received in the Governors' office shortly after noon, but they were not signed by the Governor until between 5:30 and 6:00 and they are not sure what time the Governor received them.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: All right, such as it is—

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: But it doesn't show what time the Governor received them.

(Short Recess.)

AUSTIN A. MEEHAN was duly sworn, examined and testified as follows:

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Do you have any questions Mr. Kohn? Do you want to question this witness first, Senator Yosko?

SENATOR YOSKO: You go ahead, Mr. Kohn.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Meehan, what is your full name?

A Austin Andred Meehan.

Q And do you have any official position in the City of Philadelphia now?

A Not now. I don't have any position with the political organiaztion, not now.

Q Did you, in May of 1953, receive a letter from Lester Gore?

A Yes. I was a representative from the 35th Ward of the Republican Central City Committee.

Q Well ,did you know Lester Gore?

A I did.

Q And you were subpoenaed here to appear in connection with a letter, a carbon copy of which is in the file of the Board of Pardons as having been received about May 21, 1953, and the original of which was evidently addressed to you? Do you recall ever having seen that letter?

A Yes, I would recall reading it.

Q Do you know how that letter got in the file of the Board of Pardons?

A No, I do not, except if I would have mailed them a copy of it.

Q Do you think that you might have mailed them a copy?

A Yes, I might have mailed them a copy. I wouldn't say that I did. I dont' generally do that ,but I might have mailed them a copy at the time. Most of these letters my son answers, and he is more efficient than I am. He is a lawyer.

MR. KOHN: Any questions, Senator Yosko?

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Mr. Meehan, after we heard the Lester Gore case. no doubt it was called to your attention in Philadelphia and you made a statement in connection with it in which you said that you talked to Members of the Pardons Board on behalf of Lester Gore. Did you talk to Members of the Pardons Board on Mr. Gore's behalf?

A Well, do you mean my conversation with Mr. Darling of the Bulletin?

Q I don't know. This story appeared in the Philadelphia Bulletin.

A Just recently?

Q Yes. The paper that I have here is dated Tuesday, April 23rd.

A Of this year?

Q Yes.

A Yes, I had that conversation.

Q With whom?

A With Mr. Darling of the Bulletin.

Q Of the Bulletin?

A Yes.

Q You are quoted as saying, "Certainly I tried to help him." You are referring to Gore?

A That's true.

Q ". . . . as I tried to help thousands of other people. I didn't think he should have gone to jail."

A That's right.

Q And then it goes on to say Meehan denied that he had much influence with Members of the Board, but he admitted he went to see them in person after receiving Mrs. Gore's letter.

A That's right.

Q Now did you go to see these Members of the Pardons Board on behalf of Mr. Gore.

A Yes sir.

Q And which Members of the Pardons Board did you talk to?

A Well ,I would say I probably talked to them all.

Q To them all?

A Yes.

Q Well, who were they at the time?

A Well, I would say at that time there was probably Livengood, Gene Smith, Truscott, I think. There was one other Member. I don't just know the particular names on the Board at that particular time.

Mr. KOHN: Lieutenant-Governor Wood.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q And Lieutenant-Governor Wood?

A Yes.

Q Did you see them individually?

A Yes, I probably did.

Q Did you see them here at Harrisburg?

A Yes sir.

Q And what did you say to them?

A Well I spoke on behalf of Lester Gore, whom I thought had been unfairly punished or over-punished. I think he had circumstances which certainly would give the Board every reason to give him some consideration. He had a mother who was dying at the time. He had a boy who was graduating. He had a daughter who was going to have a baby. And all of this happened before he got out. And he had served approximately eight and a half months of a year's sentence for perjury.

Now, of course, we had a similar case there at that particular time where fellows were convicted of perjury, found guilty and were only fined $250 and received suspended sentences. And here was a man who had served eight and a half months. Certainly he was entitled to some consideration. His family was.

Q Was it in the same case?

A It was the same city.

Q Who was Mr. Gore?

A Mr. Gore was on the Zoning Board of the City of Philadelphia. He worked in the Department of Buildings, and he was tried on another case which was outlawed by the statute of limitations and of course they didn't try him on the case he was originally supposed to be tried on. So, through some measure they got him into the perjury charge at that time.

At that time, as you know, in Philadelphia, you could pretty near get anybody to believe anything, because we had a couple of very clever young fellows there who were very good government men. They were for clean government and they still are. They were for lower taxes and they still are. But they were able to convince people.

Q And what was Mr. Gore as far as a political organization is concerned at that time?

A At that time I think Lester Gore was a Ward Leader of the 51st Ward, Philadelphia.

Q Well, Mr. Dilworth was up here last week and he testified that Mr. Gore was engaged in a racket in Philadelphia.

A That could be so, and that wouldn't make it true. Mr. Dilworth said things about me that were lies and I think today he admits to them. That wouldn't make it true because Dilworth — you don't think everything Dilworth says is true, Mr. Yosko, do you?

Q He said it under oath and I have a right to believe him.

A Well, that wouldn't make any difference with him. That wouldn't make a bit of difference. Under oath to him doesn't mean a thing.

Q Anyway, when Mr. Gore was tried, he didn't plead guilty, did he?

A No.

Q He was tried?

A That's right.

Q The jury found him guilty?

A That's right.

Q And he was sentenced to, what was it, a year? One to three years?

A One to three. He served eight and one-half months of it.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: One to three years is correct.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q And then Mr. Gore subsequently got a pardon?

A Yes, but you can't blame that on me.

Q I'm not trying to blame that on you. I'm not trying to blame anything on you.

A All right.

Q I'm just asking questions. And I am asking these questions on the basis of statements that you yourself made.

A But you are assuming that I made them. Now you don't know what statements I made, Mr. Yosko.

Q You made statements in the paper that you talked to Members of the Pardons Board on behalf of Mr. Gore and you testified that—

A I did not make any statement.

Q Now wait a minute.

A I didn't make any statements that I did any good by testifying to them because evidently everything I did, everything I used in my argument to help Mr. Gore all occurred before Mr. Gore got out. His daughter had the baby. The boy graduated, and the mother died. Then he got out. And I know when John Fine signed it, he didn't sign it for Aus Meehan. Now there is one guy I know didn't sign it for me, and I didn't ask him either. I didn't get down that low.

Q Mr. Meehan, Lester Gore subsequently got a pardon?

A Yes.

Q Did you talk to any Members of the Pardons Board when the application for the pardon was filed?

A Well, Senator, how would my memory go back that far? I would say I did everything in my power to help Mr. Gore. I talked to anybody. I would have talked to you if you were on it, to get him out of jail and get a commutation. I would have talked to anybody to help Lester Gore because I thought he was punished too severely to begin with, and I didn't think he ought to have been punished. And certainly I was more convinced after I saw a similar case under Mr. Dilworth only get fined $250 and he didn't serve any time at all. To me that ain't good justice.

Q That's a matter for the judge and we are not investigating that man.

A What?

Q That's a matter for the judge to impose the sentence; it is not a matter for us.

A Well, it's a shame we don't have different judges, I guess.

SENATOR YOSKO: That's all.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Senator Yosko, I would like to clarify a point that you asked Mr. Meehan. When you referred to Mr. Gore, the testimony of Mayor Dilworth that Mr. Gore was engaged in a racket, did you mean by that his taking alleged bribes in the performance of his duties in the Zoning Ordinance office?

SENATOR YOSKO: The issuance of zoning permits, yes.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Mr. Chairman, I must speak for the purpose of the record. I haven't heard anything other than Mayor Dilworth's opinion that Mr. Gore did take such money. I don't think it was proven in court, and I don't think it should have anything to do with this investigation.

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. Bell, I don't agree with you on that because, as I understand it — if I am wrong you can correct me — Mr. Gore was called before a Grand Jury on a Grand Jury investigation and apparently didn't tell the truth. And during the trial on perjury these facts were brought forth to indicate that he didn't tell the truth to the Grand Jury. And that's what constituted the perjury.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Well, Senator, was that in the record of our hearing last week?

REPESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Oh yes. Mr. Dilworth even mentioned the witnesses who appeared and testified as having given money to Mr. Gore directly, and some of it indirectly, if you will recall.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: I withdraw my objection, Mr. Chairman.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Mr. Meehan, when you talked to various Members of the Pardons Board on behalf of Mr. Gore, did you express any political importance to Mr. Gore's being out of jail?

A Well, I wouldn't say that I would put it on that basis because I don't think in any favor or anything I have ever done that I ever questioned a man whether he was a Democrat or Republican, or what his party was. I think the Attorney General could vouch for that.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I can vouch for that.

THE WITNESS: But I never put my services on that basis.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q So that when you approached the various Members of the Board you did so on the merits of the case and not because of any political influence that you yourself or Mr. Gore might have?

A Absolutely. Mr. Gore was never with me politically, to be honest with you.

Q The article which Mr. Yosko read which refers to your helping thousands of other people; I don't think that you intended that to mean that you had been before the Pardons Board for a thousand different people?

A No. I haven't been in Harrisburg fifty times in my life, but I never was interested in anybody that I didn't come up personally.

Q Your statement, Mr. Meehan, says, "Certainly I tried to help him, just as I have tried to help thousands of other people." These thousands of other people were not with the Pardons Board?

A No, that was people in general.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Is this the only case you spoke to Pardons Board Members about, or did you talk to them about other cases?

A Oh, I would say in my time I talked to them, maybe several times. I didn't ever make a practice of coming up here but I might have talked on several occasions for different people when their people had come to my home and asked me to say a word on their behalf. I wouldnt' know them any more than you would, Senator, but if they pleaded a good cause, and I thought they had some good in them, I would come up here and I would be up next week again, and I wouldn't hesitate to go into the Democratic Board. I would go in on the basis that I was trying to help them and their family. This would be a hell of a country if we couldn't just help people. My God, we might as well close up shop and every body hang up his hat and coat and give up.

Q In other words, if you think a case has merit and somebody comes to you for a favor and you feel that it does have merit, you would go to bat for him?

A Senator, I think if you talked to your Democratic representatives in your particular district and you talked to the people in the district where I live, I think you will find that would be their opinion too; that I never put anything I do on a political basis.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Then let me ask this question: Mr. Meehan, do you believe that simply because a man holds an office in a political party, perhaps an elected office, that precludes him from doing any service to other people in his community?

A No, I certainly do not.

Q You think that you have that right even though you would happen to be a leader?

A I think that's an obligation.

Q You think it's an obligation where you see an injustice, to speak up?

A Sure, sure.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Sheriff, how long do you last if you don't assume that obligation?

THE WITNESS: Well, even that doesn't cure all your weaknesses sometimes. Sometimes you get licked with doing all that.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Senator Fleming?

SENATOR FLEMING: No questions.

SENATOR SCOTT: No questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Mr. Meehan, you understand fully that this is not an investigation of Austin Meehan?

A I understand that.

Q All of us are trying to find the facts about the Pardons Board.

Now you say that you talked with Mr. Truscott. Was that at an open hearing?

A Well, I would say, Mr. McBride, it was probably before the hearing. I mean I wouldn't go up in front of the Bar and make my statement because I have no right, legally, or probably any other way, to do it.

Q Mr. Truscott, Mr. Wood, Mr. Livengood and Mr. Smith—when you talked to them, did you talk to them alone or while they were together—

A Yes, that's right.

Q . . . with the attempt to convince them that there was merit in the application?

A Absolutely.

Q Now you did that on a number of occasions with these self-same members of the Board of Pardons?

A That's right.

Q On any occasion, what did they say to you?

A Well none of them could give me assurance that they would let Mr. Gore out or let anybody else out whom I was interested in. All they would do is listen to my story, and as I said, with the Gore case, I pleaded on the fact that Gore's mother was dying, his boy was graduating and his daughter was expecting the stork. I pleaded on those conditions, and every one of the things happened before he got out. I don't know that I got him out. I said a word on his behalf. Now, what am I going to do if somebody says, "Well, you got Gore out?" I don't know whether I got Gore out or not. Fine turned it down. He refused to sign it, and you know I wouldn't walk from here to that spittoon to get Fine to sign any thing. You know that. And I'd tell Fine that and I never was bashful.

Q Now you knew these men, however, through politics?

A That's right.

Q And each of these men to whom you talked knew of your connection in politics in Philadelphia and with the Republican Party?

A That's right.

Q And each of these men to whom you talked knew of your connection in politics in Philadelphia and with the Republican Party?

A That's right.

Q Would you say about how many times in connection with Pardons Board applications you spoke to Members of the Board of Pardons?

A Oh, I would say maybe a half dozen times in my political career that somebody asked me.

Q In practically the same way as you have described before?

A That's right.

Q And with the attempt to convince them the case was meritorious?

A That's right. In all of the other cases I would say they had had no publicity and nobody even knew whom they were. The only case that got publicity, of course was Gore, because he was a political factor.

Q Do you feel that in these cases on which you did speak to these Members of the Board of Pardons that they did give preference because you had spoken to them?

A General, there wasn't any way I could tell that. They would say they would give it consideration.

Q How was the batting average?

A Oh, not as good as Witkin and McBride.

Q Very much better than McBride.

A You have more customers because they thought you were a very fine lawyer, and I did too. I can't understand why you took this job. I know you're too good a lawyer for this job. You know I'll say what I think. I might get thrown out, but I will say what I think.

Q You won't get thrown out of any place that I have anything to do with.

I know that you are one political leader that whenever you wanted to do a favor you never asked anything in return.

A That's right.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Mr. Meehan, you feel that, as an American citizen, you have a right to intercede on anybody's behalf that you want?

A I certainly do and I think when that system stops, we've got a bad government.

Q And do you think that you did anything improper by talking to these Members of the Pardons Board?

A I certainly do not. I certainly don't think I did anything improper. As I said, I would do it all over tomorrow.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Sheriff, you stated that Mr. Gore was not with you politically. Can you explain that?

A Well, I mean on the interfactional fights in Philadelphia he never had a tendency to lean to my side of the picture, on the side that I was on.

Q Well, those interfactional fights, were they as bitter as the Republican-Democrat fight?

A Well, they are about the same, you know, just according to how far you get into them.

Q Therefore, you had no political debt to Mr. Gore?

A None whatever.

Q In this newspaper article you stated that you helped thousands of people. Do you desire to tell us how you helped them?

A Well, of course, I don't think that would help the situation.

Q No, no, I mean a general statement.

A Some political leaders are in a better position to help people than other political leaders. I know of political leaders in Philadelphia who hardly get enough of a salary to exist themselves, so they can't help people too much. Fortunately, I have been in business all my life, my father and six brothers, and I wouldn't say we have done bad. We don't have as much money as Matt McCloskey and them guys, but we've done all right. Now I could help a few people that other little fellows couldn't help.

Q Mr. Meehan, do you think that Matt McCloskey would have the same right to ask for favorable consideration as you did?

A I do. The only thing is we don't deny it; we admit to it. You don't have to be ashamed of helping people.

Q Well, he said the same thing practically, that you have said; that as an American citizen he feels that he has a right to intervene.

A That's right.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Now my batting average, Aus, did you check up on that?

A Yes, and it's a damn good one.

Q Do you think, for instance, I had some influence with the Republican Board of Pardons?

A No. You have it good up here. (Witness indicating by pointing his head). That is the reason you won. Of course, I wouldn't put it past the law to use a little trickery too, you know.

Q How about me? Do you think I use it?

A No. you are a damned good lawyer. You can win cases on your own merit. You're a good lawyer; so is Witkin a good lawyer.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Meehan, I'd like to read you a couple of statements and then ask you a question.

I have here an article from the Evening Bulletin, March 27, 1957, in which it states:

"A contractor told the Civil Service Commission yesterday he received a construction permit after paying $10.00 to a building inspector in the Department of Licenses and Inspections.

"Richard K. Batchelor, of 3729 Grandview av., Langhorne, said he gave the money to John M. McDevitt, Sr., 66, of Delray st. near Proctor Road, Somerton, father of Councilman John M. McDevitt, Jr.

"The elder McDevitt was dismissed from the department January 3 by former Commissioner Walter S. Pytko, on charges of accepting gratuities in violation of the city charter. He is appealing the dismissal order.

"Called to the stand by Assistant City Solicitor James Lightfoot, Batchelor told of meeting McDevitt on June 5, 1956 at 4307 Palmetto av., where Batchelor's workmen were installing a retaining wall.

"Batchelor said he made the date with McDevitt in a telephone conversation the night before after McDevitt checked and found the men had no permit for the job. Batchelor said there was a misunderstanding between him and his workmen about who was to get the permit.

"The contractor said McDevitt told him he was in serious trouble for failing to get the permit.

" 'I asked if we could rectify this trouble,' Batchelor told me, 'What's is it worth to you?'

"'I took $10 from my pocket and handed it to McDevitt,' Batchelor said. He said McDevitt was sitting in his car across the street from the job at the time the money was passed.

"Batchelor said McDevitt handed him an approval slip and he took the slip to City Hall Annex and obtained a permit.

"Another witness told the Commission McDevitt harassed him after he refused to pay $50 to the inspector.

"Thomas W. Walsh, of 6226 Cardiff st., also a contractor, told the commission he met McDevitt on April 10, 1956, and asked the inspector about the type of permit that would be required.

"'McDevitt asked me what was in it for him,' Walsh said, 'I replied, $10, I guess, and he said 'that's not enough.'

"He said McDevitt asked for $50 but he refused and canceled his contract for the job.

"Walsh testified that during May, June and July of last year, McDevitt ordered his men to cease work on jobs that required no permit and he complained to various officials in the Department of Licenses and Inspections until September when he went directly to Pytko.

"He told the board Pytko inspected three jobs completed by his workmen that were condemned by McDevitt and found them in good order.

"In cross-examing Walsh, Louis F. McCabe, McDevitt's attorney asked why the contractor offered $10.

"Walsh said he considered that amount a tip because McDevitt took the time to meet him and go over the details of the work to be done.

"The hearing was adjourned after Walsh's testimony on the request of McCabe. No date was set for its resumption."

I find in the Gore case, in a letter from the district attorney's office, dated December 9, 1952, the following:

"Finally one John McDevitt, a construction superintendent who was employed to supervise the erection of a building, testified that the petitioner, referring to Gore, demanded $125.00 payment from him for the approval of a permit. When McDevitt brought the money to the petitioner, the latter refused to accept it but directed McDevitt to hand it to Winegardner."

Now my question here, Mr. Meehan, is, is the John McDevitt referred to in this news article the same John McDevitt referred to in the district attorney's letter?

A I believe it is.

Q And this perjury charge, as I understand it, was prosecuted by the Attorney General's office; not by the District Attorney's office?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: What's this?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The Gore perjury charges were prosecuted by the Attorney General's office and not by the District Attorney's office, according to the record.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Sure.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I'm sorry I did not have this information when Mayor Dilworth was here. I would have liked to have asked some questions about it.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, Mr. Dilworth wasn't in office when the Gore prosecution was prosecuted.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Mr. Dilworth made the statement, however, that he was the one who exposed Mr. Gore in the course of his political campaign.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, he said that he did it in 1947 and that Mr. Gore was prosecuted before he, Mr. Dilworth, came into office.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, I am asking whether or not the John McDevitt in the District Attorney's letter is the same John McDevitt referred to in that article.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I have no knowledge of that.

THE WITNESS: I believe he took Mr. Gore's job.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That's all, Mr. Meehan.

THE WITNESS: That's what I've been told. Now I haven't even checked that. He was supposed to have taken the job that Gore had under the new administration.

MR. KOHN: What was that?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: This is merely a hearing before the Civil Service Commission. There has been no prosecutions or anything else on it yet.

SENATOR YOSKO: That doesn't say there can't be prosecutions, and I don't see where it is material to this inquiry.

If there is anything that you want to ask Mr. Dilworth, all you have to do is get him back up here, and I'm sure he will be glad to come up.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, I referred to it only because of the fact that—

SENATOR YOSKO: Well if you want to refer to it, it is all right; but if you want to make an issue of it, if you want to carry it further, I think we should proceed.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Suppose it is one and the same man?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, then I think there is a duty that it ought to be looked into.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It is being looked into. I'd like to inquire whether it has anything to do with the Board of Pardons. If you think it would, go ahead. The case isn't even disposed of yet.

MR. KOHN: Thank you, Mr. Meehan.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Does anyone else have a question of Mr. Meehan?

(No response)

(Witness excused)

MR. KOHN: Mr. Hean, will you take the stand?

FRANK R. HEAN, Recalled

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Hean, I would like to recall the case of John Francis McShane, No. A-3145, June Session 1955. The application is for a pardon.

This defendant plead guilty to establishing a gambling place before the Honorable Ernest Harney in the County of Chester.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Could you give us the date?

MR. KOHN: December 5, 1951.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q When was that application received, Mr. Hean?

A It was filed on the seventh day of June, 1955.

Q The seventh day of June in 1955, is that right?

A That's correct.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Did you give us the sentence?

MR. KOHN: He didn't receive a sentence.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Then he wasn't in jail.

MR. KOHN: No.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q This is an application for a pardon?

A Yes, the sentence was a fine of $500 plus costs.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Now you say the application was received on June 7, 1956?

A Yes.

Q I refer you to a letter from James A. Finnegan, Secretary of the Commonwealth, dated June 7, 1955. Who is that addressed to?

A That is addressed to me.

Q And will you read the letter into the record, please.

A This letter was received on the seventh day of June 1955, from Mr. Finnegan.

Q Received by the Board of Pardons?

A Yes, to me as Secretary of the Board of Pardons.

Q That's the same day that the application was filed, is that correct?

A That is correct.

Q Will you please read the letter?

A "Believe this case to be most meritorious. You will note that this young man will be unable to obtain work as a trainer of horses in view of this conviction."

Q Now, Mr. Finnegan then wrote to you the same day you received the application and stated that he believed this was a meritorious case?

A That is correct.

Q What did he ask you to do?

A Nothing.

Q What did you do?

A I circulated the application. I think there is a note there on it, isn't there, in my handwriting?

Q On whose request did you circulate the application?

A Not the application; I mean the white copies were mailed.

Q What did you circulate, Mr. Hean?

A I sent white copies of this application to the district attorney, the judge and the probation office of Chester County.

Q Well, on June 7th, the same day you received the application and the same day you received the letter from Mr. Finnegan stating that this was a meritorious case, did you circulate the information to any of the Members of the Board of Pardons?

A It would so indicate that I did.

Q And what was the date of that letter?

A It was dated June 7, circulated either the same day or the next day, because our time stamp is June 8 for the four Members of the Board.

Q And will you read that, please, into the record?

A "The attached letters are self-explanatory with respect to the special listing of this application for hearing on Thursday, June 23rd, at the end of the day."

Q And do you know that "attached letters" referred to?

A No, I do not without looking at them.

Q Well, did you receive any letters from his attorney or anybody else?

A That I couldn't say without reference to the letters themselves. Evidently there must have been some, but what they were I could not tell you.

Q Did you read that part?

A You stopped me there before I finished it.

Q Well, finish it, please.

A Continuing this letter, "Rule V, Section (b) of the rule permits special listing upon approval of at least two Members of the Board.

"Kindly indicate your vote and return to the Board of Pardons."

Those favoring and those opposed are indicated.

Q Now who favored?

A The four Members of the Board. You want them read? Mr. Finnegan, Mr. Cohen, Miss Blatt, Mr. Furman.

MR. KOHN: Mr. Chairman, I think we'd better mark the entire folder or file of John Francis McShane as an exhibit.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right.

Correspondence file in re John Francis McShane—produced, marked for identification and received in evidence as Committee Exhibit No. 40 AJP 4/29/57

BY MR. KOHN:

Q I show you letter dated May 31, 1955, stamped as received by the Board of Pardons, June 7, 1955 from Earl Chudoff, Attorney.

That was also received by the Board of Pardons then on June 7, was it not?

A That is correct.

Q So you received three items; one was the application; one the communication of this being a meritorious case from Mr. Finnegan; and this letter received June 7th?

A That's right.

Q And it all happened the same day?

A Yes sir.

Q Now will you please read that letter from Mr. Chudoff into the record?

A This is a letter dated May 31, 1955, directed to Mr. Finnegan, Secretary of the Commonwealth, with respect to the application of John Francis McShane, signed by Earl Chudoff. It is addressed:

"Dear Jim: In accordance with our telephone conversation, I am enclosing herewith original and eight (8) copies of appication for pardon on behalf of John Francis McShane, together with my check in the amount of $15.00 to cover filing fee.

"I would appreciate it a lot if you would file this for me with the Secretary of the Board of Pardons and have same specially listed for the June List, inasmuch as this young man must have this matter disposed of prior to the summer because he cannot secure a trainer's license from the New Jersey Racing Commission because of this conviction of 1951.

"Will you kindly advise me as to what date this matter will be listed for hearing?

"Thanking you for your cooperation and with kindest personal regards, I am,

"Very truly yours,

"/s/ Earl Chudoff,
Attorney at Law."

Q So he asked for special listing on June 7, and that is the day you received the letter from Finnegan saying this was a meritorious case?

A That's correct.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: This wasn't a letter, Mr. Kohn, to be accurate about it. I mean Mr. Finnegan's was a memorandum. This was a note.

MR. KOHN: Yes.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It didn't come through the mail.

THE WITNESS. No, no, this didn't come through the mail.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q A communication from Mr. Finnegan's office to you, is that correct?

A That's right.

Q Now, on June 7, 1955, did you write to Mr. Chudoff, the same day you received the application and—

A I evidently did.

Q . . . the same day you received Mr. Finnegan's request and the same day he circulated the letter requesting special listing?

A On the same day, June 7, I wrote to Mr. Earl Chudoff, Attorney-at-law, Philadelphia: "In re: John Francis McShane.

"Dear Sir: Upon the request of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, we are circulating your request for the special hearing of this application. If the Board approves, the application will be heard on the second day, Thursday, June 23, 1955, at the end of the list. As promptly as I receive an approval I will inform you.

/S/ "Frank R. Hean, Secretary."

Q Then, on June 8th, did you send him another letter?

A I don't know, did I?

Q I'm afraid you did.

A I will read the letter. On June 8th, I wrote him, addressing it to Mr. Chudoff direct:

"Dear Sir: We refer you to our letter of the 7th, regarding the above named, and wish to advise you that the Board has approved your request and we are, therefore, today listing the application for special hearing at the end of the second day, Thursday, June 23, 1955.

"The case will be number 98-A on the calendar.

"Yours very truly."

Q Now what reasons were given for a special listing at that time?

A The memorandum dated June 7, 1955, which reads, 'the attached letters are self-explanatory with respect to the special listing of this application for hearing on Thursday, June 23rd, at the end of the day."

Q Was there any urgency about this case except the fact that Mr. Finnegan thought it was meritorious?

A Well, the man has a job, has been out of jail, and has been in no trouble since 1951. He had a job as a trainer with the Racing Commission of New Jersey, I understand.

Q Where did you get that understanding? There is nothing in the record on it?

A Well, there is nothing in the record, Mr. Kohn, no, but I do know some things such as—oh, a variety of things if you ask me about them.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Was that not stated in Chudoff's letter?

A Well, yes, but he asked me whether I knew it as a fact. That, of course, I do know.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Everybody knows the rainy season is during the summer in New Jersey.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Do you know what was discussed between them on the telephone?

A No, I don't know that.

Q You don't know what was discussed between Chudoff and Mr. Finnegan on the telephone?

A No, I do not.

Q You don't know what was discussed between Finnegan and Chudoff that prompted Finnegan to write the letter that this was a meritorious case?

A I don't know.

Q Chudoff, at this time, was a Member of Congress from Philadelphia, was he not?

A I can't answer that because I don't know.

Q Did you discuss this case since last week with anyone?

A No, I haven't, not personally.

Q You have had no discussion with Mr. Finnegan or the Attorney General?

A No sir. He called me to ask where the McShane file was and I said you had it, and that was the last of the discussion, if you call that a discussion.

Q You had no discussion of it?

A No. If I had, I'd tell you.

Q Now, did you write to the judge or the district attorney about this case?

A I sent the white application, if you are familiar with about what I speak, to three persons; the district attorney, the judge and the probation officer of Chester County.

Q Did you request an immediate reply to that?

A I can't recall that I did. It was a form letter which does ask for a reply promptly.

Q Are there any copies of that in the files?

A Do you mean of the letter?

Q Yes.

A No, not of the form letter.

Q You have a notation there on one of these letters that are being introduced into evidene to contact the D. A.

A That's my handwriting.

Q That was put on the letter on June 7th?

A June 7th or 8th whatever—I can't tell you the date I put that note on.

Q Well, on ordinary cases would you receive that prompt action?

A Well, I can answer it this way. It struck me that the urgency of this application for a pardon was so that the man could earn a livelihood. So that there was an urgency about it.

Q Was there anything in the file that said he was not training horses in Pennsylvania at this time?

A Well, he has a statement here under oath that he is a horse trainer: "I have learned to become a trainer of race horses, which I expect to follow as my occupation the rest of my life."

Q Well, doesn't anything in the record show that at that time he was already training horses?

A Well, he has here that "on the 5th of December I became associated with Jack Alexander who operates Ajax Stables."

Q Is there a letter in the file from Jack Alexander?

A You're just showing it to me now. I never saw it before.

Q You never saw it before?

A Well, I mean by that I never saw it before this moment.

Q You mean you never saw that letter before?

A No, I never saw it before.

Q It is in your file.

A Well, then it must have been there. I don't recall ever seeing it.

Q What's the date on that?

A That's May 14, 1955.

Q And whom is it addressed to?

A To whom it may concern.

Q And what did he say abou training horses at that time?

A "Mr. John F. McShane has had one of my fillies for the past year, and I have found him to be honest and trustworthy in all of his dealings with me."

Q So he was training horses at that time?

A That's right.

Q And you received a letter—

A Well now, listen, let me finish this letter: "I am certain that he would be reliable of any trusts placed upon him now or in the future, and I am most anxious to re-employ him as my trainer as soon as his license can be re-issued by the Racing Commission." That was signed by Jack Alexander.

Q And that's what made the matter urgent in your estimation; that all this was done after the 7th?

A You are asking my personal opinion? Yes, I do.

Q Did you receive a letter from S. Paul Ferraris, dated May 17, 1955?

A This is dated May 17, 1955, addressed "To Whom it May Concern:

"Mr. John F. McShane has been in my employ all winter training my horses on the farm, and I have always found him to be honest and trustworthy in all my dealings with him. I would appreciate any help given to him in his effort to receive his license from the Racing Commission, as I am most anxious to have him continue training my horses.

"I would not hesitate to recommend him to any trustworthy job."

/S/ S. Paul Ferraris."

Q All right. Now will you give us the date of his conviction?

A According to the record here, it was on the 5th day of December, 1951, in the Quarter Sessions Court of Chester County.

Q And the date of this application?

A The date of this application is June 7, 1955.

Q Nineteen fifty-five.

A Yes.

Q So that it was about a little less than four years between the time of his conviction and the time of the application?

A Just about, that is correct.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q What was he convicted of?

A Establishing a gambling place.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Tell us whether or not the district attorney's office opposed this application.

A On that again I would refer to a letter.

I have a letter dated June 13, 1955, from the district attorney's office in Chester County. Do you want me to read it? Do you want me to read the entire letter?

Q Yes.

A It is addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Pardons:

"Dear Mr. Hean:

"I have your letter enclosing the application for pardon of John Francis McShane.

"I have checked with the Chief of Police of West Chester about this matter and he informs me that for a period of four months prior to his arrest on March 10, 1951, he had complaints that McShane was operating a bookmaking establishment. At the time of the raid they confiscated boards which were used in the operation of the bookmaking establishment which were set up on the wall in one of the rooms. According to the Chief of Police, the establishment had all the earmarks of a bookmaking place.

"James Paglia who was arrested as one of the operators, was employed by McShane to run the business for him.

"This office opposes the application.

/S/ "Joseph B. McKeone,
District Attorney."

Q Well, did you receive a letter from the judge in the case?

A I evidently did. It was addressed to the Board of Pardons and dated June 9th:

"Re: Application of John Francis McShane.

"Gentlemen: In reply to your communication of June 8, 1955, I have no comment to make that would be of any assistance to the Board in its determination of the application.

/S/ "Ernest Harvey."

Mr. Harvey was a judge of the Chester County Court.

Q And did you receive a parole office investigation report on June 16, 1955?

A It would so appear, Mr. Kohn.

Q And that was exactly nine days after the application was filed?

A That is correct.

Q I refer you to paragraph 17 of the applicant's application and I ask you to read that into the record, please.

A Section 17. The question is: "Why do you believe your application should be granted?"

The applicant made this reply: "Since December 5, 1951, I have had no difficulty whatsoever. I have become associated with Jack N. Alexander, who operates the Ajax Stables, Hotel Majestic, Broad Street and Girard Avenue, Philadelphia, and S. Paul Ferraris, who operates the Liz-Tree Stable, Paoli Inn, Paoli, Pa. I have learned to become a trainer of race horses, which I expect to follow as my occupation for the rest of my life. I have five children and because of my conviction of establishing a gambling place in Chester County, Pennsylvania, on December 5, 1951, the State of New Jersey refuses to give me a trainer's license and it is therefore impossible for me to follow my occupation, and in turn support my children. I have learned my lesson and will never again be involved in an illegal enterprise as long as I live."

Q Will you read item 21 of the Parole Board report into the record on the question of whether or not he was supporting or living with his children as he alleged in the application?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Did you say he was living with them?

MR. KOHN: Well, he —

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It doesn't indicate that this man said that he was living with them.

MR. KOHN: Well, supporting them. I won't quibble.

THE WITNESS: The confidential report which Mr. Kohn handed me, Item 21; the agent says Item 21 is incorrect.

The children are as follows: Eleanore Ann McShane, sixteen years of age; Michael McShane, fifteen years of age; John McShane, thirteen years of age; and are not dependent upon the applicant, according to the applicant's first wife and the mother of these children, Mrs. Margaret Collins McShane, age 43, residing at 103 North Darlington Street, West Chester, Pa., who denies this statement.

Mrs. McShane advised the agent on June 15, 1955 in a personal interview that applicant has not supported these children for more than nine years. She said she could use some help in their support at this time, as the children are now attending St. Agnes Catholic High School and the cost of maintaining them properly has become a great problem. Mrs. Margaret McShane related that applicant's whereabouts are unknown to her and she wishes to cause him no further trouble, but would accept support from him if he was able to provide some support for the children. Applican't wife has maintained and supported the children and the home since she separated from and divorced applicant in 1946, by working as an office clerk with the Nachman Corporation, 206 E. Market Street, West Chester, Pennsylvania.

Q Now have you been aware of this applicant's previous record, from the application?

A According to the applicant's statement, in February 1951, charge of disorderly conduct, found guilty by the burgess and fined $25 and costs; October of 1951, West Chester, disorderly conduct, found guilty by the burgess and fined $10 and costs; December 5, 1951, which is the present case, West Chester, establishing a gambling place, plead guilty, fined $500 and costs.

Q Now I ask you in addition to that, what the Parole Board said in regard to a record of his on September 22, 1950, which he does not include in his application. Will you read that?

A It says the applicant has a previous record. "Item 16, which I just read, is incomplete; add the following: 9-22-50, West Goshen Township, Chester County, Pennsylvania, applicant and Ann McCuster being found and observed in a parked auto in private driveway, both being found in an indecent condition (nude). They were charged with Disorderly Conduct before the Justice of the Peace, W. C. Arnold and each fined $15 and costs."

Q Now, what does the Parole Board say about this man's reputation, the applicant's?

A "Reputation of the applicant, poor, as applicant was known as a professional gambler. His associates were well-known police characters, as indicated in personal interviews with the police and several authorities of Chester County, Pennsylvania."

Q And when Mr. Finnegan said this was meritorious application, he didn't yet have the Parole Board report did he?

A Oh, he could not have, no sir.

Q Now I refer you further to the confidential Parole Board report under their statement in Item 15-a. Will you read that into the record; I mean where they refer to 15-a in the application?

A The applicant states briefly the details of the crime. Now the Parole Board makes this report: "Item 15-a is incorrect as to the applicant's statement that a dice game was in progress on a pool table in his establishment on March 10, 1951 when raided by the police. This dice game was in progress in an extravagantly furnished gambling room. The game was being played on a regular gambler's crap table. Applicant also neglects to mention that the house look-out man was surprised by the police before he could warn the players in this game that the place was being raided. The applicant also fails to mention that when questioned by the police he admitted that he was the owner of the establishment and that the two accomplices operating this game were employed by him. There was no information available that the applicant was in Atlantic City, New Jersey when this establishment was raided or that the district attorney had informed applicant that he had a warrant for the applicant's arrest." End of the statement.

Q Will you look at the parole report and see whether at any time the parole agent was able to locate either his employers and interview them or the applicant? Look at the first page.

A Well, yes. I was looking at what we have. The agent was unable to locate the home, as he apparently resides in Rumson, New Jersey. As to employment, none submitted. The agent was unable to locate applicant's business associates.

Q So he wasn't able to locate either the applicant to interview or the associates who wrote the letter there.

There was no contact made with the Ajax Stables or any other man there, was there?

A Evidently not.

Q Now did you write this recommendation for the Board of Pardons?

A No doubt I did.

Q Would you look at it?

A Yes sir.

Q And in there did you make the statement recommending this pardon?

A I wrote it.

Q And was it approved by Herbert B. Cohen, Genevieve Blatt and James A. Finnegan?

A It was.

Q And in that does it state that the Board believes that the applicant who has made a series of attempts to rehabilitate himself in every way to lead a law-abiding life with honest employment is entitled to every consideration?

A If that was so stated, it was included.

Q Is that in there?

A Let me look.

The employer of the applicant states that he has found the applicant to be honest and trustworthy; that he is most anxious to re-employ the man.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Wouldn't you want the whole thing read?

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Yes, read the whole recommendation, if you will.

A "This applicant is 41 years of age. He had practically no prior criminal record, having been arrested for disorderly conduct and gambling, and fined. His present offense consists of operating and maintaining a gambling place, for which offense he was fined $500 and costs.

"This offense occurred in December of 1951. Since that time he has become associated with the Ajax Stables as a trainer of horses. He is now in New Jersey as a trainer. The New Jersey law requires that employes or persons connected with racing in that State be free from any criminal record.

"The trial judge, the Honorable Ernest Harney, stated to the Board that he had no comment to make that would be of any assistance to the Board in the determination of the application. The district attorney's office opposed the granting of a pardon. The Pennsylvania Board of Parole reviewed the case for the Board and discloses that since 1951 the applicant has conducted himself properly and has not been involved in any offenses. The Board believes that this applicant who has made a serious attempt to rehabiltate himself in every way, will live a law-abiding life, with honest employment, is entitled to every consideration.

"The employer of the applicant, Jack N. Alexander, states that he has found the applicant to be honest and trustworthy and that he is most anxious to re-employ the applicant as a trainer as soon as his license can be reissued by the Racing Commission of New Jersey.

"In view of all the above facts, the Board recommends that a pardon be granted to the applicant."

Q Mr. Furman dissented?

A Yes.

Q Upon what did you base the fact that presently he had a good reputation when the Parole Board said he didn't have and every indication was that his statements in his application were, according to the Parole Board, incorrect.

A The agent, Mr. Wynkoop, was talking about this man when he was in West Chester. Mr. Wynkoop is the agent.

Q Is this something that's in the record or is this something he told you?

A No, right in here. I am reading this in his interviews with the police and civil authorities of West Chester County, which undoubtedly is the reputation he maintained up until 1951 when he was arrested.

Q Well, what was his reputation after that?

A I don't know other than that he has behaved himself, and we have letters from two trustworthy gentlemen.

Q Who were in the same racing business?

A Mr. Ferraris and Mr. Alexander both say that he is most trustworthy and that he is honest and that he has been in their employ and has done a good job for them.

Q Would you expect an employer to say anything else?

A Some do, yes sir.

Q Did you or Mr. Finnegan or any member of the Board send a parole agent down there to interview him?

A I know I didn't.

Q Didn't the parole report show that they couldn't get to see either one of these men?

A That's inferred there, but probably they didn't try very hard.

Q Well, suppose they didn't try very hard; why didn't you or the Board try very hard before?

A Well now, really, Dave, we haven't any facilities to go around into New Jersey and run down something like that.

Q How do you know he is trustworthy?

A Well, I judge a man is trustworthy when two persons of reputation so state, and I am acquainted with the name of Alexander. I don't know him personally.

Q Who is he?

A He runs the Ajax Stables.

Q What does he do beside running the Ajax Stables?

A Well, that's his business. He is a trainer of horses and runs them on the tracks around the country.

Q He does?

A Yes.

Q Then you are familiar with him?

A I know who he is; I know of him.

Q What does he do beside that?

A I don't know what he does besides that.

Q Where are his stables located?

A His stable is located in Jersey and he has some horses in training up near Paoli.

Q He could have been in the racing racket?

A He is in the racing business That's his business, racing horses.

Q I say he could have been with this fellow at the time the applicant got in trouble.

A Your guess is as good as mine.

Q I think it is too.

A Well, you may have it; I don't know.

Q And neither you nor the Board checked on that, did you?

A We have no facilities for that.

Q And when did you receive those letters to the Board of Pardons?

A You mean from Mr. Alexander?

Q Yes.

A They were dated May 14th, but I have no stamp on as to when they came into my personal possession.

Q You took those for granted? They were addressed to whom it may concern, and you took it for granted they were reliable people?

A I do. I know Alexander is reliable.

Q Well, why weren't they stamped when they came into my possession?

A I can't answer that because they may have been a part of this general letter here that you see, and that had a stamp on it.

Q That had a stamp on it. Now when you were talking about that, you were attempting to imply that those two letters were in the file at the time that Mr. Finnegan wrote his letter about this being a meritorious case. Isn't that what you are trying to imply?

A Now, let me get the question straight, Dave. You mean that these two letters were in my file—

Q I am asking you whether they were.

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. Kohn, you have carried this just about as far as I can stand it. Now—

MR. KOHN: As far as what?

SENATOR YOSKO: Now, just a minute.

MR. KOHN: I didn't hear you.

SENATOR YOSKO: Let's get the record straight. When Mr. Finnegan, as I understand it, said that this was a meritorious case, he was talking then—

MR. KOHN: Mr. Finnegan is here.

SENATOR YOSKO: If he is here, call him.

MR. KOHN: I am going to call him.

SENATOR YOSKO: When he said it was a meritorious case, he was referring to the approval of the application for the hearing. Isn't that correct?

MR. KOHN: Are you saying that? I don't know. You are making the statement. I don't know whether it is true or not.

SENATOR YOSKO: Well, he got a letter from Mr. Chudoff asking that the application be filed; and following the receipt of the application he wrote the memorandum, didn't he?

MR. KOHN: I don't know.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Saying that it was a meritorious case and it ought to be listed. Don't say you don't know, because you do.

MR. KOHN: You talk to Mr. Finnegan, I don't know what he said.

SENATOR YOSKO: Well, we will talk to Mr. Finnegan.

MR. KOHN: I don't know what he said.

SENATOR YOSKO: In so far as the word "meritorious" is concerned, it applies to the application for a special hearing.

MR. KOHN: I don't know that.

SENATOR YOSKO: You know that by the sequence of events there.

MR. KOHN: Well, I am not arguing there.

SENATOR YOSKO: You can ask any question that you want but you seem to delve on the word "meritorious;" and as far as meritorious is concerned, he was referring to the application for the special hearing.

MR. KOHN: Or to his conversation with Chudoff, which?

SENATOR YOSKO: Either or both.

MR. KOHN: All right.

SENATOR YOSKO: You are talking about a telephone conversation. It says, confirming our telephone conversation, in the letter. And then the letter comes; and after the letter comes, he sends it over to the Secretary of the Board. He sends the application and the letter to the Secretary of the Board, and he says he believed it was a meritorious case and that the case should be listed for special hearing.

MR. KOHN: Well now, the only question in my mind is what he based his opinion on as to what was a meritorious application.

SENATOR YOSKO: As far as hearing it is concerned, if you want to confine it to that, that is fine.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: There is nothing in here to indicate any of that stuff.

SENATOR YOSKO: Yes, there is.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The record will speak for itself.

SENATOR YOSKO: The series of events indictate that.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: All right, then let the record speak for itself.

SENATOR YOSKO: Well, if you are going to let the record speak for itself, then why all the questioning? If he can answer, I can answer.

CHAIRMAN TOMUKINS: This whole thing—

MR. KOHN: If you would like to testify, I would like to question you.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: I want to state this, that I think both Mr. Kohn and Mr. Yosko are presenting conclusions that might be drawn from the evidence. Now we have a man here who can testify and state what he intended so why should we argue about it?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: He is right. I agree with him one hundred percent.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The point is, why ask Mr. Hean? I think that is the whole question.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: That is right. We should refrain from placing any interpretation on it until we find out from the man who made it.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Hean, do you know when these letters were put into evidence?

A I cannot give you the time because they are not time stamped.

Q But after the Board heard this case, did they act on it promptly?

A Rather promptly, yes.

Q Back in the same session?

A Yes, at the executive session that followed the hearing.

Q In spite of the fact that the Parole Board refuted everything that was in the application, they acted on it and acted favorably, is that right?

A Well, I am not going to the extent that the Parole Board—

Q Did they recommend it?

A The Parole Board? We are not following the recommendation of the Parole Board, or of the judge or the district attorney. I think I am clear in saying that it is an independent constitutional board, and further, that every time we ever commute a sentence we are doing it in derogation of the court. You can abolish pardon and parole, and then the court sentences stand, but civilization has indicated ever since its dawn that there are cases where men should be sentenced, commuted and pardoned. We have followed the arm of sovereignty of which we are a part.

Q And so the fact remains that the Parole Board could give you no information that you wanted?

A Not to a large extent.

Q To what extent did you give favorable consideration?

A I felt that this was on account of the brief time that Mr. Wynkoop had to search. He did a splendid job with the time element involved, and he gave us the record up to 1951.

Q That was a special job you gave him on request, wasn't it?

A That would be, yes, naturally.

Q Did Governor Furman dissent in that—

A It so indicated.

Q . . . commutation?

A It so indicated.

Q Did he follow the Parole Board's recommendation?

A Well, I do not know.

Q Well, will you read it into the record?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I wonder whether or not Governor Furman filed a written dissent and if so, what was his dissent?

THE WITNESS: He did. I have a photostatic copy of it here.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Let us have it in the record.

THE WITNESS: Dissent, dated July 21, 1955.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q When was that case heard, Mr. Hean?

A It was heard around about the 23rd of June, 1955.

Q What was the date of the dissent?

A July 21, about a month later.

"I opposed this application for pardon at this time as being premature. The applicant was convicted on December 5, 1951, less than four years ago. The trial judge did not express a favorable opinion and the district attorney opposed his pardon. The investigation by the Board of Parole for the Board of Pardons reveals many incorrect statements in this application. For instance, this statement concerning the support of his children, which his wife denies. The applicant's wife divorced him in 1946 and has maintained and supported the children since then without any help from him. Almost every statement in his application is incorrect according to this report. Therefore. I strongly oppose this pardon at this time.

/s/ "Roy E. Furman."

Q The Governor did approve it, did he not?

A I believe so.

Q On the 27th day of July 1955; is that correct?

A That is correct, Dave.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: What was that date?

THE WITNESS: Twenty-seventh day of July, 1955.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Mr. Hean, the offense which Mr. McShane committed—is it also punishable by a jail sentence in addition to a fine?

A I believe it is, yes sir.

Q Did the judge give Mr. McShane a jail sentence?

A No sir, he gave him a fine.

Q Just gave him a fine?

A Five hundred dollars and costs.

Q When was this case first called to your attention as far as the file is concerned?

A June 7th of 1955.

Q And was that through the memorandum that was sent to you by Mr. Finnegan?

A That is correct.

Q And what is the date of Mr. Chudoff's letter?

A Mr. Chudoff's letter was dated May 31, 1955, directed to Mr. Finnegan.

Q And what is the date of Mr. Finnegan's memorandum?

A To me? It was dated June 7, 1955.

Q And when Mr. Finnegan sent that memorandum to you, was it in reference to the application for the special hearing?

A Oh no, it was for the special listing only.

Q For a special listing?

A That is right. It had nothing to do with the merits.

Q And when he said that the case was a meritorious one, was he referring to the merits of the case or to the application?

A He was referring to the merits of placing this on a special listing for the June Session.

(Discussion off the record.)

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I think that Mr. Finnegan, being present, should explain why he believed this case to be most meritorious. To ask this witness to tell us what Mr. Finnegan meant I think is out of order.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q And Mr. McShane, in the application and the letter from Mr. Chudoff, said that he had a chance to get a job.

A That is correct.

Q And is there a certification in the file stating that he could get a job?

A We have two letters which I read into the testimony from Mr. Alexander and Mr. Ferraris. Alexander, of the Ajax Stables, particularly wanted him as a trainer, wanted him to get the license so he could continue to work with the Ajax Stables.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Who filed the application, Mr. Hean?

A I just didn't hear you.

Q Who filed the application with the Board of Pardons?

A Well, it was sent down from Mr. Finnegan's office. Earl Chudoff, I believe—

Q That is right. The letter is here.

A . . . . was the attorney for the applicant.

Q In other words, Chudoff sent the letter and the application to Mr. Finnegan and then Mr. Finnegan sent down the application together with the letter?

A That is correct, and the $15 filing fee.

Q Now do you know if Ferraris or Alexander, either one of them or both, had been convicted of a gambling violation?

A That I would not know.

Q You made no check on that?

A No sir.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Could they have a training license in New Jersey if they had been convicted?

A I understand that no person can operate in New Jersey—

Q Apparently he is.

A . . . who has a criminal record, in the racing field. That is my understanding of the law, from a conversation.

Q Do you know of any association in America tighter than the Thorobred Racing Association, on people who own and operate and run horses at their tracks?

A My familiarity with racing is a little two dollar bet at the mutual window, and that is about the limit of it.

MR. KOHN: You are not qualified?

THE WITNESS: I am not qualified.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Now is there anything in the record to show that this man had been in trouble in this space of three and one-half to four years?

A Nothing in the record, absolutely. And nothing in the confidential report of the parole agent would indicate that the man had done anything illegal in that period of time, in the last three and one-half or four years.

Q From your experience is it unusual where a man has appeared in a court of record for the first time in his life, is fined and no prison sentence imposed, and then is not arrested for three and one-half or four years, to be pardoned? Is there anything unusual about that?

A There is nothing unusual about it.

Q Particularly where he does say he needs the pardon in order to earn a living?

A That is correct.

Q Now is there anything in that record which says that he says he did support his children?

A His application states this: ". . . impossible for me to follow my occupation, and in turn, support my children . . ."

Q And he indicates he wants to support them in the future. Now did anybody appear before the Board of Pardons and say that he did or did not support his children?

A I do not have the minutes of my meeting here. I mean my book, you know. I have no recollection of that, General.

Q The only thing in the record so far, that is, in this pink record that you are talking about, is the statement made by his divorced wife saying that he didn't support his children?

A That is correct.

MR. KOHN: But that she would like to have him do so.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Yes, but she did not appear before the Board of Pardons. It is his word against hers. You say that it is a false statement?

MR. KOHN: I am saying what the parole man said.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Well, how can the parole man or anybody else say, because one person says something and does not face the other one, that it is a false statement?

MR. KOHN: If you don't want to believe the Parole Board, I don't care.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You criticized the Parole Board.

CHAIRMAN TOMKINS: That is the same thing that happens in all other cases, too, General.

MR. KOHN: If you don't want to believe the parole agent, all right.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: If you want to make exception of the parole agent—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No, I do not, not at all. But to be fair about it, there is only a statement allegedly made by his divorced wife. You do not know the relationship between them at that time. She says he had not supported his children. The only thing he says is that he wants a pardon so he can work to support his children.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: There is no conflict.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: There is no conflict at all. Maybe he would not support his children; I do not know whether he got his license or not. It is not a false statement under any view of the case.

SENATOR YOSKO: I see no difference in this from the Gore case. The district attorney and the judge opposed his pardon.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I was wondering why this was brought up so high.

SENATOR YOSKO: Aus Meehan was up here, and he says that he had a right, as an American citizen, to intercede on behalf of an applicant if it indicated merit. And Mr. Chudoff did no more than that.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Mr. Chudoff is representing the applicant, and he is still an American citizen.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE And did use any Congressional stationery or anything else. He was writing a letter as this man's counsel.

THE WITNESS: My notes taken at the hearing would indicate that no one was there to oppose. I have notes here with comments of the judge and the district attorney, on what you have heard here.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q He paid a $500 fee to Chudoff, didn't he?

A Mr. Chudoff got $500, yes sir.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Is that a customary fee in cases like this?

A Well, that is sort of difficult to answer. The fees have gone up tremendously in the last few years like the price of bread and the general rise of living in the last few years under the present Administration. Five hundred is a pretty good fee, but they have gone up. I have heard them as high as three thousand dollars.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Hean, where in the record is there information to the effect that this man had prospects of a job in New Jersey, and that the New Jersey law requires him to be free of any of these offenses in order to be able to get a job?

A Answering the question in reverse, there is nothing in the record to show a citation of the New Jersey Racing Commission law, but general knowledge, which many of us hold is that such a law exists.

Q Was that pointed out to the Board at the time of the hearing?

A My recollection would not go back that far. But knowing that the Board is made up of intelligent persons who are well acquainted with the general practices, I would say that they would know about it.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Isn't it so stated in one of the letters and in the application somewhere?

A Yes.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, he has a job to train horses, but it doesn't say in the State of New Jersey.

SENATOR YOSKO: Sure it does.

THE WITNESS: Yes, he lives in Rumson, New Jersey. Mr. Alexander who runs the big Ajax Stables says he wants him as a trainer and cannot employe him until his license is issued by the Racing Commission.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Where did you say the Ajax Stables were?

A The Ajax Stables?

Q Yes, where are they?

A Well, the Ajax Stables have, I understand one in New Jersey and one in Pennsylvana, around Paoli.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q The Ajax Stables, according to a letter there, are in Philadelphia.

A No, that is the office, at the Hotel Majestic. He does not train horses in the Majestic Hotel.

MR. KOHN: No further questions.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Have you any further question?

SENATOR YOSKO: I have none.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Mr. Hean, the conflict referred to this morning, for example, a conflict as to the record, the Parole Board did not point out that anything he had said in his application was incorrect. They merely added something in there which was not already in. They did not contradict anything that he put in himself.

A Well, I cannot just go along with you on that. They did say it was incorrect with respect to the description of the crime for which he was arrested and fined $500.

Q Well, he plead guilty to the crime. He plead guilty of that?

A Yes, and the other allegation of the report is they went off on the idea that his children, Eleanor, Michael and Joan, young girls and a young man, were in need of support, when at no time in his application did he say that he was supporting them. He said that he wanted employment so that he could support them.

Q Yes, now didn't the wife also tell the Board that she would not stand in the way of anything that could possibly get her that help and support? Isn't that part of the report, too?

A She wishes to cause him no further trouble, but will accept support from him if he was able to provide some support for the children.

Q Yes, and doesn't that indicate that she wanted him to have a job so that he could help to support them?

A That is a fair inference, and if she did not she could have gone in and got a support order for the children.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS. Well, that is all supposition. We do not know whether he supported them or not.

THE WITNESS: No, it is not in the record. She never has asked for a support order and got one.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: She said she never received support during those years.

THE WITNESS: That is what she said.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Now whether he has supported them since that time or not is supposition.

(Discussion off the record.)

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q But so far as actual conflict is concerned, is there anything in his application which the Parole Board said was wrong?

A There was an interpretation of the word "support" in which they say he has not supported them and he at no time said he did, but he said he wanted a job so that he could.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: That is all.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That is all, Mr. Hean.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q As to the point as to whether or not a man is eligible for license, will you read page 419 of the statement made by Mr. Chudoff, his counsel, in the public hearing, from line 8 to line 13.

A Lines 8 to 13 on the transcript of the hearings: "Last year the New York State Racing Commission set up a resolution which provided that anyone convicted of a crime other than by summary conviction shall not be entitled to a license as a trainer or in any other honor or in any way connected with any of the tracks operated by the New Jersey State Racing Commission."

So, Mr. McShane then found himself out of business.

Q Now without reading it all, does he say at page 420, that he cannot work in the summertime when the New Jersey track operates?

A He so states.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I have no further questions.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Did Mr. Chudoff also say right now he is in Philadelphia working for the Ajax Stables, not as a trainer?

A That is right.

Q So he was working?

A Yes. He is an attendant or something, but he wants a license to train.

Q He was working, was he not?

A Yes.

MR. KOHN: That is all.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That is all, Mr. Hean.

(Witness excused.)

JAMES A. FINNEGAN, Recalled

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Finnegan, you have been sworn?
A Yes, I have.
Q You are familiar with this case, now, I believe.
A Just what I have heard about it this morning in the short time I have been here.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Were you here for the whole thing?
A No, I was not.

BY MR. KOHN:

The testimony, I think, reveals that Mr. Chudoff called you on the phone and sent you a letter which was in the files together with the application and a check for $15.

A Apparently he did from this letter he has written on his legal stationery.

Q Yes, you received that and then sent it to the Board of Pardons which received it on June 7, 1955, is that correct?

A That is right.

Q You sent it with the application which was evidently with the letter which says eight copies of the application for pardon and a $15 filing fee, is that correct?

A That is right.

Q Now about the same time, I think the testimony shows, if I might point this out to you, on June 7, 1955 you wrote the note to Mr. Hean?

A That is right.

Q It has been entered in Exhibit No. 40, and a special listing was granted by a circulatory letter on the same day, is that correct?

A That is correct.

Q Now the question I would like to ask you is, how you arrived at the conclusion that you believed this case to be a most meritorious one?

A Well, I think that any time a man is denied an opportunity to earn a livelihood because of some impediment placed in his way, I think it is a meritorious case. This case, from the application, indicated that he had never served any time in jail, that the judges of Chester County assumed that the offense was not serious enough to jail him and that he was interested in providing support for his wife and children if he had the opportunity, and that he needed the pardon to work for the New Jersey race tracks. This indicated to me that there was considerable merit in the case.

Q And that was before the case was heard?

A That is true. It was based on the information contained in the application.

Q Of course, that is all the information you had at that time outside of what Mr. Chudoff might have given you?

A Well, Mr. Chudoff apparently said to me on the phone that this man was in the business of training race horses, and that, of course, if the case was not heard in June, since we do not sit in July and August, the possibilities for the opportunity of him—

Q Are you relating Mr. Chudoff's conversation to me now?

A To the best of my recollection. Then he would be denied the opportunity of earning a livelihood in New Jersey.

Q Do you feel in your consideration that is important enough to give the matter a special listing and disregard the statements of your own Parole Board Investigator that he had not supported his family, had not contributed when he was working?

A Well, I think we will have to take this chronologically, Mr. Kohn. Number one, this was the application that was submitted to me.

Q At that time do you know whether Mr. Chudoff said he was working or not working?

A That he was working as a trainer.

Q You say Mr. Chudoff said he was working?

A To the best of my recollection.

Q In Philadelphia, is that not right?

A No, no, that he was training in Rumson, New Jersey, I believe.

Q Didn't Mr. Alexander of Ajax Stables say that McShane was working during that past year and already training horses?

A Yes, but you do not train horses in Philadelphia. There is no place to train them.

Q I wouldn't know that.

A I think you cannot train horses on streets, I mean, you must have a track. To the best of my knowledge, there are no tracks in Philadelphia.

Q He was training them in New Jersey at that time?

A This letter here is the office of the Ajax Stables, which is located at Hotel Majestic, Broad and Girard Avenue.

Q Is it Ajax or Aljax?

A Ajax.

Q Are you familiar with Mr. Jack Alexander? Do you know him?

A No, I do not.

Q Do you know the other man, Ferraris?

A Ferraris? That is a new name to me. Who is Mr. Ferraris?

Q Of the Paoli Inn?

A No, I do not.

Q You do not know whether either one of them has any criminal record?

Q Well, I would say that they definitely do not have criminal records because if they are racing horses at tracks which are under the protection of the Thoroughbred Racing Association, then they are people of considerable substance and people of good reputation.

Q That is what you based your decision on rather than the statements of the Parole Board in regard to this man's previous reputation?

A I think we based them on a whole lot. Now are you referring to the reason for my memo to Mr. Hean or are you referring to the decision that was reached?

Q Well, you did not get those letters from the Ajax Stables and from Mr. Ferraris until the day of the hearing?

A That is right.

Q Is that not correct?

A Yes.

Q So I mean anything you said about the case being meritorious would have been based on Mr. Chudoff's comments to you, plus the statements in the application?

A Plus what it said in the application, that he had never served any time in jail, that the judges of the particular courts where he was guilty of disorderly conduct and establishing a gambling place, did not think it sufficiently important to send this man to jail.

Q In spite of the fact that your own Parole Board said that he had not given you his complete criminal record and he had not supported his children—

A Well, I do not know just exactly what they did say. Where is this? Just a moment. Well, I will get it. I know where it is. Well, they said the reputation of the applicant when he lived in Chester County and now he was then living, I believe, in Rumson, New Jersey

Q Do you know his reputation there?

A No, I do not.

Q Well, you took for granted his reputation had changed?

A Well, I took for granted that his reputation had changed because Mr. Alexander, who I assume must be a person of some substance and of good reputation, wrote that he found him to be honest and trustworthy in all his dealings with him.

Q And in spite of the fact that the Parole Board said that he had not supported his family, you still thought he had a good reputation?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The Parole Board did not state that at all.

MR. KOHN: His wilfe did.

THE WITNESS: Well, his wife said that.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Do you believe that he had not supported his family, according to the Parole Agent?

A Well, you could belive it or you could not believe it. I mean very often—

Q Did you see any reason to disblieve it?

A . . . will you let me answer the question as you ask it?

Q Sure.

A Usually when there is a divorce, I mean usually there is some hard feeling between the two people who are contesting. Very often testimony is submitted by the wife or the husband as the case may be against the other party which is not entirely true. However, I would not take that as being absolute in this case because his application said he would like to support his family.

Q Now let us get back to my original question. That is that the Parole Agent said that he had not disclosed his complete record here because he had another offense in which he was convicted of being nude with a girl in a car. Did that have any significance to you?

A Yes, it did.

Q Now do you think that this Pardon Board should foist on this Racing Commission a man unless you know absolutely that his reputation is good?

A The man has lived, to the best of my knowledge and according to the information that we had at our command at that time, the man had lived and exemplary life for the past four years.

Q So all the information you had on that were the two people who were willing to employ him?

A That is right.

Q They might have known nothing about his habits in the community or where he lived during that time?

A That is true.

MR. KOHN. That is all.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Mr. Finnegan, you wanted to say something a little while ago about the use of the word meritorious. At the time you used it, referring to the case as being "meritorious" insofar as listing the case was concerned or were you referring to the actual hearing or the action of the Pardons Board to grant a pardon?

A Well, actually I said it was meritorious. I was assuming that it was meritorious as far as the listing itself was concerned because had we not heard it in June, it would have been impossible to list it for a hearing until September. By that time the racing season in New Jersey would have been completed.

Q And then after you got all of the facts in the case, you followed through on the meritorious part of it, and on the basis of it, you granted the pardon?

A That is right. We sit up there and we listen to cases that really have considerably more to them than this one as far as pardons are concerned. Frequently we will grant pardons if the other facts in the case warrant their being granted.

Here was a man, as I have said before, who never served any time in any prison. The judges who tried the case thought they were—well, it was innocuous enough not to give him a prison term and consequently, a man asking a pardon to make a livelihood, who has never seen the inside of a prison cell, I thought that the case had considerable merit, perticularly when he said he was interested in securing this license from New Jersey so that he would be in a position to support his children.

Q And you would distinguish this type of employment that requires a license from ordinary employment?

A Yes, I do know for a fact that you cannot, with a past record, secure a license in the State of New Jersey at any of the tracks.

BY REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI:

Q Now you do not know, do you, Mr. Finnegan, whether or not he did get the license? Some suggestion has been made that you foisted him on the New Jersey Board?

A No, I do not.

Q You do not know whether he got the license or not?

A I do not.

Q And your action did not indicate that New Jersey must give him a license?

A No, they did not.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q He was not even on parole, was he?

A No sir, he was not.

Q Would there be any point in denying a pardon under such circumstances?

A Well, I wouldn't see any point in denying him a pardon.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Have you had called to your attention any accusations against any Member of the Board or any employee of the Board in regard to having received money or exerting any political inuence with the Board?

A Will you state that again?

Q During the conduct of this investigation, have you had called to your attention or have the members of the Board had called to their attention any accusation against any member of the Board of Pardons or any employee of the Board of Pardons in connection with any case pending before the Board?

A Pending now?

Q That has been pending in the past or is still pending?

A There was a woman in here a week or ten days ago who said that she had given twenty-five dollars, I believe, or fifty dollars—well, twenty-five or fifty—I don't know which, to Mr. Hean.

Q Why wasn't it called to the attention of the Legislative Committee or to my attention?

A Because I believe she told you the same thing.

Q No, she did not tell me the same thing until much later. At that time—

A Well, I saw you talking to her the same day.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: So did I.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q She told me nothing.

A Well, that is strange.

Q Did any members of the Board of Pardons ever call it to our attention?

A The woman was told at that particular time that she should consult you or the members of the Board if she felt that she had anything.

Q What else did the Board of Pardons do in relation to that accusation by this woman?

A We did nothing.

Q Did you have an executive session in which you questioned her?

A We met right here.

Q Who met?

A. She insisted on talking to the members of the Board. I believe it was Mr. McBride, myself, Miss Blatt and Governor Furman.

Q How about Harner? Was he at the meeting?

A I do not recollect whether he was or not. I doubt it very much.

A It was a serious accusation, but we did not put that much credence to it.

Q And as a result, you did not cause any investigation to be made?

A I think the Attorney General told the woman at that time, he said, "Madam, if you believe there is any merit to the accusation that you are making, you should report that to Mr. Kohn or to members of the Investigating Committee."

Q Well—

A The extent of the conversation—let me say this—the extent of the conversation was about three minutes.

Q What did she accuse Mr. Hean of?

A She accused Mr. Hean of—well it was rather garbled, I must say—and I think that in itself, I mean, was sufficient to indicate to us that she wasn't completely rational in the charge that she was making. She made some charge that she gave him fifty dollars or that she gave him twenty-five dollars on two different occasions—frankly, I forget now. I forget even what the case was to be very honest with you.

Q Did not she say she gave him fifty dollars to use his influence with the Board in connection with—

A No sir, she did not.

Q Did you check into the file to see whether there were any letters in the file, as to whether Mr. Hean had written anything to her?

A No, I did not, personally.

Q Did anybody, Mr. McBride, Mr. Furman or Miss Blatt?

A You would have to ask them. I know that I did not.

Q Why didn't you cause an investigation to be made?

A Why didn't I cause an investigation to be made?

Q Yes. Weren't you interested in finding out what the facts were?

A Well, as I have said to you, I mean, that she was informed and here was this Investigation Committee sitting at the present time, and that if she felt she had anything, she should contact you and she should contact members of the Board.

Q Did Mr. Hean advise you whether or not he had received fifty dollars from her?

A No, he did not. He said that he had not. He said that he did not receive fifty dollars.

Q Did he ever tell you whether or not he had written to her at all?

A No, he said this: He said that he had taken twenty-five dollars from her with respect to seeing whether or not her interest had been guarded in an estate case which she was in. I believe she was some relative of a former mayor of Harrisburg. And she was dubious about whether or not another relative was safeguarding the interest of the estate. He went down and investigated that for her and told her that her interests were being guarded and the estate was being guarded very properly. That was why he had received the twenty-five dollars.

Q Do you think it is proper for the Secretary of the Pardons Board to advise people who may have some connection with the Board of Pardons in regard to parole or pardon?

A Do I what?

Q Do you think it is proper for the Secretary of the Board of Pardons to advise people of this kind in regard to matters that may come before the Board of Pardons?

A No, I do not, and to the best of my knowledge, Mr. Hean said that he had not advised her on that.

Q Had he ever written her in regard to—

A Well, I do not know whether he had written her or not.

Q Let me show you a letter dated August 23, 1956, and ask you whether that is not addressed to Ruby, "Dear Ruby"? Is that not on Mr. Hean's stationery, Mr. Finnegan?

A It is on Mr. Hean's stationery.

Q All right. Would you tell us the date of it, please?

A August 23, 1956.

Q And it is addressed to Mrs. Ruby Werner Costello?

A Mrs. Ruby Werner Costello.

Q Is that the woman who camplained to you?

A I would imagine it is the same woman. I do not recall her name. I might add, by the way, that this letter to her is addressed on Mr. Hean's Attorney-at-Law and not Pardons Board stationery.

Q You didn't make any investigation in regard to whether or not he had any connection with any case before the Pardons Board? He told you it was something about an estate?

A Let me read the letter.

Q Well, sure, I would like it read into the record.

A "This morning I was able to get Mr. Theo. Reiber on the phone relative to the situation you outlined to me yesterday.

"I am sure that you realize, as I do, the necessity of our Parole system and that under our State Laws, the Parole Board and their agents have a duty to perform.

"Mr. Reiber assured me that their record indicates that Mr. Costello has settled down and is making a fine record and it is the last thing in the world they want to do, is to in any way disturb or upset the progress he is making with his concern.

"The very object of the creation of the Board by this State back in 1941 was to 1st, supervise and avoid a reversion to a life of crime of any parolee, and 2nd, to help, aid and assist any parolee who was seriously making an effort to 'get ahead' in the world.

"The Board will go to any length to help any parolee get ahead. Keep that thought in mind.

"Now there is this to be considered in the case of your husband. He has returned to the Penitentiary because of a violation of his parole by committing a serious offense in the State of Michigan. He was released again, on parole, in 1952. That is why they feel that for a few years, supervision should be continued.

"It is imperative that Mr. Costello play fair with the Board if he wants the Board to lean favorably in his direction. And so, it is suggested that Mr. Costello promptly visit the office of the Parole Agent and have a heart-to-heart talk with him. Don't let the agent prowl around the place he is employed in order to locate him. It is the agent's duty to locate him and he will make the 'old college try' to do so. Have Mr. Costello go to him and set forth the situation and show him that he wants to cooperate. So, please, have your husband make it his business to see the Agent at once. Even if he must lose ½ a day's work, it will pay off in the end. If Mr. Costello gets the chance to move to Pittsburgh at an increase of salary, I'll bet you a dollar, there will not be put one hindrance in his path of advancement.

"I cannot urge you too strongly in having Mr. Costello see his agent at once.

"You see Mr. Costello signed a Parole Agreement and that Agreement definitely ties him to abide by certain rules. One of the rules is this question of supervision. Don't let the Agent trail him down at his place of work.

"I am of the opinion that if Mr. Costello sees his agent regularly, the agent will be glad to accept his call and report without trailing all over the city of Philadelphia to locate him. The agents have a case load heavy enough without adding to the burden.

"Mr. Costello can explain why calls at his employer or his home disturbs and hinders.

"Let me know the result of Mr. Costello's call upon his agent.

"I have mailed to you today the necessary forms covering Petition for a Commutation of the maximum sentence.

"Pardon the long letter—but I felt this matter is urgent and needs explanatory words."

Letter addressed to Mrs. Ruby Warner Costello from Frank R. Hean, dated August 23, 1956—produced, marked for identification and received in evidence as Committee's Exhibit No. 41.

AJP 4/29/57.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Is there anything in there about this estate Mr. Hean told you about?

A No.

Q Now what was the date of that letter?

A August 23, 1956.

Q The letter you read, Mr. Finnegan, had something to do with the Parole Board, did not not?

A It spoke specifically of the reasons why Mrs. Costello's husband should report to the Board of Parole agent without giving him any undue worry or any undue hindrance.

Q I show you Exhibit No. 42, Mr. Finnegan, and ask you whose stationery that is on?

A That is on the Board of Pardons' stationery.

Q It is dated what, please?

A February 28, 1957.

A And what date was this lady in here to talk to you and the rest of the Board, do you recall? About three or four weeks ago, wasn't it?

A Yes. Two or three weeks ago.

Q Now would you please read that letter?

A This is addressed to Mr. James Costello.

"Dear Sir:

"Your letter addressed to the Attorney General has been referred to me for reply.

"You are eligible, as you know, to re-apply for a commutation of your maximum sentence one year after hearing, which would make it December 1957.

"In order to receive a re-hearing it will be necessary for you to set forth new matter not previously heard by the Board, and then the Board has the right to pass on your petition and withhold, or refuse, a re-hearing. I would suggest that you apply in December 1957 and have your application in our hands on or before the 10th day of October. You can secure an attorney to represent you and I am sure that a third party presentation of your plea might prove more effective than your personal presentation of the merits."

"Very truly yours,

"Frank R. Hean,
"Secretary."

BY MR. KOHN:

Q He says he feels he ought to get a lawyer to get more consideration.

A Than if he personally presented his own case.

Q Mr. Hean signed it?

A That is right.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Now are there copies of those letters in the file of this case?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: File of what case. Mr. Chairman? There wouldn't be.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The Costello case. Well, if these are letters written in connection with this case, copies of all other communications are in there.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It is dated February 1957, isn't it?

THE WITNESS: This is February 1957, one letter; the other letter is August 23, 1956.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: There was an application before the Board in 1956, was there?

MR. KOHN: There was an application before the Board in December of 1956. It was filed on October 23, 1956.

THE WITNESS: Which was the regular time, I mean, for this hearing. This one says Esposito.

MR. KOHN: He goes under that nickname.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Finnegan, do you know whether or not the Attorney General had an investigation made of this complaint by Mrs. Costello?

A The Attorney General is four feet from me. I know of no investigation.

Q He didn't call any to your attention?

I will show you a letter dated April 5, 1957, addressed to Thomas M. Reed, Assistant District Attorney, Philadelphia.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Get his letter to him first. There is one of April 3 in there.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Was there a letter from Thomas M. Reed, Assistant District Attorney, to the Board of Pardons, dated April 3, 1957?

A Yes.

Q Does that start out, "Dear Members"?

A Yes.

Q Was that ever called to your attention?

A No, it was not.

Q Would you please read that letter? If you like, I will be glad to read it.

A No, I will read it.

Q Would you read that into the record?

"Honorable Board of Pardons,
"Capitol Building,
"Harrisburg, Penna.

"In re: Gennaio Esposito
Dec. 1956—#10

"Dear Members:

"It has come to my attention that the wife of the above named applicant has bitterly complained to the Board and made assertions which, if true, indicate a lack of polite consideration by your Honorable Board and its clerk.

"In the latter part of November, 1956, I assigned a County Detective to investigate the background of this applicant and during the course of the interview this wife became very upset and severely castigated the County Detective making the investigation. He then called me from her home and informed me of her complaints whereupon I spoke with her. In the course of this conversation she told me of her numerous important political contacts in high places throughout the State and of the yeoman service she had rendered one of the dominant parties, I believe for the purpose of influencing my opinion. Approximately one day later, she again called me and similarly attempted to impress me with her political importance after which I informed her that I was not interested in her political contacts and asked her to refrain from calling me further. She then said that she would take this matter up with my superior, Mr. Blanc.

"Among other things related in this conversation, she informed me that she was a personal friend of Mr. Frank Hean, clerk of your Honorable Board and that she was also going to communicate with him. On the next day, the applicant herein came in to see me personally and asked me to ignore all of the things which his wife had said in that she was an extremely nervous individual and he hoped that the opinion of this office in the matter would not be influenced in any way by her conduct. He explained that this was one of his marital problems which he had been compelled to live with for a number of years.

"If I can be of any further service to your Honorable Board, please do not hesitate to call upon me."

Letter dated April 3, 1957 to the Board of Pardons from Thomas M. Reed, Assistant District Attorney—produced, marked for identification and received in evidence as Committee's Exhibit No. 43. AJP 4/29/57

THE WITNESS: Now let me say when I said before that this was not called to my attention, I spoke too hastily because the day the woman was here, Mr. Hean did make mention of the fact that Tom Reed had written a letter along these lines, though I did not see the letter at that particular time.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q I call your attention, Mr. Finnegan, to a copy of a letter dated April 5, 1957, addressed to Thomas M. Reed, Assistant District Attorney, on the Department of Justice, Board of Pardons' stationery. Would you read that letter, please?

A "April 5th, 1957.
"Thomas M. Reed, Assistant District Attorney,
"Philadelphia County,
"Room 666, City Hall,
"Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

"In re: Genniao Esposito"

"Dear Mr. Reed:

"I indeed appreciate your letter to me and to other Board members relative to the wife of the above named. In a phone conversation with her brother—Leo Werner—he expressed the thought that she was NOT to be relied upon. Indeed he was rather vigorous in his language relative to his sister's conduct and actions.

"Mrs. Ruby Werner Costello Esposito has been in the Hearing Room of the Investigation Committee for two days—Wednesday and Thursday. So far she has NOT been heard. On Wednesday noon, I asked Governor Furman to call a special meeting of the Board and have her present. The Governor did so, and she 'blew her top' and accused me of double crossing her; that I took $50 from her to see that her husanbd was released from Parole, etc. She stated that I withheld the Parole Board Investigator's report. Well, the file showed that the Investigator's report was before each member of the Board when the case was heard—and my comments on the Analysis Sheet repeated verbatim the favorable comment of the Investigator. That accusation immediately faded, then she brought up this $50 payment. I showed by my little book of fees which I keep, that during the summer she paid me $25 for checking into the Executor's Account of her brother Leo, executor of her father, George Werner—to learn if he had properly administered the Estate. I found that he so had properly performed his duties and made an honest accounting. For my time and advice in the matter I charged her a nominal fee $25. I denied receiving $50.

"Ruby may be back next week. I do not know. The Committee is scheduled to sit, beginning Wednesday 10th, at 10:00 A.M. I would not be surprised to see my 'pursuing nemesis' again sitting in the Hearing Room. Certainly her accusations, false though they be, would make nice headlines in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

"It strikes me that if her husband desires to be relieved from Parole supervision upon the recommendation of the Parole Board at the end of five years of good behavior, it might be advisable for him to curb his wife's activity. I venture the opinion that the husband does NOT know what she has in mind or the effect it might have upon him. At present her brother George is in the Harrisburg Hospital in a critical condition—heart—and she may be using that reason for coming to Harrisburg. However, she has failed to call at the hospital to see her brother on either Wednesday or Thursday.

"Of course I would not write her husband. Any letter would be intercepted and if mailed to his employment address, I might disturb him in his job.

"Any how, thanks, so much for your good letter of 3rd of April, 1957."

"Sincerely,

"Frank R. Hean,
"Secretary."

Letter dated April 5, 1957 from Frank R. Hean addressed to Thomas M. Reed, Assistant District Attorney—produced, marked for identification and received in evidence as Committee's Exhibit No. 44. AJP 4/29/57

BY MR. KOHN:

Q The letter from the Assistant District Attorney was addressed to the Board, is that correct?

A That is right.

Q Did the Board authorize the letter Mr. Hean sent to Mr. Reed in answer to that letter?

A Well, I did not authorize any such letter. I cannot speak for the other members of the Board.

Q Mr. Hean then wrote Mr. Reed that letter thanking him for the letter addressed to the Board of Pardons giving his version of the matter?

A That is true. I think Mr. Reed, I am not sure whether he was up here the day that woman was in the room or not. It could well have been that he volunteered that information to Mr. Hean at that time. That is just an assumption on my part.

Q Just one other question. Did you or any other member of the Board of Pardons ask Mr. Hean to produce any files showing that he had written to this woman in connection with that estate?

A No, not to the best of my knowledge.

Q Did you ask him to do that?

A No, as I told you I think the entire meeting took about two or three minutes, no longer than three minutes.

Q He said, however, that he had not talked with her or advised her on any matter in regard to matters that may have come before the Board of Pardons?

A That is right, and the Attorney General said that he felt that if she had any accusation at all which she wanted to make with respect to Mr. Hean or his reference to the matters that appear before the Pardons Board that she should immediately contact you and contact the members of the Investigating Committee and give them the details of any accusations she wished to make. Later on I saw her talking to you, and I assumed that she told you the same thing and that perhaps you had arrived at the same conclusion we had arrived at.

As one member of the Pardons Board, I want to say that she did not contact me and that she did not talk to me. I do not believe I know who you are talking about.

Q You did not hear her separately after we had gone, is that correct?

A It was pretty public. It was right back here.

Q You knew what her accustations were, but you did not call me or any member of the Board to come in and listen to her story at that time?

A I had no knowledge at all of what her accusations were. The Lieutenant Governor said to me, this woman would like to talk to the members of the Board.

Q Mr. Hean did, however, write her letters in connection with her husband's status before the Pardons Board, did he not?

A Yes. Well, he wrote one letter telling her, advising her, that her husband should certainly obey the rules of parole and that he should not give any difficulty to the parole agent.

Q Does that come within the purview of his duties before the Board of Pardons?

A Well, I do not know. I would say that I would not see anything drastically wrong with him saying to abide by the rules of the Parole Agent and that if you contemplate filing a petition for commutation or a petition for a pardon, as the case may be, that one of the requirements is that the Parole Agent give you a favorable report. That was the gist of that letter.

Q Do you approve of the letter in which he says you had better get an attorney, you will get more justice than if you present your case yourself?

A Well, I think perhaps he should not do that. Certainly I think it is pretty well known that a man who comes up and presents his own case, I mean he usually does a poor job and consequently if he is represented by someone who looks at the case more objectively than he himself does, the case is presented in a better manner. I think that has been our experience on the Board.

Q Did Mr. Hean tell you that this estate was over twenty years old?

A The estate, no.

Q I didn't mean twenty; I meant ten.

A Well, of course, estates can run ten, twenty or thirty years.

MR. KOHN: That is all.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Last time it was up before the Board, it was turned down.

THE WITNESS: Yes, the petition was refused.

MR. KOHN: I think she represented herself, didn't she. Mr. McBride?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I haven't the slightest idea.

MR. KOHN: I meant to say he represented himself.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Well now, Mr. Finnegan, this was a pretty serious accusation. Don't you think this was serious enough that some member of the Board should have come to this committee to advise them about it rather than to let us find out about this the hard way?

A Mr. Tompkins, this woman had quite a lengthy conversation with your counsel that same day.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: And at that point I think counsel should have informed us.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: She did not say anything to counsel about it. That is the funny part of it.

SENATOR YOSKO: Mr. Chairman, you apparently knew about this case before today, and our counsel knew about this case before today. In justice to everybody I think really what should have been arranged was for that woman to be here to testify for herself.

THE WITNESS: Mr. Chairman, may I say this that we did not consider it of utmost importance having talked to the woman. She was evidently suffering from severe mental strain at the time she was talking to us. She was completely irrational in what she was saying. She brooked no interference at all, and we felt that this was strictly one of those people, I mean, who have a tendency to get themselves in print by making wild and reckless charges. And I thought that the Attorney General handled it very well when he said to her that counsel for the committee is here; you should see him and explain your charges and also explain them to the members of the committee.

I think you would agree with me if you saw her on the stand, and if she is permitted to testify, how much credence you would place in the testimony she would give.

SENATOR YOSKO: That is one of the reasons why she is not here.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: She was subpoenaed.

MR. KOHN: Let me answer Mr. Lopresti's question, and Mr. Finnegan's, too. This woman wasn't talking to me for a long time. She would give me no statements. She called me on the phone and she beat around the bush. When Mr. Finnegan saw me talking to her back there, she wouldn't tell me anything.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Didn't her sister work for you?

MR. KOHN: Yes.

You talk about having her here. We had her here three days last week. And here is the subpoena.

REPRESENTATIVE DOPRESTI: She was here three days last week but members of the Board, as far as I know, were completely ignorant of it—at least I, as one of the members of the Committee, was completely ignorant of it until you mentioned it here today. I think this is withholding information from the Committee—something which it should know.

THE WITNESS: I would think that this was perhaps by far the most serious thing that has been leveled in this whole investigation.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: That is right.

THE WITNESS: And to say that this woman was here three days last week and she was not called to the stand strikes me as being something that should be looked into very closely.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Well, Mr. Finnegan, it is just in the reverse. We asked on several occasions last week very specifically whether there was anything else the Board wanted to tell this Committee. We were trying to find out whether the members of the Board of Pardons would inform this Committee about what this woman had done.

We found out the hard way, and it might interest you to know—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You asked the Board? You asked me what?

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Whether there was anything else the members of the Pardons Board had to disclose to this Committee. We asked that on two different occasions.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: You mean that we —and your inference is that we did not tell you about this woman when we saw her talking with Mr. Kohn, this woman who gave an appearance—

MR. KOHN: You do not know what she told me.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: We didn't know what she told you, but she gave an impression right here, right here in this room. I saw her only once. I had never seen these letters. She gave the appearance of a woman really—if you saw her—

SENATOR YOSKO: And I want to say—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: . . . of an excited individual who was really gushing out and terribly nervous.

SENATOR YOSKO: And I want to say for the record, too, that in executive session, we on numerous occasions discussed additional witnesses to be heard, additional cases to be heard, and this matter was never mentioned to the members of the Committee by either the Chairman of the Committee or by counsel of the Committee, both of whom were present.

THE WITNESS: It is hard to believe that Mr. Kohn did not know that since the woman's sister was his secretary.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We first learned about this after the time Charles Smith was here. He mentioned a couple of cases. It was sometime after Mr. Smith was here that this woman voluntarily went to Mr. Kohn, counsel, and disclosed to him that she was one of the people who Mr. Smith was referring to.

MR. KOHN: That was after she had talked to the Board.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Yes, that was after she had talked to the Board here. We then went into an investigation of the thing and found out from her that she had laid this entire matter before the Board of Pardons.

THE WITNESS: Did you talk to her yourself, personally?

SENATOR YOSKO: I am wondering why you as Chairman of this Committee, and why counsel for the Committee, did not inform this Committee as a whole about this matter?

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Well, in view of the fact that I think it is a most serious accusation, the most serious thing that we have encountered so far, I believe the investigation should be continued and that that particular phase should be investigated down to the last ditch.

THE WITNESS: I could not agree with you more.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Neither could I.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: And our agreement of adjournment as far as I am concerned is off until we have aired this matter, because it is a serious accusation and should not be left hanging in the air.

MR. EVANS: I can clarify some of the issues—

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: How about me?

MR. EVANS: . . . regarding her, just regarding her.

(Witness excused.)

JAMES EVANS, Recalled

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Now, Mr. Evans, was she asked to come back here this morning?

A Yes.

Q Did you talk to her this morning?

A I did. I talked to her on the telephone at quarter to eleven.

Q Do you have the subpoena here?

A Yes. If I may just for a second go back to tie up some of the loose ends we have discussed here. As you recall, when this fellow Smith from Philadelphia was here, the attorney from Philadelphia, there were some cases in which I believed he inferred, or maybe even said outright—I cannot recall the exact testimony—there were some payments or payoffs or something of that nature. That thing sort of died down. It did not leave my mind. I pursued it. In pursuing it I came across Mrs. Costello and her husband.

I had a telephone call saying that a woman—no name, no address, no case, nothing—would call me probably some time during the third day of April while we were in session here. As you will recall, I think we had sessions the third and the fourth of April, a Wednesday and a Thursday. So I was aware that a woman may try to contact me. And this woman came into the hearing and sat in the back of the room.

After the hearing was over, I went back to her and asked if she was looking for someone.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Did you then know who she was?

A I had no idea who the woman was. This will sort of clarify it. As I say, I was aware the woman was to contact me. This woman was in the back of the hearing room. I went back to her and asked her if I could help her and asked if she was looking for someone. She said, no. She was, as has been testified here, quite nervous.

She said she wanted to see Mr. Furman, and I pointed Mr. Furman out to her, although I believe Mr. Furman was at that time over in that end of the room talking to some other people.

I then left and came over to Mr. Kohn and said, "I do not know, but I think that woman is the woman who is supposed to contact me. She just looks suspicious or sounds suspicious." He went over to talk to her. At that time he said to me, "I think I know her. I think her sister worked for me at one time." And he went to talk to her.

BY REPRESENTATIVE BELL:

Q Is this the first time you had knowledge of the mystery woman?

A Yes, and even at that point I did not know who she was. I was just suspicious of her. Mr. Kohn went over. As a matter of fact, I said, "You go over and talk to her," and he went over and talked to her. I do not know whether he learned her name, but I was standing a short distance away when she said she wanted to talk to Mr. Furman. And I know that I saw Mr. Kohn within two minutes after and I said, "Who was she?" He said, "She is nobody. I knew her sister," or words to that effect.

Then she left Mr. Kohn and went over to talk with Mr. Furman and Mr. Hean.

Then—I am just trying to recall—she called me. My notes show that she called me at my office in Harrisburg on Saturday morning, the 6th of April, and identified herself to me as the woman I had spoken to in the hearing room the previous Wednesday.

She would not tell me too much over the telephone. As a matter of face, she indicated she did not want to talk to me at all. At any rate, on the 12th of April, which was Friday, Mr. Arnold and I went to Philadelphia and we interviewed her personally. We interviewed her husband personally. We interviewed his employer personally.

At that time I subpoenaed her for the 22nd of April, which was a Monday. She was here on the 22nd of April. We were involved in other business, and it would have taken the whole thing out of context had she been called. I believe she was informed at that time to return the following Thursday. She again showed up on the following Thursday, and we were still involved in—I don't know what phase of this thing we were involved in at that time.

She was informed to be here at 10:00 o'clock this morning. At 10:00 o'clock this morning I was waiting for her. She did not show up. I waited 45 minutes and then I called her on the telephone in Philadelphia. I spoke with he personally. She said she was not coming; she was afraid to testify at an open hearing.

That is what I know about her failure to be here, but I subpoenaed her personally in the presence of Mr. Arnold.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Do you have the subpoena there?

A Yes, here is the subpoena.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Do you propose to enforce the subpoena by contempt, if necessary?

A I do and I informed Mrs. Costello over the telephone this morning that if she did not answer the subpoena, that the subpoena was still in effect and it would merely be postponed from one day to another, and that in all likelihood it would be necessary for us to send down the State Police to pick her up and bring her up here to testify. And she hung the phone up.

Q Now who first called you about her?

A Mr. Smith.

Q Charles Smith, the lawyer?

A At that time he would not give me the name. He said there was a woman—

Q Yes, but I mean that the Mr. Smith who called you, was Mr. Smith, the lawyer, who testified here?

A Oh, yes sir. Charles F. G. Smith.

I did pursue him, understand. As a matter of fact, I think I imposed on him because the accusations that he leveled here, I felt, as Mr. Finnegan said, are probably the most serious that we have had to date.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Did Mr. Smith at any time disclose to you the name of this woman?

A No, he would not.

Q She voluntarily came forth on it?

A I think, as I can recall the conversation, I think Mr. Smith attempted to have her contact me, and she had refused. As I gather it, in my own thinking somewhere, she had made up her mind that she was going to contact us herself, and called Mr. Smith and said that she would do so, but he said he did not feel that he was in a position to give me definite information whether she would or she would not come up.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q The first time you actually saw her was in this Senate Caucus Room?

A Absolutely, yes sir.

Q And then, as I gather your statement of events, she first talked to Mr. Kohn?

A No, she talked with me first. We had a brief conversation.

Q Then she talked to Mr. Kohn.

A Yes sir.

Q And then, afted having talked to Mr. Kohn, she talked with Governor Furman?

A As I recall it, yes.

Q Were you present when Governor Furman asked the other members of the Board of Pardons to step over to see this woman?

A No.

Q Do you know—well, you were not present. I was just going to ask you another question, but you would not know the answer to that.

How long have you known what this woman's story was?

A Since the 12th of April. That is a little over two weeks.

Q Seventeen days.

A Yes sir.

Q When did you get the letters which were produced here?

A When I subpoenaed her in her apartment on the 12th of April. I did not get the letters at that time, but I did read them at that time.

Q And when did you actually get physical possession of them?

A I believe it was the 22nd when she was originally subpoenaed if my memory serves me correctly.

Q And you have had those letters since?

A That was a week ago, a week ago, today.

Q When was it that you first learned the content of what she would testify if she were called?

A When I subpoenaed her on the 12th.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The 12th. All right.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Gentlemen, there is a caucus that now needs this room. We will, therefore, defer further inquiry on this particular matter until, tentatively at least, Wednesday at 10:00 o'clock, depending upon what our Legislative schedule is for that day.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Is there not somewhere else we could go? Mr. Hean would like to be heard.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: The Senators cannot continue to wait at this hour.

SENATOR YOSKO: He can be heard at the next sitting.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: It will get to be an old story by Wednesday. Is there some other room to which we could adjourn?

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Members of the Committee are tied up.

(Discussion off the record.)

SENATOR FLEMING: Just a minute, Mr. Chairman, I believe there is a reflection on Mr. Hean, and he should be permitted to testify. I am sure the Caucus would give us five minutes to do that, won't you, Senator Taylor.

SENATOR TAYLOR: Certainly.

FRANK R. HEAN, Recalled

THE WITNESS: May I say a word in explanation to a very serious charge that has been made by a woman? Her name is Ruby Werner. She is a sister of Leo Werner, ex-Postmaster of Harrisburg, and also a sister of the late George Werner, who died a few days ago, who was Secretary of the Remington Company. She is one of eight or nine children of the late George Werner who died about ten years ago.

She came into my office in August of 1956 on the story that her brother, Leo, had deprived her through shenanigans—and other words she used of a violent nature—of her rightful share of the estate of her late father.

I knew nothing of the case. I went over to the Registrar of Wills' office, checked the account, the inventory, and the other matters that are on file in the Registrar of Wills' office of Dauphin County, to find the story. She came back in about a week or ten days, and I told her personally that that administration of the estate was as fine as you will get. There is not one thing that was improper or irregular in it.

For that service, I charged her $25. Then she said she would like to make an application for the commutation of the maximum sentence of her husband and I talked to her about that; and then I sent her, on the receipt of $2, a set of commutation forms.

The husband came up in December. He presented his own case in a very faltering and a very hesitant manner, and the Board refused the case.

Now following that I heard nothing from her until in early April. She called me on the phone and said that I was a double-crosser and had taken her money and cheated her out of it. I said, "In what way did I do that,

Ruby?" She said, "you held down or submerged the report of the parole agent that was favorable."

She appeared here. I had the folder which you have now. It was quite self-evident that the parole agent's report was favorable. I had so noted it.

When she says that I took money from her to influence the application of her husband for a commutation of his maximum sentence, she is a liar.

I took $25 for independent work, looking into the Registrar of Wills' office as to the administration of her brother's affairs as administrator-executor of the estate of her late father and I charged her a nominal fee of $25. If she thinks for one minute that $25 was influencing —she says $50—she is a liar. She gave me $25. I have a record of it. I keep a little memorandum book of fees received as a lawyer. I have that entered thereon and I would be glad to show it to the Board.

She is telling an absolute untruth.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Now, very briefly, a couple of questions: Was she here one day and did the Lieutenant Governor ask the rest of us to come over to hear her story?

A She was, and the Lieutenant Governor asked the four members of the Board to meet at that table and hear her out.

Q Right in this room?

A Right in this room.

Q And there was no special meeting of the Board other than that little talk we had with her, was there?

A That is the only meeting.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: General, to keep the record straight, you mean the Pardons Board?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: The Pardons Board, yes.

THE WITNESS: The Pardons Board, yes.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: This is the Committee. We use that language.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q Now, was she somewhat distraught then and unconnected in her nervousness, and so forth?

A She made the accusation that I had received from her, I think it was, $50 for the purpose of influencing the action of the Board. She further said that I had double-crossed her in not including in the folders which went to each member of the Board a report of the parole agent that was quite favorable.

When I opened the folder and showed her that it was quite favorable and so noted not only on the report in each member's folder but also on the analysis sheet, then she stopped and began to mumble and carry on, became quite irrational, whereupon the Attorney General informed her to communicate with either Mr. Kohn or the Committee as it sits here if she had anything further to say. She had nothing further to say.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q How much time elapsed between the time you saw her and showed her the parole agent's report and the date you saw her here in the Committee room?

A That is when I showed it to her, in this Committee room, if that is what you are talking about.

Q The time she was here was the time you showed her the parole agent's report?

A Yes, it was in the folder.

Q When did you give her the forms for commutation?

A She gave me two dollars to mail them. I have forgotten the date. It was possibly late August or early in September.

Q And you have a record of that income of $2?

A Yes, I do, upstairs.

Q Do you think you can show that?

A I can show that.

Q And, subsequently, then you wrote letters to her on your own stationery and the Board of Pardons' stationery?

A Yes that was—

Q In connection with her case?

A Well, I would not say that. She accused the Board of Parole of hounding her husband.

Q Well now, was this an oral communication from her?

A That was when she saw me, yes.

Q It was an oral communication?

A Yes.

Q So she wrote nothing to you to which you would have to send a reply?

A No, not necessarily. One time she phoned me, and that is the letter of August 23d.

Q She phoned you and then you wrote her a letter?

A I wrote her a letter, yes.

Q And then you sent her another communication? Did she phone you at that time?

A The one of February 28, 1957. She addressed this letter to the Attorney General and he turned it over to me for reply.

MR. KOHN: All right. That is all.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Did you ever send her a written communication of any kind in connection with your examination of her father's estate?

A No, no, it was all verbal.

Q That was all verbal?

A All verbal.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: We will recess until 10:00 o'clock, Wednesday morning on a temporary basis.

(Discussion off the record.)

(Whereupon at 1:30 p. m. the hearing adjourned until 10:00 a. m., Wednesday, May 1, 1957.)

I hereby certify that the proceedings and evidence are contained fully and accurately in the notes taken by me during the hearing before the Joint Legislative Committee to Conduct an Investigation of the Board of Pardons, and this is a correct transcript of the same.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Mr. Evans, you are Associate Counsel for the Committee. Did you, on the 12th day of April, 1957, subpoena Ruby W. Costello to appear before this committee on the 22nd day of April 1957 at 10:00 a. m.?

A I did, in the presence of Mr. Arnold, another Associate Counsel of the Committee.

Q And this is the subpoena?

A That is.

Q Did you make a return as having served that subpoena?

A I did.

MR. KOHN: We offer this in evidence.

Certified copy of subpoena to Ruby W. Costello, containing signature of James W. Evans, produced, marked for identification and received in evidence as Committee Exhibit No. 45. PLS 5-1-57.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Now, Mr. Evans, I think that you stated yesterday that you talked to Mrs. Costello. What time did you talk to her?

A It was around a quarter of eleven, if my memory serves me correctly. It was before I took the stand here.

Q And was that the only time you talked to her yesterday?

A That is correct, that is Monday.

Q That's Monday, that is right, Monday. And did she tell you whether or not she would appear as she was directed to yesterday morning?

A No, she told me that she would not appear.

MR. KOHN: And questions?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No questions.

BY CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS:

Q Mr. Evans, she did appear on one day last week in response to this subpoena?

A She appeared—she was at the Capitol the two days that we held hearings. I believe it was a Monday and a Thursday, the 22nd and the 25th I think.

Q When she was here on Thursday, was she given witness fee money to meet her travel expenses?

A I wasn't personally present when that happened but I understood that she was given $10.00 to account for some of her train fare for two trips to Philadelphia.

Q Now what did you tell her on Thursday regarding her returning here on Monday of this week?

A I instructed her that the subpoena was still in effect; that is was merely postponed; that she was again to appear before the committee at 10:00 o'clock on Monday, which was this past Monday. When she did not appear, I waited in the hallway out here several times, in the main entrance. I went out and left the hearing room several times and then about a quarter of eleven, I went out and I called her from the committee room telephone at her home in Philadelphia and I spoke with her, and at that time I asked what she was doing in Philadelphia, if she was coming to Harrisburg and she said, "no." I attempted to talk her into coming up here, and at that time I believe I did make a statement to her, in attempting to get her here, that we may have to send the State Police.

Q Now that is Monday, April 29, 1957?

A That was two days ago, yes sir.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Have you talked to her anytime since then?

A No.

FURTHER RECROSS-EXAMINATION

Q Was she here in this room on Thursday?

A No sir.

Q I didn't see her. That is why I wondered. She was in Harrisburg though somewhere?

A She was outside of the committee counsel room. I spoke with her. We were on some other case and I told her to come back the following Monday.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: No further questions.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: That is all, Mr. Evans.

Now, Mr. Kohn, I think maybe you ought to say what happened on Monday, after you got your report from Mr. Evans that she was not going to appear.

MR. KOHN: What we did—I got in touch with the Attorney General who very graciously offered to lend the assistance of the State Police in getting her here and pursuant to that offer, I called the Attorney General to send Sergeant Jackson over and he did, and you and I issued a subpoena which we gave to Mr. Jackson to serve on her in Philadelphia and bring her here this morning.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: And that was Monday afternoon?

MR. KOHN: That was Monday afternoon, immediately after the hearing, yes. Maybe I ought to put Jackson on first.

LESLIE JACKSON, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q What is your full name?

A Leslie Jackson.

Q Did I interview you Monday afternoon immediately after the hearing, Mr. Jackson?

A You did.

Q In the company of Mr. Tompkins?

A Yes sir.

Q And did we at that time issue a subpoena for Ruby W. Costello to appear here this morning at 10:00 a. m.?

A You did. Here is the subpoena.

MR. KOHN: We offer this into the record as an exhibit.

Certified copy of subpoena to Ruby W. Costello, containing signature of Leslie Jackson, produced, marked for identification and received in evidence as Committee Exhibit No. 46. PLS 5-1-57.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q And you did make an attempt to subpoena her?

A I did.

Q And where?

A In Philadelphia and in Baltimore, Maryland.

Q And what time did you attempt to subpoena her? When was the first that you went to her residence?

A Approximately 4:00 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Q And who was with you?

A Lieutenant Knies.

Q And you made a return on that subpoena?

A Yes sir.

Q Were you able to find her?

A No.

MR. KOHN: Any questions?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I have no questions.

MR. KOHN: I will have Lieutenant Knies relate the rest of it.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Your occupation is a Pennsylvania State Policeman?

A That's right.

RUSSELL KNIES, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KOHN:

Q Your name is Lieutenant Russell Knies?

A That's right—K-n-i-e-s.

Q And you are with the Pennsylvania State Police?

A I am.

Q For how long have you been a State Policeman?

A Almost twenty-eight years, sir.

SENATOR YOSKO: Talk a little louder, will you please?

THE WITNESS: Almost twenty-eight years.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q And were you with Sergeant Jackson attempting to serve the subpoena on Ruby Costello?

A I was.

Q Now will you just kindly relate to us what happened in the attempt to serve this subpoena?

A Yes sir, we left—

Q Just keep your voice up, please.

A We left Harrisburg I think just a little bit before 2:00 o'clock and went down to Philadelphia at the address, 5448 Angora Terrace and found no one home and we made repeated contacts at this address, and about some time, approximately 7:00 o'clock Daylight Saving Time, we met with success.

We met James Costello who identified himself as the husband of Ruby Costello, and he invited us in and we told him why we were there, of course. He said that Ruby Costello wasn't there and hadn't been there since Monday. We asked him about what time she left on Monday and he said, "Well it was Monday evening," if I recall correctly.

He said she had received a call from Harrisburg, from Mr. Evans, and had packed a bag and left. So, we asked him if he had heard from her since then. He said, "no," but he had sent a telegram to an address near Baltimore, Maryland where she had a sister living, a Mrs. Stephen Shugard. The telegram he had he said was returned as undeliverable and there was no telephone at that address, and he didn't know what to do but he felt, however, that she might still be there. She may have gone there and might still be there, so we left Baltimore—

Q Philadelphia you mean.

A We left Philadelphia for the Baltimore area at approximately 7:30 or it may have been five or ten minutes either way, and got down to this Edgemere section of Baltimore County.

Q The New Jersey police were with you at that time?

A We had Maryland State Policemen with us, yes, and we were able to locate this without any trouble.

We were admitted to the residence of Stephen Shugard by a woman who identified herself as a Mrs. Baker, a sister of Ruby Costello. Mrs. Baker stated she had just come down from Harrisburg late yesterday afternoon by bus.

Q You mean late yesterday, meaning Tuesday?

A Tuesday, that's right, Tuesday by bus and that her sister was there.

Q That is, now you are talking about Ruby Costello?

A Ruby Costello's sister was there as well as Mrs. Shugard.

Q Is Mrs. Shugard also a sister?

A Yes sir.

Q Go ahead.

A Mrs. Baker stated that Ruby Costello had left the sister's house at approximately 8:00 o'clock, as nearly as she could determine, in a car which was her car she said.

Q That is Ruby's car?

A Ruby's car, a DeSoto, dark green in color and not a new model, the license number she didn't know, and that they had gone with her to Route 40 and she headed in the direction of Philadelphia and their understanding was that she was headed for Philadelphia.

Q Did you go back to Philadelphia?

A I beg your pardon.

Q Did you go back to Philadelphia then?

A Well we sat around to be sure that—Jackson wanted to be sure in his mind that the woman we were talking with wasn't Ruby Costello. He had seen her here and he thought that the woman in the room had darker hair. I mean we were just talking aside there on the davenport, so I talked with her a little further to see for sure that she wasn't Ruby Costello, and she told me her husband was playing at the Central Dauphin High School on Thursday evening. Well I know a little about that. I have a daughter that goes there, and I figured that if she would be Ruby Costello of Philadelphia, she wouldn't know much about an operetta being held at the Central Dauphin High School. So, we really determined in our minds that she wasn't Ruby Costello and so we proceeded back to Philadelphia and we were there about, approximately 3:00 o'clock in the morning.

We looked around the neighborhood for that green DeSoto car and couldn't find any, so rather than wake him up we proceded to our barracks. We were over there again about five minutes of seven this morning, and James Costello was already up and dressed and admitted us to the apartment and told us that she hadn't come back but that he had received a call from her at approximately 9:00 o'clock last night. He said she was calling from Baltimore and he told her that we had been down looking for her, and he urged her to come to Harrisburg and she said, "They'll never get me in Harrisburg. I won't go to Harrisburg." He said she said a lot of other things, and he said that she is highly nervous and very distraught, which was about the way her sister described her to us at Baltimore, down below Baltimore in Baltimore County. Her sister said, "When she left here, she was very nervous, hardly articulate and my sister and I concluded that she is on the verge of having a stroke." I am just about quoting her now.

So, we returned to Harrisburg because we figured that she didn't show up in Philadelphia; we took her husband's word that she apparently had called from Baltimore and we just returned to Harrisburg to be here at 10:00 o'clock.

MR. KOHN: Any questions?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I have none.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: No.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Was it your intent if you had found her to bring her back here bodily?

A Well we couldn't do that on a subpoena, Senator. I think that I could have persuaded her to come, I believe it.

BY MR. KOHN:

Q We had no right under the subpoena—and we so advised—to pick her up and bring her here bodily, but we did ask Sergeant Jackson to persuade her and stay with her and bring her here if he could find her.

A Oh yes, I think we could have brought her here.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: Particularly if you found her in Maryland, you couldn't take her across State lines.

THE WITNESS: Well we couldn't have brought her back with that subpoena unless she said, "I'll come myself." That's it.

BY SENATOR YOSKO:

Q Lieutenant, did her sisters say anything about her being involved in an estate of any kind?

A No, her sister gave us a little bit of a family history, about the prominence of the family. She said that—now wait until I see what she did say. She mentioned something about that. I don't know what she said. She said a good bit. She gave us a history of her brothers, of her father. I can't remember all she said.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE:

Q To your recollection, did she say anything about the relationship between Ruby Costello and the other members of the family and as to whether any of the family had ever been involved in anything?

A Well she said there were nine children in our family and related what had become of them, what they had done and how talented some of them were along musical lines and in other fields. She said that this daughter—this sister was the only difficult one; that none of the family could get along with her. She used that expression, "You couldn't reason with her." She made another statement that, "She has a dual personality"—I know she said that—"and that if you were to attempt to talk her and she resented anything you said, you would be in a violent argument." She said, "We just left her go; she went her own way."

She also told us, "We didn't know she was married to"—she said that—"We didn't know she was married until this thing broke in the paper." Now this is speaking probably about her husband and herself, Mrs. Baker from Penbrook. I believe she was speaking for herself. She said, "We didn't know she was married."

Let me think if there was anything else she might have said. Well I dont know. It's pretty hard to remember. Well she was pretty well shook; she would cry and stop, you know how that is, and we would try and sympathize with her a little bit.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: I guess that is all, Lieutenant.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Mr. Kohn, I would like to have you make one more statement.

MR. KOHN: Yes sir.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Did you give Mrs. Costello, last Thursday, any money to help her defray her travel expenses between here and Philadelphia?

MR. KOHN: No, I didn't give it to her. I know she said something about her travel expenses and I advanced $10 and we got the bill for that. Mr. Arnold gave it to her.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: You advanced that in my presence, under my direction, is that right?

MR. KOHN: That's right.

Mr. Knies, you haven't made a return on this.

THE WITNESS: No, because it was given to Jackson, I didn't do that.

MR. KOHN: We have nothing further at this time.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Now this committee has met in Executive Session this morning and has authorized me, as Chairman of the Committee, to make this statement on behalf of the entire committee.

This committee has met in Executive Session to determine what should be done in connection with the absence of Ruby Costello, a duly subpoenaed witness. Every attempt was made to procure the presence of the witness as related by Mr. Evans and the State Police. It is evident that there is no credible testimony under oath to impugn the honesty and integrity of Frank Hean.

The record of this witness, ignoring this subpoena, will be turned over to the District Attorney of Dauphin County for further attention.

The individual members of this committee may have some statements to make in connection with this matter at this time, and if they do they will now be given the opportunity. Senator Scott.

SENATOR SCOTT: Well, Mr. Chairman, may I first say that I subscribe to the statements as made by the Chairman of the committee on behalf of the entire committee, but I also would like to make a statement as an individual member of this committee, a Republican member of this committee.

May I say that I am certainly very sympathetic with the situation that Mr. Hean finds himself in at this stage of the game, and I want Mr. Hean to know, and I want the public at large to know, that as far as I am concerned there is nothing which has been produced during this particular case or, as a matter of fact, during the period of the entire hearings which would lead me to believe that Mr. Hean is anything but a man of the highest character, honesty and integrity and I sincerely hope that Mr. Hean will have an opportunity later on to prove that my judgment of him is correct.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Senator Fleming.

SENATOR FLEMING: I would certainly concur in everything that Senator Scott said. In my opinion, there has been nothing produced that would in any way cast the slightest shadow on the integrity or the honesty of Mr. Hean. I am absolutely satisfied that he is guilty of nothing in so far as misconduct is concerned.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Senator Yosko.

SENATOR YOSKO: I concur in what both Senator Scott and Senator Fleming said about Mr. Hean, and I am convinced from the testimony that he gave here, from his conduct at these hearings, from his mannerisms that he is a high type, decent, respectable, honorable public servant and that the statement he made that he was paid $25 to look into a State matter is correct and I am convinced, beyond any doubt, that the implication that the money was paid in connection with any phase of the Pardons Board or the Parole Board is a false implication and I trust, Mr. Hean, that anything that has been said here will not adversely affect you in your life in any way or in your practice of the law or the discharge of your duties as a servant of the Commonwealth.

REPRESENTATIVE LOPRESTI: Mr. Chairman, I certainly must concur with the members who have already spoken. Undoubtedly all of us are fair-minded people, and want to be, and we don't feel that so far at least there is any indication whatsoever—and probably never will be—of any improper action.

I do want to call attention to some remark. I can't quote it exactly, but I think it was Shakespeare who said that a person could steal his purse and he hadn't lost much, but the theif that stole his reputation and fled into the night was a very low and reprehensible person.

I want to concur in that, and I believe that the woman who has sought to impugn the character of Mr. Hean is certainly fleeing into the night and I believe that she should come forth and make her statements in the light of day before the public scrutiny and before this committee, if she wants to be a fair person.

REPRESENTATIVE BELL: Mr. Chairman, I concur with the remarks made by the other members of the committee. I also concur in the remark that you made that this matter be certified to the District Attorney of Dauphin County.

We, as Members of the Legislature of Pennsylvania, have the problem of people willingly flaunting the subpoena powers of our committee, and for us to take the action we have taken is a decided safeguard to future Legislative Committees, because when we are set out on our course as a fact-finding committee, we want the facts. We don't want lies, we don't want half-truths and if people don't appear in front of our committees, I think it is entirely advisable to take the action of certificaton to the District Attorney of Dauphin County.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: From the testimony that's on the record, I want to concur in the statements of the other members of this committee. This committee decided to refer this matter to the District Attorney of Dauphin County in order that any imputations against Mr. Hean may be cleared up and cleared up, we hope, to his satisfaction, and I want to concur in the remarks of the other members of the committee in that respect.

Now, General McBride, do you have a statement you want to make?

ATTORNEY GENERAL McBRIDE: I would like to make a brief statement, because I feel deeply for Mr. Hean's position. I know from my experience with the Bar Associations and so forth that here is a man, living in Dauphin County, whose reputation has been assailed and the assailant has not come forward to face the accused in the way in which all of us would insist upon being faced were our reputation assailed.

I try to put myself in his position. I know that he must have had a lot of heartbreak after reading that it was even suggested that he had done an improper act which, if he had accomplished, would amount to a very serious crime and so I want to express my extreme gratitude to the fair-minded way in which the committee and all its members have approached it. When a committee like this, on a matter of pure decency, can rise far above partisanship as this committee has done it is a good thing and it might well be emulated in all aspects of State and National government.

On Mr. Hean's behalf, I can only say that when this thing occurred, he immediately came to see me for advice and wondered whether he should immediately institute a suit which would require that his assailant face him in an open court and repeat statements she was apparently willing to make behind his back. I advised him then that he should not bring a suit at that time, lest it be interpreted as being in any wise an interference with the course of these Legislative Committee Hearings, and we felt that had we done so the imputation could be cast upon Mr. Hean that he was trying to do that and so, until now, he has remained silent except for the testimony he gave here.

I want to assure the members of this committee that I shall most certainly advise Mr. Hean to seek redress in the proper court for what has been said against him and whatever damage has occurred to his reputation, and he will give this lady every opportunity to stand fully forth and face him in an open courtroom and testify to anything she has to say, and if she will not appear there, the ultimate seal of approval upon the falsity and the lack of any justification whatever for these charges will have been finally and irremediably shown and demonstrated.

CHAIRMAN TOMPKINS: Thank you, General.

Before adjourning these hearings, I want to make the reports which we may receive—I haven't seen any yet—and I don't know whether they are in the Joint State Government Commission or not, but I want to make a part of the record for the consideration of this committee a communication we may receive from the Law School Deans; also information the Joint State Government Commission has collected, at my request, in connection with clemency procedures in other States, which I understand they completed before the time I knew you had it and turned it over to the committee, General.

I also want to make as a part of the record, which I think has already been stated here, a letter which will be received from Justice Cohen. I also want to make a matter of record, for the consideration of this committee, all records, papers, figures, minutes, books and any other thing in the Pardons Board having to do with or pertaining to the subject of this investigation.

With that, these hearings will adjourn sine die.

(At 12:15 p. m., the hearing was adjourned sine die.)

* * * * *

I hereby certify that the proceedings and evidence are contained fully and accurately in the notes taken by me during the hearing on the above cause before the Joint Legislative Committee to Conduct an Investigation of the Board of Pardons, and that this copy is a correct transcript of the same.

REPORT OF

PARDON BOARD INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE

to

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

FOR RELEASE

REPORT OF PARDON BOARD INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE

Pursuant to House Resolution No. 1, Serial Number 4, Printer's No. 8, as amended by House Resolution No. 75, Serial Number 80, of the 1957 session of the General Assembly; the committee of the House and Senate, appointed in purusance thereof, submits the following report:

In order to have a better understanding of the basic problems involved pertainent to the inquiry directed by the said resolution, the committee decided that an historical study of the background of executive clemency should be made.

Your committee has made a careful study of the matter of executive clemency and finds the problems of today not unlike those which have from time to time been experienced since the advent of organized government.

CLEMENCY—What it is

Smithers-Thorn, "Executive Clemency in Pennsylvania," says:

"Clemency should be extended in no case unless reasonably deemed to accord with the average common intelligence and general sentiments of the people."

"Clemency should be exercised only when, in obedience to a rational interpretation of common public interest, the case by reason of natural equity raises a presumption that it was intended to be excepted out of the general terms of the punishing statue."

"Executive Clemency should be accorded in those cases only where it would be repugnant to natural equity to permit the law to take its due course."

HISTORY

Executive Clemency has its origin in antiquity, and may best be expressed in a quotation from Sir Matthew Hale (1609-1676), wherein he said:

"When offenses grow enormous, frequent, and dangerous to a kingdom or state, destructive or highly pernicious to civil societies, and to the great insecurity and danger of the kingdom and its inhabitants, severe punishment, even death itself, is necessary to be annexed to laws in many cases by the prudence of law givers, though possibly beyond the single demerit of the offense itself simply considered. * * * And although I do not deny but Supreme King of the world may remit the severity of the punishment, as he did to Cain, yea, and his substitutes, sovereign princes may also defer or remit that punishment or make a commutation of it upon great and weighty circumstances, yet such instances ought to be very rare, and upon great occasions."

After the Pennsylvania Constitution of 1790 had been in effect a sufficient length of time to establish a settled and harmonious cooperation among the three departments of Government, it was observed that the pardoning power was subject to baneful influences which had not been foreseen. History had recorded no parallel combination of a Royal Prerogative wielded by a democratically chosen governor and the vice of an elective one-man pardoning power was revealed only by experience. In the Federal constitutional convention, this feature had indeed been the subject of debate, but no one had seriously contested the expediency of the clause as adopted except as it referred to treason, concerning which there was much debate about leaving it solely in the hands of the President. No material complaint of abuse followed, probably because of the lack of general, direct, and continuous contact with the citizens, and the consequent feebleness of local influence. In Pennsylvania, however, it was different. Community sentiment, intimacy with daily affairs, neighborhood knowledge of crimes committed, familiarity with criminal trials and constant approachability made Governors susceptible to deception, false sympathetic evidence and the obligation or feelings of friendliness founded upon political or personal consideration. The wisdom of the Constitution-makers had not been sufficient to anticipate the resulting abuses, but well grounded and frequent complaints followed within a few years.

The situation became such that Dr. James Mease, a distinguished member of the American Philosophical Society, in an article published in 1820, said: "I have no hesitation in saying that the continual and monstrous abuse by Governors of this great privilege is a very powerful cause of the increase of crimes and that the best code of penal laws that can be framed will be defeated unless it is checked. * * * Governors have much to answer for who thus defeat the laws and offer a premium for vice."

Smithers-Thorn. "Executive Clemency in Pennsylvania," says:

"That imperfections in procedure (criminal) exist is not so surprising as the fact that they are not more numerous. The history of the criminal law reveals a long, persistent and ofttimes discouraging struggle to overcome brutality, ignorance, vagueness and uncompromising prejudice, and it has taken centuries to establish the present enlightened safeguards." * * *

"After every reasonable expectation has been satisfied during the progress of a trial, the question of what penalty shall be imposed exposed the weakest feature of criminal jurisprudence as now administered. It is confronted with popular distrust and uncontrollable personal factors. The greatest diversity of opinion exists even among Judges. Defective laws, inequalities of Judicial temperament, learning and environment and the circumscribed or indifferent methods of investigation make equal or fitting adjustment of punishments under modern methods almost impossible."

The possibility of being deceived, acting upon an erroneous statement of facts, or from a false point of view, was considered a defect in the exercise of the power (Clemency) as contained in the Constitutions of 1790 and 1838, which the people sought to overcome by practically eliminating the personal factor and creating the present Board of Pardons which was incorporated into the Constitution of 1874.

It may be said that modern Executive Clemency in Pennsylvania is in its nature an exceptional governmental power, in derogation of the law, often bestowed for the correction of unjust and erroneous particular results arising from imperfect legislation and the inherent limitations of tribunals charged with the trial of criminal cases. The sovereign people of the State must be accepted as its source.

This committee believes that Clemency is also justice tempered with mercy, and is a vehicle through which a wrongdoer is given the incentive to rehabilitate himself and by his conduct render himself fit for return to society.

While the exercise of Clemency is protected against human frailties and perversity, so far as reasonably possible with finite institutions, it can still be invoked without undue restrictions. Within its jurisdiction lies the power and the right in respect of particular cases to avoid the legislative will, reverse the verdict of juries and nullify or modify the judgments of courts. It represents the sense of human weakness, the recognition of human fallibility, the cry of human compassion. It is a confession of imperfect wisdom and voices mankind's universal repugnance to the irretrievable and the irrevocable. It is the protest of the multitude against unanticipated and cruel consequences of governmental deficiencies.

The complaints, the problems, the experiences, and observations of history are again being heard throughout the Commonwealth. The complaints, the problems, the experiences, and observations, which, prior to 1874, were directed against individual Clemency, have over the years been gradually transferred and become attached to the Pardon Board, which was created as an instrument to overcome such complaints, problems, experiences and observations.

PARDONING POWER—BOARD OF PARDONS

Under the aforesaid Resolution, this committee was "authorized and directed to make an immediate investigation of all actions since January 4, 1950, of the Board of Pardons in conection with the pardon, parole or commutation of sentence of persons convicted of crimes."

Section 9 of Article IV of the Pennsylvania Constitution of 1874 provides:

"He (the Governor) shall have power to remit fines and forfeitures, to grant reprieves, commutations of sentence and pardons, except in cases of impeachment; but no pardon shall be granted, nor sentence commuted, except upon the recommendation in writing of the Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of the Commonwealth, Attorney General and Secretary of Internal Affairs, or any three of them, after full hearing, upon due public notice and in open session, and such recommendation, with the reasons therefor at length, shall be recorded and filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth."

FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

1. The Governor has no authority to grant pardons or commute sentence without first receiving a favorable recommendation from the Board of Pardons.

2. The Governor is not bound by a favorable recommendation of the Board of Pardons; and has the power to reject favorable recommendations and refuse to grant clemency. The Governor, however, can do nothing about a refusal by the Pardon Board.

3. The Board of Pardons is clothed with exceptional and extraordinary powers. Within its jurisdiction lies the power and the right in respect to particular cases to avoid the legislative will, reverse the verdict of juries, and nullify or modify the Judgments of Courts. So far as possible, this power, sometimes known as the depositary of clemency, should avoid all appearance of irregularity, uncertainty or caprice. Their judgment should not vacillate from want of practical knowledge, nor their mercy blunder for want of circumstances.

As an agency of mercy, favorable action should be recommended on merit only. Extreme care should be exercised that no recommendation be made from any personal or political consideration, nor founded upon any favoritism.

Jealous consideration should be given to the rehabilitation of the prisoner, but not at the expense of the preservation of law and order, and the peace and security of the community.

All reasonable doubts should be resolved in favor of the public.

4. Once the Board of Pardons has made a favorable recommendation, and the Governor acts favorably thereon, there is no other Governmental agency, court or legislative tribunal to which an appeal can be taken, nor is there any agency, court, body or person, including this Legislative Committee, with power or authority to reverse or set aside such action. Even the people themselves have no power to overthrow or reverse the action in any particular case. Their only recourse is to retire from elective office those who abuse this extraordinary prerogative, or blemish it with improper motives.

5. The Board of Pardons has no power to compel the attendance by subpoena of witnesses, or oblige them to testify. This power should be granted to them, as an aid in investigating and verifying information presented to them or before them.

6. Every effort should be continuously made to afford every safeguard as to "due public notice" in the publication of place, time and nature of offense, place and time of hearing, and the name of the applicant.

The present system of ascertaining whether or not due public notice has been given in any particular case, as required by the Constitution, is inadequate.

In order to check and establish any such proof, reference must be had to files located in Governmental agencies other than the Board of Pardons.

Without imputing any ulterior motives to the present or previous Boards of Pardon, we recommend that no hearing, rehearing, or hearing on special listing shall be had unless and before advertisement of the same is first had.

We further recommend that sufficient proofs of publication be obtained in order that a copy of such proof shall be attached to the calendar of each session of the Board for each case therein listed.

We further recommend that no case be heard by the Board unless and until such proof of publication is so available and attached.

7. Cases examined since 1950 were found where letters in the file referred to other communications and material which were not, but should have been, in the file, and could not be found or located.

We recommend that all papers relating to a case, including letters, communications, record of telephone calls and personal visitations to individual members of the Board, the Board Secretary, and to the Governor, formal petitions, transcripts of records, testimony, affidavits and reports, whether favorable to the applicant or in protest, should be placed and kept in the file of each applicant to which they relate, and should be open to public inspection (excluding confidential reports from Parole and prison authorities) before the hearing, at the hearing, and after final decision.

We further recommend that a chronological index of applications be installed.

8. The Constitution requires reasons for the action of the Pardon Board to be prepared and filed in those cases, only, in which they make a favorable recommendation. In all cases of refusal, no reasons need be stated.

We recommend that in all cases of refusal reasons should be stated and filed for the guidance of future Pardon Boards.

We further recommend that reasons for refusal be made a part of the confidential record in the file of each applicant.

The decision of one depositary of clemency should be considered to a very great degree as a guide for his successor, for the latter is not as likely to have data so accurate and complete as his predecessor.

9. The power of pardoning and commutation is founded on consideration of the public good, and should be exercised on the ground that the public welfare, which is the legitimate object of all punishment, will be as well promoted by a suspension as by an execution of the sentence. A pardon or commutation should be granted, not as a matter of right, but as a matter of grace bestowed by the Government through its duly authorized officers. It should not be a personal favor, nor a private act of grace, because the individual happens to possess power; but should be granted in the exercise of a public function, or as an act in the interest of the public welfare.

The committee finds that through the years there have been what appear to be attempts to use political or personal influence on members of various Pardon Boards. The committe is unable to state what effect, if any, these attempts have had upon the decisions of any particular Board in any particular case.

10. The Board of Pardons is unrestricted in its power to make, alter, change and suspend its rules of procedure, which can lend itself to temptation for abuse and exploitation.

The committee recommends that no rule of procedure (except where the death penalty has been imposed) shall be altered, changed, suspended, excepted, or become effective, unless and until such alteration, change, suspension, or exception has first been publicly promulgated for a period of ninety (90) days. We recommend that no case be given special listing (except where the death penalty has been imposed).

11. In all cases of offenses against the person, we recommend that the victim, or his or her next of kin, if available, should receive written notice of the application, together with time and place of hearing.

12. At no time has any member of this Committee suggested, intimated, or recommended the abolition of an agency of clemency. Such an agency is a necessary requisite of any civilized government.

We recognize that by the very make-up of the Pardon Board the members thereof have been, are now, and will continue to be approached by influential persons in various walks of life in an attempt to secure favorable consideration for some particular applicant.

With the present case load of the Pardon Board, we should not impose upon such busy persons, who are charged with other official duties, and who constitute the Board, the additional burdens now involved in clemency applications.

There has, however, been a division of opinion as to changing the personnel composition of the Pardon Board in an effort to minimize influence and place the agency upon a more judicious basis.

A majority of the Committee recommends that the presently contemplated Constitutional Revision Committee (or, upon failure of creation thereof, the Joint State Government Commission) take under advisement and thorough study the many problems involved in the structure of the Pardon Board as it is presently constituted and make such recommendations as they deem proper.

A minority of the Committee (Tompkins and Bell), from a study of the plans used in other states, recommends the personnel of the Pardon Board be changed so that it be composed of the Lieutenant Governor and four (4) additional persons; one to be appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, one to be appointed by the President Judge of the Superior Court, and two to be appointed by the Governor. None of the appointees shall hold any other public office. All appointments shall be subject to confirmation by the Senate. All appointments shall be for full time duty, and shall be made for a period of eight (8) years, upon a staggered basis of two (2) years. No appointee shall be eligible for re-appointment. The power of removal shall be with those who make the appointment. Each vacancy shall be filled by the respective appointing power that theretofore made the appointment; and the appointive powers shall have the authority to make recess appointments until the convening of the Senate. The General Assembly should have power to regulate procedure before the Board of Pardons.

A minority of the Committee (Yosko and Lopresti) believe that from their examination of the plans used in other states and by the Federal Government and by other National Governments, the Pennsylvania Board of Pardons is at least one of the best, if not the best, for assisting the Chief Executive in deciding when executive clemency is warranted. Nevertheless, we join with Messrs. Fleming and Scott in the recommendation that the whole matter be studied by the Constitutional Revision Committee or by the Joint State Government Commission.

It is our view that the proposed substitute is unworkable. Since the term proposed for appointed members is eight years, it is obvious at once that some Governors will have no appointees at all. Would any Governor be likely to accept such recommendations by a Board, none of whose, or only two of whose, members he had appointed? The plain fact, therefore, is that a Governor, conscious of his own duty in the premises, would set up his own independent staff to review every affirmative recommendation before signing it. This would mean a needless and undesirable duplication of effort. In no other area of state government is an executive officer appointed by the judicial power particularly where Senate confirmation is required.

13. We find communications and records in the files of various applicants, and allegations, representations, and self-serving declarations made to the Board in petitions and at the time of hearing, some of which, in our opinion, should be the subject of further inquiry for the purposes of verification.

We recommend that the Board of Pardons have a staff of its own to investigate and verify allegations, representations, and self-serving declarations made to them with reference to any applicant.

14. The "round robin" is a written communication from the Secretary which is circulated among the Board members and polls the vote of each member, not in the presence of the others or in executive session.

We find that the "round robin" is used to obtain the position of individual members of various matters of procedure in individual cases before the Board. We are of the opinion that the "round robin" is not a satisfactory method of seeking this information.

We recommend that all decisions made by the Board be considered and determined in executive session, and not by the method of "round robin," letters, or inter-office communications.

15. All applications for hearing should be upon formal petition, signed and verified by the applicant. All proceedings seeking a rehearing, argument or reargument, consideration or reconsideration, or continuance should be upon a formal written application, signed by the applicant, his counsel of record, or by his duly authorized representative.

16. We find that the written reasons made by the Board in all its recommendations are undated. We suggest that all such recommendations be dated.

17. Pardon Boards have upon occasions acted after hearing; and in particular, on hearings specially listed; prior to the time the Board of Parole has had an opportunity to file a complete report of the results of its investigation to determine the accuracy of allegations in the application, or that of its counterpart in other jurisdictions.

Action without verification of the self-serving statements in the application is inherently unsound.

This Committee recommmends that no hearing be held, and no favorable action taken, until such time as a full and complete report of the Board of Parole is submitted.

18. There should be as much reliance upon the clemency of the Government as upon its justice, and both should be exercised with equal regard to the rights of the citizen and the peace of the community.

It is essential that the Board of Pardons be as nonpolitical in nature as possible. The principle of impartiality in the administration of mercy must be preserved. Mercy, the keystone of clemency, and rewards for readjustment of criminals to the mores of society must be nominated alike to all prisoners—the penniless the same as the wealthy, and the man without friends as well as the man with influential connections.

The Pardon Board at all times should be, and remain, an agency of mercy; and not an agency of general jail release.

A minority of the Committee (Yosko and Lopresti) endorse the statement made above and call particular attention to the fact that the record in this investigation shows that the present members of the Board of Pardons were also in agreement with this principle. An analysis of the applications made to the Board for the years 1953 to 1956, inclusive, which was submitted to the Committee and verified by its Counsel, shows that the previous Board recommended clemency in more than twice as many cases percentagewise than the present Board. This is the record:

Year	Total Cases	Total Cases Granted	Percentage Granted
Previous Board
1953	1083	316	39.18%
1954	1281	451	35.20%
Present Board
1955	978	205	20.09%
1956	1067	137	12.55%

DARCY CASE

During the course of this inquiry, the committee and its counsel investigated many cases, principal among which was the one better known as the "Darcy case."

The crime in the Darcy case was committed December 22, 1947. The case was tried and a verdict of Murder in the First Degree was rendered during the week of June 7, 1948. Darcy and his two co-defendants were sentenced to death in September, 1948.

An appeal was then taken to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. An opinion was handed down on May 26, 1949, sustaining the conviction, with one Judge dissenting. Twenty-six exceptions were assigned in the appeal to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania as the reasons for a new trial. None of the exceptions raised any issue as to competency of counsel, the actions of Judge Boyer, hysteria, or the fairness of the trial.

Appeals were then taken all the way to the Supreme Court of the United States, in which all of the several courts upheld the conviction.

An application for commutation of sentence was then filed before the Pennsylvania Pardon Board on January 4, 1950. The reasons assigned by David Darcy for his commutation related solely to his personal history, health and environment. The original application was refused in March, 1951. Due to the fact that the Constitution does not require the stating of reasons for refusal, no reason in support of the Pardon Board's action for refusal appears in the record.

Upon the refusal of clemency, Darcy then filed application for habeas corpus in the Federal District Court, alleging for the first time the incompetency of counsel, the actions of Judge Boyer, hysteria in the court room at the time of trial, and the fairness of the trial. These issues were fought through the Federal Appellate Courts to the Supreme Court of the United States, when in June, 1956, the Supreme Court of the United States again upheld the conviction.

It might be well to state at this point that during the course of all the litigations in the several courts of Pennsylvania and of the United States, the case passed through the hands of twenty-five different judges, seven of whom dissented.

Thereafter, on August 20, 1956, Darcy filed his second application for commutation of sentence, alleging as his reasons, among others:

"1. Lack of effective assistance of counsel.

2. Public hysteria and prejudice prevailing at the trial.

3. Trial before a two-judge court, one of whom was intent upon the imposition of the death penalty."

After proper notice, a hearing was held on the petition on September 20, 1956, at which time the following Board members were present and sat on the case:

Genevieve Blatt, Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Herbert B. Cohen, Attorney General.

Roy E. Furman, Lieutenant Governor.

Henry E. Harner, Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Following the hearing, the Board made its favorable recommendation to His Excellency, George M. Leader, Governor of the Commonwealth, setting forth its reasons, as follows:

"(a) Included in the guarantee of a fair trial is . . . the right to representation by competent and diligent counsel."

"(b) Darcy's counsel in petitioning for a new trial raised a number of questions going into the fairness of the trial, the conduct of the Judge (Boyer) and the atmosphere of hysteria and prejudice surrounding the court room."

On the 29th day of September, 1956, His Excellency, George M. Leader, Governor of the Commonwealth, signed the warrants commuting the sentences of Darcy and his two companions from death to life imprisonment

During the period of time that the case was in litigation in the courts, David Darcy and his companions received numerous stays of execution. Approximately twenty-three in number were granted to David Darcy by three different Governors, in office at the particular time. These stays of execution were granted as a matter of course because of appeals pending in the courts.

With this history of the case, the committee makes the following observations and findings:

1. This committee has no power to reverse the commutation recommended by the Board of Pardons and approved by the Governor.

Even the people themselves, wherein "all power is inherent," have no power to reverse the action.

2. There were apparent attempts to use political and personal influence. This committee is unable to state if the apparent attempts had any influence upon the decision of the Pardon Board. The several members of the Board of Pardons say they were not influenced.

3. Mr. Matthew McCloskey testified:

"Q But you did talk to each one (members of the Pardon Board) separately?"

"A I did talk to each one separately, and I asked them to read that Brief (Decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals in the Darcy case); and that was in June or July of 1955." P. 2233.

"Q What was your purpose in giving to each member of the Board of Pardons a copy of that?"

"A Of course, because of my interest in this case, I felt that there wasn't any way that anybody was ever going to know what that opinion had unless they read it. P. 2232 . . . I just took the bull by the horns and handed it to them and asked them if they would read it." P. 2232-33.

Secretary of Internal Affairs, Miss Genevieve Blatt, a member of the Pardon Board, testified that Mr. McCloskey visited her at Harrisburg and gave her a copy of the Darcy decision.

Lieutenant Governor Roy E. Furman, Chairman of the Pardon Board, testified:

"Q There has been testimony by Mr. McCloskey that he handed you a copy of the Court of Appeals opinion including both minority and the majority opinion, will you comment on that?"

"A Had I been asked that question prior to listening to Mr. McCloskey, I would have said "No." But since I heard him testify that he gave it to me, I know it must be true. I can honestly state that I have no recollection of it." P. 2454.

Mr. Justice Herbert B. Cohen, former Attorney General, and a then member of the Pardon Board, in a letter to Attorney General McBride, dated May 8, 1957, and submitted to the committee for incorporation in the record, says:

> "In regard to the case of David Darcy, there was mention that Mr. Matthew McCloskey came to see me and left with me a copy of the opinions of the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit in that case. I actually do not recall his doing this, but it seems to me to be a matter of no significance for the reason that, the Department of Justice being one of the parties, the opinions were in my possession long before they were presented to me by Mr. McCloskey."

The committee leaves it up to the General Assembly to draw their own conclusions from the above testimony as to whether or not the Pardon Board members were influenced in arriving at their decision.

A minority of the Committee (Yosko and Lopresti) find no evidence to show "attempts" to use political and personal influence. There is only one circumstance in this whole case to show any contact whatever with any member of the Board of Pardons. This is the fact that considerably more than a year before the case was heard by the Board, Matthew H. McCloskey, Jr. handed to each of the then members of the Board of Pardons a copy of both the majority and minority opinions of the Court of Appeals. There was no discussion; there were no suggestions; there was no request, except that the opinions be read. Those opinions presented both sides of the merit of Darcy's claim that his constitutional rights had been violated. The majority then extracts from the testimony of the members of the Board and makes this comment: "The committee leaves it up to the General Assembly to draw their own conclusions."

We ask, if the committee which heard the testimony was unable to conclude that the Board was influenced, upon what basis could the General Assembly, which heard none of the testimony, come to a different conclusion?

4. In the case of Darcy V. Handy, et al., October Term 1955, No. 323, Supreme Court of the United States, Mr. Justice Herbert B. Cohen, then Attorney General, successfully argued that:

(a) Darcy did receive a fair trial.

(b) The action of Judge Boyer did not prejudice the trial.

(c) There was no atmosphere of hysteria and prejudice surrounding the court room.

(d) Darcy was represented by competent counsel.

The reasons set forth by the Pardon Board for the commutation of Darcy, the first draft of which was prepared by or under the direction of the then Attorney General, Herbert B. Cohen (sitting as a member of the Pardon Board) (P. 1906) says:

"(a) Included in the guarantee of a fair trial is the right to representation by competent and diligent counsel."

"(b) Darcy's counsel in petitioning for a new trial raised a number of questions going into the fairness of the trail, the conduct of the Judge and the atmosphere of hysteria and prejudice surrounding the court room."

As to the above, Mr. Justice Cohen, in his letter of May 8, 1957, says:

"More important, however, is the indication that there was something inconsistent about my position in the Darcy case. It was implied that because, on the one hand, as Attorney General I resisted Darcy's appeals in the courts and, on the other hand, as a member of the Pardon Board I voted to grant commutation there was some inconsistency of position on my part."

"The Attorney General of Pennsylvania must perform, as a constitutional officer of the Commonwealth, several functions, each of which may call upon him to exercise different types of independent judgment. As the chief law enforcement officer of the Commonwealth it was my duty to resist Darcy's petition in the courts on the question of whether or not he had been granted a fair trial in the constitutional sense. As a member of the Board of Pardons, I was not confronted with this narrow question, but rather with whether or not clemency was justified in light of the entire proceedings and subsequent events. I think it was perfectly consistent to resist Darcy in the courts and to exercise my best judgement as a member of the Board of Pardons. In the latter function I sincerely believed and still believe that clemency was justified."

The explanation of the former Attorney General, Herbert B. Cohen, in his above quoted letter is at best a feeble justification for the dual role he played in the case.

These dual gymnastics and conflicts may be legal, but certainly are not in the best interest of the People of Pennsylvania.

Because of the possibility of similar conflicts of duty arising in the future, a majority of the committee (Scott, Fleming, Tompkins, Bell) believes that the office of Attorney General should not be included in the structure of the Pardon Board.

A minority of the committee (Yosko and Lopresti) believe that the statement of Mr. Justice Cohen, presently a member of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, is a complete refutation of the Majority's conclusion. The suggestion is made that he was indulging in "dual gymnastics," a meaningless phrase at best and in this instance a most unfair one. It is suggested also that there were other "dual gymnastics" and "conflicts of duty" which remain unmentioned. There is a good reason for not mentioning them. They did not exist.

In further support of the conclusion that the office of Attorney General should not be included in the structure of the Pardon Board, a minority of the committee (Tompkins and Bell) feel that a confliction arose from the multiple duties imposed upon the Attorney General in this investigation.

Article VII, Section 704, of the Administrative Code of April 9, 1929, P. L. 177, imposes a triple duty upon the Attorney General, viz:

1. Legal advisor to the Governor;
2. Chief law officer of the Commonwealth; and
3. Such other duties as may now or hereafter be vested in or imposed upon him by the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth. (One of the Constitutional duties is that of being a member of the Pardon Board)

Section 904 also imposes upon the Attorney General, with the approval of the Governor, the duty to:

1. Investigate any violations or alleged violations of the laws of the Commonwealth which may come to its notice;

2. Take such steps and adopt such means as may be reasonably necessary to enforce the laws of the Commonwealth."

How conflicts can arise from the multiple duties imposed upon the Office of the Attorney General were clearly indicated in the present investigation.

A minority of the committee (Tompkins and Bell) further reports:

The Attorney General made a choice of representing the Pardon Board. In doing so, he placed himself at times in opposition to the investigation of a Legislative Committee; and at times impeded the work of the Committee.

This constituted a conflict with his duties as "chief law officer of the Commonwealth"; and of his duties "to investigate alleged violations of the law." This is not a healthy condition for the people of the Commonwealth, and it would have been better for the Office of the Attorney General to maintain impartiality, not to have directly entered into the proceedings at all.

A minority of the Committee (Yosko and Lopresti) disagree that the present Attorney General was involved in a conflict of duty by virtue of his having represented the Board of Pardons. It must be remembered that the Legislature was undertaking to investigate the action of a branch of the executive department of government. The Attorney General is not only the attorney for the Governor but also for all executive departments, boards and commissions. As such it was his duty to appear, personally if he chose or by deputy, to aid in throwing such light as he could upon the investigation from the point of view of the executive department. Far from impeding the investigation, he actually aided it. At all times the Attorney General invited the Committee to make a formal decision that he was disqualified. It never did and has not done so now. But had it done so, such a head-on conflict between the executive and legislative branches of government would necessarily have been resolved by the Supreme Court. In this way the question would have been decided once and for all.

5. In view of the fact that the issues as to competency of counsel, the actions of Judge Boyer, hysteria, and fairness of the trial were not raised until a late stage of the court proceedings, and after the first application for clemency had been refused, this Committee believed that because of this, and because of information contained in the whole record before it, the Pardon Board should have conducted a more thorough investigation.

6. Statements were obtained from the jurors who tried the Darcy case a considerable length of time after they rendered their verdict and the same was recorded, indicating they might have rendered a different verdict if certain facts had been brought out at the trial.

These statements were submitted to the Pardon Board and were a part of the record which they considered.

This is dangerous practice and we recommend legislation to forbid the same.

7. Considerable was made during the hearings about the more than five years that Darcy, Zeitz and Foster were confined to the death house. This committee recognizes the impact of such a protracted ordeal.

The committee further recognized that the duration of confinement was of Darcy's own making by the numerous court procedures, which he kept in process, and not of the making of the Commonwealth.

Should long confinement in the death house be a reason to warrant a grant of clemency, then every person sentenced to death would warrant a grant of clemency if he were able to litigate his case over an extended period of time.

We do not believe this constitutes equal justice, and the use of such a reason is not well founded, either in justice or mercy.

A minority of the Committee (Yosko and Lopesti) believe that in view of the fact that the Darcy case has been singled out for so much comment it is necessary that the General Assembly be advised as to the context in which the Board of Pardons considered this case and the obvious reasons upon which it acted.

The issue in the federal court on Darcy's petition for habeas corpus was whether the state court has given him a trial so fundamentally unfair that a federal court would interfere even to the extent of preventing a state from exercising its admitted jurisdiction to punish crime. That was not the question that ultimately came before the Board of Pardons.

An examination of the majority opinion in the Court of Appeals shows that the majority of the court entertained doubts as to the justice of the trial. It must be remembered that the trial of one of Darcy's co-conspirators ended on a Friday and Darcy, who had been granted a severance, was nevertheless placed on trial the very next trial day which was the following Monday. Here is the majority of four judges speaking (p. 507):

> "The situation certainly would have justified a decision to wait a while before trying the relator, or else to try him in another community if trial immediately after the conviction of his confederates was deemed inportant. . . .
> (P. 508) "It is established constitutional doctrine that our limited function in correcting fundamental impropriety in state trials challenged under the due process clause makes it necessary that we leave alone many dubious occurrences in state procedure which we would proscribe if they should happen in a federal court."

Can anyone say with fair assurance that the majority of the court was holding that the trial was fair? Can anyone say, in view of this language, that had it occurred in a federal court it would not have been condemned?

Here is what the three judges constituting the minority, speaking through Judge Kalodner, had to say (p. 515):

> "Shaken down to its hard core the majority's position—bluntly stated—is this: Darcy was grievously hurt by Judge Boyer's conduct but we cannot help him because he was hurt on the other (the State) side of the street; otherwise stated, there is no constitutional redress for Darcy despite the fact that he was unfairly tried because it was his fate to be tried in a State court instead of a Federal Court."

In the Supreme Court of the United States (351 U. S. 454), the same arguments were made on behalf of Darcy. He lost again by a vote of 6 to 3 but the opinion of the majority of that court shows again that no affirmative finding was made that the trial was fair but only that Darcy had failed in the great burden he had to assume in asking a federal court to upset a state trial by showing essential constitutional unfairness. Here is what the majority said in concluding its decision (p. 467):

> "Petitioner has not sustained the burden resting upon him to show that his trial was essentially unfair in a constitutional sense and that the several courts which have reviewed it are all in error."

Here again three justices of the Supreme Court of the United States dissented in an opinion written by Mr. Justice Harlan, holding that the trial was not only unfair but that it was sufficiently unfair to violate even the federal constitution despite the fact that it was a state trial which was being reviewed. Mr. Justice Harlan concluded his opinion as follows (p. 469):

> "The reasons for my conclusion are those which Judge Kalodner has well stated in his dissenting opinion in the Court of Appeals, 224 F. 2d 504, 509. We should be especially scrupulous in seeing to it that the right to a fair trial has not been jeopardized by the conduct of a member of the judiciary."

Therefore, the Board of Pardons was faced by this alarming disagreement among the highest courts in our land. Should any accused go to his death under such circumstances? There the judges split on the question of whether he should get a new trial, meaning a second chance either to go free or to establish a lesser degree than murder in the first degree. The issue before the Board of Pardons was simply whether, in view of the entire circumstances of the case, including the doubts expressed by the minority judges (equal in ability and conscience with the majority) he should be spared his life and condemned to spend it in a pentitentiary.

Furthermore, evidence was offered to the Board that 11 of the 12 jurors in the original trial, when polled at a later date, stated that they would not have voted for the death penalty had Darcy been placed upon the stand and had they known all the circumstances of the case.

Added to all this is the fact that these three men had been incarcerated for upwards of seven years, many of which were spent in the death house itself. To have executed them under such circumstances would have been barbaric. The public, if it knew all these facts, would have been better able to understand the decision in the Darcy case and the issue which confronted the Board of Pardons which was essentially different from that which confronted the courts.

The majority of this Committee makes the following statement after acknowledging the fact that Darcy, Zeitz and Foster were confined to the death house for more than 5 years: "The committee further recognize that the duration of confinement was of Darcy's making by the numerous court procedures, which he kept in process, and not of the making of the Commonwealth." What about both Zeitz and Foster? After the year 1950, when their appeals were affirmed by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, they did not file or participate in any court procedures whatever. There was never any stay of execution granted by any court in their cases and the Commonwealth was at all times able and legally warranted in executing them. Yet they were kept alive for years thereafter in the death house. There is no warrant in law, in justice, or in humanity in respect of a man sentenced to death by electrocution to keep him alive for years in a death house where he has not chosen this course and then at will or caprice to execute him when the mood strikes executive power.

If there is one single fact that shines like a beacon in this whole case it is that it would have been a shameful, harsh decision that would have sent Foster and Zeitz at that late date to the execution chamber; and if they were to be spared, what reason could be urged why Darcy should be treated differently? The fact that he had exercised his legal rights? The fact that those legal rights were so persuasive that even though not successful they resulted in six of the highest ranking federal judges agreeing that his trial was constitutionally unfair? Surely it will not be pretended that the exercise of rights given to a citizen by the law warrants a penalty that would not otherwise be visited upon him.

8. The Governor was extended an invitation by the committee to appear before them. Under adivce of the Attorney General, on the principle of separation of powers, he did not chose to do so. P. 2315

Information was voluntarily submitted to the committee "that the recommendations of the Board of Pardons * * * were received in the Governor's office, Harrisburg, shortly after noon on Saturday, September 29, 1956, were signed between 5:30 p. m. and 6:00 p. m. by the Governor at the Executive Mansion, and were returned approved to the Board of Pardons from the Governor's office at 6:30 p. m. on the same day."

When the committee sought to subpoena David V. Randall, Secretary to the Governor, and Richard Heagy, Chief Clerk to the Governor, to testify to more ministerial detail as to time the Governor received same and how long they were in his possession, the Attorney General answered the subpoenas for them and advised that under the ruling of Appeal of Hartranft, 85 Pa. 433, they as subordinates of the Governor were not subject to subpoena process relating to matters concerning the Governor.

At the hearing this ruling was challenged by the Chairman as to ministerial acts performed by the Governor. P. 2320.

On the question of Executive Immunity, the committee as a whole agrees with the decision in the Hartranft case.

A minority of the committee (Tompkins and Bell), however, wish to point out this immunity is not absolute, nor are the courts unanimous in their views. The dissenting opinion of Chief Justice Agnew in the Hartranft case says:

> "On no ground of the Constitution, law, public justice, State policy, or sound reason, can I discover any exemption of any officer in the State, high or low, from the common duty all citizens owe to the due administration of justice. With these views, I cannot consent to rob the Judiciary of its Constitutional power, and exalt the executive above the demands of justice and the safety and welfare of the people. I cannot abnegate a duty entrusted to me by the people, and will perform that duty unsullied by dereliction, or obeisance at the shrine of unwarranted power."

9. Darcy and his confederates, having had their death sentences commuted, now become eligible for further commutation for release into society whenever the Pardon Board and the Governor deem fit.

A minority of the Committee (Yosko and Lopresti) simply wish to add that Darcy, Zeitz and Foster have not been freed but are serving a sentence of life imprisonment. There is no justification for the implication that the present or any other Board of Pardons will further commute their sentences thus making them eligible for parole.
